Members voted unanimously to form the Dominion-wide organization which will retain its affiliation with the parent body in the United States.

A resolution was also passed whereby all race tracks in Ontario will be asked to change the present rule regarding entries of Canadian-bred horses. The horsemen want a Canadian-foaled horse that is given a star on a preferred list of a race to be recognized in all races.

Lottery Wiped Out by Arrest Of Two Persons

Toronto, June 8 — (CP)—Police believe they have wiped out a province - wide lottery following the arrest of two persons, and the seizure of hundreds of letters in a raid on a downtown office building Tuesday.

Charged with operating a lottery are James Kadry, 35, and his wife, Florence, 39, of Toronto.

Police said the lottery was a variation of the pyramid club. The participants bought a $2 purse and got friends to buy purses as well in order to collect a "bonus."

Charts seized in the building showed the lottery operated in Kitchener, Waterloo, London, Hamilton and other Ontario centres, officials said.

Police said Kadry told them he "hadn't decided yet" what the "bonus" would be.

Howe Sees no Reason to Expect Depression

Huntsville, June 8 — (CP). — Trade Minister Howe said Tuesday night in a political speech here that there is no reason to expect a depression in Canada in the foreseeable future. Canada's trade position and the state of the domestic economy gave no reason to believe bad times were in the offing.

"An unfortunate feature of this election campaign is the calamity cry of our opponents," Mr. Howe said. "In 1945 they said the same thing — because we had a depression after the First World War.

"Last year our exports were four times the level of pre-war exports. Total production last year was $15,000,000,000 and I believe the figure will be $16,000,000,000 for 1949."

Supt., Matron Resign Offices

Guelph, June 8 — (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. William Howse resigned Tuesday night as superintendant and matron, respectively, of the Wellington County Home for the Aged.

Their resignations were accepted by the county council at a special meeting Tuesday night.

These developments came as a climax to a series of complaints, which started last fall, against the couple's management. A grand jury report at the Fall Assizes described the home as "more squalid than the county jail." Recently two residents of the home fled from the institution, saying that they were kept locked up and didn't get enough to eat.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THAT HEART OF YOURS

I have just finished reading a little book that has been on my writing table for months. It didn't deserve so great a negligence. It is written by Charles Yale Harrison and is called "Thank God for my Heart Attack." It is both interestingly written and highly enlightening.

This heart of ours is the most important organ in our body. It is hardily built and if given care and consideration will give us all a long happy and useful life. Up to the age of forty this billion and a half pumping beats. It undoubtedly has taken a great deal of another kind of beating as well during this time, so that from middle life on it calls for, and deserves, far greater consideration.

The author of this brief book tells a fascinating story of his heart attack and how he came out of it, and he gives much information to us all that we should know about and heed religiously. A little daily kindness, spread out to this heart of ours, will be repaid in an endless number of ways. More lives are taken away today because of heart disease than from any other cause. And yet less money is spent toward its prevention than for any other major ailment.

What a world of sorrow could be prevented by the wiping out of much of the ignorance that is forever with us! Our automobile runs quietly and sweetly for the first few months or years, but when it has travelled for a hundred thousand miles or so, it begins to have some wheezes and begins to warn us of wear and of its time running out. It's the same with this heart of ours. But if we are informed about it construction and use, and how to care for it, it will serve us well to the very end.

Nervous tension, refusal to give your heart periodic rests worry, and a failure to take time off, and to relax, are some of the things that grossly punish your heart. It can't talk back—but it can act back! And this acting often comes suddenly and without warning. Take heart always. Better still, take care of that heart of yours!

NEURALGIA OF THE HEART

Please print your version of neuralgia of the heart in Mon. Tues. Wed. or Thurs. paper, as we go visiting the weekend.... (Mrs. C. M. E.)

Neuralgia means nerve pain or ache.

The nerves of the heart are not sensory nerves, so there would be no pain or ache if anything were wrong with them. The heart does not have pain sensation. Anesthetize the chest wall with an injection of a local anesthetic and you can puncture, operate on or stitch the heart without giving the patient any pain.

In most instances of "neuralgia of the heart" there is nothing wrong with the heart, but just some irritation, usually reflected, of the senory nerves of the chest or abdominal wall—the intercostal (between the ribs) nerves or their roots in the spinal cord. Simple intercostal neuralgia is what really ails many a person who thinks his or her trouble is in the heart, the stomach, the appendix, the pleura (when the pain is felt in the side) or the kidneys.

From my own experience I learned that acute intercostal neuralgia, with constant or paroxysmal pain in one side, aggravated by coughing, sneezing, deep breathing or movements of head and trunk, closely resembles and is easily mistaken for pleurisy—a snap diagnosis which perhaps satisfies the credulous patient but not the conscientious physician, who must hear a fraction rub or other change in the breathing sounds and find elevation of body temperature to confirm the diagnosis.

More than once when I was serving time as an honest doctor I was egregiously misled by the atrocious type of intercostal neuralgia that proves to be just the premonitory stage of herpes zoster (shingles). Such face-reddening experience made me feel a trifle piqued at Olser, because the "doctors' bible" (Practice of Medicine) didn't even mention this pitfall in the chapter on pleurisy. The reddening produced by counter-irritants applied to the chest, side or flank in such cases when the lancinating pain is mistaken for pleurisy is not confined to the patient's skin when a crop of wee herpetic blisters (shingles) appears in the affected area.

Excessive cigaret smoking, particularly by women, is a common cause of "neuralgia of the heart" and of angina-like distress or pain under the sternum (breastbone) with palpitation. In any such case the sufferer must realize that it is of no great importance to "rid the system of nicotine"—say by refraining from smoking for 24 hours, more or less; it takes months, not hours or days, to repair the damage done by tobacco—if repair is still possible. Therefore smoking must be stopped for at least two or three months to determine how much restoration of health is possible.

For temporary relief of neuralgia (nerve pain or ache) of any kind a single dose or at most two doses of aspirin (the cheapest brand your druggist has, for all aspirin is the same) is probably the least dangerous analgesic or pain-killing medicine one can take without medical advice. If I had such ache or pain I'd hesitate to take even five grains, much less ten grains or aspirin unless I could lie down and rest for a few hours while under the effects of the medicine. But then, I value my life and health more highly than a lot of wiseacres value theirs. As for the dozens of ache or pain or fatigue or worry or anxiety or fear or sense deadening nostrums containing acetanilid, phenacetin or other coaltar derivative pain-killer as the chief ingredient, in my opinion it is a wicked fraud on the people that the federal government permits indistriminate sale of such poisons yet demands a "poison" label on a vial of iodine for first aid disinfection of minor wounds. There are many deaths from acetanilid, usually taken in some "harmless" nostrum, but I have yet to hear of an instance of poisoning by this mild tincture of iodine which is expressly intended for popular use as a first aid disinfectant or "antiseptic."

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Inoculation of Malaria

Red Cross refused to accept blood donation when they discovered the donor had taken quinine for a light case of malaria while he was in the South Pacific a year before. I was told by a doctor that the reason might be because quinine tends to cause anemia. (J. G. A.)

Answer—If anything, quinine tends to benefit anemia. The man was not a safe blood donor because the Red Cross physician properly feared his blood might still contain the malaria plasmodia and so give the recipient malaria.

Allergy

The calcium and D you recommend in your allergy pamphlet brought me wonderful relief. Should I continue with it any longer? I wondered if my system is now sufficiently saturated with it to offset sensitiveness through the season, which begins early in August...I think I am sensitive to grass pollens principally. (C. M.)

Anwer—Resume taking it two or three weeks before the season arrives. Continue it up until the first frost. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet on Hay Fever. If your allergy takes [illegible] form, ask for pamphlet [illegible] Allergy. If you want both, inclose ten cents.

$7,000,000 Spent To Assist Vets Kiwanians Told

"More than $7,000,000 has been spent by the Federal government in assisting veterans in nine counties from Brockville to Lindsay," stated Doug Marshall official of the Department of Veterans Affairs in Kingston, in an address to the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club at their club rooms Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Marshall explained to the members that his department acts in the administration of all the legislation passed with respect to the veterans.

"Our job is to look after veterans of both World Wars and any others that require assistance", he continued. "We even have some veterans of the Fenian Raids who are being looked after", he said.

The speaker pointed out that the department, originally was designed to administer the Veterans Rehabilitation Act but has been extended to render service to veterans in a variety of ways through its many departments. Now it has separate offices for the older veterans, a social service division, an employment service, a consultation service, and a branch for the administration of the Veterans Allowance Act.

We use community services when they are available," the speaker said, "to avoid duplication of service."

"Much of the money spent by the department in answer to 55,000 applications for aid, has gone to assist veterans in the purchase of homes. We have assisted in the purchase of 2,372 homes in the nine counties, have set up 5,000 veterans in business, and negotiated 220 loans to the value of $385,000. Veterans insurance has been issued to 370 qualified applicants to a value of $1,134,000.

The Department is following the careers of those who have been given assistance because it is genuinely interested in them," the speaker stated.

Mr. Marshall read a typical case history of a veteran to illustrate the work being done with them.

The speaker was introduced by Don Lafrance and thanked by Ed Logan. Harold Carruthers led a rousing sing-song accompanied on the piano by Phil Huddleston.

Porter Issues Directive on Act Enforcement

Toronto, June 8 — (CP)—Attorney - General Porter Tuesday issued a directive to Crown Attorneys, municipal councils and provincial police emphasizing the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act, particularly in summer resort areas.

As a matter of general policy, consent to prosecute, given by the Attorney General, will not be given where grocery stores and butcher shops stay open at summer resorts because lack of refrigeration makes it necessary for local cottagers to purchase perishable goods on Sundays.

The same applies to souvenir stands, ice cream booths, hot dog and refreshment stands, sale of cigarets, cigars and tobacco, rental of boats, canoes, horses, bicycles, rides and airplanes and Sunday excursions.

But consent to prosecute will be given in the case of wayside markets operating on Sunday except for wayside stands operated by a farmer, members of his family or his particular farm help for sale of produce grown on his own farm.

All commercial concessions and amusements with the exceptions mentioned must be closed on Sundays.

WEDDINGS

HOWES—GRAY

St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday, June 4th at 2.30 p.m., when June Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, Massassaga, became the bride of John William Howes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Howes, Belleville . Archdeacon the Venerable Arthur Smith, officiated, before an altar banked with purple and white iris, ferns and white snapdragons.

Mr. Ernest Wheatley presided at the console of the organ and rendered the customary wedding music.

The soloist, Mrs. M. R. Davidson, who was becomingly attired in a floor length gown of blue crepe and wearing a corsage of pink roses, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her gown of white slipper satin, floor length with long train and having a nylon yoke frilled at waist and shoulders. The sleeves were in Queen Ann style and the full length embroidered veil of tulle illusion was caught to a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of Bettertime roses and stephanotis.

Miss Bernice Stoneberg, Belleville, was matron of honor, wearing a floor length gown of pink moire taffeta, and carrying an arm bouquet of Rapture roses.

Miss Hilda Long, Shannonville, was senior bridesmaid, and wore a floor length gown of blue moire taffeta, with matching shoulder length veil, and matching halo of flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of Pink Delight roses.

Miss Jean Vader, Massassaga, was junior bridesmaid and wore a floor length gown of turquoise moire taffeta, with matching shoulder length veil of tulle and matching halo of flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of Mrs. Roosevelt roses.

Mr. Jack Gray, Massassaga, and brother of the bride, was groomsman and Mr. Garnet Jones, Belleville, and Mr. Merle McKerrow, also of Belleville, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at St. Thomas' Parish Hall, Belleville, which was suitably decorated with pink and white streamers, the centre of attraction being the bride's table with its beautiful three-tiered wedding cake and at each end the silver candelabra having five lighted tapers, the bride's mother, in a blue crepe gown with lace trimming, gray accessories, and corsage of red roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a grey crepe gown with embroidered trimming, black accessories and corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Welland, and Buffalo, the bride chose a wine gabardine suit with navy accessories, and corsage of white gardenias. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Howe will reside in Massassaga, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were from—Toronto, Welland, Trenton, Picton and Shannonville.

HEATH—PEARSALL

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church on Saturday, May 21st., when Mrs. Eva Viola Pearsall was united in marriage to Roy Oakley Heath, of Belleville.

Work has been progressing on the new diamond at the Memorial Centre which is already adding to the attractiveness of the grounds.

B. of L.E. Hall, Pine Street, Scene Of Delightful Tea

A splendid June tea was held last Friday from 3-6 p.m., in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' Hall, Pine Street, which was prettily decorated with white streamers which crossed the hall, ending in pink bows. Around the room were placed baskets of red peonies, white spirea and iris. On the tables, at the entrance to the tea room, were more baskets of red peonies, and at the end was the lovely gate-legged tea table with its beautiful Scotch lace cloth, centred with a silver bowl filled with sweetpeas and ferns, and flanked with silver candelabra with pink tapers.

The guests were received by the President, Mrs. L. Grey, and Mrs. R. Muirhead, while Mrs. N. C. Fisher and Mrs. M. J. Boyd invited the guests to the tea room.

Those who poured were Mrs. Jas. Reid, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, Mrs. D. Fisher, Mrs. H. Quinsey Mrs. E. Taylor, Mrs. G. Gallagher while Mrs. H. Vanstone, Mrs. S. Maxwell, Mrs. E. Pigden, Mrs. A. Clarke, and Mrs. H. Batchelor assisted in serving.

Replenishing were—Mrs. E. Hall, Mrs. G. Wilson and Mrs. Jerome, and looking after the tea table were Mrs. N. Cathers, Mrs. A. Buck, and Mrs. J. Hart.

The home-cooking table was very attractive with its white table cloth, its pink decorations, and lovely basket of flowers, surrounding which was a splendid array of delectable cakes, pies, tarts, etc.

During the afternoon, Mrs. J. Ferris and Miss Geraldine Jerome entertained the guests with splendidly rendered piano selections.

Those who convened the home cooking table were—Mrs. H. Brown, and her co-convener, Mrs. P. Kerr. Of the tea itself, Mrs. N. C. Fisher and her co-convener, Mrs. M. J. Boyd. The treasurer was Mrs. Crozier.

MARMORA

Golden Wedding Attended by Friends, Neighbors

Marmora. — Relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Davidson, 8th Concession of Marmora Township, paid them a visit on Tuesday evening to join with them in their golden wedding celebration. They were married in the old Methodist parsonage on Burstall and Matthew Streets, Marmora, on June 7, 1899, by the Rev. Robert McCulloch, resident pastor of the Marmora Methodist Church at that time. The witnesses were Mary Green, now Mrs. Mary Brownson and John Phillips now deceased.

Mr. Davidson is the son of the late George Davidson, who came to this country from the Newcastle district of England and after residing for a short time in Paris, Ontario, was attracted as a miner to the Williams Gold Mine, which was operating at that time near Deloro. He later worked at the Malone Gold mine a few miles distant and finished his mining career with employment with the Deloro Mining and Reduction Company.

The greater part of William Davidson's life has been spent as an agriculturist but for some years he did a little mining in Northern Ontario. Forty years ago he added threshing to his farm duties, and had quite a large clientele in the township .

His wife, Martha Davidson, is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Lee, of Madoc Township, who came to Canada from the West Bromwich district in England, where Mrs. Davidson was born. Like her husband, she has lived an industrious life, and both are held in high esteem in the community in which they live.

For a number of years, Mr. Davidson was a trustee on the Board of Marmora S.S. No. 1. He has also been a member of Marmora A.F. and A.M. 222 for many years. Both are members of St. Andrew's United Church. For the past 29 years, they have lived on the farm first owned by William Paget, an old English soldier, who erected the residence thereon and became renowned in his day as the shoemaker of the district, who made shoes for both sexes.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Davidson are George, who is a councillor on Marmora and Lake Township council; William, who operates a service station on No. 7 Highway, at the eastern end of Marmora Township; Mrs. Henry Wellman, (Martha), Rawdon Township, and John, who with his wife, and young son, William, resides with his parents.

"VEL MAKES SPRING HOUSECLEANING EASIER"
Says Mrs. A. Fleming, Victoria, British Columbia
"I have just finished my housecleaning and I'm really thrilled about the way VEL helped me wash windows, woodwork, venetian blinds—even upholstery. For years I have been trying everything for washing my venetian blinds, without much success. Then this year I tried VEL. What a surprise...the grease and dirt seemed to fall off ... and VEL is so easy to use . . . I just wash with a cloth dampened in a VEL solution then wipe dry and the job is done, without rinsing and without leaving a mess all over the sill."

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Foxboro.— The June meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Murney Reynolds with over 50 in attendance. Mrs. C. Wilson was in charge of the meeting after quiet music was played by Mrs. I. F. Eggleton. The theme of the meeting was "Keeping the Lord's Day".

Miss Clarke read verses on the ten commandments. Mrs. A. Shorten responded with a solo.

A pleasing duet was given by Mrs. M. Shetlor and Mrs. Ewart Sills; Mrs. Bernard Hollinger gave a reading and prayers were offered by Mrs. Scott, Mrs. C. Shorey, Mrs. G. Priest and Mrs. W. Wickett.

M... W. Scott then took charge of the business when different reports were given and Miss E. Gowsell spoke on "Hospitalization"; Mrs. E. Tummon and Mrs. P. Kilpatrick will have charge of the July meeting.

Miss Gowsell read an address to Mrs. A. Shorten and on behalf of the ladies she was presented with a large Kenwood blanket for which Mrs. Shorten made a gracious reply. Mrs. Shorten will be greatly missed as she leaves the community. She was always a most willing and capable worker both in the W.M.S. and W.A. groups. A social time was enoyed while refreshments were being served.

CANNIFTON W. M. S.

The regular meeting of the Cannifton W.M.S. was held on Thursday last, at the home of Mrs. Roy Pound with the president, Mrs. Harry Twiddy, presiding.

The meeting opened with the Worship Service, the theme being "Keeping the Lord's Day". The business part then followed.

Mrs. G. Brenton, group leader, then took charge. Opened by the meditation from the Missionary Monthly "Christian Stewardship". The Secretary, Mrs. J. Williams, gave a reading on that subject. Mrs. Mills, temperance secretary, gave a lovely reading on "Temperance", followed by a reading by Mrs. C. Bird on "Displaced Persons".

Mrs. G. Brenton gave short story on "What Do We Want?" She said "Do we want a new car, more than a new world? Are we willing to sacrifice for a new and better world like we sacrifice for a new car?" After another story by Mrs. G. Brenton dainty refreshments were served by the ladies.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church was held on Thursday last with 30 members and visitors in attendance, as well as children, at the home of Mrs. Frank Doxtator.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Damon Hinchey, and Mrs. Doxtator graciously welcomed all to her home. Several cards were read voicing thanks from bereaved members for cards of sympathy received during their bereavement and a letter from the literary department pertaining to the sale of the Blue book. The minutes were also given by the secretary, Mrs. W. D. Robertson of the last meeting, and adopted as read.

The treasurer, Mrs. Everett Stratton, reported that $14 had been cleared from the sale of home cooking held on the market place recently. The roll call brought forth a fine response of verses on "Love".

Mrs. Archie Greatrix told in her own words, more interesting facts about the life of Mr. and Mrs. Stam, United States missionaries to China, who were murdered a few years ago by the communists of that country.

Mrs. Orval Stratton, group leader, took charge of the program from the Missionary Monthy, the theme being "Keeping the Lord's Day". Bible readings on this subject were given by Mrs. Claude Clarke, Mrs. Damon Hinchey and Mrs. Percy Ray.

Mrs. Orval Stratton expressed her thanks to all of her group who had helped with the meetings, and kindly offered her home for the July meeting.

Toys, games, and hoops were received by Mrs. Damon Hinchey, supply secretary, to be sent in as this year's portion for the work.

After the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and thanks expressed to Mrs. Doxtator for her kind hospitality.

KINGSTON ROAD W.A.

The June meeting of Kingston Road United Church Woman's Auxiliary, was held at the home of Mrs. D. MacDonald, Herchimer Avenue. The president, Mrs. Walkom, conducted the devotional period. Mrs. Gazley read the minutes of last meeting. Roll Call was answered by telling of an enjoyable trip which was very interesting.

It was decided to give a donation to the "Red Shield". Mrs. M. La Rue took over and introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. I. L. Moore, her topic being "Travel". Mrs. Moore gave an interesting talk of her airplane trip from Australia to Canada, which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. W. La Rue, on behalf of the ladies, thanked Mrs. Moore for her splendid address.

Mrs. M. La Rue gave a reading "My Home Town".

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. G. Weymark and Mrs. Wilson.

Club Activities

U. C. FELLOWSHIP GROUP

Frankford.— The Fellowship Group of the W.A. of Frankford United Church met at the home of Mrs. G. W. Dickson, Wednesday evening. The meeting opened with the President, Mrs. G. Carlisle reading an article on "Love for Our Home". A letter of thanks from Mrs. G. Montgomery was read. Roll call showed a good attendance. It was announced that $30 had been raised from the sale of home baking held in May. Another bazaar will be held in November. It was decided that a picnic will be held in the park on June 29.

The program consisted of readings, "Something Missing" by Mrs. A. Stickle; "Victory Garden" by Mrs. D. Acton; "Neighbor Man", by Mrs. G. Carlisle; a vocal duet by Mrs. P. Hubble and Mrs. N. Nelson, accompanied by Mrs. L. Frost. A jumbled words contest was won by Mrs. H. Terry; a reading, "June" was read by Mrs. Budd Patrick; a piano duet, "Trumpeteer", was given by Mrs. Charlesworthy and Mrs. L. Frost; a reading, "Spring Madness", was given by Mrs. F. Foster; a reading, "June Beauty", by Mrs. H. Montgomery, was followed by a vocal solo "Rose of Tralee", by Beverly Acton. A contest of flowers, was won by Mrs. S. Osterhout, and Mrs. P. Bell. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. G. W. Dickson, Mrs. D. Acton and Mrs. F. Foster. A lucky plate prize was won by Mrs. N. Nelson.

RAWDON

Wide-a-Wake S.S. Class Present Gift of Tea Set

Rawdon.—About forty members of the junior and senior groups of Wellman's Wide-a-Wake Sunday School Class were entertained to a special party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Morton, on Friday evening in honor of Wellington and Lucille Kosobucki, members of the class, who were married recently.

The house was decorated in white with the class colors of brown and yellow and beautiful bouquets of flowers.

The bride and groom were given seats of honor and Mr. Gerald Clancy, class president, presided over an interesting program of readings, solos and music.

The teacher of the senior group read an appropriate address and Messrs. Jim Pollock and Edgar Graham presented the newlyweds with a 21-piece china breakfast set.

Wellington and Lucille both graciously replied, and thanked their fellow class members for the lovely gift, and invited all to visit them in their new apartment as soon as they were settled.

The hostess and several of the group served appetizing refreshments, and all enjoyed an evening of fun and merriment with good wishes extended to Lucille and Wellington, as they departed homewards.

Women's Institute

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

The June meeting of the Tyendinaga East W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Waddingham, on Friday afternoon last and took the form of a 20th anniversary party.

The president, Mrs. Cameron Russell, presided, and extended a welcome to the guests which included several of the charter members of the Institute, and the district president, Mrs. F. Leslie. The roll call was answered by "Why I Like to Live in Canada". The minutes and correspondence were read by the secretary, Miss Irene Mowers.

It was decided to ask for the short course, "Modern Dressmaking". Current events were given by Mrs. G. Provins.

The district president, Mrs. T. Leslie, was introduced by the president, and spoke briefly and congratulated the Institute on their success and also extended greetings on behalf of Melrose Institute, as well as giving a demonstration on the re-finishing of pictures.

Mrs. C. J. Akey, who was the first president of the Institute gave the story of the founding of the Tyendinaga East W.I., while Mrs. F. Hutchinson, citizenship and education convener, had charge of the program.

A reading "Queen Mary", was given by Mrs. B. Kimmerly. Mrs. H. A. Winter gave a fine reading on "The One She Adored" which was followed by community singing. A paper on "Citizenship" was given by Mrs. G. Provins. Mrs. Hutchinson then conducted a musical contest, which was won by Mrs. R. McFarlane and Mrs. R. Tucker.

Following this delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee, from a beautifully decorated dining table centred with a birthday cake, which was topped with 20 candles and the first president, Mrs C. J. Akey was honored by being invited to blow out the candles.

Graceful Bareback Riders Featured With Robbins Bros. Circus Next Week

Probably no circus in America today presents such an array of outstanding men and women bareback riders from the viewpoint of beautiful horses, elaborate wardrobe and agile and graceful performers as the noted Conley Family of internationally - famous bareback riders who will appear at all performances with the Robbins Bros. 3 ring circus and travelling zoo which is slated to appear in this city on June 14th at the Station and Cemetery St. circus grounds. This famous circus, according to all advance notices, is greatly enlarged in all departments for their 1949 tour.

Prewar Prices

The Robbins Bros. management announce further that prewar prices to the big Circus and annex will prevail for the two performances. Although performances are scheduled for 2 and 8 p.m. the doors to the main circus will open an hour earlier for all performances thus enabling the early comers to view the wild animals and listen to the circus concert band program under the leadership of Professor Ellis Gore.

The roster of the big circus program is too lengthy to elaborate on, but such famous circus stars as the Stanleys, the famous Morales Family, featuring Felix Morales in his hair raising slide for life balancing on his head from the dizzy heights of the big top.

Miss Gladys Wallace exhibiting her hair raising subjugation of male and female African lions. Miss Patricia Lowery, prima donna of the dramatic and concert stage. Jerry Lund and his highly trained troupe of Kentucky - bred high school and dancing thoroughbred horses. Captain Bill Woodcock and his exhibition of elephant training, exhibiting the world renowned Robbins Bros. herd of performing pachyderms. Manuel Baragan in sensational feats of hand and head balancing, added to the already mentioned list are a score or more acts who have won fame in the circus arena.

Beautiful Opening Number

The main circus performance will open with the beautiful spectacle of "Alice in Jungleland" in which all the performers and the wild and domestic animals will appear. This spectacle is an extravaganza with magnificent lighting effects and elaborate wardrobe featuring Miss Patricia Lowery, the songstress of the "big tops".

UNWANTED "DOCTOR"

Karro, South Africa(CP)—Patients shrieked when an escaped circus elephant stumbled into a hospital ward here. A surgeon persued the pachyderm to leave peaceably by offering oranges. In enteriing it smashed two windows and flattened a wire fence.

ALCOHOLIC TAG

Colchester, England (CP)—Rt. Rev. F.D.V. Narborough, Bishop of Colchester, said his cat, originally christened Sherry, had been renamed at the suggestion of a clergyman. It was called Shandy the popular British mixture of beer and ginger ale.

CATERPILLAR EPIDEMIC

Londoon (CP)—Visitors to country areas round London recently found themselves cornered by small green caterpillars falling from trees. A long dry spell was believed responsible.

SHEEP FLOCKS DEPLETED

Harrogate, England (CP)—Farmers on North Yorkshire moors counted their sheep this year and found they were some 15,000 short compared with 1946 flocks. Marauding dogs and storms played a part in deaths.

Install Services Before Houses Are Constructed

The Mayer Construction Company, which recently has completed a number of homes in the Parkwood Heights district, will wait for the city to commence installation of services in the county home sub-division before commencing construction of houses in that area.

This was made known to members of the city council Tuesday evening by Mr. Mayer who said that he was prepared to "go ahead" in Belleville for the next two or three years—but not until council made the first move in installation of sewers and water mains.

Mr. Mayer has tentatively agreed to purchase approximately 125 lots in the county home property sub-division south of Bridge Street. He said he would be prepared to pay $300 each for the lots—when the services were in.

The housing contractor suggested that one street be developed at a time, commencing with Bridge Street which would make a good showing to the public and then continue with other streets in the sub-division.

Mayor D. L. Storey replied the city had to have assurance that contractors were prepared to go ahead with construction before they could service the area. The contractor stated he was prepared to do this.

Alderman Armstrong stated council had the approval of the municipal board and that a special meeting of council was being held Thursday night of this week to open tenders for installation of sewers. He felt there would be no great delay in the installation of services for the area.

Health Board Urges Harbor Be Cleaned

Members of the board of health at a meeting held late last week recommended that Mayor D. L. Storey take up with the harbor commission the matter of cleaning the Belleville Harbor and the mouth of the Moira River. The board indicated the harbor was in an extremely dirty condition.

The board also recommended that the city barns be closed as living accommodation, the barns being termed as unfit for human habitation.

The board also took action with respect to trailers being used as permanent residences within the city limits and passed a recommendation which would prohibit trailers as permanent quarters.

The same recommendation called for trailers at the city tourist park be limited to a stay of two weeks unless a special permit was received from the sanitary inspector.

Alderman Liddle, as member of the board of health stated the city dump had been sprayed with insecticide and asked if the city was prepared to spray the marshes to combat mosquitoes. He also stated that garbage collector had been making collections from certain commercial establishments only once per week, when daily collections were suppored to be made. Also collector refused to pick up fish refuse from a fish and chip store on Front Street, although collections from this place of business were required according to regulations.

LIBERALISM MEANS PROGRESS AND SECURITY FOR EVERYONE

NOTE — The C.C.F. is not included in the above chart because it has never been in power, and therefore has no record. And, because it cannot gain power in the present election, it has no hope of putting any "promises" into effect. Only the Liberals can and will continue and advance social justice.

PROMISES are always plentiful during election campaigns. But actions speak louder than words. Before you vote on June 27, consider well the past performances of all parties.

Down through the years, the Liberal party has brought into effect every worthwhile measure of social legislation now enjoyed by the people of Canada.

Many of these Liberal triumphs of social justice were won for the people against bitter Tory opposition.

Every one was achieved without endangering the democratic rights and freedom of the individual. Liberalism has brought social progress — without Socialism.

Far-sighted Liberal leadership has, in fact, built and strengthened the free enterprise system. Gross national production . . . retail sales . . . exports . . . every index of Canada's national economic health . . has set new records. Employment in the past year passed even the peak of wartime levels. Wages are higher than ever before in history. Gross national income is three times what it was 10 years ago. Almost 2½ million more Canadians have bank accounts. Total savings of the people are over four billion dollars!

The record of the Liberal party is one of continuous progress. In the future, as in the past, Liberalism will bring you greater social security, prosperity and freedom than any other party.

As Musial Goes so Go Cards And Stan Is Going Strong; Bats Team to Second Place

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

"As Stan Musial goes, so go the St. Louis Cardinals."

Never was a truer statement made.

Look at the record. Musial got off to a miserable start. So did the Cards. On May 24, just 15 days ago, St. Louis' three - time batting champ was hitting a puny .250. Accordingly, the Cardinals were mired in seventh place with a 12-17 won and lost record.

Since then, Stan the man has rapped out 22 hits in 58 times at bat for a .379 batting average. Conformably, the Redbirds went on a tear, winning 13 of the 15 games.

Today, Musial is hitting a steadily progressive .301, and the surging Cardinals are in second place, only a half game away from the top.

The Redbirds whipped the New York Giants, 3-0, at the Polo Grounds Tuesday night and Musial provided the big punch. Stan clubbed two homers off Monte Kennedy, his 10th and 11th of the season, to drive in all the runs.

Southpaw Harry Brecheen scattered five Giant blows.

Brooklyn Dodgers took over undisputed possession of first place by trouncing Chicago, 7-1. New York Giants dropped from a first place tie to fourth place, a half game behind the Boston Braves, who nipped the Cincinnati Reds, 6-5. The Braves trail the Cards by three percentage points.

Roe Tames Cubs

Southpaw Preacher Roe tamed the Cubs on six hits. He lost his shutout in the seventh when Andy Pafko cracked a home run. The Dodgers collected 13 safeties off Dutch Leonard, Bob Chipman and Cal McLish. The most prodigious blow was Duke Snider's ninth homer.

The winning run in the Boston-Cincinnati game crossed the plate on a 'prize boner' by Cincinnati outfielder Frank Baumholtz.

Boston already had tied the score when relief pitcher Jesse Dobernic walked Ed Stanky with the bases loaded. With one out, Al Dark sent a looping fly down the right field foul line, which Baumholtz caught in foul territory allowing Tommy Holmes to cross the plate with the winning run.

Philadelphia Phils scored two runs in the bottom half of the ninth to defeat Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5 after the Bucs had counted once in the top half of the inning. Four consecutive hits, climaxed by Andy Seminick's single off relief pitcher Murry Dickson, settled the issue.

Yankees Defeated

Detroit defeated New York Yankees, 5-2, in the American League's only day contest, to cut the front - running Yankees' lead to 5½ games. Bob Swift's home run with a man on base highlighted a three - run fourth inning enabling Hal Newhouser to register his fifth victory. Ed Lopat was charged with the defeat, his first against five victories.

Larry Doby crashed two homers, and rookie shortstop Ray Boone banged out two triples and a pair of singles to lead Cleveland Indians to a 13-11 slugfest victory over Washington Senators.

Lou Brissie struck out 10 in pitching the Philadelphia Athletics to a 7-4 victory over the White Sox in Chicago.

Red Embree won his second game against seven defeats for the St. Louis Browns this season, outpitching Mel Parnell of Boston Red Sox, 5-2.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Seems as though Harry Thibault may rename his Canadian National Railway "Nationals" softball team. They could be dubbed the "Orphans" since "they ain't got no place to play in." Refused permission to use the Exhibition Grounds and unable to obtain any other playing field in the city, the Thibault crew were forced to secure playing facilities in Trenton for their forthcoming five-game exhibition series with Cobourg. "Trenton used us fine' Thibault grinned today. "We get the lights and diamond for ten bucks."

• • • •

The first game of the series has been slated for tomorrow night with the second game in Cobourg on Saturday night under the kleigs. Third game is back in Trenton a week tomorrow and the fourth clash in Cobourg a week Saturday. The venue of the fifth game is yet to be decided.

• • • •

Thibault will use three pitchers in the series. The veteran Jim Hunter will head the staff which includes Don Boyle and Pat Maracle. Boyle will get the starting assignment tomorrow night. Roger Mallory and Rogers will do the receiving while the rest of the team will include Johnny Ronsky, Moe Rollins, Spafford, Culkin, Nichols, Ulster and Bellis.

• • • •

Bud Little of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club had the linksmen and links ladies agog down Kingston way over the weekend when he played sensational golf to win the first low net with a score of 68. Players watched Little go around the course and reports from the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club state that he commanded plenty of attention and admiration with some beautiful shots. Tom Carruthers likewise played a splendid game sharing the first low gross with Dr. J. Pidutti, Kingston with scores of 78.

• • • •

Tonight is "Clown" night at the Exhibition Grounds where the Kokomo Clowns baseball team will play an exhibition game against Bill Easton's Batawa COBEllers. The teams meet in a twilight tilt at Batawa before coming to the city to play under the lights. 'Tis said, the Kokomos are not only smart baseballers but their antics on the diamond are side-splitting. They have all sorts of funny names and the show should be well worth seeing. Game at 9 p.m.

• • • •

Affiliations from associations for 1949 of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association are now being received by Secretary Frank Feaver, 528 Maple Avenue, Hamilton according to the latest OASA bulletin. All requests for affiliations must state names of officers, classification desired and population. A copy of the associations constitution should accompany the request for affiliation.

• • • •

Affiliations and fees must be received prior to July 1st. Fees are as follows, Senior "A", $25; senior "B" $15, each intermediate series, $10.00, each minor series, $5.00. Players certificates must be signed before the first game in which the player participates and may not be signed after July 15. Certificates for every player must be in the office of the OASA secretary by July 20th.

• • • •

Apparently there has been some misunderstanding in some places in the interpretation of the clause "in act of advancing" in Rule 44. Secretary Feaver points out that there is no "lead-off" in softball. Any runner who stands of the base after the pitcher assumes pitching position, is out. "Act of advancing" means actually running, without hesitation, to the next base.

• • • •

Kiwanis Juniors defeated the Point Anne team by a 10-4 score on Monday night at the Point diamond and tomorrow night at 8.30 they take on the slightly slipping Trenton RCAF Flyers. Flyers have dropped their last two starts and are determined to get back into the win column at the expense of they don't care who. So it will likely be a tidy tiff with none sparing the hosses and all out for victory. Game gets away at 8.30.

• • • •

And tonight in Picton with the home team smarting under that 5-4 reverse handed them by Northern Electric on Monday night, the planters take on the "Spaniards" for their second meeting of the week. The squads battled to seven innings of pitching jousting before two Picton errors paved the way for defeat. Gerry Miller will likely go to the mound for the hometesrs while Coach Noakes might send the veteran "Chuck" Barriage back against the team he defeated on Monday. This will be a twilight game starting at 6.30.

• • • •

After Brooklyn Dodgers Gene Hermanski started that now famous triple play against the Braves he got a wire from an admirer: Save two from drowning, break into line-up with triple play and home run. Now who do you like in Kentucky Derby?"

• • • •

Columnar orchids to John Bennett, of Northern Electric Company through whose efforts the Belleville track and field team made such a remarkable showing in the Montreal meet. John is a well-known figure in track and field circles in Montreal where he has developed lads of championship timber. He loves the sport and is anxious to see it flourish here. The boys grabbed themselves a lot of the kudos but we feel that John should get his share of the backslapping, too. Well done, sir.

Toronto Leafs Win a Pair From Newark

By Associated Press

Clarence Podbielan, after a poor start, once again is being hailed as one of the most promising pitchers in the Brooklyn farm system.

Podbielan won 13 games and came up with the third-best earned-run average while pitching for Montreal in the International League last year.

The lanky hurler Tuesday night came up with his best performance of the year. He pitched the Royals to a 7-0, one-hit triumph over Syracuse and spoiled Podbielan's bid for a no-hitter. Podbielan walked two and fanned five.

The victory enabled the Royals to pull within 3½ games of the league-leading Jersey City Giants who dropped a twin bill to the runner-up Buffalo Bisons.

Rookie Luis Alama pitched the Bisons to a 3-1, two-hit triumph in the opener and Saul Rogovin coasted to a 12-5 breeze in the nightcap. Ray Coleman drove home two runs in the first game and three in the nightcap to lead the Bison's attack. The Bisons trail the Giants by two games.

Leafs Win Two

The fourth - place Toronto Maple Leafs took a double-header from Newark Bears, 11-3 and 6-4, to move within seven percentage points of the Royals.

Lou Possehl breezed to his third victory in the opener, allowing six hits, two of them homers by Bud Heslet and Hank Workman. Mike Goliat sparked Toronto's 13-hit barrage by driving home four runs on a homer, double and single.

Rookie Max Peterson's string of consecutive scoreless innings was snapped at 26 when the Bears knocked him out in the ninth inning of the finale with a four-run blast.

The Leafs sewed up the game in the fourth inning, scoring five runs on Johnny Blatnik's homer and four Newark errors.

Rochester's fifth-place Red Wings captured a pair of games from Baltimore Orioles, 4-3 and 8-5.

Erv Dusak went the route in the opener and won out as Ed Miercowiz blasted a two run homer in the fifth off Bryan Stephens.

In the nightcap, Frank Mancuso socked a three-run homer in the seventh and Red McQuillen a two-run circuit blast in the eighth.

GREATER ECONOMY . . . GREATER SAFETY
SUMS UP REASONS WHY
*3 out of 5
SWITCHED TO
B.F. Goodrich
FROM SOME OTHER BRAND

ALL ACROSS CANADA, an independent research organization interviewed motorists who bought B.F. Goodrich tires in the past year. Three out of five had switched to B.F. Goodrich from some other brand!

The reason? Only B.F. Goodrich can give you longer mileage . . . smoother riding . . . extra blowout protection . . . PLUS FREEDOM FROM PUNCTURES!

RESEARCH KEEPS B.F. GOODRICH FIRST IN RUBBER

B.F. Goodrich maintains a multi-million-dollar rubber research centre. Research produced the B.F.G. Seal-o-matic tube that seals punctures instantly . . . permanently . . . as you ride! Research developed the wear-resisting, cooler-running rubber compounds . . . the stronger cords . . . the improved body and tread design that make B.F. Goodrich Silvertown tires your best buy for safety and economy.

Enjoy all the money-saving, trouble-saving benefits of B.F. Goodrich research. Switch to B.F. Goodrich for a new kind of motoring pleasure. See your B.F. Goodrich dealer today! (Consult the yellow pages of your phone book.)

For a super-comfort ride, ask for new B.F. Goodrich Extra Cushion tires.

ONLY
B.F. Goodrich GIVES FREEDOM FROM PUNCTURES

Manufacturers, Too, Choose B.F. GOODRICH
If your new car, truck or tractor is equipped with B.F. Goodrich tires, take advantage of your dealer's free tire inspection service. This will assure you of getting the long, trouble-free mileage built into all B.F. Goodrich tires.
Makers of Tires, Batteries, Automotive Accessories, Rubber Footwear, Industrial Rubber Products and Koroseal.
* SURVEY MADE OF MOTORISTS WHO BOUGHT B.F. GOODRICH TIRES IN THE PAST YEAR

FREEDOM FROM PUNCTURES—"As soon as I heard about Freedom From Punctures I went straight to the nearest B.F. Goodrich dealer's. It was something I'd wanted for years."—C. L. Kennedy, Winnipeg, Man.

EXTRA BLOWOUT PROTECTION —"I drive 1,000 miles a week over the rough back roads of Quebec. Since I switched to B.F. Goodrich I've enjoyed complete freedom from all tire troubles."—Jack E. Duvall, Ottawa, Ont.

LONGER MILEAGE—"I switched to B.F. Goodrich to get extra mileage and haven't been disappointed. After long, hard driving, mostly over bad roads, treads still look good for many more miles."—Don Sinclair, East Riverside, N.B.

SMOOTHER RIDING — "My car rides smoother on B.F. Goodrich tires. They absorb more road shock yet maintain correct air pressure and need very little attention." — R. Knox Ferguson, London, Ont.

DEPENDABLE PERFORMANCE—"Seal-o-matics bought in 1939 are still in dependable service in my B.F. Goodrich tires, giving me greater safety, greater real economy, plus freedom from punctures."—H. J. Godley, Courtenay, B.C.

There'll be plenty of fireworks at Memorial Arena come Friday evening in the main bout when towering Sandy O'Donnell meets Whipper Billy Watson. The Whip will be here to replace Mike 'The Body' Sharpe who has been touring Texas and other parts of the south and will not be back in time to keep the appointment. However no glamour mayhem or action will be missing through the replacement for the Whip has long awaited a "crack" and the Brobdignagian O'Donnell. And that goes both ways. O'Donnell chortled with glee when he heard of the switch in plans and it likely the Whip will have the battle of his life on his hands Friday night. Tug Carlson meets Wee Willie Davis in the semi while Al. Lovelock and Mike Mihalakiz, two newcomers to Belleville will open the proceedings.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New Bedford, Mass.—Ray Robinson, 151, New York, knocked out Freddy Flores, 162, New York (3).

Los Angeles—Enrique Bolanos, 134 1-4, Mexico, outpointed Harold (Baby Face) Jones, 136 1-4, Detroit (10).

PACER PULLS UP LAME

Fairmount Park, Ill, June 8 (AP)—Mighty Brooke paced to victory in the first race of the Grand Circuit card Tuesday night but it may mean an end to the horse's harness racing career. Driven by Bob Parkinson the pacer pulled up lame and was unable to leave the track under its own power.

Mighty Brooke paid 4.00, 2.80, 2.40 across the board.

Corbys, Houstons Win Softball Tilts Easily

In a wide open, free wheeling contest, that saw both sides rally several times, the Corby nine eventually outlasted the weaker C.N.R. squad to emerge with a 17-13 victory in the twilight half of a Commercial Softball League doubleheader played last evening at the Alemite Field. In the nightcap the Houston 'Knotholers' hammered the luckless Anti-Tank crew into their third inglorious defeat, by a lopsided 22-0 count.

C.N.R. opened the scoring in the bottom of the first on Hurrie's three run homer to left centre field. Corbys evened the count in their end of the second on an error, two singles, and a sacrifice, and jumped into a commanding lead with a seven hit attack in the third that netted them six runs.

Ray Reid singled to open the inning and came home on Moon's homer to centre field. Harold Reid and Nolan singled, Storms doubled, Hunter and Halloran singled and Downing walked. With one away Reid flied out to right right field in his second trip in the inning and Moon loaded the bases on a poor throw by the pitcher. Reid grounded out to retire the side.

A walk, a sacrifice, and two fielder's choice gave Corbys another counter in the fourth.

Tie Ball Game

C.N.R. stormed back for five hits and seven runs, to tie the ball game in the bottom of the fourth with pitcher Galpin's three-run homer being the lustiest blow.

Corbys rammed across five more in the fifth and two in the sixth to insure the victory. C.N.R. counted their last three runs in a minor rally in the sixth.

Marty Halloran went the route for the winners, and though badly mauled in his first start in the Commercial League managed to eke out a win. He struck out eight, walked four, and gave up 12 hits for 13 runs.

Sid Galpin toiled vainly in front of a sieve-like infield striking out one, walking one and giving up 17 hits for all the Corby runs. He was relieved by Lefty Jim Brisban in the sixth with one away. Brisban quieted the Corby attack and held them hitless and runless for the rest of the distance. Line ups— Corbys. Downing 1b; R. Seld rf; Moon c; H. Runs Come in Clusters

It took Houston "Knotholers" four innings to push over their first run against Anti Tank but from then on the runs came in such clusters that at the end of the sixth inning, with Houstons leading 22-0, both teams agreed to call the game rather than prolong it any further.

Until that disastrous fourth however, the Anti Tank had shown some amazing strength with youthful Glen Kimmett limiting them to one single. However errors and walks proved their undoing in the fourth with the "Knotholers" jamming over six runs on seven hits, a walk and two errors. Then with two away in the fifth an error gave Houstons a breather in which they poured over 10 runs on seven walks, five errors, and three hits. They added six more in the sixth on five more errors, and two hits.

Anti Tank used three pitchers to try to halt the disaster. Bob Hunter went the route for the winners, twirling a neat two hitter while striking out eight, walking two, for no runs.

Line ups:

Houstons: Wardaugh 3b; Watkins 2b; Culkin cf; Spafford ss; Adams c; Taylor rf; Blaind lf, Temple 1b; Hunter p.

Anti Tank: Gardiner 3b; Hazard ss; McClusky 1b; Hancock cf, p; Woodbeck, replaced by Grey in 4th, lf; G. Kimmett p, rf; Flindall c; K. Kimmett rf, p; Nickle 2b.

Sports Roundup

New York, June 8. (AP)—Ed Olle, business manager of Athletics at the University of Texas, gets a great kick out of telling about a visit he received last Spring from an old prep school friends named Horne . . . asked what occasioned his visit, Horne replied: "I brought my son here for the State meet". . . Thinking of athletics, Olle asked: "What's he running?" Dejectedly Horne replied: "He's not running; he's in the one-act play contest." . . . The kid, Tom Horne, heard of the conversation and told his dad, "I'll go back next year as a track man, too." . . So in the 1949 track meet, Tom Horne turned up in the half-mile run and won it in division-record time. He collapsed as he crossed the finish line, but two hours later he was competing in the one-act play contest. His team won first place in Class B and young Horne was named to Notice that with a wood the left foot is positioned an inch or two farther back from the direction line than the right. And the left foot is angled slightly toward the green. This permits a full rounded finish. Now notice the diagonal line through the shoulder. The left shoulder is rising as is should, permitting the right shoulder to pivot down and under the chin. The left hip has pivoted back out of the way of the arms and hands, for a full follow-through. Most of the weight is on the left leg, but the right toe still has a firm grip on the ground. At the point pictured, all the forces contributing to a smooth, rhythmic, powerful swing have now reached the maximum and the club is at its greatest velocity just before impact. When the hands have reached hip-high, on the follow-through, then this player will rotate his head under to look after the ball—but not before.

Johnny Longden To Visit Britain

Arcadia, Calif., June 8 (AP)—Jockey Johnny Longden, the Mr. Moneybags of the turf, is planning to visit the place of his birth at Wakefield, England.

Longden and his pretty wife, Hazel, have booked space on the Queen Mary in September

Nearing the 40-year mark, Longden was brought to Canada when only two years old. He spent his boyhood in Taber, Alta. and began riding on United States tracks in 1927. Last year he hit and passed the 3,000 mark in winners.

The only jockey to ride more winners is Britain's Gordon Richards. Asked if he would ride against Richards, Longden said, "This is going to be a real vacation. But I hope to see him. . . . He's a great rider."

ICEBOX PROWLER

Windsor, Ont. — (CP) — Police came on the run when a Windsor housewife phoned to say there was prowler in her house. The prowler was found in the icebox. It was a head of cabbage which had been placed on a block of ice, had melted the ice and fallen with a clatter into some dishes.

ANOTHER PEST

Vancouver—(CP)—The varied carpet beetle is responsible for some of the holes local housewives have found in woolens and nylons. A broad, oval, multicolored insect about 1-8 inch long, it was first discovered in 1936 and has since spread over the lower Fraser Valley.

"I'LL NEVER GO BACK TO ORDINARY GASOLINE"
AFTER MAKING THE 10 GALLON TEST!
WITH SUNOCO DYNAFUEL
SAY THOUSANDS OF CANADIAN MOTORISTS!

MAKE THE 10 GALLON TEST IN YOUR CAR AND PROVE FOR YOURSELF THAT:

1. No Other Gasoline Gives LONGER MILEAGE
2. No Other Gasoline Gives HIGHER, KNOCKLESS POWER
3. No Other Gasoline Gives FASTER ACCELERATION
4. No Other Gasoline Gives QUICKER STARTS

REMEMBER For best results, don't dilute Sunoco Dynafuel with other gasoline. Wait until your tank is nearly empty—then put in 10 gallons of Dynafuel. Compare its action against the best gasoline you ever used.

New Dynafuel Users Tell What They Learned from Making The 10 Gallon Test . . .

R. S. WILSON, Salesman
Toronto, Ont.

"The Ten Gallon Test has convinced me that Dynafuel is definitely superior to ordinary gasoline. I noticed the difference before I had driven twenty miles. Smoother engine performance . . . a complete freedom from knocking. I'm a regular Dynafuel customer from now on."

ARCHIE DARRAGH, Trucker
Ottawa, Ont.

"I had heard one or two of my friends say that Dynafuel wasn't like ordinary gasoline, but I hadn't taken the claim seriously until I made the Ten Gallon Test for myself. It was a revelation! My car is definitely running sweeter . . . I seem to be getting extra knockless power from somewhere. There's no doubt in my mind that Dynafuel is the best value for your gasoline dollar."

JOHN J. ENLOW, Executive
Hamilton, Ont.

"I admire any manufacturer who allows his product to speak for itself. That's what the Sun Oil Company does in advocating the Ten Gallon Test with Dynafuel . . . and, believe me, it's the most convincing test I've ever tried! I'm a regular Dynafuel customer now, and I find I'm getting a bonus of power and smoothness in my engine's performance."

J. A. BOAST, Service Engineer
London, Ont.

"Dynafuel was like a spring tonic for my 1948 model car. The ten gallons that I used in making your suggested test gave me more miles of smoother driving than the same amount of ordinary gasoline ever did. Even my wife noticed the difference in engine performance with Dynafuel."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme is not as dumb as she sounds. When I was comparing squeeze plays, she remarked: "The only difference I can see is that one squeeze is more difficult than another."

There are a myriad of squeeze plays in a pack of cards. All of them, however, fall into three general types. They are simple squeeze, inverted squeeze, and double squeeze.

Simple squeeze is where you squeeze opponent at your left. The inverted squeeze is against opponent at your right. Double squeeze is where you put the screws to both opponents.

Solve this squeeze puzzle:

NORTH
♠ None
♦ A Q

WEST
♠ A 8
♥ K J 8
♦ 10
♣ None

EAST
♠ J 10
♥ 10 9 7
♣ None

SOUTH
♠ Q 9
♥ A Q
♦ K J
♣ None

Clubs are trumps. Your south hand is now in the lead. Your problem is to take all six of the remaining tricks against any defence. Have opponents try every method of frustration.

Opponents are protecting hearts and spades. Squeeze them out of their guards. Prepare for the pressure by reducing their number of cards. Meantime plan where your entries should be.

Lead south diamond Jack and overtake with dummy ace. Lead a dummy trump and sluff south heart queen. Each opponent can afford to give up a heart on this trick; their best discard.

Now lead diamond queen and overtake with south king. If each opponent sheds a heart, cash heart ace and ruff a spade. North then has a good small heart for the last trick.

Should east shed a heart and west a spade? Then lead the spade nine and ruff in north. Return a heart to the south ace and queen of spades will be good for the last trick.

Should east shed a spade and west a heart? Then lead the spade queen and ruff the west ace that covers. Return a heart to south ace and spade nine is good. Crunch; squash, squash.

Stock Exchange Calls for Probe Of False Report

Johannesburg, South Africa, June 8 (AP)—The Johannesburg Stock Exchange Tuesday called for a government investigation of a false gold strike report that caused wide fluctuation in gold shares on Monday's market.

Authorities hoped to determine whether a deliberate hoax was perpetrated. Stock circles said thousands of dollars may have been won or lost, but no broker would venture to estimate.

The false report capped a day that saw the most fantastic trading rush in the history of the Exchange. The rush was spurred by weekend buying orders that followed authentic reports of a gold strike in the Orange Free State last week.

The false report was accepted over the telephone in good faith by a local news agency. It said a new strike had been uncovered adjacent to the farm where last week's strike was made and was even more sensational.

The news agency said the first report was circulated "only upon information from what we considered a highly reliable source, otherwise we would certainly have not issued it. An official denial was published immediately when it was received.

New York May Not Recognize Lamotta's Win

Detroit, June 8. (AP) — The June 15 title fight here between world's middleweight champion Marcel Cerdan and Jake Lamotta today was clouded a bit by doubts whether New York would recognize Lamotta as champion if he wins.

Commissioner Eddie Eagan of the New York Boxing Commission parried the question with the declaration "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Secretary Louis Souriall of the Michigan Boxing Commission said that if Lamotta is victorious he "will be recognized as champ in Michigan and the 26 other states which are members of the National Boxing Association."

New York is not a member of the N.B.A.

It has been no secret in boxing circles that the New York Commission has frowned on the Cerdan-Lamotta title fight on the grounds that there are more capable opponents available for Cerdan—with the name of Steve Belloise high on the list.

Napanee Dunks Trenton Under 14-0 Score

Napanee, June 8—Napanee Athletics, Belleville District Baseball League champions last year, defeated Trenton here Monday evening, 14-0, to register their second shutout in the last three wins. A triple by Vern Green and a bases - loaded double by Vic Burtt highlighted the Napanee 13-hit attack. Hooper and McTaggart each breezed along for 4 innings on the local mound.

Power From Wind On Orkney Isles

Edinburgh, June — (CP) — The goverment will try to generate power on a large scale through use of a modernized version of the old windmill.

An experimental windmill is going up on the Orkney main island to catch the high winds of the exposed northwest coast. The plant is being built by John Brown, Clydeside shipbuilding firm, and will have blades 60 feet in lengtth. It is expected to have a power capacity of 100 kilowatts.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, June 8 (CP)— The hockey season is tucked away with the moth balls—finally—but the winter sport still is a hot topic among the arm-chair strategists.

Well to the fore in editorial comment is treatment of the sport's budding stars of tomorrow. Two Manitoba sport columnists have come to the defence of the transfer rule practised by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Leave Well Enough Alone

"It may sound like high treason for Brandon to be opposing an increase in the number of imports, for this city has used the import rule to the limit," said Krug (Brandon Sun) Crawford.

"But having settled for two out-of-the-province players for the last two seasons we think that the rule is working to the benefit of clubs operating under the C.A.H.A."

Krug should know what he is talking about. He paid typewriter service to Brandon's junior Wheat Kings and saw them wind up in the Memorial Cup finals with Montreal Royals. And they got there with only two players imported from other junior hockey branches.

Krug cast an eye at the professional hockey clubs and noted that as they gather more and more young talent under their collective wings, they also try to place them close to the parent club if possible. This is all preparatory to an early jump into big time.

"And now that the National Hockey League has ruled that 16 men can dress for all games, they may have need for keen, young substitutes over a 70-game route."

As a parting shot, Krug maintains that relaxation of the import rule for Juniors "would have the result of concentrating all the top-notch talent in areas directly controlled by the Pro clubs."

C.A.H.A. rules now allow British Columbia to import four Juniors in one year. The other provinces are allowed two.

Maurice (Free Press) Smith likes the idea of youngsters being considered free agents until they sign a Juvenile certificate for the first time.

"It is a well-known fact that many parents are not happy over prevalent rules whereby their son, once he signs a Bantam or Midget playing certificate for a club remains the property of that club throughout his amateur days," says Maurice.

FRANKFORD

Sidney Softball League Off To Good Start

Frankford—Frankford, Sidney League Softball Club got off on the right foot Monday night, as they edged the Centenary Club by a 14-13 count. It was a big seven run first inning that gave Frankford the victory. The Centenary team fought back hard in the third inning, and came within one run of tying the score. Montgomery started in the box for Frankford, and pitched a great game until the third, when he temporarily lost control. A couple of costly errors didn't help the matter, and Mason took over the pitching chore. The fire was promptly extinguished, and from then on, Centenary scored only once. Montgomery and Mason both pitched good ball, and considering that both are playing in a league of older players, deserve a lot of credit. Jerry Foster played a great game at second, and had a perfect night at the plate, with four for four. Waite and Edmundson pitched for Centenary. Frankford next meets Johnstown, who are playing .500 ball at this moment. Batawa handed Johnstown a 24-13 lacing in the other game of the Sidney League Monday night. Johnstown was beaten on errors, as their usually airtight defence completely fell apart.

Standing to date:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Frankford	1	0	1,000
Batawa	1	0	1,000
Johnstown	1	1	.500
Centenary	0	2	.000

The Lions Club Trophy donated by Ray Scott for competition in the Bantam League of Frankford and District, is on display in the office window of the E. G. Lohnes Insurance Agency.

Don Boyle is the latest addition to the Frankford Merchants' Softball Club. Boyle was the star hurler of the Point Anne Club last year, and many Frankford folks have seen him in action previously. This addition is certain to be a tower of strength to the local boys, who have been in need of another first string pitcher Don will be working in the game Thursday night in Campbellford. A meeting of the Sidney League executive was held in the Johnstown School on Monday evening following the games.. In the absence of President May, Lohnes acted as chairman. Collinsbirt of the Batawa Club was officially appointed as league secretary. His job will be to receive all scores and send out a weekly report of scores and standings to each participating club.

In the return game of the midget baseball league, Frankford Jets played to a five all tie with the Batawa Spitfires on Frankford Fair Grounds Monday. Letch and P[illegible]ebnicky were the Frankford battery, with Mahosky and Aquino working for Bata.

Lawson Little To Conduct Clinic Before Open Starts

(By The Canadian Press)

Some 80 entries have been filed for the 1949 Canadian Open golf tournament to be held at St. George's Golf and Country Club near Toronto June 22.

Latest of the United States professionals to enter is Lawson Little, who won the title at St. Andrew's here in 1936. Little will act as master of ceremonies at a two - hour golf clinic to be held June 21.

Although he will not take part in the Open, with its first prize of $2,000, Frank Stranahan told officials this week he will be at Saint John, N. B., the week of July 23, to defend the Canadian amateur title he won in 1947 and successfully defended last year.

Brooklyn Tuesday cancelled its month - old deal with Pittsburgh for Johnny Hopp by mutual consent, and played Marv Rackley in left field against Chicago Cubs.

Rackley, said to be suffering with a sore arm during his Pittsburgh stay, rejoined his old mates just before the ball game. Hopp left to rejoin Pittsburgh. Rackley went hitless in three trips and was lifted for a pinch-hitter.

An informal meeting of the Canadian Olympic Association will be held at Toronto today to enable members and other Canadian sports officials connected with the Olympic games to meet J. N. Edstrom of Sweden, chairman of the International Olympic Committee. A dinner tonight will follow the meeting.

Apprentice Jockey Lee Harris was kicked in the head as three horses went down and a fourth unseated his rider in a spectacular spill in the final race at New York's Belmont Park Tuesday. Harris was taken to hospital where x-rays were made. Attendants said he appeared only slightly injured.

At Chicago, the Illinois Racing Board definitely suspended four horse handlers for the recent dopings of two thoroughbreds at Washington Park. Both horses—Hard War, which won the third race in the May 30 Lincoln Fields running, and Main Bet, which finished seventh in the fifth race May 25th — showed evidence of coramine, a stimulant, in saliva tests, the board said.

Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League said Tuesday night they have bought defenceman Harry Dick from Washington Lions of the same league. Dick is a resident of Port Colborne.

At Vancouver, the touring Newcastle United Soccer squad closed out the British Columbia part of their Canadian tour Tuesday night with an 8-1 victory over the B.C. All-Stars. A crowd of 3,815 watched the match—the biggest attendance recorded here in 30 years.

At New Bedford, Mass, welterweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson Tuesday night knocked out Freddy Flores of New York in 2.41 of the third round in an overweight match scheduled for 10 rounds. Robinson weighed 151, Flores 162.

Fresh from an impressive return to boxing warfare, Willie Pep was matched today to defend his world's featherweight title against Eddie Compo of New Haven at Waterbury, Conn., July 12. Pep easily walloped Luis Ramos, Puerto Rico, in a nontitle bout at New Haven Monday night.

Little Benny's Note Book

I didn't feel mutch like going to school this morning on account of not having studied very good for the mistery examination and I waited till pop had folded his paper and left for his office, and then I said to ma, Hay ma, suppose I get kidnapped on my way to school.

I can imagine mutch more plezzant things to suppose, if I really have to put my imagination to werk, ma said.

Meening she didn't like the idea, and I thawt, G, maybe she'll let me stay home, just for safety ferst.

And I said, Do you think you'd miss me mutch, ma?

There's no doubt about it, especially at ferst, ma said. My, when I think of having to look at the tablecloth, the same monotoniss uneventful white day after day, just as it came from the laundry dry, I can hardly bare the thawt, she said, and I said, Aw jimminies ma, if you meen this little milk stane, it hardly even shows.

As I said to myself only yesterday when I scrubbed the shoe polish off the rim of the bath tub, I dont see how I could live without you, ma said. How could I face life constantly faced with bath towels without a single artistic finger mark on them? Would I never again know the joy of rushing into the next room at the sound of a blood cerdling yell, only to find you well and happy without a broken neck or even a finger cawt in the door?? And I'm sure your father would miss you almost as mutch. I can just imagine his face when he finds his evening paper in its original creeses instead of being carefully crumpled, with half the pages merrily replaced upside down or inside out, she said, and I said, Aw heck, ma, G wizzickers, holey smokes, I meen gosh.

Meening what was a use, and I ran half ways to school so as not to make it werse by being late.

CARTIER'S SKELETON?

These are the bones and skull, believed to be almost 400 years old, discovered in a grave of lime and charcoal in the St. Malo cathedral, France. Cursory examination showed they may be the skeleton of Jacques Cartier. A final medical check is now being made.—(CP Photo.)

Canadian Believes Cartier's Burial Place Located

By HAROLD MORRISON

Ottawa, June 8 —(CP)— Gustave Lanctot, small and wiry, appears to have solved a historical riddle that has been puzzling Canadian historians for the last half-century.

It is the burial place of Jacques Cartier, famed 16th century French navigator and explorer, who hammered the Cross of France into Canada's Gaspe coast in 1534.

Dr. Lanctot, former Dominion archivist and one of Canada's top authorities on Cartier, believes he not only has found where Cartier was buried but that he has unearthed Cartier's 400-year-old skeleton, almost perfectly preserved in charcoal and lime.

"I believe I held the skull of that famous man in my hands," said Dr. Lanctot on his return from the proud island city of St. Malo along the channel coast of France, where the discovery was made.

Tests Being Made

Of the authenticity of his discovery, Dr. Lanctot is certain. Laboratory tests now are going on in France to establish whether the bones, found imbedded in a charcoal-and-lime cake in the cathedral of St. Malo, really are those of the French explorer.

Once identity is complete, negotiations may spring up between Canada and France for the skeleton, with Canada making a strong plea for possession because of the unique cornerstone Cartier has carved for himself in Canadian history.

But France is not expected to let go of the frame without a fight, and negotiations may conclude with the bones being divided equally between the two countries.

Thus may end the riddle of the explorer who died of the plague 23 years after he had planted the Cross of France on the shores of the Gaspe gulf.

Dr. Lanctot, a major in the First World War, worked partly on tradition and partly on documentary information when he began his voyage to France last January to find the whereabouts of Cartier's grave.

In St. Malo he found workmen buttressing the cathedral's foundation, weakened by fire and explosions set off "with malice" by the Germans when they occupied France in the Second World War.

Steeple Shot Off

The German has shot off the steeple and set fire to four different parts of the edifice. With excavation permits in his pocket and an old document—a permit issued 392 years ago to bury "Jacques Cartier"—he entered the cathedral.

"The burial permit," said Dr. Lanctot, "was made out Sept. 1, 1557—date of the death of Jacques Cartier. With this document and local and family tradition to guide me, I was able to establish that burial was made at the foot of the chapel of the Holy Virgin.

"Several persons gave affidavit to that effect. The architect in charge of the work started to excavate and at a spot especially indicated under a stone slab, was found the tomb of a man buried in lime and charcoal.

"This method of burial indicated that the man must have died of a contagious disease. We know Cartier died of the plague, consequently the description of burial appeared to fit the explorer."

The medical tests to see if plague bacteria had left marks on the bone may establish beyond doubt that the skeleton is that of Cartier.

"I was greatly elated with the find. The burial of Cartier has been a question unsolved for the last 50 years—since the historians have taken interest in the life of Cartier."

Complete Skeleton

The skeleton was found complete from head to toe. It appeared to be the frame of a man about 5 feet 7 inches—about the height of Cartier with a broad rather than an elongated-like skull, such as might fit the French explorer.

Dr. Lanctot suggests that as Columbus, the discoverer of America, found a resting place in Havana, Cuba, the skeleton of Cartier might find a final resting place in Canada.

This will the the theme of appeals to government officials to obtain the bones from France. If France will not consent, then perhaps, said Dr. Lanctot, "they may agree to a split—half in Canada and half in France."

DREW ATTACKS TRADE POLICIES FEDERAL GOVT.

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Carman, Man., June 8 — (CP) — The Federal government's principles and trade policies came under attack by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, in an address Tuesday before a political rally in this town in Lisgar constituency.

He said the National Liberal Federation "supports a government that is not Liberal, a government that denies all the principles of liberalism," and criticized a booklet issued by the Federation.

Mr. Drew said it was stated in the booklet that family allowances and old-age pensions would be discontinued by a Progressive Conservative government. He termed these statements false and said they were accompanied by what he characterized as appeals to prejudice.

The present government, he said, has nothing to offer the people except "suspicion, distrust and malice in the years ahead." Nothing could show its "complete bankruptcy" more clearly than the "personal attacks on me," he added.

Dealing with his party's policies on trade, he charged the government with "buying up this and that, hoping to stem the tide until after the general election." The government knew that if the people were aware of the real trade situation there would be hardly a Liberal supporter left from one end of Canada to the other.

He said the problem could be solved by making the dollar and the pound convertible, and expressed regret that the United Kingdom was forced to buy in communist countries rather than from Canada.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

He ran out across the front lawn and onto the curved driveway, where he paused and removed his broad hat. Ken and Polly were staring at him. Ward McMurray made a picture there. somewhat short of stature, but very broad, muscular, and erect. He moved with an athlete's grace. They could see his firm young face in profile now as he shaded it from September sun, and his fine teeth were brilliant against the tan skin of him.

"Miss Boone!" he greeted the newcomer. "We were just wishing for you. Ken Palmer's here. and Polly. We were about to do some shooting on my target-range. Come on!"

"Swell!" she cried, beaming down at him. "Can we all ride later?"

"Sure as you're born! I'll whistle up Pancho and have horses saddled. I like you black gelding. Wher'd you rent him?"

"I bought him."

"He—he sets you off!"

Joy smiled her thanks. She had been shrewd enough to anticipate that, Polly McMurray knew. Polly was appraising the eastern girl again. Joy's expensive costume was a light powdery tone called "faded blue" in the smart Phoenix shops, with a crimson belt for deep color touch. It and the girl's fair skin and golden hair were indeed a crowning glory for a horse that was black and proud and shining. Ward's admiration, very genuine, was quite understandable.

Polly greeted her sincerely, and if Ken was embarassed it went ignored. Joy was bubbly with talk as usual. She complimented Polly's own unmistakeable good looks. She swung down from her horse with consummate grace and poise.

"Want to try him now?" she invited, holding out the reins.

"You bet!" Ward answered. "Pretty horses are second only to pretty women out West, Miss Boone! But—you first, Ken. You're a guest. You ride him."

Ken Palmer's eyes widened.

"Why, no. No, I—"

"Sure, sure, go on! Sis will try him next, then me. Lordy, but he's a spirited fellow! See how he rides, Ken. See how he feels."

Ward was honestly trying to be courteous. No greater pleasure could be afforded a ranch man than the opportunity thus to try a fine new horse, and praising a horse is the best way to compliment its owner. Ken's protests were quite over-ridden by the other three youths here. Grimly as if about to take his first jump from a high diving board, he took the reins.

For the next sixty seconds no one spoke.

Ken walked to the right side of the horse. The right side!

Awkwardly he put foot to stirrup. "whf-f-f-f-f!" the horse snorted.

Polly's chin dropped. Ward started to say something, frowning; then he restrained himself and stepped out to hold the horse's bridle, politely enabling Ken finally to mount. Plainly then they saw that Ken Palmer was pale! Ken bounced stiff as a board while the animal trotted off down the driveway.

"Well, of . . . all . . things! Joy Boone exclaimed slowly, in open contempt. "He didn't know how!"

They were staring after him, watching him grip the saddle horn in misery. Ward remained silent.

"But he wasn't afraid!" Polly breathed in sudden defense of him. "He has never ridden before. But he dared!"

Joy Boone turned to look closely at the dark-haired girl. Brightness on Polly's face made Joy take a sudden little defiant challenge.

Rivalry between the two prettiest girls in Frontier University took on a definite if unspoken, unadmitted intensity.

Openly, Polly and Joy were friends. In private, for that matter, neither did any slightest thing that could have been construed as questionable or sneaking or unfair. Nevertheless, the situation had been instantly sensed by the other girls on the campus. Things like that have a way of proclaiming themselves, and what the two girls didn't let slip, the gossips supplied. Before September ended every one knew that the gorgeous blonde from New York and the equally beautiful brunette from Arizona were engaged in a competition likely to carry through every sort of endeavor during the school year. It extended to almost every campus activity. It made the principal topic of conversation.

Of course Polly was astute enough to recognize all that.

"It's sickening!" she snapped at her brother Ward. "I don't despise Joy. I don't even dislike her. I admire everything about her!"

Ward grinned amiably. "Sure you do," said he, and meant it. "You're both okay. You're just a couple of good-looking young fillies with red blood in your veins. I wish I could marry you both."

"Why, Ward!"

She gasped that at him but he had passed on busy this Saturday morning with some calf branding. She leaned against a corral fence as he leaped to his saddle and rode off singing.

"Ho for day on the range!
Rollicking days,
Frolicking days,
Out on the open range.
Here you the swish of the lariat's loop.
The throw! The catch! The jubilant whoop
Of the cowboy whose daring
And generous sharing
Of work and of pleasure to-dum ta-da-deee-e-e!"

His voice was as deep and booming as their father's, and Polly liked to hear him sing. His words trailed off out of hearing as the horse he rode faded into the nearby mesquite and palo verde trees. He was headed for the north range, she knew, five miles away. But all at once he called "WHOA! Ho, boy!"

She heard him turn, saw him then gallop back. She waited in surprise while he halted near to her, reached down and tousled her hair. She didn't have to be told that her big brother loved her dearly.

"One thing, kid," he began, with a depth of feeling that Ward seldom revealed. "You're pretty sold on a certain young fellow. I know that; I'm not blind! Well, I've sized him up, and he's okay. If you want him, I want you to have him. Understand? I've been watching you. I see the way you've been teaching him to do things. Why, you've got him to where he can ride pretty well, already! Another month, I bet you have him topping off a bucking bronc. I see you teaching him how to squeeze a trigger and not pull it. I hear you working over his too — goody-goody-bookish speech. Now Sis, a gal doesn't bother with all that—"

PRE-WAR PAGEANTRY RETURNS IN COLORFUL MILITARY PARADE

Londoners viewed the trooping of the color ceremony held today, the King's official birthday. [illegible] the colors are being trooped with all the pre-war pageantry associated with the occasion.—Central Press Canadian.

Trooping of the Color Biggest Spectacle Since Royal Wedding

London, June 9 (CP)—In a ceremony which belongs to the ages—the trooping of the color in the Horse Guards' parade—the King and Princess Elizabeth were central figures today at the biggest spectacle London has seen since the Royal wedding of 1947.

The parade, first full-dress trooping since before the war, was the official celebration of the King's 54th birthday. It seemed as though half of London turned out to watch.

For the majority of the 1,500 guardsmen executing the complicated movements and wheeling lines it was a new experience. Though they had known the smoke, confusion and discipline of battle, many had never before worn the traditional parade dress of scarlet, blue and bearskin.

One guardsman fainted near the border of the huge parade ground but the vast crowd, captivated by the precision, rhythm and splendor of the show, scarcely noticed this single casualty.

Princess Elizabeth, in dark blue riding habit, brass buttons, and peaked cap, rode a chestnut police horse named Winston. Riding side-saddle, the Princess was acclaimed the heroine of the day as she replaced the King in her capacity of Colonel of the Grenadier Guards. His Majesty, due to recent ill-health, travelled in an open state coach drawn postilion fashion by two handsome greys.

The Queen and Princess Margaret drove onto the parade ground in an open car to watch the ceremony from a window over the Horse Guards' arch. They were joined there by Queen Mary and other members of the Royal family.

Once or twice during the hourlong ceremony, Elizabeth's horse gave trouble by prancing and curvetting. The Princess soothed him by patting his neck with her white-gloved hand. Three times she had to coax him back to his proper place in the ranks.

PARIS CONFERENCE CLOSELY WATCHED BY CHINESE REDS

Outcome Will Influence Relations With Britain, France and U. S.

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

Nanking, June 9 — (AP) — Chinese Communist leaders were reported today watching the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference as a guide for relations with the Western Powers.

Diplomatic observers here believe the outcome of the Paris meeting will be a strong influence on the pattern of Red relations with Britain, the United States and France.

The foreign-policy line of the Chinese Communists of late has followed closely the lead of Russia.

Failure of the Big Four mini[illegible] to ease tensions of the cold [illegible] is expected to further strain the Chinese Reds' relations with the West.

There is deepening friction between the United States and the Reds.

This centres on the treatment of American consulate general at Mukden in Red Manchuria. The United States State Department May 17 ordered the consulate closed. For six months it had been isolated from all contact with the outside.

No Reply From Reds

American officials have received no reply from the Reds to a request for facilities for withdrawal of consular personnel and supplies. The embassy feels anxiety for the welfare of Mukden Consulate General Angus Ward, his staff of nine and their dependents.

The most serious British trouble is trying to get the damaged sloop Amethyst out of the Yangtze River to a British port. The ship [illegible] been marooned between Nan[illegible] and Shanghai since April 19 when she was fired on by Red shore batteries.

Three other British warships were shelled trying to aid the Amethyst. The engagement cost the British 45 dead. The Reds said they suffered 252 casualties.

French officials are viewing uneasily the Communist drive through south China toward the Indo-China border. This brings up the possibility of imminent contact of the Chinese Reds with Viet-Namese Nationalists who are fighting the French. The Viet-Namese are led by Communist-trained Ho Chi-Minh.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—Synopsis: This morning's temperatures were higher than Wednesday's by about five degrees at most places [illegible] the province, and, with this [illegible]ming trend continuing, there [illegible] little risk of frost tonight. The weather map still gives no definite indication of rain, and, in fact, the forecast for today and Friday is mostly clear and warmer. A band of scattered showers across the midwest that had been moving slowly eastward appears now as though it will pass south of Ontario.

Four Russians Beat Back Mob Looting Strikers

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Berlin, une 9. (AP)—Four fist-swinging Russian officers today beat back a looting mob of 200 railway strikers who invaded the American-sector headquarters of the Soviet-controlled Berlin railway.

Later, on orders of the United States military government, western police guarded the entrance of the five-storey building as a result of Soviet Commandant Alexander Kotikov's official complaint against the "hoodlum mob".

Meanwhile, rail strikers picketed the building preventing most of the headquarters staff from reporting for work.

One Soviet officer, escorting a Russian woman, was assaulted this morning. Pickets stormed around his car when he stepped in front of the building. Another Russian officer rushed from the entrance to help. They pushed through the mob, holding the arm of the Russian woman. One of the Russians was kicked from the rear. He ignored it.

The West-German police guarding the building kept a hands-off policy, except to warn several pickets who seemed to be getting too threatening.

The mob invaded and occupied the building late Wednesday night, but retreated shortly after midnight when the four Russian officers arrived.

The Russians, angered by the sight of the mob ripping pictures of Prime Minister Stalin off the walls, pitched into the strikers with their fists and drove them to the ground floor of the building.

The mob withdrew after the arrival of 100 American-sector German police, after the Russians had complained about the "hoodlum" invasion.

Some 14,000 employees of the Soviet - controlled Reichsbahn have refused to work since May 21 unless demands for West-mark wages, union recognition and job security are granted.

Commando squads from a West-Berlin union overpowdered several East-German guards and brandished a captured stock of pistols.

Fire-Fighting Equipment Should be Standardized Mayors Are Told

Quebec, June 9 (CP)—Allied standardization for defence should be extended to fire-fighting equipment, the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities was told today by a top civil defence planner.

He also suggested the mayors undertake a double-barrelled study as a prelude to a general municipal plan for the protection of Canadian communities in the event of war.

Cmdr. J. H. Arbick, director of Plans and Operations in the office of civil defence, warned against a misguided enthusiasm which produces local plans that can't be fitted into a general scheme.

In a speech prepared for delivery, he proposed that each community "conduct a survey of the over-all fire hazards, present and potential, within its boundaries."

Another proposal was that "the most serious consideration be given to...standardization of all types of fire-fighting equipment." It was "almost impossible to over-emphasize the importance of this."

"It would be highly desirable if this standardization could be carried out on an international basis with those countries who will inevitably be our most important Allies."

Nation-wide uniformity should be planned under federal leadership and this was being done but "any plan must be carried out under municipal direction if the maximum effectiveness is to be achieved."

PC'S VICTORIOUS IN BY-ELECTION BY BIG MARGIN

Marcel Leger Elected Over CCF Opponent

Cochrane, June 9. (CP)—The Progressive Conservative party retained the far-northern constituency of Cochrane North in provincial by-election voting Wednesday.

Complete returns from all the riding's 108 scattered polls showed 6,246 votes for Marcel Leger, Progressive Conservative candidate, against 3,170 for his lone opponent, Roy Kenney, C.C.F. About 66.5 per cent of the eligible voters cast their ballots.

The Liberal party did not contest the seat, made vacant through the death of John Carrere, Progressive Conservative victor in the 1948 provincial election. He was killed in a level-crossing accident last Fall.

Party standings in the 90-seat Ontario legislature now are: Progressive Conservatives 51; C.C.F., 21; Liberals 13; Labor-Progressives, two; Liberal-Labor one. There still is one vacancy remaining in the constituency of Leeds.

Mr. Leger, former Hearst school teacher who resigned as district relief inspector to contest the by-election, won a comparatively easy victory. He stepped into the lead right from the start, showing 304 votes against 181 for Mr. Kenney on 11 early polls, and never was headed.

Always in Lead

He lengthened his lead as the vote-counting progressed to cement the victory.

Mr. Kenney is a 28-year-old war veteran and paper company employee from Kapuskasing.

There were 14,153 eligible voters in the far-flung riding, which takes in railway, mining and lumbering settlements to the south and west of James Bay. In the 1948 general election, 76 per cent of the eligible vote was cast.

Of the 1948 total, 3,838 votes went to Mr. Carrere, 2,585 to the C.C.F., 2,321 to the Liberal candidate and 1,659 to the union of electors.

The riding has Ontario's most northerly poll—at Albany. Election officers flew there before the by-election to conduct the vote. Other centres included Cochrane, Hearst, Moose Factory and Kapuskasing.

Miner's Daughter May Lead Party

Blackpool, England, June 9 — (AP) — A miner's daughter may head the Labor party during next year's general elections.

Miss Alice Bacon, a school teacher who became a member of parliament in Labor's victorious sweep in 1949, Wednesday was elected vice - chairman of the Labor party at its annual conference.

Sam Watson, 61-year-old former miner, was elected chairman, succeeding James Griffiths.

But officers hold office a year and the vice-chairman usually is moved up to the top post.

If general elections are held in the summer of 1950 Miss Bacon likely will be boss of the party. She has been a member of the party's national executive for 8 years.

NOTES ON PICKPOCKET OPERATIONS STOLEN

Winnipeg, June 9 — (CP) — Every day for a week Tribune reporter Harold Milone has been writing stories on pickpocket thefts.

Tuesday he gathered material for a story on how pickpockets operate.

The notes were stolen while he was walking to his office.

Parents of 17 Astounded When Triplets Arrive

Bangor, Me., June 9. (AP) The George E. Chapmans, who had 17 children, now have 20. Mrs. Chapman gave birth to triplets Tuesday.

The babies —two girls and a boy—and their 36-year-old mother are "doing fine" at the hospital.

Chapman, 46-year-old truck driver, said he and his wife were "astounded".

The triplets have an older brother, an older sister—and 15 half brothers and sisters. Chapman had 10 children and his wife five by former spouses.

VETERAN EDITOR OF BROCKVILLE PAPER DIES

Suffers Heart Attack at Home After Full Day at His Desk

Brockville, June 9 — (CP) — Hamilton Richards (Dick) Morgan, 53, veteran editor of the Brockville Recorder and Times, died Wednesday night at his home following a heart attack. Death came after a full day at his desk, during which he wrote the editorials for today's paper.

His writings gained him a reputation as an authority on the history of Eastern Ontario, particularly that of Leeds county. His editorials on political and historical subjects were widely quoted in Canada and in neighboring New York State.

He came naturally by his historical interests, for he was a descendant of William Buell, one of the original settlers of this Eastern Ontario town on the St. Lawrence River.

Mr. Morgan was born in Ottawa. He received his early education in that city and was graduated from Ashbury College there. He later attended McGill University in Montreal and, following his graduation in arts in 1917, joined the Recorder Printing Company, then headed by the late Senator George P. Graham.

He rose to become vice-president and managing director of the firm, positions he held until his death.

Served on Prices Board

During the Second World War he served as a field representative of the Prices Board. The eastern regional office of the board was in Brockville.

He was a Liberal, a charter member of the Rotary Club and a past president of that service organization and was chairman of the Public Library Board. He served on the executive of St. Peter's Anglican Church and as secretary - treasurer of St. Peter's Cemetery.

He married Margaret E. Bowie of Brockville in London, England, in 1926.

Surviving besides his widow are a daughter, Margaret, at home; a sister, Constance, in London, England; and a brother, Francis H. Morgan, of Kirkwood, Missouri. Two brothers predeceased him.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

OLDEST PERSON RECEIVES NATURALIZATION PAPERS

Woodstock, June 9 — (CP) — William Sinden, 89, of Otterville is the oldest person ever to receive naturalization papers in Oxford county court, Crown Attorney Craig McKay told court Tuesday. Mr. Sinden was assisted to the stand but after taking oath of allegiance added in firm voice "So help me God." Seventeen others received their citizenship papers.

MINERS' WALKOUT TO UNDERSCORE LEWIS' LECTURE

450,000 Miners Will Start Strike Monday

Washington, June 9 — (AP)—The 450,000 members of the United Mine Workers start a week-long strike Monday to underscore John L. Lewis' lecture in economics to the United States coal industry.

Lewis told the industry Wednesday it has over - produced badly and the shutdown will help eat into the huge, 52 - day supply of coal already mined.

"This period of inaction," he said, "will emphasize a lack of general stability in the industry and the dangers which will accrue therefrom if current harmful practices are not remedied." And he added:

"The mineworkers are required again to protect affirmatively the human and property values inherent in the coal-mining industry."

Lewis said the strike will be a good thing all around. Some mine owners agreed. An industry source at Pittsburgh said:

"Many coal producers will be glad to see a shutdown. It has been all outgo and little income recently because of supply blacklogs."

But there were dissenting opinions.

President J. Atlee Schafer of the American Retail Coal Association, said "Lewis is violating terms of the present contract by calling out miners prior to the expiration date."

As for the miners, their reaction was summed up by one new member who said: "John L. has always been right for us before, hasn't he?"

The strike comes on the eve of crucial negotiations for a new contract. By reducing the 65,000,000 tons of stocked coal above ground, the walkout will bolster Lewis' bargaining position.

OSHAWA HARBOR DREDGING

Ottawa, June 9 — (CP) — A contract for dredging the Oshawa harbor has been awarded to the J. P. Porter Co., Ltd., of Montreal, public works officials said today.

Exact amount of the tender was not stated, but at a figure of 85 cents a cubic yard it would amount to approximately $100,000 based on the average work done in dredging the harbor. The job is done about every five years.

Officials said the Porter Company submitted the lowest of four tenders.

CANCEL EXTRA HELP FOR HAY HARVESTING

Kitchener, June 9 — (CP) — With a hay crop almost too small to cause worry about how it is going to be taken in, farmers throughout the country are beginning to cancel applications for extra farm help on file with the National Employment Service for some months.

Cancellations are becoming a daily occurrence.

Atlantic Pact Western Shield Against Russia

—Bevin

Foreign Secretary Tells Labor Not to be Misled

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Blackpool, England, June 9 (CP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin today described the Atlantic Pact as a western shield against the biggest army in the world—Russia's.

"It is the largest army, the greatest power in the world that is mobilized today," Bevin told the annual Labor Party Conference, "and I want to see that brought to an end, not by war but by example—by remaining firm ourselves. . . .

"There has never been a dictator in the history of the world who has not talked peace when he had been preparing for war.

"Do not be misled."

Bevin told the conference he believes he has established "a basis upon which a real structure of peace can be raised."

The Foreign Secretary, who flew to Blackpool from the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Paris, reviewed world problems since the war and said "something may yet emerge" from the four-power talks in Paris.

Biggest Step

He called the Atlantic Pact "the biggest step in collective security that has been taken in the history of the world."

"The onrush and effort to su- thinks it regrettable that Russia had refused Marshall Plan aid.

"Quarrel as we like about Communism or democracy or anything else," he said, "when millions of people are starving and somebody offers to assist you, then I think it is regrettable that it is turned down."

"The onrush an deffort to su- communism by strikes, interrup- communism by strikes, interruptions and chaos was one we could not stand idly by and see go on," Bevin said.

Today was the first time foreign policy had dominated the conference During the first three sessions domestic problems excluded overseas considerations.

Launches Bid

Wednesday the government launched its bid for a second five-year term with stern warnings to private enterprise to improve its operations and not be "anti-social".

Health Minister Bevan, a former miner who frequently is called the next Labor Prime Minister of Britain, said that given another five-year term of office, the Labor Party would establish a society of which Britons everywhere could be proud and which would be an example to the rest of mankind.

The response to Bevan's fiery speech was an ovation such as has been given by the delegates to no other leaders except Prime Minister Attlee himself.

"What is national planning," he asked, "but insistence that human beings shall make their ethical choices on a national scale?"

Plan to Serve Moral Purpose

Socialism was using economic planning to serve a moral purpose Its supporters should not bow their heads to critics—"we should raise our heads and look to the stars."

Morrison, deputy prime minister, said the next general election "will be the fight of our lives if we are going to win."

He said Britain's economy would be a mixed one—socialist and capitalist—for a long time, and private industry "cannot be allowed to go any way it wishes."

"All business is the nation's business," he said, "and let that be understood. Private industry or finance that indulges in anti-social conduct will be pulled up fast and sharp."

If Labor retains power in the next parliament the government would place permanently on the statute books its present powers to impose economic controls.

Quebec Premier Wants Coference Of Provinces

Quebec, June 9 (CP)—Premier Duplessis, making his first public speech in three months, Wednesday night called for a "definite formal and final" taxation arrangement between federal, provincial and municipal governments.

The Quebec premier, who spoke in English at a provincial dinner for delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities said it was time to make the "powers that be" understand the urgent need of such an agreement.

He said that as far as his own Union Nationale government was concerned, it was "willing to help" and do what was possible to have "commonsense" prevail.

Premier Duplessis said democracy could be strengthened only by "decentralization" of government and that was possible only if governments at all levels had sufficient and stable enough revenues to get the advantages of planning and foresight.

Revenue problems were common to all municipal governments today because "for too many years we have been drifting along —administrations have been lazy and have not established a system of taxation that is fair and appropriate."

Premier Duplessis said the burden of municipal taxation had been falling on property-owners and municipalities had suffered from the "disease of centralization of ownership, a danger to social peace and to municipal corporations."

He said "one public man" claimed the central authority had "all rights" of taxation and the "leavings" were the share of the governments on other levels

He thought it was time to tackle the problem of an arrangement defining taxation rights with "energy, firmness and frankness."

"A definite, formal and final delimitation of powers of taxation should be made so there will be no encroachment by one of the others," he said. "No government can live through grants-in-aid. Municipalities are too important to live as poor children through grants-in-aid.

Clerk Admits She's at Convention For Purpose of Securing Husband

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 9 —(AP) — "Luscious Lucy" appears to have found her man.

Lucille Archibeque, a Los Angeles accounting clerk, is attending the current convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce for the admitted purpose of locating a husband.

The 23-year-old brunette, whose extravagant physical architecture has already earned her the name of "Luscious Lucy" among the Jaycee delegates, said Wednesday night that 24-year-old Sandy Crews of St. Catharines is "just what I'm looking for."

"He's got the most terrific manners," she said in an interview.

"And he speaks terrific French. I love his French."

Crews, an automobile salesman in St. Catharines, is a convention delegate. His unabashed opinion of Lucille is:

"She's really got something."

He appears unconcerned over the fact Lucille's husband-hunting expedition is backed by a radio program, Art Linkletter's "People Are Funny." And he isn't especially averse to the idea that she must send periodic "progress reports" to Linkletter.

Miss Archibeque is pledged to make a second appearance on the air next fall when the Linkletter program is resumed. At that time she will give a detailed summary of her experiences as a huntress.

Crews' only worry is that competition may become a little too crowded in this jammed resort town. "I've got to figure a way to scrape off all the other guys hanging around," he said. "You know, this convention ends Sunday. I been thinking. A guy 24-years-old ought to be having thoughts about marriage."

Pileup of Algoma Central Railway freight and passenger trains 18 miles south of Oba on main line, 225 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, put engineer and fireman of one train in hospital at Hearst. Cab of one engine was ripped off.—Pincr.

HON. PAUL MARTIN AND CANDIDATE VISIT BATAWA

During the visit of Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of Health in the Liberal Cabinet, to this city, he was taken on a tour of the riding by the candidate, Frank S. Follwell. The party visited Batawa near Frankford and were shown through the extensive plant at that site. Other points of interest were also visited during the tour.

STORAGE SHED IS DESTROYED

A storage shed owned by the Belleville Metal and Waste Company at 100 Church Street was damaged yesterday afternoon by fire of undetermined origin.

Firemen stated the shed was used to store old machinery.

The blaze was extinguished by firemen who ran one line of large hose to the fire with the booster hose also being used to control the flames. Firemen fought the blaze for approximately an hour before it was extinguished completely.

FIRST STRAWBERRIES OFFERED ON MARKET

First home grown strawberries of the season were offered on the local produce market this morning, the one vendor from the Brighton district, asking 50 cents per box.

Questioned regarding prospects for the current strawberry crop this vendor prophesied a short season as the vines already were drying up because of the lack of rain.

GROW ASPARAGUS BIG OVER BLOOMFIELD WAY

They grow their asparagus big over Bloomfield way. Two stalks grown by Bernard Shannon of that village tipped the scales at nine ounces. Since asparagus is bunched in half - pound lots for retail trade it needed but two of the mammoth stalks to qualify.

Public Schools Close for Summer On June 29th

Public schools in the city will close for the summer holidays on June 29th, it was stated today from the board of education administrative office. This closing date is net by the provincial department of education and is general throughout the province.

High school students will leave classes at varying dates, according to Principal G. E. Currie of the Belleville Collegiate. Lower and Middle school examinations are now being written and will be concluded by Friday night with Upper School examinations scheduled to start on June 13th. Some of the Middle School pupils will also write Upper School examinations, it was stated.

Upper School examinations will continue until June 29th, although many of the students will complete their exams by June 24th.

Police Blotter

Police assistance in locating two young school boys who disappeared yesterday from their West Hill homes, was asked by parents yesterday.

Police stated that Floyd Deline, aged 10, 48 Murney Street had disappeared Wednesday morning before nine and after failing to attend school had not returned home. He was stated to be wearing long blue trousers, tan shirt, black boots. He has a fair complexion with curly brown hair and brown eyes.

The other lad who failed to return home yesterday afternoon was Billy Munroe, age 8, 106 Bridge Street, West. Billy is wearing long light colored trousers, light blue sweater and has brown hair and blue eyes. Police have reasons to believe the two lads may be together.

Indicative that teeth are being put into the local by-law prohibiting tractors with lugs being operated on the streets, a tractor owned by the McFarland Construction Company was stopped on Station Street yesterday. Police stated the tractor, operated by Harry Douglas, 48 Dunbar St., was cutting up the pavement. Charges against the owner will be preferred, it was stated.

Premier Leslie Frost Guest At Hastings East PC Picnic Held at Memorial Park, Tweed

Ontario Premier

Hon. Leslie Frost pays visit to Hastings East at the annual Progressive Conservative picnic which was held at Tweed on Wednesday.

Tweed (Staff Special) — Ontario's Premier Leslie Frost made his debut into the Federal election campaign here Wednesday afternoon when as guest speaker at a Progressive Conservative picnic he came strongly to the support of George Drew, national leader of the party.

Speaking at the annual picnic sponsored by the Hastings East Progressive Conservative Association, which was held at Memorial Park in Tweed, the Ontario Premier upheld Mr. Drew as a "man who got things done" and assured he would give Ottawa a new look after he became prime minister on June 27th.

The premier was speaking on behalf of Richard D. Arnott, PC candidate for Hastings South, and George S. White, PC candidate for Hastings - Peterborough, both of whom were heard in brief addresses.

Everyone Had Good Time

Everyone had a good time. The elders heard party policies of the Progressive Conservative party outlined by Mr. Frost and by various other speakers, all of whom pointed to Mr. George Drew as a splendid leader and well worthy of the confidence of the Canadian elector.

All was not speech making, however. The kiddies had a whale of a time enjoying the many park facilities. The school children were given a late afternoon holiday after Premier Frost visited Tweed schools. There was a softball game and in the evening a dance. Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings East, promised the picnic would be an annual event.

Called Courageous Leader

Referring to George Drew as a "courageous" leader, Premier Frost stated that it was Mr. Drew who had been mainly responsible for bringing the Conservative government into power. He said that Mr. Drew would "do things" at Ottawa which he had initiated as premier of Ontario.

The premier prophesied that when Mr. Drew went to Ottawa Dominion - Provincial relations would be ironed out in record time while the housing problem would be solved in a few hours. "These two problems could be solved by a stroke of the pen by men who intended to solve them," he said.

Turning to party policy Mr. Frost stated the Progressive Conservatives believed in free enterprise and in political and economic freedom.

"We like to be able to push the government around at times. We don't want a party in power which is going to push us around. If we are able to push the government around at times it might stir them into action," he said.

Ont. Grants Praised

Capital grants for hospitals instituted by the province had made thousands of additional hospital beds available and helped to make Ontario's health program the best in the Dominion.

"All Health Minister Paul Martin did when he introduced his health scheme in 1948 was to tear a page out of Ontario's book. The Progressive Conservatives in this province showed the way and the Dominion copied us."

It was Mr. Drew's government that embarked on the scheme of lending money on second mortgages to persons buying their own homes. Now the Dominion is suggesting that other provinces follow suit and that Ottawa would consider combining these loans with those granted under the National Housing Act so as to eliminate duplication in collections.

Refers To School Grants

"This should have been done long ago and not just three weeks before an election," he said.

The speaker said that Progressive Conservatives did not consider there should be a means test for old age pensions. The party stood for $40 per month at 70, or even at 65.

"If some millionaires get $40 which they don't need, then we'll take it back in the form of taxes," he said.

Mr. Frost referred to school grants stating that when Mr. Drew became premier of Ontario these grants were but eight millions yearly. With Mr. Drew as premier school grants had been increased to 50 per cent—and in some cases as high as 90 per cent. School grants this year would total 37 millions.

"When I tell you these things I want you to believe George Drew when he says he will give a new look to the Dominion of Canada," stated the premier. "Because Mr. Drew had a great deal to do with the measures which I have told you about."

Erect Rural Line

Turning back to provincial affairs Mr. Frost stated Ontario this year would construct 4,500 miles of rural hydro lines. It would only be a short while until all of rural Ontario was electrified. Also additional hydro developments were being rushed to completion which would mean more industries and more work.

Richard Arnott, candidate for the Federal riding of Hastings South, was critical of a government which would increase income taxes after the war in order to build up a huge backlog so that taxes could be cut and income tax refunds mailed out—just prior to election.

"I don't believe in that sort of government," he said.

The speaker also held the recent increase in old age pensions granted by the Liberal government as being "an election dodge."

George Drew was a leader which his party—and the country—could well be proud. His past record in Ontario and as a world statesman showed him to be a prodigious worker. He had pulled the party up in this province and had saved it from a socialistic government.

Would Govern From Floor

The speaker promised when Mr. Drew became prime minister he would give representative government back to the people and would govern "from the floor of the House and not over the radio."

Here Mr. Arnott turned his attack on the C.C.F. and warned his listeners against the threat of a socialistic government and nationalization of industry and business. "No one can operate a business as well as the owner," he said.

"I trust that when electors go to the polls on June 27th that Hastings will send a representative to Ottawa who will assist George Drew in bringing a safe, sane and business-like responsible government — we need it badly. We are tired of having someone crack a whip over our heads," he concluded.

George White Heard

George White, candidate for Hastings - Peterborough also was certain that George Drew would be the next prime minister of Canada. "The Progressive Conservatives believed in freedom and opportunity for every Canadian citizen and had adopted this as their new party slogan," he said.

"With George Drew as our leader the party is on the march," he said. "The three federal by-elections won by the Conservatives since Mr. Drew became our leader shows the party is on the march and indicates a party landslide on June 27th.

The party, he said, had always taken an interest in the veterans and had endeavoured to bring in $100 pensions for 100 per cent disabled veterans. This had been turned down by the Liberals. "The party also stood for old age pensions without a means test," he said.

Warden Extends Welcome

Warden S. R. McCarey, reeve of Tweed village, extended an official welcome to the guest speaker and also to the many party supporters attending the picnic, while this was echoed by W. S. Gordon, chairman of the Tweed Parks Board. He welcomed visitors to the Tweed Memorial Park which he said had been established twenty years ago. John O. Sager, president of the Tweed Progressive Conservative Association, also spoke briefly.

Mr. Jack Pringle, M.L.A. for Frontenac and Addington, referred to the high calibre of Hastings' two federal candidates and pointed to George Drew as a great leader. He referred to Ontario's new premier and assured that the people of Ontario were fortunate in having a man of his calibre at the head of their provincial government.

Arnold Gaebel, secretary of the Hastings East Progressive Conservative Association, introduced Mr. George White, while T. C. Graham, president of the Hastings South Progressive Conservative Association introduced R. D. Arnott, riding candidate.

First in Long Time

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings East, introduced Premier Frost, with Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A. for Hastings West, extending appreciation. In introducing the premier Mr. Robson said this was the first visit of an Ontario premier to Tweed since the by-election in 1936, and the first visit of an Ontario premier since the visit of Premier George S. Henry in 1929 when he officiated at the opening of Tweed's memorial park.

Following the program of public speaking Premier Frost took advantage of the occasion to meet many of the party supporters attending the picnic. It was only by meeting the people of the province that their wishes could be ascertained by the premier, stated Mr. Robson.

Stirling band was in attendance at the picnic heading the parade preceeding Premier Frost into the park. During the program the band favored with a number of musical numbers.

Police Court

V. Boomhouer Remanded Week On Theft Charge

Pleading guilty to the theft of two mower wheels and parts of a stove which he later sold as junk to a local metal dealer, Vernard Boomhouer, Foster Ward, was remanded one week for sentence when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county police court today.

Boomhouer was also charged with the theft of a tractor drawbar and two plough points, all the property of Dennis J. Callaghan, R.R. Corbyville, but the accused denied taking the articles.

Provincial Police Constable Charles Siple told the court that Mr. Callaghan had reported the articles missing from a farm which he owned. He said the mower wheels, valued new at $15 each, had been recovered at a local junk yard.

When the court was informed Boomhouer also faced a theft charge re the alleged taking of metal articles at Bannockburn, he was remanded one week for sentence.

Admit Taking Boat

Two former members of the R.C.A.F., pleaded guilty to the theft of a punt boat, the property of Chas. O. Brown of Trenton, and were also remanded one week to enable the Crown to present further particulars regarding the charge.

Two vagrants, Fernand Bournival and Paul O'Connor, both of Montreal, were given their freedom and advised to "move along". The men had been picked up by provincial police early Monday morning and had since been in custody.

Balance of the court consisted of charges under the Highway Traffic Act with practically all being settled out of court. One motorist pleaded guilty in court to failing to produce his driver's licence and was assessed $2 fine and $3 costs.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS ELIZA M. SMALLHORN (Corbyville)

The funeral of Mrs. Eliza May Smallhorn, wife of Mr. John H. Smallhorn, Corbyville, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, on Wednesday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at Elmwood Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. R. Trumpour, minister of Cannifton United Church.

The bearers were R. Farquharson, D. Collett, R. Pound, M. Vermilyea, H. Brenton and W. Brenton.

The late Mrs. Smallhorn is survived by her husband; three daughters, Mrs. Charles (Edith) Lettis, Albion, N.Y.; Miss Elsie Smallhorn, at home; Miss Margaret Smallhorn, Toronto; one son, John Smallhorn, Renfrew; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Johns, North Park Street, Belleville.

LATE ALSON G. BOGART

Model Flying Club in Process Of Development

Belleville's "Model Flying" enthusiasts have a special treat in store for them, if they will go to the Trenton Airport on June 11th. That date marks the celebration of Airforce Day. One of the special events will be an exhibition of "Control line" flying of gasoline models by members of the Trenton Airport Club and the Belleville Club.

There are about a half-dozen members in the Trenton Model Club. Belleville's Club has not even that many members, but it is just in the making and has ambitions of enlargening itself to take in all gas model addicts in the vicinity. Those who thus classify themselves should get in touch immediately with Bill Brown, through the YMCA.

The development of this advanced model flying club has come about through the efforts of Bill Brown, a Model enthusiast for the past 14 years, who served 2 years as an airforce pilot. Bill and Ken Cavers conduct a Boys' Model Airplane Club at the YMCA on Wednesday evenings, which Ken started last fall. It is the intention of members of the Senior advanced Model group to encourage and assist the boys' group towards further advancement in the skills of Model Aircraft, by creating an interest in flying models.

Another interesting development reported by Bill Brown is the possibility of obtaining the use of a field across the Bay, through the kindness of Mr. R. Cheshire of Dobbs Plumbing, another Model fan for many years.

It is hoped that this field will be developed by club members into an ideal "Modelport" with a nicely sodded control circle at the centre. Members are looking forward to many hours of model flying pleasure this summer. Enquiries, re joining the club may be made at the YMCA.

Sgt. Don Prentiss of the Trenton Club, who will be the M.C. at the Airport exhibition on June 11th, has flown with Neuburger

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—Gold producers provided the only active spot here today, rising quietly on moderate gains. Industrials opened easier but tended to recover in mid-session and base metals were about balanced.

Senior and junior gold producers came into demand early in the session and lifted steadily. Dome was up 1-2 at 18, Kerr Addison 1-8 at 15 and Lake Shore 1-4 at 13. Gains ranged up to about 10 cents in key juniors. Eldona attracted attention at the half-way mark for a moderate advance.

Early fractional declines in industrials were wiped out as the session progressed. A heavy ex-dividend list held the market at a comparative standstill. Canadian Breweries lifted 1-4 at 19 3-8 following the six-month report that showed increased sales and earnings.

Hudson Bay slid 1-2 to a new low at 38 1-2 in base metals. Waite Amulet, International Nickel, Noranda and Silanco gained.

MRS. MATTIE M. GEROW

Mrs. Mattie Minerva Gerow, widow of Marshall Gerow, and late residence, 51 Dundas Street east, died at the Olive Bush Rest Home, Trent Road, Thursday morning, after an illness of three months' duration.

The late Mrs. Gerow was born 71 years ago in Prince Edward County and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Swenor. All her life was passed in this district and at various times she lived at Rossmore and Point Anne. She was a member of the Church of England and was a parishioner at St. Thomas' Church.

Surviving her are two daughters, Mrs. Wesley (Dorothy) Kister, Consecon, and Miss Mayme Gerow, at home; three sons, Harry Gerow, Kingston; Eric Gerow, Brighton, and Wesley Gerow, Belleville; three brothers, James Swenor, Clayton Swenor and Harry Swenor, all of Toronto; three sisters, Mrs. Daniel MacDonald and Mrs. Basil McKendrick, both of Point Anne, and Mrs. Eric Groome, Hamilton.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Jitney Bowling At Local Greens Much Enjoyed

Despite the cool weather but on excellent greens the Belleville Bowling Club members enjoyed the regular Wednesday afternoon jitney with some fine scores being posted. These jitneys under the direction of Jerry Hyde and Austin Watkin are one of the most pleasant features of the bowling season because they are mixed rinks competing and sociability is at the highest peak. The club games will be started in the near future and the men members are eagerly looking forward to some close games.

Mrs. Harry Thompson was the high woman with two wins on Wednesday and received the major prize. Charles B. McGuire was the high two game winner for the men. Other two game winners were Mrs. Gordon Vince, George Stewart, Dr. R. Barker, Mrs. Lorne Feever and Ernie Vanner.

The high one game winner among the women was Mrs. Charles Mott and for the men Mr. G. Amos, who was a guest of the club. Other one game winners were Mrs. J. Gallagher, Joseph Black, Joseph Legault, Wilfred Price, Mrs. Gerow, Mrs. G. O'Connor, Herb Middleton, Claude D. Tice, Mrs. William Gilbert, Davey Davidson, Mrs. George Watkin, Mrs. Joseph Legault, Mrs. Roy Ward, Garn Dobbs, Clarence Clapp, Mrs. A. E. Wonnacott. The no game winners were Mrs. Harold Cross, Tom McMullen, Fred Harper, Ernie Bolton, Mrs. B. Humphreys, Mrs. W. Price with the president of the club, A. E. Wonnacott, at the bottom of the list.

Swimming Pool Project Returned To Kinsmen Club

After several months during which time the project was considered a joint effort of the Inter-Service Club Council the Community Swimming Pool project is being returned to Kinsmen Club of Belleville, it has been announced.

Decision to return the Community Swimming Pool Fund project to the local service club was made at a meeting of the Inter-Service club held this week.

The local Kinsmen Club was responsible for inauguration of the community swimming pool idea and raised funds for the project before it was taken over as a joint project by the Inter-Service Club Council. However, recently there has been but little activity in raising funds for the proposed swimming pool and members of the Kinsmen Club felt that better progress could be made with the project again being considered a one service club venture.

No Site Chosen

No definite site for the proposed swimming pool has yet been decided on but several locations have been considered and a statement as to the final location is expected shortly.

With the return of the swimming pool fund to the Kinsmen Club, members of the local service club will set up a separate committee to push the project and already several club ventures have been planned to raise funds for the pool. Proceeds from the automobile draw, tickets for which are now being sold, will be used to swell the swimming pool fund and for other club community service projects.

Executive members of the Kinsmen Club are optimistic regarding the future of the proposed swimming pool and it is considered possible that a start on its construction may be made this year.

PICTON

Tustin Critical of Liberal Handling of Export Market

Picton—"Hon. James Gardiner and Hon. C. D. Howe are declaring that Canada's export markets are in good shape, but both men know better than that," declared George Tustin, Progressive Conservative candidate in Prince Edward-Lennox told a party rally in Roblin's Mills hall, Tuesday night. "The truth will be admitted after June 27th."

Mr. Tustin was greeted by the largest crowd to attend such a rally there in many campaigns, and commended the electors for their interest. Mr. Tustin referred to the recent budget as the "Sunset Budget," declaring it will be the last one the Liberals will present in some time to come.

Criticizes Costs

Referring to income taxes, he declared "snooper rule must go", and strongly criticized the increasing costs of government administration.

The Progressive Conservative government will increase social security and lower taxes by operating the government on a business-like basis," Mr. Tustin declarred, pledging to give his full time to representing the riding.

Melvin Pulver, township P. C. president, welcomed the crowd. Reeve Norris Whitney stressed Mr. Drew's interest in municipalities as evidenced by the aid given by the Ontario government when Mr. Drew was premier.

Ex-Mayor Lance Nethery of Picton discussed the budget, revealing how the income tax changes, and the lowering of certain taxes, benefitted the richer class more than the working man.

Praises Candidate

Clarence Milligan, Napanee, president of the Riding Association lauded Mr. Tustin as a man of experience, high integrity and a hard worker on behalf of the riding. He urged Mr. Tustin be given an opportunity to serve on the government side of the House, declaring the chances of

Claims Markets Slipping

"For many years Canada's most important market was that of the United Kingdom. Those markets are slipping away. Between 1939 and 1949, Canada negotiated 142 food contracts for supply of food products to the United Kingdom. Today there are only three, exclusive of wheat", said Mr. Tustin. "By juggling of figures and adding wheat, the Liberals are attempting to deny exports of farm products are down. Mr. Gardiner has declared there are no surpluses. County farmers know better."

"The Liberal government is losing the markets to other countries. Last year the United Kingdom bought only 23 million pounds of cheese from Canada but 68 million pounds from the U.S.A. and in the latter case paid 6 and 7 cents a pound more for it.

"Canada's egg contract has been reduced by 62 per cent.

"The bacon contract is for 160 millions. If encouraged, Canadian farmers could have supplied 985 million pounds as they did in war years. Great Britain is buying more eggs, cheese, bacon than before, but Canada has lost the market to European and other countries.

Registers Objection

"Prince Edward-Lennox produced almost five million pounds of cheese last year. I object when they have to take 6 or 7 cents a pound less than is being received by United States producers supplying the U.K. market.

"In 1947, Canada exported a million barrels of apples to the U.K. In 1948, none were shipped, but at the same time the U.K. imported 466,179 hundredweight more apples than the year before from Australia, New Zealand and other countries. The government spent several million dollars uprooting trees in Nova Scotia, paying $4 a tree, because of the lack of markets."

Mr. Tustin quoted from the party's platform to declare that the party will exact permanent floor-price legislation; announced floor prices well in advance; consult with representative farm organizations in arriving at prices.

He stressed that the P.C. policies were set at the greatest convention ever held in Canada and are not mere election promises.

Attacks Taxation

Mr. Tustin pointed out that in the budget, luxury taxes were reduced but pointed out that a 10 per cent bidder tax is being collected at the manufacturers' end.

Referring to the eight per cent sales tax, Mr. Tustin pointed out that this hits the low wage group. This tax costs the Canadian taxpayer 30 cents for every dollar of processed material. The Conservatives will reduce this sales tax," he said, adding that taxes were taken off luxury goods but left on necessities.

"We must end the administrative persecution by tax collectors," declared Mr. Tustin, who deplored "snooper" tactics carried on.

"By cutting out extravagance, taxes can be reduced and social legislation increased."

Paying tribute to war veterans, Mr. Tustin said the Conservative government would accept as the basis for all decisions the medical category recorded on enlistment and would regard physical condition below that standard during service as the actual result of military service. Veterans' problems would be reviewed annually by a Standing Committee

Mr. Tustin flayed order-in-council government and urged restoration of the supremacy of parliament.

J. U. BOYER

Toronto, June 9 — (CP) — J. U. Boyer of Montreal, general manager of the Provincial Bank of Canada, yesterday was elected president of the Canadian Banker's Association. He succeeds Robert Rae of Toronto, who retires because of his appointment to the presidency of the Dominion Bank.

Mr. Rae was named honorary president and the following vice-presidents were elected:

James Muir, vice-president and general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada; L. G. Gillett, general manager of the Bank of Toronto; Gordon R. Ball, general manager of the Bank of Montreal; and James Stewart, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

SWIMMING FOR HEALTH

The year is at that season when the time for swimming has arrived. Swimming is an accomplishment of which the race has known for so many generations that its origin is lost in the dim past. Today not only the highly civilized peoples still practise the art but there are also the natives of far away seas who have descended from generation to generation of swimmers.

There is reason to believe that swimming goes back into the faroff ages of the world and that perhaps man has always practised swimming. The use of water for improving health appears in records of nations of a period well before the time of the Christian era and doubtless before the dawn of history.

For those who enjoy swimming, Dr. Harvey Downey, Director of Swimming and Water Safety of the Canadian Red Cross Society, has an interesting story to tell of the developing of the interest in swimming in these latter days. He tells in "Health and Welfare" that from the earliest times primitive tribes and races worshipped water even as they did the sun, believing it had supernatural healing powers. During the Roman Empire period, bathing and aquatic events assumed even preater proportions and the size and appointments of famous Roman baths are to this day a source of wonder. With the decline of the Empire these centres of healthful recreation deteriorated and deservedly developed a very unsavory reputation. Thence came the falling off of interest of aquatic activities and betterment of health by means of water came into a certain disfavor, he states.

It was towards the end of the 19th century that the medical profession again came to stress the great benefits to health through generous use of water. Today hydrotherapy is a respected form of treatment for disabilities.

Today it is accepted that swimming is one of the finest means of developing the body. Experience shows that the person, particularly the child, who swims well is likely to be taller than the average, with long, smooth, flat muscles that produce bodily symmetry. These people, he says, usually have excellent posture and a deep chest with greater vitality capacity than the average. Swimming strokes present a contributing factor to grace and poise characteristic of all swimmers. Even swimmers' feet are usually well keyed in the arches, though often larger than usual, due perhaps to barefoot walking in sand.

Swimming has been prescribed for "nervous cases" by inducing mental relaxation and patients may develop a self-confidence by mastering the new element.

Convalescent swimming has been developed in veterans' hospitals, but too little has been done to encourage the average healthy person that there are in sunshine and water two of the most natural and valuable agents.

The Canadian Red Cross by its water safety program is teaching means to eliminate the hazards which have been associated with water activities. This branch of the work of the Society is one that brings rewards in saving lives and in building up healthy bodies. Canada has many places where swimming may be safely practised and the Red Cross is doing a true service by the program which it is carrying out.

INNATE GOODNESS

One hears much of the frailties, idiosyncrasies and orneriness of human beings. One also, thank goodness, finds plenty of examples of the innate goodness of mankind.

At Hotel Dieu Hospital here a little boy is seriously ill. He must have someone with him constantly. He is a son of a fireman, and other firemen are providing a watch over the lad. They do it on their own time, and in rotation. They do it as volunteers, gladly, to save their colleague the high cost of a continuous watch by professional nurses. Such instances as this are a good antidote for cynicism.—Windsor Star.

EVER HEAR "SINGING" SANDS?

If the beach you may be basking on during your summer vacation started to sing, you would experience more than a moment of panic. Yet it would be nothing unusual. There are about a hundred beaches that actually do ring and sing in various parts of the world. One is the musical beach at Eigg in the Hebrides.

Walk across Eigg beach and it will play a "tune" for you. Explanation is that Eigg bay is covered with a shining white mass of highly polished and rounded quartzose grains, washed out of a cliff some distance away, and carried onto the beach by the ceaseless action of the waves. On any day when the sand is dry you can hear a peculiar ringing and singing as it is trodden underfoot.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

TRIAL

If everything could pleasant be
And never had we care to know,
Were all from disappointment free,
How should we stronger grow?

Did every hope and dream come true,
With courage never once required,
Then we could idle all day through
And never once grow tired,

But had this life been fashioned so,
Care-free from birth to end,
If grief were never ours to know,
Then few would need a friend.

Were trial unto us denied,
The years an endless round of bliss,
The joy of self-respect and pride
And triumph we should miss.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell has arrived home from Ottawa.

The Gas Company has been given permission to open up the roadway on Bridge Street from Pinnacle Street to Albert St. for the purpose of putting down a larger gas main.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ALMOST VICTORY

Right near the town of Princeton, New Jersey, is a point where George Washington was called upon to make one of the great decision of life. He crossed the Delaware won the battles of Trenton and Princeton, and was on his way out of Princeton by the east road as the British entered the village by the west road. At Kingston he had to decide whether, with an exhausted army, he would try to take the great collection of military stores at New Brunswick or turn north and go into winter quarters at Morristown. If he could take New Brunswick then the war would probably be over. Victory was that close, but risk of complete defeat was too great. Perhaps if he had realized that Valley Forge was ahead, he might have taken the chance. With victory almost within his grasp, he had to turn aside and face several years of indescribable suffering and sacrifice.

The outcome of many of life's events is within the circle of our powers, but we are never permitted to dictate regarding schedules. God lets events happen according to his will, and we have to accept this and like it. Sometimes we almost win life's most coveted prize, and then it slips out of our fingers. Hard luck? Apparently yes! but there's a reason for it even through the reason may be hidden from us.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A professor friend of mine has one of those enquiring minds. He is a great authority on history. But there is hardly any other subject of human interest he is not willing to explore.

One of the younger men in his department is blind. He lost his sight in the war. But he is a young man of great scholarship and brilliant promises. The way he carries on with his work is a matter of intense interest to both staff and students. He has immense courage.

The other night, the professor, having finished his work in his own office, was leaving. As he passed the libary, he recollected a book he wanted. He steepped into the library and switched on the lights. There alone, sat his young colleague, quietly reading a Braille text. He had been sitting in the dark. The professor greeted the younger man, got his book, withdrew, and, before closing the door, rather awkwardly enquired if he should turn out the light again.

"It doesn't matter," smiled the younger man, amiably.

As he walked across the campus, the professor was deeply moved by this curious little incident. He got to wondering how he would react to being blind. His enquiring mind began to probe and question. Have I, the professor checked, enough courage? How does it feel to be blind? Am I the man that young fellow is?

The professor took a sight ahead of him across the dark campus, with its scattered lights. He closed his eyes. He walked. With courage, he walked. He was amazed to find he was not at all disturbed to be walking blind. He increased his pace. He was bold. He went smack into a maple tree and cracked his forehead open so that it required four stitches, and for the next week he went about his duy turbanned like a Turk.

Mackenzie's Column:

British Govt. Nails Socialist Flag to Mast

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Britain's government has nailed its Socialist flag to the mast in connection with the party's annual conference at Blackpool.

Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, the party's political strategist, Wednesday laid the cards on the table.

He named further industries which the party proposed to nationalize, and then declared that if re-elected the government would pass a "permanent and revised version" of the Wartime Act giving it control over industry and manpower.

Conservative - minded folk undoubtedly will interpret Morrison's declaration as savoring rather strongly of regimentation but he didn't say the war-time measures would be used except of necessity. They would be on the books ready for use when needed.

Fuel for Tories

The Labor view of this is that there's nothing bad in the fact that the government has such powers. It all depends on how the government uses the powers. Moreover all orders under the emergency program can be rejected by parliament.

Morrison also announced that, if re-elected, the government intended to nationalize six more industries. Those proposed for state ownership are meat wholesaling and cold storage, sugar refining, cement making, most life insurance, "all suitable" minerals and water supplies.

Much Accomplished

The Labor government in its first four years of office already has nationalized coal mines, gas works, electricity, railroads, canals, long-distance trucking, airlines, the Bank of England and the world - wide Cable and Wireless Communications Company. Medicine also has been socialized and the vast steel industry is in process of being nationalized by parliament.

So the Socialists' gauntlet is down, but they are well aware that this crucial battle is going to be a tough one. As Morrison said: "The next election will be the fight of our lives." However, he also declared:

"If we have a high degree of religious zeal and public spirit we can defeat the Tories."

Grandstand Show At C.N.E. Will Be Same as Last

Toronto, June 9 — (CP)—Olsen and Johnson, New York comedians, will be back this year as feature attraction at the Canadian National Exhibition's grandstand show.

Elwood Hughes, C. N. R. general manager, said Wednesday night in an interview that the contract for the team has been signed and no changes can be made at this date. He said he had received no overtures from any group in regard to staging a Canadian - produced show. Plans call for a Canadian finale, with 500-odd Canadians taking part.

The Toronto Council of Women recently suggested that the grandstand feature should be a Canadian show.

Mr. Hughes said he did not believe Canadian talent could put on a grandstand show worthy of the fair.

Biologist Looks For Quebec Red Trout

Montreal, June 9 (CP)—Will some of you fishermen kindly tell B. W. Taylor just where he can get some mature, honest-to-goodness Quebec red trout?

Mr. Taylor, who is provincial biologist and director of fish culture, doesn't mean speckled trout or grey trout. He means Salvelinus marstoni, which in his book is Quebec red trout.

For 20 years Mr. Taylor has wondered if Quebec red trout is a genuine species or a hybrid or what he calls a mutation.

The fish is so scarce he could never get enough for experimental purposes. He crossed speckled trout and grey trout. He got hybrids with characteristics of both papa and mamma.

Then this spring along came four fish—too bad they were dead—from the Bolly Club near La Tuque. The club operator wanted to know if they were trout.

Mr. Taylor stared in amazement. The four were positively Quebec red trout, the largest collection Mr. Taylor had ever seen.

Where there are four red trout there are more red trout, figured Mr. Taylor, and the La Tuque folks will try to outdo other fishermen in rounding up Salvelinus marstoni.

Mr. Taylor would like to get several hundred eggs from mature fish and send them to a provincial hatchery. If the fish breed true, proof will be considered established that Salvelinus marstoni is a genuine species.

So you'll know what you're looking for: The Quebec red trout has no speckles. There is no trace of yellow or blue in its coloring. Particularly in the fall it has deep orange-red markings. The usual black stripes on the lower fins of the speckled trout do not appear on S. marstoni. There are other less marked differences.

Deer and Grouse Have High Potential For Reproduction

Toronto, June 9 — In the battle for survival, Ontario's deer grouse, bass pickeral, and pike all have high potentialities for reproduction, according to a report from Dr. W.J.K. Harkness, Chief, Division of Fish and Wildlife, Department of Lands and Forest.

Given a fair habitat and reasonable management, deer can stand fairly heavy hunting, he declared. Moose are much more subject to over-exploitation while caribou are considered among the "weaklings". Recently a game preserve for caribou was established, on the northwest end of the province, afer a herd of at least 40 of the reindeer had been discovered.

Grouse — commonly known as partrige — can furnish heavy hunting. They are subject to a cycle covering about a ten-year period during which they rise to abundancy and decline almost to a disappearing point. Because of their high potential reproductive capacity they are well suited to withstand a heavy take by hunters, especially in the upswing of their abundance.

Lake trout and maskinonge are probably the hardest fish to manage, since they probably have the lowest capacity or potential to reproduce of all game fish. The speckled trout has a relatively high potential and there is every opportunity for hatcheries to support their population artificially. The bass, pickeral and pike have "extremely high" potential capacity.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FACT TRAPPING

For many years Thoreau took his afternoons off, from half-past two until half-past five, with his "spy-glass" and note-book into which he wrote the interesting facts about flowers, animals, and instances in nature. He told his friend Channing that he went upon these tramps "to see what I have caught in my traps which I set for facts."

What a world of knowledge each of us could gain if we were to adapt such a procedure by going on tramps, whether in town, city, or field, to see what we could catch in the traps "set for facts" that Thoreau referred to. How much we miss out of life by not keeping our eyes open and keye to observe as we walk.

On our vacations, how they would be enlivened and made times over interesting by carrying a note-book with us, and when we have come into view with an unusual flower, stone, or bird, to stop at once and have a silent interview, taking down each newly discovered fact. I am taking a special telescopic lens for my graflex camera, with me on my summer vacation so that I may get a closer pictlure of flowers, animals and birds. This will add to my joy in learning of new facts about the wide-open cathedral of nature.

I can even conceive of this fact trapping as a new hobby fraught with great interest and enjoyment. How much there is to learn. How little we know, and what a short time we have in which to learn! How little of this life we actually live. Too much of it is merely working, earning, spending—and then taxing thrown in. There is learning in fact and no taxing even thought it may be one of our luxuries!

That Princeton professor, who used to remove his hat, before demonstrating a laboratory experiment, stating, "Now I am about to ask God a question," we can well carry out ourselves as we look upon many of the wonders and miracles of nature, when out upon our fact trapping. We may ask God many a question—and the answer will be a revealing one!

REST, EXERCISE AND THE CORONAL ARTERIES

The coronal arteries, as I prefer to call them so you will not be frightened by the more familiar name, branch from the great artery (aorta) just beyond the valve that separates the aorta from the heart ventricle. One delivers blood through numerous branches to the muscle of the wall of the right heart, the other through similar branches to the muscle of the wall of the left side of the heart.

Spasmodic contraction or shutting down of one of these coronal arteries or any of its branches is probably the condition called breast pang, pectoris dolor or angina pectoris. I say probably because nobody knows positively, for in cases of pure angina pectoris no anatomical change or variation from the normal can be demonstrated post mortem.

The condition called coronal occlusion or coronal thrombosis unquestionably occurs in some cases without pain, though other symptoms are sufficient to make the diagnosis. The records of one large hospital revealed that in fifty-three cases of coronal thrombosis, including 11 cases from another hospital, twenty-one of the patients complained of little or no pain and had never had pain, an equal number had a history of pain and in eleven cases no history was obtained.

In an alalysis of 1,140 cases of coronal artery occlusion or thrombosis it appeared that onset of the trouble came when the victims were asleep in about a fifth of the cases while a rest in nearly a third of the cases, and while walking in about one sixth of the cases, and while moderately active in one-twelfth of the cases and while under unusual exertion in one-fiftieth of the cases. These facts do not jibe well with the popular misapprehension about the "danger" of moderate exercise, work or play.

A business man aged 43 had a typical coronary thrombosis at his shop one forenoon—pain, moderate fever for the next week or so, leukocytosis (increased number of white blood corpuscles. He rested for seven weeks in bed, then left the hospital and took things easy at home for a month, keeping away from business, but taking gradually longer daily walks. Then he spent six weeks at a quiet beach resort and still lounged most of the time. He had quit smoking when the thrombosis occurred and never resumed smoking. Months later he began flying a good deal as passenger and as pilot, averaging 100 hours a year. Two years later he went in for skiing at Lake Placid in Switzerland. He also did more or less swimming, dancing etc. He took up more and more of his business affairs and in some four or five years was more active in business than he had ever been before.

Six years after the thrombosis the man was in excellent condition, leading a fairly active life. Or course his physician continued regular examinations and advised about every one of these activities which evidently did his heart and the man himself so much good.

This treatment of coronal thrombosis does not jibe well with the old-time practice of making a permanent invalid out of a man just because he has had a coronary occlusion.

I describe the case here, not to encourage persons with coronal occlusion to indulge in any activity not approved by their physicians, but just to counteract in a small way the deplorable idea that one has had coronal occlusion, thrombosis or angina pectoris or other heart trouble must walk on eggs, if at all, for the rest of his or her life.

QESTIONS & ANSWERS

Where a Man Belongs

The happiness portrayed in the enclosed news picture emphasizes your teaching that a husband belongs with his wife at the birth of their child or children. (R.M.)

Answer—Thank you. The picture shows a young mother smiling over her new-born baby at her husband, who delivered the baby himself in their trailer home. The young husband is a first year medical student. Even if he can do nothing but hold her hand a man's place is beside his wife—not twiddling his thumbs in the monkey cage.

Wine

Will wine, used every night before going to bed, thicken or clot the blood? (J. W.)

Answer—No.

False Hopes

Don't you think it is dangerous for the public when you raise false hopes by offering to advise individuals who write to you. I gave a long and elaborate description of my case and received not a word in reply. (R. L. D.)

Answer—I'm sorry, but it is impossible to consider or reply to requests for diagnosis, advice of treatment of individual cases.

Resourceful Man Wins First Case

New York, June 9 — (AP) — Ramirez Miguel has won his first case as an amateur lawyer and logic expert.

His arguments collapsed completely in a Brooklyn court but nevertheless won suspended sentences for himself and 11 other men accused of sleeping in the subways.

In a mixture of English and Puerto Rican, the 39-year-old Miguel stated his case to Magistrate Abner C. Surpless.

It was this:

He had noticed many signs in the subways stating that you can't do this, or can't do that. You must not smoke. You must not carry a lighted cigar or cigaret.

But where was a sign saying you must not sleep? He never had seen one. So why should he be punished if he did doze off.

The magistrate commented:

"I have never seen a sign saying not to punch a fellow's nose. Do you think this means anybody can punch anybody else in the nose."

Miguel conceded the judge's point, but insisted that down in Puerto Rico the signs are more explicit. A fellow really knows where he's at.

Drought Costly To Toronto Man

Toronto, June 9 (CP) — current drought in the Toronto area proved costly to John Russell.

Convicted of stealing sods from a Toronto golf course last week he was remanded to today for sentence. At the time the judge said he would give him suspended sentence if the replaced sod grew.

Russell protested that he couldn't get water to the grass and was told by the judge to hope for rain. It didn't rain and Russell was fined $200 or one month in court today.

The grass is not expected to grow.

COLDWELL SAYS GOVT. POLICIES HURT FARMERS

Claims Farm Costs Have Risen More Than Increased Farm Prices

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Prince Albert, Sask., June 9—(CP) — M. J. Coldwell, national C. C. F. leader, continued his attacks on Liberal farm policies here Tuesday night and said that if the government is going to claim credit for increased farm prices of the last four years then it must also shoulder the blame for much larger increases in farm costs.

Addressing an election campaign meeting in this Northern Saskatchewan city, Mr. Coldwell referred to an address by Agriculture Minister Gardiner the previous night in which credit for the advance in farm prices since the war was claimed for the Liberals.

The C. C. F. leader described moves in the last four years as a "policy of inflation," and added that during that time farm costs had risen 34 per cent while the wholesale price of farm produce rose only 14 per cent.

"When Mr. Gardiner and the Liberals take credit for inflation they are taking responsibility for increasing farm costs 2½ times as fast as they increased the price of goods sold by prairie farmers," Mr. Coldwell said.

He accused the Liberals of breaking one of the "most sacred promises" they made prior to the 1945 general election.

Published in newspapers all across Canada in a Liberal party advertisement, the promise was that prices would be pushed back to 1941 levels under ceilings and controls, Mr. Coldwell said.

Mr. Coldwell added that removal of controls and subsidies shortly after the war ended in 1945 had done "untold harm to the economic well being of the farmers as well as city workers."

Priest Helps Save Village From Total Destruction

St. Michel De Napierville, Que., June 9 — (CP) — A 65-year-old parish priest, Father Albert LaFrance, who mobilized his teen-aged students into a fire fighting force, was credited with saving this village, 35 miles south of Montreal from total destruction.

Despite their efforts the parish hall, a hotel, two stores, eight homes and nine barns went up in flames before the blaze was brought under control shortly before dusk Tuesday night.

Damage has been estimated at $150,000.

No injuries were reported.

The fire started shortly before 3 p. m. and was noticed by Father LaFrance as he was conducting his classes in the parish hall. When, from a window he saw flames shoot out an adjoining barn he mustered the students into a bucket brigade while he ran to the village church to sound the alarm on the 95-year-old bell.

"I have never seen a fire go so fast and do so much damage in such a little time," Father LaFrance said. "We were fortunate to save our church."

The Red Cross sent in a representative of its relief disaster department to survey damage and offer emergency aid to the 30-odd homeless persons of the village.

REFUSED A DATE

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 8 (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Kenneth L. Robey was refused a date by his high school girl friend. Police Tuesday found him strangled to death with his own belt in the doorway of a school. Coroner Kenna Jackson, who reported Robey's disappointment in romance, called it suicide

Four-Year Term For Many Thefts

Barrie, June 9 — (CP)—Convicted of 32 charges of receiving stolen goods, Gordon Barrett sat in a wheel chair with his legs paralyzed as he was sentenced yesterday to four years. His sentences, all concurrent, would have totalled 75 years had they been consecutive.

Barrett was arrested following a raid on the resort he owns at nearby Wasaga Beach in which police found nearly $300,000 worth of stolen furnishings and jewelry. Police said the "mountains of goods" found in the building were stolen from other summer resorts, an airport, a golf clubhouse and Lady Eaton's estate at King, Ont.

Barrett's record, read in court, showed convictions dating back to 1935 when he was first sentenced as a chicken thief. The record also includes a sentence for making molds to be used for manufacture of counterfeit money.

Uranium in Natural State Not Necessarily War Material Ruled

Frankfurt, June 9 — (AP)—A United States military government court ruled today that uranium in its natural state is not necessarily a war material, and acquitted nine Germans on charges of possessing a 2300 - gram — (about 81 ounces) block of it.

Uranium in its processed form is used in making atomic bombs.

Judge Fred G. Cohn said that if uranium in its natural state was a war material then the same would be true of all materials that could be used for making weapons.

The nine defendants had admitted attempting to sell the uranium block to a United States army agent.

Balloons Shower Bride-to-be With Confetti, Gifts

A gala time was had at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wyatt, Coleman Street, on Monday evening last, when the many friends of Monna Wyatt, bride-to-be and niece of Mrs. Wyatt, assembled to honor her with a linen shower, and to wish her many years of happiness in the new life into which she would shortly enter.

The evening was passed in flower contests, and in the playing of telegram games, and in listening to delightful music rendered by Miss Dorothy Mitchell, among whose numbers was the appropriate "O Promise Me".

A delightful way of presenting the gifts was in the form of a vari-colored balloon bouquet which was given to Monna, and when these were pricked, the bride-to-be was showered with confetti, and little cards bearing instructions as to where the gifts might be located.

After the presentation of the gifts, for which the donors were graciously thanked, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, and her assistants, Mrs. Jack Grills and Miss Lorna Wyatt, cousin of the bride-to-be.

Named as finest representative students at Albert College, Margaret Dyer of Verona, winner of Howard Award, and Tom Yates of Hamilton, winner of the Marsh Award are seen after graduation exercises.

IVANHOE

Rev. G. Nickle Former Pastor Revisits Charge

Ivanhoe.— A special service was held in Beulah United Church, Ivanhoe, on Sunday evening. The church was beautifully decorated with large baskets of white spirea and red peonies.

Mr. Arnold Creaser welcomed the guest speaker, Rev. George Nickle, of Toronto, a former minister. Mr. Nickle first came to Ivanhoe in July 1896 and expressed pleasure in coming back once again to his old charge.

He took for his text Matthew 16-23 and spoke of "The temptations of Jesus"; "His triumphal entry into Jerusalm" and "the driving of the money changers from the temple". In closing he urged the congregation to take up the Cross and follow Him, who gave His life for others.

The music was under the direction of the organist, Miss Phyllis Twiddy and added much to the service. A duet "Beneath His Wings", was given by Mrs. Earl McMaster and Mrs. George Wood. The choir sang "God's Way is the Best Way".

It was with regret the congregation learned Mr. Arnold Creaser, who has been in charge of the Ivanhoe circuit since January will be leaving at the end of June. The Ivanhoe charge has been declared vacant.

Piano, Vocal Recital Presented At Albert College Conservatory

On Wednesday evening the Albert College Conservatory of music presented in recital the piano pupils of Miss B. Handley and Mr. Wm. G. Connor and vocal pupils of Mr. R. H. Unwin at Memorial Chapel. The program was arranged to include many favorites of the classics and some of the lighter classics. Many fine arrangements were offered, particularly the duets on two pianos with the advanced students. The performers were predominantly feminine with only one representative to demonstrate masculine musical ability. All were senior pupils and showed careful preparation and capable direction.

Mr. T. K. Franklin welcomed the guests and asked for their sympathetic reception of the numbers to be presented. The audience expressed approval and enjoyment with generous applause.

The vocal solos were young voices with exceptional quality, their choices of songs showing their voices to the best advantage.

The program, which proceeded without interruption, was as follows:

2 pianos, The Flowing River—Chilean Folk-Song: Annetta Young and Barbara Girling; Piano, Albumblatt—Beethoven: Barbara Smith; Piano, Sailor Dance—Dunhill: Barbara Girling; Piano, L'Avalanche—Heller: Joan Campbell (pupil of Wm. Ivy Leaf Rebekah Lodge Initiates Two Local Candidates

On Tuesday evening the degree team of Ivy Leaf Rebekah Lodge, Parham, visited Quintena Lodge and initiated two candidates.

The Rebekah Degree was conferred in a beautiful and dignified manner, the officers giving their charges very impressively and practically word perfect.

Ivy Leaf Lodge was instituted only two years ago. Mrs. Mabel Bray, a member of Quintena while living in Belleville was instrumental in starting this Lodge and is now the degree staff captain. To her must go the credit of the team's splendid performance.

During the closing exercises, Mrs. Eva Turvey, P.D.D.P., and Mrs. Irene Aman, P.D.D.P., on behalf of Quintena Lodge, presented Mrs. Bray with a crystal plate for the use of Ivy Leaf Lodge. Mrs. Bray graciously thanked the members for this gift.

After lodge a delicious lunch was served in the upper hall.

Sales and Ad Club Holds Ladies Night

Members and guests of the Sales and Advertising Club attended their first annual ladies' night at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club last Tuesday night. Dinner was followed by a short talk by the president of the Club, Mr. A. J. K. Griffiths of Northern Electric.

Mr. Griffiths reviewed the activities of the club for the past season and outlined the aims and objectives of a Sales and Advertising Club. He stressed the point that this was not a service club but an association of businessmen who are anxious to have a common meeting ground for the discussion of mutual problems relative to sales and advertising. Mr. Griffiths said it added to the stature of a city to have a virile and active Sales and Advertising Club in its midst. He then went on to advise the gathering of the outstanding program of events that has been arranged for the 1949-50 season.

Mr. Carson, president of the Sales and Advertising Club of Kingston, brought greetings and good wishes from the Limestone City as did a representative from the sister club in Peterborough.

Mr. Frank Murray of radio station CJBQ and chairman of the ladies' night committee, then took over the meeting and officiated at the drawing of the door prize and other contests. Mrs. I. Hefkey was the lucky winner of the Northern Electric "Baby Champ" radio.

A toast to the ladies was proposed by Mr. Jack Wilson of the Corbin Lock Company which was replied to on behalf of the ladies present by Mrs. Hefkey.

During the period of dancing which followed to the music of Bill Arnold and his orchestra, over a dozen ladies received nylon stockings as spot prizes.

Ladies Guild Holds Enjoyable Euchre Party

A very pleasant evening was spent at St. George's Hall, Station Street, on Monday, when the ladies of the Guild, held a euchre party.

The prize winners were ladies' 1, Mrs. H. Levett; 2. Mrs. A. Elliott 3, Mrs. A. Shannik; men s 1, W. McDonald; 2, J. Alexander; 3. H. Hill.

There was also a draw on two well filled baskets of groceries.

The lucky winners being Mrs. P. McTaggart and Mrs. J. Nevery.

Refreshments were then served by the Guild members and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

Women's Activities

FOXBORO GUILD

Foxboro.—The June meeting of the Presbyterian Church Guild met in the Sunday School room on Wednesday last with 12 members present.

Miss Bessie Spencer presided and opened the meeting with the call to worship. Mrs. Bailey read the Scripture and prayer was offered by Miss Watt, and a hymn was sung followed by a reading by Nellie Bell. Roll call and business was discussed.

It was decided to hold a rummage sale on July 2. Miss Watt invited the society to meet at her home next month. The keyword for the roll call is to be "prayer". Two lovely papers were given on the tour of Miss Laura K. Pelton the travelling W.M.S. secretary in China, who has just returned back to Canada again. A large bale of clothes was packed and sent to Kingston, for shipment out west. Offering was received and amounted to about $4.00.

Women's Influence at Ottawa Never Great Despite Franchise

Ottawa, June 9. (CP)—For better or for worse, Canada's June 27 vote will mark the eighth federal election on a general scale for those otherwise rare specimens—women who admit they're more than 21.

They got their first vote generally in 1921, four years after the wives, mothers and sisters of servicemen were declared eligible for the wartime election of 1917. There will be between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 of them eligible this time.

Electoral officials have no figures to indicate any specific impact they have had on Canadian democracy, whether they take their vote more seriously than men or whether they don't. But broadly speaking, it appears that they have been just as divided as their menfolk these last 28 years No issue has caused them to vote as a bloc chiefly on the basis of sex.

Pronounced Divisions

Their divisions have been particularly pronounced among those who have succeeded in winning elections. In all, starting with Ontario's Miss Agnes Macphail in 1921, five women have reached the Commons, including Mrs. George Black, Mrs. Dorise Nielsen, Mrs. Cora Casselman and Mrs. Gladys Strum, all from the west. No two represented the same party.

True to the pattern, the Senate has its Mrs. Cairine Wilson, a Liberal, and Mrs. Iva Fallis, a Progressive Conservative. Senator Wilson was the first woman named to the upper chamber, entering it in 1930.

In their quarter-century and more of full voice, women have never wielded any great inner influence at Ottawa, have never sat in the cabinet and have never had more than two of their number holding seats at any one time. But they have spruced parliament's manners, its color and its variety and occasionally its debate. On the hustings recently Prime Minister St. Laurent said he figures there should be more of them.

As for their effect in elections, Alberta is the only province which breaks down its voting by sex and the record of three provincial elections shows that 72 per cent of eligible males voted compared to 64 per cent of eligible females. Further, the ratio of women voting was dropped in each election, to 59 per cent in 1948.

Little Variation

On a federal basis, one comparison exists between 1911, when there were 1[illegible] women voters, and 1921 when there were. The total number of votes cast leaped from 1,307,900 to 3,139,000 but the percentage of those eligible who voted varied hardly at all—from 71 to 70 per cent.

In this election, women are making one small new inroad. Of Canada's 260 returning officers, for the first time two are women. They are Mrs. Zeta Howe in York East and Miss Margaret Green in York South.

Women's Institute

FOXBORO W. I.

Mrs. Thomas Leslie, district president of East Hastings W.I., was on hand to organize the Foxboro Branch on Monday evening.

The meeting was held in the Sunday School Hall with 29 present.

Mrs. G. C. Shorey was elected president. 1st Vice President, Mrs. W. Simmons; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. J. S. Demorest; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. L. J. Leonard; District Director, Mrs. C. Bamber; Pianist, Mrs. M. A. Macphee; Directors are, President, Mrs. M. J. Waller; 1st Vice President, Mrs. A. Wickett; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. G. C. Gay; Auditors, Mrs. Harold Stewart, and Mrs. Frank Eggleton.

The standing committees were elected, the conveners being—Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. F. Tummon; Resolutions, Mrs. C. Reid; Historical Research and Current Events, Mrs. George Hicks; Citizenship and Education, Mrs. R. Walt; Home Economics and Health, Mrs. E. Hubble; Public Relationship and Community Activities, Mrs. J. Churchill; Girls' Work, Mrs. B. Hollinger.

Mrs. Leslie conducted the installation ceremony.

It was decided to hold the monthly meetings on the last Wednesday of the month. Visitors are especially welcome.

At the close of the meeting, tea was served, and a pleasant social half hour spent.

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

Mountain View. (Special.)—The June meeting of the Mountain View Women's Institute was held in the church basement last Thursday with about 25 ladies in attendance. The President, Mrs. E. Hall presided.

Owing to the absence of the Secretary, Mrs. Clark Sprung, took over these duties. After the minutes were read, a number of business details were discussed.

Mrs. Sprung then presented Mrs. Clifford Barber, the retiring president, with a lovely cup and saucer from the Institute in appreciation of her work during her three terms in office. Mrs. Barber replied thanking everyone for the gift.

The topic for the afternoon was "Home Economics and Health". Mrs. Louis Wallbridge had charge of this topic. She introduced her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Young, who gave an interesting demonstration on the uses of aluminum tin foil.

Mrs. Wallbridge called upon Miss Betty Dempsey who gave a very interesting talk on the work done by the Girls' Club. There were also readings given by Mrs. Wallbridge, Mrs. Young and Mrs. Poste. A vote of thanks was tendered to the two visiting ladies who gave demonstrations.

Mrs. L. Wallbridge and Mrs. C. Barber were appointed delegates to the area convention to be held at Hillier on June 9th. Mrs. Barber also gave an interesting talk on "Current Events".

A musical contest was held, prepared by Mrs. Wilfrid Motley and was won by Mrs. Harold Motley.

The meeting was then closed after which the ladies of Huff's Island served refreshments and a social period was enjoyed.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

The W.M.S. meeting for June was held in the church parlor, with Mrs. Wilson in the chair. Mrs. Downey presided at the piano. The president gave a very timely reading on "Gardens", stressing that there was healing in a garden.

The various secretaries made their reports. Mrs. Leavens, who had been ill, was welcomed back among the members.

Mrs. Johns read a poem on temperance which was appreciated by all. A letter of appreciation was read from a teacher who received the student's supply kit, which was sent by the Auxiliary.

An acknowledgment for the clothing and money for the Canadian relief abroad, which was sent to the depot of the Canadian council of churches, was read by Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Buck reported on the C.G.I.T. and W.M.S. affiliation meeting.

Mrs. Cordes gave a reading on Christian stewardship which was most helpful.

The president urged that all be prepared to go forward with the W.M.S. work in the Fall.

Mrs. Hubbs called the roll.

Mrs. Coulter's group took charge and the subject "Keeping the Lord's Day was chosen as the theme.

Several members of group 5 were called upon to give passages of scripture bearing out the fact that the Hebrew people in ancient times observed the "Lord's Day with joy".

Mrs. Coulter gave a fine paper on "Keeping the Lord's Day", a subject which is of vital concern to Christian women.

Mrs. Jeffrey sang a solo which was also much appreciated.

The offering was accepted by Mesdames Tucker and Fredarick.

Mrs. Holmes gave a resume of the last chapter of the study book "West of the Gorges".

She stated that religion in China had steadily gained in favor and the door was wide open for many Christian recruits. The call is most urgent.

A short social time was spent with Mrs. Coulter's group serving tea.

Mother and Daughter Group Enjoys Supper, Social Evening

Shannonville—The Sunshine Girls Club of the United Church held a "Mother and Daughter" meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood. Fifteen daughters and mothers were present to partake of a delicious buffet supper.

Mrs. Wood had the tables arranged in her two front rooms in a very attractive manner.

After the tables had been removed one of the mothers, Mrs. Cummings, rendered several selections on the guitar.

This dinner was an innovation as regards to the Girls Club, and all agreed it had been an enjoyable occasion.

The Sunshine Girls Club held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Carey. Bernice Houston and Myrtle Uens have been appointed refreshment conveners. It was also decided to begin an autograph quilt in the near future. Games were enjoyed and delicious refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCutcheon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carscallen and Mr. and Mrs. Wampoole, the latter all of Belleville were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mr. Stanley MacDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lever, of Smithfield were callers during the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little.

A good attendance was at the regular meeting of the Orange Lodge which was held in their lodge rooms on Thursday evening. An invitation was received to join with the other district lodges in attending the Twelfth of July celebration in Belleville this year.

All are sorry to hear Mr. Pickell has been confined to the Belleville General Hospital for the past two weeks, and all wish him a speedy recovery to health.

Safe Arrival

Friends in the district have received word from Mrs. James Vesterfelt of her safe arrival in England last week. Mrs. Vesterfelt and son Colin sailed on the "Britannica" from New York two weeks ago. They will spend the next three months visiting with Mrs. Vesterfelt's family in Leeds, England.

Two local teachers will not be returning this next term. Miss Verna Fox plans to further her musical studies in Toronto, and Mr. Orville Reynolds has accepted a position on the Hamilton school staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Burtt have moved from the cottage owned by Mr. Robert Little, and are now residing on property purchased just east of the Bakelite plant.

Miss Marion Woodcock is at the present time employed in Belleville, returning each evening to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Slavin.

All are pleased to see Miss Eliza Bell back in the community again after an extended visit with her brother in Noranda, Quebec, and her aunt in Barrie. Eliza commutes to her work in Belleville each day, residing with old friends in this town, Mr. and Mrs. John Kent.

Mrs. Lee Grills and daughter Betty of Sidney, were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Grills' mother, Mrs. Allan MacDonald and her brother, Mr. Stanley MacDonald.

Fine Valedictory

A number from the community attended the Graduation Exercises last Wednesday evening of the Belleville General Hospital school for nurses. Miss Marion English, one of the district girls did extremely fine work in her delivery of the Valedictory. Friends later attended a reception on the hospital grounds.

Messrs Jack Lougheed, George Night" at Tobe's County Gardens for Camp Borden this weekend, where they will be engaged in construction work on new homes for the army and air force personnel.

Booklet Gives Suggestions on Proper Footwear

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa — (CP) — A glance at the shoes she has been wearing the last couple of months may tell the modern miss whether or not she has been maltreating her feet.

If the sole of the shoe is worn unevenly, more in the front, the shoe is too short, particularly from heel to ball. If the toe tip is worn the shoe is too short.

"How to Buy Shoes," is a booklet now being distributed by the Shoe Manufacturers Association of Canada as part of its program to educate the Canadian public about footwear.

Before looking for new shoes the pamphlet suggests that a good study should be made of what went wrong with the old ones.

While a slight wearing at the back or outside line of the heel is normal, if new lifts are needed often, or, if the heel pushes under, the shoe is too short. If the heels wear on the inside, the arch is weak. If the inside sole of the shoe has worn pockets for the toes, the shoes are too tight.

"Do not buy shoes by size, but have your feet measured each time you buy," the booklet recommends, adding that sizes vary with different makes.

Points to Look For

Here are points to seek in a good shoe:

Sole, heavy enough to protect foot from hard pavement; pliable, not too heavy; correct proportion in length from heel to ball of foot, and from ball to toe in relation to the overall length; heel of good height and width to support the foot.

Tips also are given in the booklet for the fitting of children's shoes.

It recommends laced shoes for infants and small children, and "oxfords may be worn by older children with well developed feet and legs." Slippers should be avoided as they do not give good support and also interfere with development of the foot.

Space also is devoted in the pamphlet to care of shoes. Shoes should be kept in repair as "runover heels and shoes out of shape place a strain on the feet." Shoe trees should be used to keep footwear in shape.

Shoes should be clean, brushed or polished regularly as clean leather wears longer.

Shoes should be aired after each wearing and rubbers or goloshes should be worn to keep the leather dry.

When not in use shoes should be kept on a rack, shelf or in a shoe-bag—off the floor.

Child Specialists Study U.K. Methods

London (CP)—Doctors, nurses and social workers from 16 nations are studing Britain's methods of child care. A course of 15 weeks study has been organized by the ministry of health in co-operation with the British Council.

The scheme was initiated by the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund who are meeting the costs from their sterling account in Britain. Those taking part in the course come from Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czechosovakia, Egypt, Finland, Greece, Holland, Israel, Italy, Lebanon, Poland, Syria, Transjordon and Yugoslavia.

Started Writing Mystery Novels After She was 50

New York, June 4 (CP)—Elizabeth Daly, a shy, retiring woman who admits to being more than 65 years old, started writing mystery novels after she was 50.

"I suppose it's simply awful for a little old lady to go around bopping people off, so to speak," she says of the murder and mayhem that is woven into her books. "But I do so enjoy this type of writing."

During the last 15 years Miss Daly has turned out a similar number of books and the 16th now is taking form on her typewriter. Asked why she waited so long before launching on what has turned out to be a successful career, she says simply:

"I never had the time before."

Formerly an English and dramatics teacher at Bryn Mawr College, she later was busy for many years coaching and producing amateur plays. Then along came the depression.

She had written some light poetry that was published and some short stories that were not. Long a lover of puzzles and mysteries, she says, she decided one day to sit down and pound out a detective story.

She wrote a couple that didn't sell, but the publishers were "promising" and she decided here must be some little thing missing.

To fill the gap she came up with Henry Gamadge, sauve sleuth around whom she could build her stories.

Gamadge became a real person to many readers. They often write to him at Miss Daly's address.

Miss Daly says a person older than 50 is better equipped for a writing career.

"You draw on your experiences," she says, "and some people develop more aptitudes as they grow older."

Gypsy Rose Likes Extra-Big Girls In Carnival Shows

By BEN SMITH

Tampa, Fla., (AP)—Gypsy Rose Lee likes big girls in her shows, but that doesn't mean she thinks there is a new trend toward outsize showgirls.

"I'm big and I like them my size," the five-foot 9 1-2 inch stripper explained.

Then she broke out in a grin and added:

"It has a practical advantage, too. Ten big ones fill the stage better than ten little ones, and they all cost the same. . . You don't pay them by the pound, you know."

Her two biggest girls are even six footers. The smallest is five feet, 8 1-2.

Filling up the stage means more to Miss Lee this year than ever before. For the first time she is hitting the carnival trail, making a six-months tour of the United States and Canada with the Royal American Shows.

Her outdoor stage is roughly six times the size of the average nightclub space she has been used to, Miss Lee said. . . . .That big stage is really wonderful. Now we can make a good swing line without falling all over each other."

Same Old Theme

"There's no special theme to the act. We just entertain with a little singing, a little dancing and a choice display of the human form."

Gypsy Rose likes this new kind of life.

"It's fun—even when you have to go before a crowd and look glamorous with dirt in your fingernails and sand between your toes. Even when you get waked up in the morning by the roar of the portable plant—it's good to know you'll have your lights."

Miss Lee reported just one serious worry. How is she going to feel in mid-summer weighed down by her costume masterpiece—a strapless gown so heavily trimmed with rhinestones it tips the scales at 70 pounds?

"Can you imagine a 70-pound dress without shoulder straps, held up by nothing except me and some of the best engineering in the country?"

Elizabeth's Suit Stirs Controversy

London (CP)—Readers voted 7 to 1 against a newspaper which dared to criticize a suit worn by Princess Elizabeth.

Comments bristled with words like "impertinent" and "abominable." One man said he was "fuming" and another tore up a 25-year subscription.

Only approving note came from a correspondent who said the Princess should choose clothes of best British design, "in view of the export drive and its bearing on our overseas markets."

The letters followed a picture in the Daily Express showing the Princess wearing a two-piece spring suit at a horse show.

Giving judgment for and against her choice, the paper said "those who shook their heads" claimed the Princess was overdecorated (she wore pearls, brooch, large buttons and a badge in her hat): said her leather belt "looked like an afterthought;" and deemed her ankle-strap, high-heeled shoes unsuitable for a horse show.

Give Your Neck Cosmetic Care

A special preparation, combining astringent and oils, is excellent for your neck. Apply daily with a pledget of cotton; massage gently.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Do you neglect your neck, or do you give it a portion of the cosmetic feasts? No matter how nice it looks, how smooth the surface, do take care of it. Necks are not dependable. Even in the early 30s they can take on little crinkles. That will not happen if the twenty girls start a campaign against the ravages of good-looks defects. Remember, it is subject to discolorations, for some reason or other. Cream it and pet it. Don't fail to start your powdering far down on your throat.

Many a fine looking, youthful neck has suddenly gone to seed because of the habit a woman may have of carrying her chin low. Drop yours, stand before a mirror, notice what happens. Little necklace lines will form; tissues will sag. So, heads up! Keep your head balanced.

If there are signs that might lead you to suspect that neck sags are on the way, there are exercises that will make the muscles firmer.

Stand tall, hands on the hips, head on the level. Throw the head back as far as you can, turn it from side to side.

You will be aware of a muscle pull extending from the jaw line down to the shoulders. Flexing and relaxing fibres makes them strong. At the same time it discourages fat cells from forming.

Maintain color harmony between face and neck. The only way to do that is to treat both surfaces alike, using creams freely on both. If the neck appears darker, as it may because of friction with scarves and coat collars, mix equal portions of peroxide—it must be a freshly opened bottle—and strained lemon juice. Apply with pledgets of cotton, let it dry on. This is a mild bleach, cannot possibly do the slightest harm to the skin texture.

Women Offenders Are Confined In Fine Old French Mansion

By RUSSELL HOWE

Paris (Reuters)—The French minister of justice, Robert Lecourt, attracted attention recently by lunching with the inmates of a women's reformatory.

"Ten women condemned to death invite the minister of justice to lunch," was the headline in one newspaper. The report added that the same women had recently entertained the judge and prosecuting counsel of Rouen, and that the counsel had waited on the "girls."

The reformatory which was the scene of these lunches was Marie-Madeleine House at La Ferte Vidame, an old mansion not far from Paris, which was once the home of the Duc de Saint-Simon, 18th century French writer.

The reformatory was founded four years ago by a Dominican monk, Father Courtois, and houses women offenders of all categories, but with a large percentage of midwives who have performed illegal operations.

Among the sunken lawns and fountains of the ducal mansion, women who once expected to pass all their lives in prison walk and talk with ease, wearing their own dresses, jewelry and makeup. They discuss what they will do when they return to normal life, having been taught a trade and given help in finding a job.

In 1944 Father Courtois was asked to preach the Lenten sermon at the central prison of Rennes in Britanny.

He was told that he was the third man to cross the threshold in 20 years. The other two were magistrates.

He preached his sermon, and when he dwelt on the bread and butter aspects of everyday life, members of his congregation burst into tears. Horrified at the severely disciplined seclusion in which the prisoners lived, Father Courtois followed them out into the courtyard of the prison and asked them what he could do for them.

The women complained that they had no future. Those who would be released, they said, could only choose between streetwalking and shoplifting.

Father Courtois decided to found a prison to cure crime instead of punishing it. Enlisting the help of an industrialist he made his plans. Statesmen were beginning to return from exile in Britain or imprisonment in Germany.

They were all sympathetic to the idea of a humane prison. The ministry of justice agreed to plan to convert La Ferte Vidame and the ministry of finance offered 6,000,000 francs to buy the property. Much of the conversion work on the old building was done by the prisoners themselves.

But today Marie-Madeleine house is an accepted institution in France and Father Courtois recently visited the United States prisons including Sing Sing, to tell governors what he thinks about the respective merits of punitive and curative methods.

This summer, American prison experts will have a chance to see Father Courtois's idea for themselves. One session of the World Congress of Criminological and Penitentiary Sciences is to be held at Marie-Madeleine House.

Winnipeg Men Interested in 'YW' Work

Ottawa, June 1 — (CP)—Maybe the men would be "embarrassed" if caught with a membership card to the Young Women's Christian Association in their bill-fold. But the truth of the matter is that many are taking an active part in "Y" activities these days.

Winnipeg "Y" brought the situation to a head at the Y.W.C.A. National Convention Tuesday when it introduced a recommendation that membership in the Association be opened to women and girls and also to men and boys who wish to participate in co-ed programs.

A titter went through the audience of 350 delegates. Ultimately it rejected the proposal as far as the national organization is concerned, but not before the truth was out — that men really like hanging around the 'Y' — "Y. W." that is.

Vivian Durden of Winnipeg said the men in that prairie city interested in taking part in the co-ed programs and the local Association has extended associate memberships to them. She noted that after all "the association was founded in the interests of women and one of the interests of women is men."

Someone asked if the Winnipeg men were "clamoring" for membership.

Miss Durden replied that while she didn't think "they are exactly getting down on their knees" at the same time there are men who are "clamoring" to be in on the "Y" programs.

Representatives from Montreal, Oshawa and Ottawa, said men in each of the three cities definitely were interested in the co-ed activities of the "Y."

Expect Russia Will Reject U.S. Request to Lift by Monday 'Little Blockade of Berlin'

Paris, June 9. (AP) —Russia was expected to reject today the request of Dean Acheson, United States secretary of State, that the "little blockade" of Berlin be lifted by Monday.

At the same time western authorities who have been conferring with the Russians in Berlin said that an East-West trade agreement—virtually concluded—could go into effect almost immediately were it not for the Berlin rail strike.

The western powers have told the Russians to order the Soviet-controlled railway management to meet the strikers' demands and end the walkout, or there would be no signatures on the trade agreement.

Informants in Berlin said the Russians actually desire a trade agreement with the west and are using the foreign ministers conference in Paris as a smoke-screen to hide their eagerness.

These Berlin sources believed that as soon as the trade pact is concluded the true Soviet position at Paris would be disclosed.

Highlight of the ministers' debate today is almost certain to centre around the three-week strike of railwaymen which is heightening tension in Berlin and has the western power's blessing.

The stoppage started just before the Foreign Ministers' Council met.

The strike and subsequent clashes with Soviet sector authorities led to the "little blockade" of Berlin. The Russians halted all trains bound for the capital from the western zones on the ground that the strikers' seizure of the railroad station and depots made this unavoidable.

Western diplomats point out that the Russians could settle the whole problem by:

1. Ordering the railway administration in their sector to meet the strikers' demands for a 100 per cent payment in west marks, which are worth about four times as much as east marks.

2. Allowing Berlin-bound trains from the west to use stations in the capital not affected by the strike.

A successful outcome of the Berlin negotiations would give the Russians access to west Germany's coal, steel and other raw materials and consumer goods.

Bernardsville, N. J. — (AP) — Certain unusual automobile accessories — among them "wolf whistles" and "California mufflers" — are taboo here.

Magistrate A. A. Palmer, Sr., Tuesday asked the State Motor Vehicle Department if it was legal to drive a car with these devices.

The wolf gadget makes a significant whistling noise that is usually heard in front of corner drug stores when a pretty girl passes by. The "California muffler" has no baffles inside and instead of cutting down engine noise, it produces a loud, racket-

Nova Scotians Move to Polls To Elect House

Halifax, June 9 (CP)—Nova Scotia's 15th administration since Confederation will be chosen today by the province's 400,000 voters.

Skies were hazy over most of the province.

Electors have 96 candidates from which to pick a 37-member legislature. Both Liberals and Progressive Conservatives have named full slates. The C.C.F., which formed the two-man opposition in the last House, is contesting 21 ridings.

Premier Angus L. Macdonald, contesting his home constituency of Halifax South, will seek renewal of the mandate he has held —with the exception of five years in the Federal cabinet during the Second World War—since 1933. The Liberal party is contesting the outcome on its record during the past 16 years in government.

Halifax barrister Robert L. Stanfield, Progressive Conservative leader, will be seeking his first provincial seat. His party has not formed a government since 1925. Urging Nova Scotians to "ride the tide," the Conservatives attacked Liberal policies on every hand during their campaign.

The C.C.F. manifesto, issued by party House Leader Russell Cunningham, called for appointment of two additional cabinet ministers and increased social benefits. Mr. Cunningham, 44-year-old railway trainman, is running in Cape Breton East.

Only woman candidates Mrs. Lewis Shaw and Mrs. Cedric Welton, will contest Annapolis and Cumberland Centre respectively for the C.C.F.

Lake Monster Reappears

London, June 9 — (Reuters) — Sweden's Stor Sjoe lake monster has been seen again after a year's interval, Stockholm radio said Wednesday.

Originally spotted a year ago by two persons on holiday in Northern Sweden, it has just been seen by two more — the pilot and passenger of an amphibious plane, the radio added.

The two flyers, a man and a woman, said they saw the animal "surfacing" on the water 100 yards ahead of them as they became airborne. It looked like a big fish but seemed overgrown and "curiously deformed."

They said it was about 10 feet long and its back had three humps.

The pilot said he circled around and flew back in the direction of the creature. But the creature immediately disappeared, he said.

The pilot noted the experience in his flying log and his observation agreed with the description given by his passenger.

Speculation Continues Over Political Future of FDR, Jr.

Washington, June 9 — (AP) — Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., will take his seat in Congress next week amid continuing talk of a possible Roosevelt dynasty in United States politics.

There is speculation that he might later win election as a United States senator or as governor of New York, traditional stepping - stone to a presidential nomination. Eight governors of New York have become major party nominees for the presidency.

Only one son of a president has become a president. He was John Quincy Adams, son of John Adams, and the middle member of a dynasty which was the most famous and longest - lasting in American political history.

The Adams were in topflight political posts for almost 100 years — from 1774, when John was a member of the Continental Congress, to 1868. when John Quincy's son Charles Francis was United States Minister to Great Britain.

Only one other son of a president has come within shooting distance of the presidency. Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, son of William Howard Taft, was one of the leading candidates for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940 and 1948.

Young Roosevelt has a double-barrelled political heritage which might take him places — the voter appeal in the name Roosevelt and some of his father's magnetism. He made a rousing campaign to beat three opponents for a seat in the House from a New York City district.

If he does go on to the presidency, Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., might be the first president born outside of the United States. He was born at the Roosevelt Canadian summer home in Campobello, N. B., 35 years ago next June 17.

It has been suggested that his birth outside the United States would bar him. The constitution says: "No person except a natural-born citizen is eligible to the office of president."

The constitution does not define "natural-born citizen."

The question has never come up for a final, official decision, since all presidential nominees of major political parties have been born in the United States.

Say Boy Admits Closing Icebox, 3 Children Die

Walnut Ridge, Ark., June 9 — (AP) — Arkansas State police reported today a 10-year-old boy said he slammed shut the door of an unused ice box, causing deaths of three other children.

Police identified the boy as James (Buddy) Chesser, uncle of one of the victims.

Police quoted James as saying the children were playing "I spy," when all three climbed into the old - fashioned wooden box last Friday.

He shut the door of the box and was unable to get it open.

"My mother called me then to go to the store. I was scared. I ran home and went to the store. Then I forgot."

The victims were James Delbert Chastain, two, Joyce Ann Chastain, nine and Shirley Ann Ramsey, six.

Mrs. Chastain discovered the children in the box when she returned home from work.

Her son and the Ramsey girl were dead of suffocation. Joyce Ann Chastain died early Saturday.

Police said they doubted that any charge would be made against the young boy.

Claire Wallace Undergoes Operation

Melbourne, Australia, June 9. (CP)— Claire Wallace, Toronto radio commentator, today was successfully operated on and her broken left hip set.

The CBC broadcaster broke her hip in a fall from an automobile last Friday. She had been touring Australia on assignment.

Doctors at Mount St. Evins Hospital where she underwent the operation, reported her general condition as "good", but said it was too early yet to say when she will be able to return to Canada.

Possibilities of Foul Play In Fontaine Case Studied, Hunt for Missing Boy Goes on

Eastman, Que., June 9 (CP) — A provincial police spokesman said today he suspects "murder" in the disappearance 11 days ago of six-year-old Michel Fontaine.

Police, he said, were checking the possibilities of foul play as well as the theory that the boy had merely lost his way in the woods but "as for myself and many others, it seems impossible that this child, sick and scarcely able to walk, should disappear without leaving a trace."

Three members of the provincial police homicide squad now are in the isolated Brome county area carrying on their investigation.

Recent information reaching police, the spokesman said, is gradually removing doubt that the boy had been lost in the woods. "There seems to be no doubt that it is a case of murder."

Little Michel was reported last seen Monday evening May 30, when directed by two older brothers, who sent him to bring in the cows, to return to the farmhouse home.

His failure to arrive there set off what grew into a gigantic, well-organized search.

Police authorities in Montreal would make no statement.

FBI Report Naming Hollywood Workers as Communists Draws Condemnation From Listed

Washington, June 9 — AP) — A secret report to the Federal Bureau of Investigation naming Frederic March and other Hollywood film workers as Communists held top billing today in Judith Coplon's espionage trial—and drew condemnation from the people listed.

The report, which March branded "the most absurd thing I ever heard of," was produced over the vigorous objection of the government. It said a confidential informant advised the F.B.I. April 25, 1947, that "Frederic March was a member of the Communist party and has been co-operating for many years."

In the report, the same informant — identified only as ND402—told the F.B.I. that:

"The subject (March), who is active in the Communist infiltration of the motion picture industry, is a Communist party member along with Edward G. Robinson, Paul Robeson, Dorothy Parker, Donald Ogden Stuart, Ruth McKinney, Alfred Maltz, Alvah Bessie, Dalton Trumbo, Millen Brand and Michael Blankfort."

Informants Not Known

There was nothing in the report to indicate who the informants were, beyond the symbols used. Nor was there anything to indicate how reliable they were or how much credence the F.B.I. placed in what they said.

Actor Edward G. Robinson said he had never been "even remotely connected" with the Communist party and never played a role "that is so grand as that of an American citizen."

Paul Robeson, the Negro singer, was in Moscow giving a concert.

Dorothy Parker, writer, said: "I'm damn glad to be an American and always have been. I regret to say I know no Russians, but I wish I did. Maybe it would help understanding if we all knew some Russians."

Alfred Maltz, Alvah Bessie and Dalton Trumbo, screenwriters, said through their attorney that it "is probably a case of misplaced zeal by some individual investigator."

Denied a Visa

John Grierson, former head of Canada's National Film Board, has been cited as an example of how innocent persons can be "smeared" by anti-Communist "hysteria." The case of Grierson, now working for the British government as controller of the film division of the Central Office of Information, was mentioned Monday by the Washington Post.

The Post said Grierson was labelled after he testified on a technicality in a side issue before the Canadian royal commission. Despite a statement from the then Canadian justice minister, Louise St, Laurent, absolving Grierson of any Communist taint, Grierson was later denied a visa to enter the United States.

The F.B.I. papers are part of the evidence in the trial of Miss Coplin, 28, on charges of pilfering secrets from the justice department with reason to believe the information would be used to aid Russia.

Navy Declines Further Comment On Frigate Incident

Halifax, June 9 — (CP)—The Navy today declined further comment on an after - dinner "incident" aboard the frigate Swansea here, the fourth such episode on a Canadian naval vessel this year.

Only official announcement of the affair was a one - paragraph statement issued Wednesday It said: "After dinner hour today eight young seamen failed to resume work on H. M. C. S. Swansea when piped to do so. The matter was immediately investigated by the executive officer, following which the men resumed work."

The navy did not give any reason why the seamen failed to answer the pipe.

A navy spokesman today declined to confirm or deny reports that some of the men had barricaded themselves in their mess.

"But for the time being," the spokesman said, "you can assume that the only accurate statement is the one we issued yesterday."

He said it was not likely any further statement would be issued today.

DREW CLAIMS TAXPAYERS TOOK HEAVY LOSS

Says Canadian Plant Sold to Electric Boat Company for $4,000,000

Fort William, June 9 (CP)—Progressive Conservative leader George Drew charged Wednesday night that Canadian taxpayers took a heavy loss when the Canadair Limited plant at Montreal, built for approximately $22,000,000 was sold to the Electric Boat Company of the United States for $4,000,000.

Addressing a political rally in this lakehead city, Mr. Drew said evidence given before a special committee of the U.S. Congress established to investigate international armament activities disclosed that the Electric Boat Company "was one of a sinister group of international armament manufacturers."

The Progressive Conservative leader said two of the three officials of the Electric Boat Company examined under oath by the Congressional committee in September, 1943, were Lawrence Y Spearand Henry R. Sutphen.

"They were at that time vice-presidents of the Electric Boat Company. Both of them were shown as directors of Canadair Limited last year, as well as directors of the Electric Boat Company. Mr. Spear now is chairman of the board of the Electric Boat Company."

Mr. Drew said negotiations leading to the sale of the Canadian plant were secret and that no tenders were called, even though Canada has "many experienced—aircraft manufacturers."

"This disgraceful transaction was completed without parliament or the public receiving any hint that the government had the slightest intention of disposing of this extremely important crown company," Mr. Drew charged.

One of the devices by which the "real cost of the North Star aircraft was hidden from the public" was the sale to the Electric Boat Company of the accumulated inventory of the aircraft plant "at a fraction of its original cost."

Trade Minister Howe had persuaded "some outstanding and highly reputable Canadian businessmen to go on the board of Canadair along with representatives of the Electric Boat Company."

"I am certain that the Canadian directors whose names appear on the present list of directors of Canadair Limited are wholly unaware of the background of this transaction and of the history of the Electric Boat Company—" Mr. Drew added.

Ontario Crops Need a Week Of Steady Rain

Toronto, June 9 — (CP) — Ontario crops, parched by 14 days of drought and scourged by frost, may have suffered so severely that a week of steady rain would only partly revive them.

This opinion was expressed Wednesday night by Charles Hooper, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

"Wells are running dry," he said. "Spring grains and hay crops are getting no chance to grow. Some farmers will plow under their wheat crops. Some crops planted two months ago have not yet come up."

Weather forecasts promise no relief. Clear and a little warmer is forecast for most sections of Ontario.

In some areas, farmers still are assessing damage caused early Wednesday by a surprise drop in temperature. Frost killed flue-cured tobacco in the St. Thomas area, resulting in loss estimated at thousands of dollars. Arthur Robson, president of the Elgin Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, said he did not think growers will be able to obtain seedlings to replace more than one-third of the acreage.

Potatoes, corn and tomatoes suffered over a wide area. The frost hit hard in the Caledon district, in the Barrie-Bradford section and around London.

The main drought area is in Southern Ontario, from Port Hope, about 60 miles east of Toronto, to St. Thomas and extending northwest to Lake Huron and the Bruce Peninsula.

Sidney Council

The Council met at Wallbridge on June 6th. All members present.

The minutes of May meeting were read and adopted.

Moved by H. Morrow, seconded by C. Frost—That the Reeve and Clerk be authorized to sign fire protection agreement with the City of Belleville.

Moved by L. Grills, seconded by H. Morrow—That the Reeve, B. Harder and Road superintendent be a committee to investigate road conditions between Trenton Air Station and Town of Trenton.

Moved by H. Morrow, seconded by L. Grills—That Road Voucher No. 6, for $3,546.39, relief accounts for $98.60 and May pay sheet be paid.

Moved by B. Harder, seconded by L. Grills—That Belleville Public Utilities be requested to extend water services on Holmes Avenue.

Moved by B. Harder, seconded by H. Morrow—That the clerk notify secretary manager of Belleville Cemetery Company, that any extension to present water main on No. 2 highway, must be a six-inch main. The Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation notified the council that they were prepared to erect 25 houses for veterans in the Batawa Area.

Moved by C. Frost, seconded by B. Harder—That the council adjourn to meet July 4th at 7.30 p.m. D.S.T.

R. VANDERWATER,
Clerk.

NEW DESIGN FOR JET-POWERED PLANE

A series of tests are being conducted by U.S. research engineers at Muroc Air Force Base, Calif., with the Consolidated Vultee Model 7002 jet plane. The craft pictured here from three different angles, was built to prove the design superiority of the delta wing configuration over conventional "swept-back" wing styles. Engineers say the triangular wing offers far less drag and therefore provides greater performance during flights made in the transonic and supersonic speed ranges. — Central Press Canadian.

W. I.

On Thursday afternoon the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. A. G. Austin with the new president, Mrs. Bruce Wilson presiding. Twenty - five members and visitors were in attendance.

The roll call "Some Beauty Spot You Remember", was responded to by all, many believing there were many such spots in the immediate community.

During the business period, it was decided to apply for a short course in the "Furnishings of the Living Room" to be held some time in November. Seventy - five dollars was voted to the Trenton Hospital, $1.25 towards the spoons that were given to the club girls, and an extra $5 to the secretary's salary. It was also decided to have a picnic sometime during the summer. The retiring president, Mrs. P. Gooding, was presented with a cup and saucer.

The main feature of the program was an address by Mrs. Gooding on her recent trip to England, showing many pictures of New York, the Queen Mary and places visited in England.

The meeting was dismissed and refreshments served by Mrs. H. Ewing, Mrs. S. L. Terrill, Mrs. A. Gunter and the hostess.

FAB
COLGATE'S FABulous SUDS WASHES EVERYTHING

NEW WASHING DISCOVERY WITH SUPER-WETTING ACTION

washes everything
FASTER, CLEANER, EASIER
than any soap on earth!

FAB's Super-Wetting Action means that when you wash with FAB, the FAB-and-water solution instantly penetrates materials . . . soaks them more thoroughly. FAB—with Super-Wetting Action—gets inside materials; pushes dirt out!

FAB means faster, cleaner, easier washing of dirtiest overalls, towels, work and play clothes . . . FAB brings extra-dirt-removing power for extra-dirty wash! FAB—with Super-Wetting Action—does away with clinging soap scum! Brings you whiter shirts, towels, and sheets!

Don't miss *FAB*ulous FAB . . . the only thing you'll need for everything you wash!

New scientific washing preparation by Colgate-Palmolive-Peet is a FABulous work saver for the dirtiest overalls, work shirts, children's clothes, towels, shirts... everything that's extra dirty!

WHAT IS SUPER-WETTING ACTION?

See for yourself! Take a length of cotton sewing thread. Roll it into a ball. Drop it into a glass of water. It floats; does not become completely wet for a long time.

Now drop another little ball of thread into a glass of water and FAB. It sinks, becomes, completely soaked at once. This simple test shows you how FAB makes water wetter . . . instantly penetrates all washable materials faster . . . pushes dirt out! That's FAB's *FAB*ulous Super-Wetting Action . . . something no soap on earth can give you!

FAB WASHES DIRTIEST CLOTHES CLEANER THAN ANY SOAP

FAB—with Super-Wetting Action—instantly penetrates materials; pushes out dirt. Washes grimiest overalls faster than soap! Makes tough dirt like the "line" on shirt collars disappear like magic! FAB leaves no soap scum to "gray" or "yellow" white wash . . . Wash is whiter, cleaner when washed with FAB!

FAB BRIGHTENS SOAP-DULLED COLORS!

Soap-dulled washables look *FAB*ulously brighter, fresher, and newer after being washed with FAB. That's because anything you've washed with soap is made duller and grayer looking by soap scum . . . FAB —with Super-Wetting Action— removes that soap scum . . . leaves no film or scum of its own even in hardest water.

WASHED WITH SOAP
WASHED WITH FAB

FAB WASHES CHEAPER... IN HARDEST WATER

Laboratory tests prove that cup for cup, in hard water, FAB washes up to twice as much family wash as soap. This economy is another *FAB*ulous miracle. Yes . . . FAB—with Super-Wetting Action—is up to twice as economical as soap in hard water. You'll notice that all of FAB washes . . . Nothing is wasted in soap scum!

Faster And Better for all family wash and Dishes

Alfredo Prada's Terrific Wallop Excites Gotham

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, May (AP)—"He has a 18½ inch neck," the man said impressively.

We had to admit that was a lot of neck, although what good it would do was a little puzzling unless a guy took up a career as a hoss thief, and got caught.

The man was referring to Alfredo Prada, a 22-year-old lightweight prize fighter fresh from the Argentine. So fresh, in fact, that the English language still is gibberish to him, and we had to converse with him through an interpreter.

Foreign boxers are a dime a dozen here these days. A shipment is uncrated every few days. But there is something about this young Prada that sets him apart, and we have a hunch he might send a lot of our lightweights scurrying for shelter.

He's a stocky kid, as the size of his neck indicates. He has a few scars around his eyes, from butts, but his ears are as nature made them and he has a finely-chiselled Roman nose, and we don't mean it's roamin' all over his face. He obviously knows how to protect himself.

It is his punching prowess that impressed us, however, and we have it on good authority he can double up a stone statue with a body blow.

"He caved in a sparring partner, a welterweight, the other day," a fellow said, "and the guy was out for five minutes. He likes to get in under and rip to the body. In fact, he's much like Billy Petrolle in his style. He likes to fight the tall, lanky guys. That left hook to the side ruins them."

Healthy Appetite

Prada is always hungry, and can't understand how the people here subsist on the stuff they eat. At home he has steak, a total of three pounds, three times a day. He wonders how we can expect to have strong jaws eating soft foods.

Through the interpreter we learned Prada had 55 amateur fights, in which he was undefeated before turning pro, and that as a pro he has had 46 fights, including 43 victories, two draws and one defeat.

His lone defeat was suffered at the hands, literally, of the flashy Jose Maria Gatica. In their return fight Gatica knocked him down for a three count in the third round, the only knockdown of Prada's career. In the fifth round he broke Gatica's jaw in three places.

He is geared for long fights—20 rounds if necessary—and is a Spartan when it comes to training. His routine of calisthenics would tire you out just to watch it.

Prada's mother is of Italian descent, his father Spanish. His wife and 14-month-old son are in Buenos Aires. He's had only two fights in the last six months, and each ended in the first round, so he is a little ring rusty. He'd like to get his start around New York fairly soon, if his appetite doesn't drive him home.

I'd like to ask President Peron to send me a cow," he said. Through an interpreter, of course. His Spanish baffles us.

Charley Rose and Bill Rubin brought him up here, and are hoping for the best.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 9 (AP)—Self-explanatory note from Harry Mendel, the fight press agent: "Would greatly appreciate anything you could do for the Walcott-Charles scrap from that end." .. Sverre Lie, a pretty good tennis player and a first class ski jumper is listed to jump at Laconia, N.H., July 24 in a ski meet to be held on crushed ice... If this information didn't come from a reliable source, we'd severre it was a lie.

Suggestion Box

Business Manager Marvin Milkes of the Pocatello Cardinals in the Pioneer League has cooked up a "truth or consequences" night stunt for tonight's game against Boise...Too bad he couldn't get Commissioner Happy Chandler to M. C. the show and various league and club officials to perform...The fans would get a lot of laughs out of watching the brass hats taking the "consequences."

Shorts and Shells

Manager Bucky Walters of Cincinnati Reds may have a good pitching prospect in his own family. His brother, John, has been doing some good hurling for Germantown, Pa., high school and an American Legion team...California track fans are comparing Sim Iness, Compton junior college discus tosser, to the late Eric Krenz. Iness, 18, and a 245-pounder, has pitched the platter over 164 feet.

FORM HUMAN WALL

Dortmund, Germany, June 9—(AP) — Hundreds of German workers formed a human wall today and blocked British attempts to begin dismantling a synthetic gasoline plant.

Ten German workers had been sent to the plant to begin removing the machinery. They were accompanied by British officers. Workers who would lose their jobs if the plant is dismantled blocked their way, and they left, indicating they would return.

As the dismantlers approached the Dortmund plant they saw a dummy dangling from the gate. It bore a sign: "They took my bread — I had no choice but death."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

You can tell the age of a horse by its teeth, says the farmer. You can tell the age of a tree by the number of rings in the trunk, says the forester. You can tell the age of a woman . . . No you can't, says everyman. Now along comes tables compiled by the Fish and Wildlife Division of the Department of Lands and Forests which can assist the fisherman to tell the age of the big ones and little ones, too, if he's interested. It's simple, it's done by the scales.

Don't think for a minute that the twelve-inch speckled that you so proudly showed to your friends and family, has just been weaned from whatever trout are weaned from. He's a young frisky cuss full of vim and vigor and reaching the near-peak of his fish-hood. According to the Department tables, a speckle measuring 13.5 inches, weighing 15 ounces should have reached his fifth birthday.

It all depends, of course, where Mr. Speckle was caught. For, according to Dr. Harkness, chief of the Division, the rate of growth of fish of any species varies in different waters being dependent upon temperature, food and the length of growing season. There is also a considerable difference in the rate of growth of fish belonging to the same species in any given body of water.

"In addition to these variations," Dr. Harkness points out "the determination of age of fish by examination of the scales is not always accurate to the degree of more than one or two years. Within the limits given, the scale method of age determination is extremely valuable, and the data in the tables can be depended upon to give a reasonably accurate estimate of the relation between age, size and weight of game fish."

Indicative of the variation is a table on age and size of lake trout caught in Algonquin Park. According to studies carried out on Red Rock Lake, a five-year-old lake trout averaged 16 inches in length, while a similarly aged fish from Brewer Lake runs from 10 to 14 inches long. A five-year-old pike, on the average, is 23 inches long and weighs 2½ pounds.

Personally we think, while the above may be of interest to a lot of anglers, the primary interest of the ordinary Walton, whether he uses a $60 rod, or he's little Murgatroyd from Hoghackle Corners using a hickory limb, bent pin and a worm, is how big is the catch. The fact that the ten-pound pickerel is a hoary-headed old grandpop down where Minnie the Mermaid disports herself is of little concern to the gent at the other end of the rod. It's the size and weight that counts. That pike or muskie, carp or sucker may have ridden in the Charge of the Light Brigade or was a survivor of Lundy's Lane for all the angler cares. It's how he acts in the frying pan, or on the end of the scale that interests the fellow with the pole.

However, knowing the age of fish is useful. Imagine sitting down with friends at a fish dinner and having a quiz contest as to how old was the golden-browned entree. And imagine their surprise when you tell them that the delectable dish they have just gorged was playing around with finny females fifty or sixty years ago. (Or do fish live to attain that age?)

Friday night somebody will be the proud possessor of a brand new suit of clothes, worth, 'tis said, $60. And haberdashery of that calibre should fit well into any man's wardrobe. The suit will go to the winner of the holder of the lucky ticket for membership into the Corby's Softball Association. The draw will be held at the Stewart Warner field during the Corby's Provincial Engineer's softball game.

The game itself should be well worth the price of admission. The Corby squad has been going well since the season started and is rated one of the best in the league. On the other hand, Provincial Engineers have shown astonishing improvement of late and should give the plant team one of the best battles of the season. They threw a scare into the Howe and Hagerman crew last Friday night losing by a 9-7 count, after giving a standout display.

Whipper Billy Watson will be back at the wrestling wars here on Friday night taking on the ferocious Sandy O'Donnell, the Leaning Tower of Pisa of the bash, bang and battle fraternity. The Whip agreed to come to Belleville(and he needed no coaxing) in place of Mike "Golden Boy" Sharpe who was forced to cancel his engagement because of inability to return in time from his tour of the southern United States. O'Donnell is a rugged type of pachydermic propensities, and he doesn't give a hoot in Halifax as to what method he uses to subdue the opposition. He has been waiting for a chance at the Whip for some time now, and Lady Luck tossed it in his lap.

The semi-final sees the sensational Tug Carlson who has proven a popular favorite since his Belleville debut a few weeks ago, clash with that master-villain of the ring Wee Willie Davis. This bout is of main-bout calibre and should be a standout performance. Two newcomers to Belleville, Al Lovelock, a fiery Texan from Houston, meets Mike Millakis in the curtain raiser and pre-bout information has it that these boys will stage something for the faithful to talk about. All-in-all it looks like gala wrestling entertainment on Friday evening.

Art Wright, former pitcher of the Kiwanis Juniors, lost his first pitching assignment up Stratford way this week Wright made his mound debut in a Stratford junior uniform and was touched for twelve hits besides losing the game to the Kitchener juniors. The young Belleville hurler, however, smashed out a double and sacrificed in three times at bat. Contrary to reports here, Wright has not as yet performed for the Stratford seniors and present indications point to his remaining with the junior squad.

Tonight the Kiwanis Juniors tangle with the Trenton R.C.A.F. Flyers in a floodlight game at the Exhibition Grounds. Juniors won their last game at Point Anne defeating the Pointers 11-4 with Billy Strachan pitching neat four-hit baseball. Jack Elliott, Point catcher, got three of his team's four hits. Strachan struck out seven and issued no walks. Flyers, smarting under two straight defeats, are out to snatch a victory and they'll be at their best tonight. Game at 8:30.

Veteran Nelson Potter Big Man in Boston Braves' Flag Plans; Once Fired by Mack

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Nels Potter, the pitcher Connie Mack "fired" a year ago, is keeping the Boston Braves in the National League pennant race.

Five important victories by the 37-year-old American-league castoff put him out front of Ace Johnny Sain in the win column.

It took the second - place braves 15 innings to knock off the persistent Cincinnati Reds early this morning, 8-7, and Potter was the man who did the trick after taking over for Sain in the sixth.

In the 15th after Potter had struck out seven men, the Braves finally pushed over a score on Jim Russell's single with the bases loaded.

Brooklyn protected its half game edge on St. Louis and Boston by topping Chicago, 3-1, behind Rex Barney's two-hit pitching. It was Barney's first route-going performance of the season.

Jackie Robinson led the attack on Bob Muncrief, making his first start as a Cub since he was acquired on waivers from Chicago. Jackie had a triple and single knocking in two Brooklyn runs.

The St. Louis Cards continued to pressure the Brooks, sweeping their fifth straight and 14th out of 16 by shutting out New York, 3-0. Gerry Staley made his first complete game a fine three-hitter on the heels of Harry Brecheen's five-hit shutout of the Giants Tuesday night.

Bonus Players Help

Philadelphia Phillies' bonus players did the trick in a 2 - 0 whitewash of the lowly Pittsburgh Pirates. Stan Hollmig, the former Texas Aggies football star, hit his second homer in two days after Del Ennis walked in the sixth. Obin Roberts, another former collegian with a bonus contract, blanked the Bucs with six hits for his sixth win.

Detroit clipped New York Yankees' lead to 4½ games by winning an 11 - inning American League night game 3-2 on Tommy Byrne's wildness. Byrne, who gave up 13 bases on balls, walked three in a row in the 11th. Then Vic Wertz, after working the count to 3-2, singled to right field to give Virgil Trucks win No. 2. Trucks allowed only three hits. Byrne yielded only four singles.

Bob Lemon, knocked out in the fourth inning Tuesday night, came right back against Washington and pitched Cleveland to an 8-3 victory. Lemon helped boost the Tribe up to the .500 mark again with his first homer of the year.

Philadelphia Athletics took over third place by drubbing the sliding Chicago White Sox 5-2. Alex Kellner earned his seventh win with a six - hitter after a wobbly start.

After losing 11 straight, the St. Louis Browns ran their win - string to three by dumping Boston Red Sox 5-2. It was Boston's sixth loss in nine starts on the western string.

Toronto Leafs In Third Place Of Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Hey, Leo, looking for a catcher who can hit the ball? Wes Westrum of your Jersey City farm club has hit five home runs with the bases full to break his own International League record.

Westrum, who should be headed for a return trial with Leo Durocher's New York Giants, hit his 14th homer of the year Wednesday night but couldn't save the Little Giants from losing an 11-8 game to Buffalo. Westrum's clout came with the bases loaded in the first inning.

Bob Hooper was credited with the victory and Ford Smith took the loss in the wild contest which saw eight hurlers dole out 23 bases on balls.

The defeat sliced Jersey City's first place lead to one game over Buffalo.

Toronto Maple Leafs made it five out of six over Newark Bears, winning the finale of their series 9-2. It was the 12th defeat in 15 starts for the slumping Bears.

Bubba Church went the distance for Leafs, scattering five hits in picking up his fifth triumph.

Mike Goliat homered for the Leafs in the fifth and Lou Novikoff smashed one for the losers in the eighth.

Rochester Red Wings unfurled a 14-hit barrage at three Baltimore hurlers to earn an 8-4 victory at Baltimore.

Cloyd Boyer was sharp, holding the Orioles to five hits and fanning 12. Frank Mancuso homered off Boyer in the third with the bases empty.

Olympic Program Will Include Hockey Tourney

(By The Canadian Press)

Hockey will be reinstated on the Winter Olympic Games program when the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States and the Amateur Athletic Union "make their peace," J. S. Edstrom of Sweden, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Wednesday at Toronto.

That is the only obstacle in the way of a continuance of the sport in the Olympics, he told a round-table conference of Canadian Olympic and A. A. U. leaders assembled here.

(First moves toward peace in the A. H. A. - A. A. U. dispute were made in New York last week when leaders of both organizations met behind closed doors. Settlement is expected lated this summer and well - informed sources say the A. H. A. will affiliate with the A. A. U. and govern amateur hockey in the United States with the union's blessing.

Toronto's Royal Canadian Yacht Club, a male stronghold since its founding 97 years ago, has finally decided to admit women to membership. The decision is a double victory for the women. Until now, women could take part in sailing races only as crew but henceforth they can skipper their own boats.

George Metkovich, one of the Pacific Coast League's leading hitters, has been purchased by Chicago White Sox. He will fly here to play against Boston in a night game Friday.

The Sox gave Oakland, Calif., an undisclosed amount of cash and optioned first - baseman Gordon Coldsberry and outfielder Gerry Scala to the coast club in obtaining Metkovich. Metkovich's current batting average after 61 games this season is .357.

Chicago Cubs Wednesday optioned pitcher Calvin Collidge McLish to Los Angeles to the Pacific Coast League. The Cubs said the move was made to open a spot on the roster for pitcher Warren Hacked. McLish, obtained by the Cubs from Pittsburgh in a winter trade, has won one and lost one this season.

Pitcher Bryan Stephens Wednesday left Baltimore Orioles of the International League to go home to Los Angeles. Stephens, who had a 4-5 record this season, decided to give up playing in the east to be with his wife on the west coast.

Manager Jack Dunn said he will try to work out a trade for Stephens with Cleveland so the pitcher can play with the Indians' farm team at San Diego.

Chicago White Sox Wednesday announced the purchase of first-baseman Charles (Buck) Kress from Cincinnati Reds. The Sox declined to reveal the amount of money involved in the straight cash deal. Kress, used mainly as a pinch-hitter, has run up a .154 batting mark with the Reds this year.

The touring Scottish International football team defeated Ontario All-Stars before a crowd of 10,000 persons in Toronto's Maple Leaf stadium.

At Toronto, Bobby Fair, slim junior, from the Scarboro Golf and Country Club, Wednesday shot a steady 71 at Lakeview to win the Jack Armstrong trophy for low gross in the Bow-Tie Open. Nick Westlock came second with a 70.

At Fairmount Park, Ill., Golden Broom, four-year-old chestnut, paced an eight-horse field to win the sixth race by two lengths, then repeated to win the ninth race, taking both halves of a $1,500 divided purse in Grand Circuit harness racing Wednesday night.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

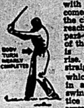
By Associated Press

Batting—Stan Hollmig, Phillies—hit two-run homer for only runs in Phils' 2-0 victory over Pittsburgh.

Pitching—Virgil Trucks, Tigers—held New York Yankees to three hits in 11-inning, 3-2 victory.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead



I like today's drawing very much. Notice that the ball in this wood shot is positioned well forward of a centre line between the player's heels. The reason for this is that with the long shafted woods the best flight is obtained when contact with the ball comes just after the clubhead has reached the low park in the arc of the swing and is starting to rise. Notice that straight left arm, which you need in a good golf swing. And notice that dotted arrow leading from the hands to the ground. This is to remind you that you swing the hands down — down sort of toward the right pocket—and never out and around. By swinging your hands down, your clubhead will pass slightly inside-out, across the dotted direction line at impact and that is what you wish to accomplish. A golf ball hit in this way—slightly inside-out—is on its way for a long, arrowy flight with just a faint hook at the far end. The over-spin that this slight hook produces will give you five or ten extra yards on the roll. —(Copyright 1949, John F. Dille Co.)

Only Six Will Start in Belmont

New York, June 9 (AP)—Only six horses, smallest field since 1943, appear likely to face the starter Saturday in the 81st running of the $75,000 Belmont Stakes.

Calumet Farm's Ponder, the Kentucky Derby winner, appears certain to be established the favorite. After running fifth to Capot in the Preakness, Ponder came back last Saturday and took the Peter Pan Handicap at Belmont.

Odds-makers were quoting the Calumet colt at 6 to 5, with Isidore Bieber's Palestinian probable second choice at 2 to 1, and Greentree Stable's Capot next at 7 to 2.

Others expected to complete the field for the mile and one half grind are Mrs. Eben H. Ellison, Jr.'s Sun Bahram, Clifford Mooer's Old Rockport, and J. Graham Brown's Saint Nicholas. All will carry 126 pounds.

Only three started in 1943 when Count Fleet won the Belmont, and the last time six went was Bimelech's Belmont in 1940. There have been 14 six-horse fields in the 80 previous runnings of the race. Even Citation, Calumet's 1948 winner, had seven opponents.

Five times only two horses have started the Belmont, the last in 1920 when Man O' War beat Donnacona.

Jockey Ted Atkinson, who has been sidelined for several days with a finger infection, is hopeful of returning to work today. If Toronto Ted isn't able to make it Saturday aboard Capot, Eric Guerin will ride.

As usual, Steve Brooks will be aboard Ponder, with Eddie Arcaro on Palestinian, Carson Kirk on Sun Bahram, and Gordon Gillson on Old Rockport. No boy has been announced for Saint Nicholas.

Northern Electric Swamp Energetic Club by 38-7

A six - hit attack, including a home run by Locke and a double by Wood, netted the Northern Electric squad five runs in the first inning and they never looked back as they swamped the Energetic Club 38-7 in a Commercial Softball League game played last evening at the East Hill playgrounds.

The pile - driving attack rolled on almost unimpeded as the Electrics rolled up their lopsided victory. Seven home runs, two triples and five doubles rattled off the Northern bats in their 29-hit splurge. Ten walks complicated the picture.

The Energetic crew poled out nine hits off Connie Harris, who was given credit for the win. A walk, a double, and a single accounted for two of the Energetics' runs in the third. An error and a single gave them a third in the fifth. They added two more in the sixth, and finished their scoring in the seventh counting twice on a walk and three singles.

The Northern team batted around in the first, fourth, and sixth frames but the steamroller slowed down in the later innings with the plant crew failing to score in the seventh and counting only once in each of the last two innings.

Connie Harris went seven innings on the mound for Northern to gain the victory. He struck out six, walked three, and gave up nine hits for seven runs. Carson went the last two frames retiring the opposition in order. Energetics used Middleton and Hopkins in a vain attempt to halt the carnage.

RAILWAY TALKS

Sherridon, Man. — (CP) — Representatives of northern Manitoba towns met recently with railway officials to discuss construction of a railway from Sherridon to Lynn Lake, 120 air miles north. Local mine officials are urging the railway which would open up what is considered a good copper-nickel area about Lynn Lake.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Consider what causes a contract to get too high. It is not the number of times you bid. It is the number of raises in your bids.

An opening one bidder starts from a basis of five tricks. His partner is assumed to have a basis of two. These are the seven tricks upon which a bid of one begins to function.

Thereafter, each raise in number by either partner consumes one more trick in his hand. No more tricks in his hand will be used up by any of his bids that do not raise the number.

He may bid several times without showing any more tricks than promised by his first bid. The only provision for this is that he does not increase the partnership number by his additional bids.

South opens with a bid of one spade with this hand:

♠A J 10 8 5
♥K 9 6
♣A Q 4

Suppose north responds with two diamonds. Having raised the number from one to two, north has consumed his third trick; that is, one trick in addition to the basic two he is assumed to have.

After the two diamond response by north, south can bid two spades. It does not promise any more tricks in the south hand. So far as north knows, south still has his original five tricks only.

The south opening promised five tricks. His second bid of two in spades showed his rebiddable suit. But it did not increase the last partnership number. So, it consumed no more tricks.

When south opened with one spade, suppose north responded with one no-trump. South must now pass. He is unable to rebid his suit without an increase in number. To do so he would need a sixth trick.

It is true that many players would rebid the spade suit held by south if north responded one no-trump. But this does not make it correct. They misinform their partner as to their number of tricks.

Using raises that lie gets the bidding too high.

Kokomo Clowns Please Crowd With Funny Antics

Large crowds braved coolish weather in Batawa and at the Exhibition Grounds last night to see baseball clowned more ways than one when the Kokomo Clowns diamond squad antic(k)ed its way through two exhibition tilts with the Batawa COBL entry. The Shoemen edged the comedians who can play smart baseball in the first tilt at Batawa by a 5-4 score while the diamond Pagliaccis defeated the COBLiers here in the nightcap by a lopsided score.

The first game was productive of some good baseball after the Kokomos settled down to business following their hilarious antics, but the second tilt lacked plenty of good baseball. Batawa kicked the ball around plenty in the first few innings and it looked as though they were trying to emulate some of the Pierrot calisthenics of the actor visitors. As a matter of fact the Clowns bobbled several chances afield but they were potent with the bludgeon.

Led by "Bobo" the portly first baseman who by the way is one of the pitching stars of the team winning 28 games last season, the faces bedaubled in clownish grease paint, with their names and numbers such as 6½, etc. on their backs, the Kokomos staged a funny exhibition on the diamond previous to the game. They had the crowd applauding each comical move and their exhibition of baseball pantomime when no ball was used in infield practice was one of the features of the fun.

The comedy was continued into the first inning when the first clown batter bunted and raced for third base. Came a strenuous argument with huge rule books being produced and "angry" Clown players milling around the umpires. The denouement comes when a pair of gambling Kokomos produce a set of dice and win all the equipment from the plate umpire.

WHOPPER WINS DERBY

Yorkton, Sask. — (CP) — Norman Romming was well ahead of the field in Yorkton's annual fish derby at Round Lake. He brought in a 22½-pound pike. His nearest competitors had a 17½ pound pike and a two-pound nine-ounce pickerel.

GUNNING FOR COYOTES

Picton Battles To 8-all Tie With Electrics

It was a parade of pitchers and extra base clouts in Picton last night, but for all the strong-arm guys and lusty bludgeons, the home team and Northern Electric failed to settle the issue and the squads decided to call it all even at eight-all at the end of the eighth innings when darkness intervened.

Gerry Miller started the mound chore for Picton and lasted five innings. In the third the Northern bats pounced on him and lashed his offerings for four runs. In the fifth when the visitors shoved over two more and threatened to break out again, he was yanked and Alex Tait went in. He failed to last the innings and Dyer was rushed into the breach. He stayed until the sixth when he was tossed out of the game by the officials. Drury took over and lasted out the abbreviated pastime.

Bobby Bunton got the starting round assignment for Electric and lasted until the fifth when Picton broke out with a five hit, five run barriage and Lefty Weeks took over.

Picton scored eight runs off eleven hits and committed but one error while Northern scored their runs off seven clouts and miscued three times afield.

D. Miller hit a home run and a double for Picton with Perry getting a double and single. Carson and Zimmerman both hit two-baggers. Wardhaugh got a single and double for Northern with Vern Goyer donating a two-baser.

Long Beach, Calif. — (AP)— Dental investigator Harold Gilbert didn't want to gum up the trial. But he wasn't anxious to gum his food, either.

So Judge Martin De Vries ruled that he could keep his teeth during the night and turn them in an evidence today, after breakfast.

Tht dental dilemma occurred during the trial of F. B. Sheldon on two misdemeanor counts of violating the Dental Practices Act and the business and professional code.

Lawyers for Sheldon, who had worked on Gilbert's plates, demanded that they be placed in evidence. Judge De Vries gave Gilbert until today to fill up on solid food.

Los Angeles — (AP)—Comedian Frank Fay's return with a road-show version of his Broadway hit, Harvey, wasn't quite the happy home-coming he expected — from one standpoint at least.

His first wife, Mrs. Gladys Buchanan Fay, filed a $56,530 alimony suit Tuesday, contending that for 10 years he hasn't paid the $75 a week he promised when they divorced in 1925.

Los Angeles — (AP)— The first sea lion to be born at the Griffith Park Zoo is dead because he was a landlubber.

Six days ago the baby was born to Esther. Each day she lowered it into the pool so it could get the feel of the water. Today she took her baby out on his first real lesson.

Pittsburgh — (AP) — Pittsburgh police today had a nomination for the most absent-minded burglar of 1949.

Interrupted in his work by the screams of 14-year-old Jean Corcoran, the burglar hastily stepped out her second - storey bedroom window. He forgot he didn't have a ladder.

Police found him several hours later in a basement area of the Corcoran home. He suffered a broken back.

AT THE BELLE — Van Johnson is more than a little annoyed at Rudy Vallee as the latter cuts in on Van and Loretta in this scene from the new 20th. Century-Fox Technicolor hit, "Mother is a Freshman," starting today at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE McCARTHY — George Brent and Ann Blyth, who co-star with Howard Duff in Universal-International's Technicolor adventure, "Red Canyon," starting tomorrow at Odeon's McCarthy Theatre, face the challenge of James Seay (right) as Edmund MacDonald looks on.

AT THE CAPITOL — Ready for trouble, Allan "Rocky" Lane stars in the newest Republic action-packed western "Oklahoma Badlands," opening today at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program Leo Gorcey and the Bowery Boys in their latest comedy "Fighting Fools". Matinee daily at 2.00 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL — Star Leo Gorcey smiles in spite of his trouble with ring racketeers in Monogram's new Bowery Boys comedy drama, "Fighting Fools," opening today at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program Allan "Rocky" Lane stars in "Oklahoma Badlands." Matinee daily at 2.00 p.m.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 9 — (AP) — Katharine Hepburn plans to take a prolonged vacation from films.

She finishes her M. G. M. contract with her current film, "Adam's Rib." In October she begins rehearsals of "As You Like It," for the Theatre Guild. If it's a hit, she'll be in the play most of next year, although she may return here for a picture next summer.

"I'm very excited about it," she told me. "It's the first classic I've ever done. And I love to tour with a show."

Comic Cutups

Jack Benny is responsible for getting Phil Harris his straight acting role in 'Wabash Ave.' When Jack heard producer Bill Perlberg moan that he couldn't get Paul Douglas for the role, he replied: "Harris can do anything Douglas can do."

The couple talked Perlbert into testing Harris for the role and he got the job. "This is the first part I've had that wasn't all teeth and eyes," said the curly - topped bandleader.

Love and Planes

John Dall escorted Peggy Cummins to the local opening of "Brigadoon." The longtime Broadway runner is the civic light opera's second offering and it's a bonny hit.

Gregory Pack got the flying bug after winging home with director Henry King from the "12 O'Clock Night" location in Florida. The actor is signing up for lessons and wants to buy a plane.

Audrey Totter is in the midst of rumors about her romance with Brian Donlevy. Will she marry the man? "How should I know—I've only been going with him six weeks." But she admits he courts "beautifully." She receives three dozen red roses every Saturday. And while she was on location for "Tension," he flew over in his own plane and dipped a wing to her! Ah, Hollywood.

SHEEP FROM NEW ZEALAND

Wellington, N.Z. — (CP) —The first stud sheep sent to Canada from New Zealand for 18 years are being shipped to Vancouver. They are three Corriedale rams, four Romney rams and four Romney ewes. They are being sent as a result of the visit of Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of Canadian experimental farms, who studied New Zealand's progress in breed improvement during a recent tour of the Dominion.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went downtown with ma, and as soon as we got off the bus some lady came up with a buntch of yellow carnations, saying to ma, Wont you buy a yellow carnation for World Relief? Suppose I pin one in your little boy's button hole? she said.

Why yes, suppose you do, ma said.

Which the lady did, being a pritty lady smiling all the time to make herself still prettier, and ma gave her some money and we kept on going, and I said, G, ma, I meen heck, do I have to walk along with this thing on me?

Yes you do, or el's we'll be stopped every 10 feet and asked to buy another one, ma said. This is World Relief Day, she said, and I said, Well heck, ma, people are starting to look at me funny alreddy, cant you see them?

Yes, I can see them in your silly imagination, the same place you see them, ma said.

Being sourcastic and the end of the subject for a little while, and then I said, G roozalem, ma, now I got to take this darn flower off me. There's a bee chasing me, I said.

Sutch an idea, I dont see any bee, ma said, and I said, I dont actually see it, either, but I think I hear it.

Which I pritty near thawt I did, and I said, Well jimminies, ma, suppose he gets mad and stings me because he thinks I'm taking a flower away from him?

Suppose the moon is made of green cheese, ma said, and I said, Well anyways, ma, if I get absent minded and forget to take it off when we get home, the fellows will see it on me and think I'm a sissey, and they're libel to call me Carnation the rest of my life.

Oh hush and nonsense, ma said. Give me the flower and I'll pin it on my own jacket, she said.

Which she did, being the best idea yet.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

"Ward! Why I—!"

"Hush. Doesn't bother with all that unless she means business. Now I am not butting in, and God help the man who did butt in on anything you wanted to do, but there's this and then I'm gone—you know where I hang out, see? I'm your bud. You might think of something I could do, some little task. Moving a rock out of the road, maybe. Something to help. Okay, I'm on deck, waiting."

He whirled his horse and was gone again.

Polly was astonished. Her brother had never before talked quite like this to her. There had always been an understanding of kindship and affection and loyalty rarely ever any expression of those attributes. Whatever was Ward getting at? Did he mean even more than he said? Some vague intuition told Polly that he did.

His gestured passed out of her mind, though, when she went to school that day, because Joy Kathryn Boone herself was waiting for her on the steps of the Administration Building.

"Hiya, Poll. You look wonderful this morning." Joy greeted.

"You're not such an old hag yourself!"

Other girls were present, overbearing. Polly conversed with all of them a moment then walked away arm in arm with Joy.

"Mind if I tell you something, Polly? Mind if I just talk, I mean? You're the only friend I've got here."

"Oh no. Joy! You have scads of friends. But of course, if I—"

"No." Joy was serious now. "I never have. Honest to goodness, I don't. Except for Tootsy, and she's more like a mother. With problems of her own—guess what? —she's drippy about a man herself!"

"Joy! Tell me!"

"You might have seen it. It's Dr. Pal."

That was the nickname Frontier had created for its new president. It was at once a compliment and an intimacy. Dr. Pal.

Polly was thrilled, naturally, and the two girls had to talk that romance out in detail, but Polly knew that Joy hadn't yet come to her main point. They had walked around the cloister, past the cactus garden and over by the long rows of chrysanthemums that were soon to come into bloom. Neither had a class for nearly an hour. They sat on a stone bench beside a trickling fountain.

"Look, kid," Joy began anew, "you aren't the least bit dumb. You know what the college has made us. We compete in everything. We make the highest grades. We both sing in the glee club, and have the best voices there. I can almost out—shoot you on the pistol range, and one day I will. I can ride western as well as eastern style—in fact I'm coming to despise the miserable little plaster pads they use on the park trails back home. Goodness!" She laughed at her own contempt.

"I know," Polly said, waiting.

"Polly, I love it out here. Honest, Arizona is wonderful!"

"You'll never pick an argument that way!"

"No. Of course I wasn't trying to, either. Polly, do you think—what does your father say? I mean, about Dr. Palmer and all. Isn't he liked by everybody? The trustees, I mean? I think he's wonderful!"

"Oh!" What was Joy getting at, Polly wondered. "Yes. Dad likes him. He has a lot of drive. Honest, and open, and still rather dignified and retiring in manner, like Ken is. You know."

"Ken!" Joy almost whispered that, as if in reverence.

"Ken is a real gentleman," Polly went on.

"What ever makes him so—unapproachable? Shy?"

"Hmmmmm!" Polly half sang that, non-commitally. "Maybe he just doesn't want to be too forward. Too aggressive like. He's learning to fit in out here. Had you noticed? Of late?" She eyed the blond girl shrewdly.

"Oh but he and I have a great deal in common. We're both from the east, and—and—" Joy trailed off.

For the life of her Polly couldn't see what more those two had in common. Both from the east, yes; but utterly different beyond that, unless one counted a certain inherent mental ability. Even there, though, the two personalities diverged; Polly was quick, impulsive, fraught with energies that seemed to crackle and blunder through, while Ken was a scholar given to deep thinking.

"He's kind of like your brother Ward," Joy added.

"Yes. But I didn't know you had observed Ward much."

"I haven't. But I'm pretty good at sizing people up. I said you weren't dumb. I'm not either."

"That's so." But Polly still wondered. Joy had said she wanted to talk. Was it, then, that she merely wanted to talk about men? Many girls did so. Just men. Giving vent to a sort of cosmic feeling inside themselves. But Polly hadn't thought Joy quite like that. She waited.

"Polly, what would happen if I got married?"

"Oh!" Polly sat up now. "Why, nothing! I mean—are you planning to? For pete's sake, Joy!"

"Well, I do think about it. Lately."

"Tell me! Don't tease!"

"Oh I'm not actually engaged. In fact I haven't even been asked by this particular man. I have been back east—believe me in that—but I haven't been too interested. Anyway Tootsy wouldn't let me. Says I've been too young. I'm mature now. Almost 20, And I haven't told her about this. I—somehow, I wanted to talk to someone nearer my own age. You're the nearest thing I have to a friend. You ARE my friend, aren't you, Polly?"

"Of course, Joy." Polly murmured that with feeling. She had already sensed that Joy Kathryn Boone, even though a person with terrific verve and a beauty that was nationally acclaimed, was in reality lonely at heart. Renown folk often lacked actual intimacy with anyone.

"Then kid—I think I'm really in love! With Ken!"

Polly kept still. But she felt the very life blood seeming to pour out of her, and she knew her face would be ghostly now.

Joy didn't turn, though. She spoke up. "Polly dear, I had to confide somewhere! Ken is so handsome, but he is scared of me. He—he hasn't any money. Dr. Palmer himself doesn't make much here. They would be too proud to—to—oh, Polly, you've got to help me! Ken's the only man I've ever wanted that I couldn't have. And what if I do have money? I have a right to be loved too, haven't I? Haven't I, Polly?"

But Polly McMurray could stare off, appalled at what circumstance was doing to her own soul.

College classes that day were a sort of hazy proceedure in which Polly McMurray just sat or, where necessary, blundered through her part poorly. She wanted desperately to go home. To be alone. Finally she cut her 11.30 American Literature class entirely and went unhappily to her car. She barely waved to the several friends who spoke to her, which caused them to stare wonderingly; it was definitely news if Polly McMurray appeared depressed.

Her blac mood persisted all the way out. Autumn sunshine shone with the same brilliance it had displayed last April, but she saw none of it. For once she was unresponsive to the magnificient landscape of desert and mountains. The long-eared jackrabbit that watched her escaped her eye. The long-tailed road runner bird that jumped out to challenge her car made no impression.

"Senorita Polly, she have the droops, no es verdad?" one Mexican servant said to another, when she left her car and went directly to her room at home.

She plopped down into a chair. A box o fchocolates—gift from a suitor who had called last evening—tempted her at her elbow. She wanted none of it.

Idly, she opened a second drawer of her heavy rustic desk there, and from the back of it drew a book labeled "Diary."

Gas and Stomach Disorders Made Her Nervous, Rundown

"Suffered 3 Years," Says This Woman. Got Bad Rheumatic Pain; Always Tired; Could Not Sleep Well. Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

"For the past three years I suffered from awful spells of nervous indigestion with gas and pains after my meals," said Mrs. Lavina McEwen, Lucan, Ontario, in a recent report.

"Many days I didn't feel like eating at all. My food would sour and rise in my throat, gas formed in large quantities bringing a distressed, breathless feeling that made my nerves all on edge. My entire system became affected by this sour, gassy condition of my stomach. I began to have backache and pains in my limbs and joints. I was always tired but when I'd lie down at night I was so nervous and upset I couldn't sleep.

"Having tried a lot of different things without benefit I was badly discouraged. Then, one day I read in the paper about Syntona helping other people and decided to get some. This medicine has meant all the difference in the world to me. Even from the first bottle I noticed my food beginning to digest better and since that time I have kept on improving until I am virtually free of all gas, sourness and distress. My nerves are calmed down so that I enjoy sound, restful sleep, the aches and pains are gone away and I feel like an entirely different person from what I did a few weeks ago."

Why not let this grand Herbal Compound help you as it has so many other local men and women? Its speedy, effective and pleasant action has surprised nearly everyone who has taken it.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Presbyterians Raise Budget By 79.9 P.C.

Kitchener, June 8 (CP)— The Presbyterian Church in Canada is budgeting for expenditure of $750,000 in 1950.

That amunt was approved Teusday night by the Church's 75th General Assembly. It represents an increase of 79.9 per cent over the 1948 allocation and to meet it will require a contribution from each member of approximately $4.27.

Rev. G. D. Johnston of Brantford, chairman of the General Board of Missions, said the church needs more money to expand and improve its work. He was confident that the new budget can be met by increasing the interest of congregations in the church and winning their support in solving financial problems.

"Certain matters of deep relevance to the future of our church now lie before us," he said. "The present revenue is not sufficient to enable us to meet complefely the challenge of our times."

One of the financial matters under consideration by the Assembly is the possibility of raising ministers' salaries. The minimum annual stipend now is $1,800.

Judge J. B. Moon, Parry Sound, linked low salaries with the shortage of ministers.

"What does $1,800 a year mean to a young minister?" he asked. "In these times it has the value of $1,200. When graduates of other branches of universities can get $3,000, is it any wonder that we are short of ministers? In my opinion, $2,400 a year minimum would be too little."

Book Of Praise Criticized

The Assembly approved $475,000 worth of 1949 expenditures, including $305,000 for mission work.

The Presbyterian Book of Praise, a psalm book, came in for criticism from Rev. Frank Morley of Calgary. He described it as "the poorest book of hymns and psalms used by any denomination."

Rev. Wallace McLean of Victoria Harbor, objected to use of pictures of Christ in church literature. Holding up a printed leaflet, containing an order of service and illustrated with a picture of Christ, he said:

"We are a reformed church, out to extinguish paganism. Here is a picture which is supposed to represent the head of our Lord Christ. It is an admission that Christ was a man. Plays, paintings and modern movies contribute to this paganism today. We have no conception of what Jesus looked like."

World Bodies Needed but Cost Must be Curbed

Montreal, June 8. (CP)—(CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier Tuesday night told the International Civil Aviation organization here that the world needed world organizations like the United Nations and its agencies but everything possible should be done to help curb their administration expenses.

Mr. Chevrier spoke before the opening of the Third Assembly of the I.C.A.O.

He said all nations, including Canada, already were overburdened by heavy debts contracted during the war.

"To meet these burdens our people have been taxed during and since the war to a far greater extent than ever before," he said, and "the establishment and maintenance of the United Nations . . . . has placed heavy additional burdens on our people."

While there is no question about the continued support of these international organizations, "it is most important that all of them exercise the strictest economy consistent with the efficient performance of their functions," Mr. Chevrier said.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mountain View — Master Richard Wilson of Belleville spent Monday with George Sprague.

Mrs. P. I. Timmins, field secretary of the Institute for the Blind, in Kingston, visited Mountain View school on Thursday and addressed the pupils. Following this several of the senior pupils canvassed the neighborhood, collecting funds for the blind.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Sprung visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hall of Trent Road on Thursday evening.

Miss Nadine Dempsey spent a few days with friends in Wellington.

Messrs. Ben and John Anderson spent Friday in Peterborough.

Mr. Musgrove and Mr. Phillips of the Belleville Collegiate visited Mountain View School on Friday.

Miss Mary Huff attended the musical festival at Massassaga on Wednesday evening, and assisted with the program.

Mrs. R. Barber of Huff's Island, and Mrs. C. Sprague attended the Ladies' Aid meeting at Crofton on Thursday afternoon.

Rev. D. C. Amos of Belleville had dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste, and family. Mr. Charles Sprague was a supper guest at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson and children, of Belleville, were supper guests on Sunday of Mr. J. G. Sprague and Miss Elizabeth Jordon.

Mr. and Mrs. William Burkett, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cunningham of Ameliasburg, spent the supper hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cunningham, of Rossmore.

Miss Mary Huff was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Sprung on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Anderson accompanied by Miss Lillian Anderson, Miss Lillian Sprague, Mrs. Annie Blair and Yvonne and Laurence Poste enjoyed a motor trip through the lower part of the county, also crossing the Glenora ferry, returning by Napanee, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Sprung were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clement Frederick and Noreen at their cottage on Sunday.

POLICE STOP RAFFLE

Los Angeles, June 8 (AP) — Vice-squad members visited the home of comedian Bob Hope and stopped a church-benefit raffle. Police said no arrests were made last Sunday because Mrs. Hope said she didn't know that a raffle for such purposes was illegal. Several paddlewheels were confiscated by the officers.

RECEIVES DIPLOMA

Augusta, Go., June 8 (AP) — One of the original "Dead End Kids" has received his diploma as a doctor of medicine. Bernard Punsly—who played "Milty," the fat boy—was graduated from the University of Georgia's School of Medicine in Augusta.

Skinny men, women gain 5, 10, 15 lbs.

Get New Pep, Vim, Vigor

What a thrill. Bony limbs fill out, ugly hollows fill up; neck no longer scrawny; body loses half-starved, sickly "bean-pole" look. Thousands of girls, women, men, who never could gain before are now proud of shapely, healthy-looking bodies. They thank the special vigor-building, flesh-building tonic Ostrex. Its tonics, stimulants, invigorators, iron, vitamin B1, calcium, enrich blood, improve appetite and digestion so food gives you more strength and nourishment; put flesh on bare bones. Don't fear getting too fat. Stop when you've gained the 5, 10, 15 or 20 lbs. you need for normal weight. Costs little. New "get acquainted" size only 60c. Try famous Ostrex Tonic Tablets for new vigor and added pounds, this very day. At all druggists.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

BAYSIDE W. M. S.

Mrs. Frank Sandercock and Mrs. James Sandercock opened their home for the June meeting of Bayside Women's Missionary Society on Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. C. Rush, followed the Missionary Monthly program, the topic being, "Keeping the Sabbath Day." The next meeting will be held at White's Church in July, with a combined meeting of the Baby Bands, Mission Bands and W.M.S. The program will be put on by the Mission Bands and there will also be games and refreshments.

Since one-half of the year has passed, it was decided that each member of the W. M. S. make a dollar donation to help meet the allocation of the year.

Mrs. Rush mentioned the "Clothing Drive" and said that anyone who wished to donate good used clothing could leave same at her home before June 15. Mrs. Self of Toronto, had previously mentioned the need for used clothing at the Presbyterial held in Trenton, so it is hoped that many will respond.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses and a social time was enjoyed.

Personals

The Rev. A. C. McCallum attended Bay of Quinte Conference in Picton last week.

The school children are enjoying a long weekend due to the King's birthday being celebrated on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Bowers, Mr. Bowers Sr., Donald, Marilyn and Audrey were Friday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fair and son of the Kingston Rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Young were Wednesday visitors of his brother Mr. C. Young and Mrs. Young, of Prince Edward.

A few from this district attended the wedding of Mr. William Westfall of Trenton, and Miss Joan Empey of Rossmore, at Holloway St. United Church, Belleville on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. William Westfall, grandmother of the bridegroom attended the reception at the bride's home.

Mrs. William Westfall spent Sunday with her son Mr. L. Westfall and family of Trenton, the occasion being the former's birthday.

Friends welcome Mr. and Mrs. George Belham, Sylvia and Larry to this district again.

MADOC

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.

Madoc.—Mrs. Field Allen was hostess to the society for their June meeting.

During the business period a letter was read from the literature secretary giving addresses to send magazines and clothing for bale to be left at the manse before June 15.

The welcome and welfare secretary read extracts from a leaflet on this work.

The devotional period was based on the beatitudes "Blessed are the merciful and blessed are the pure in heart".

The lesson chapter No. 6 was taken by Mrs. Allan Johnson. She showed how the native converts help in work among the different tribes and how true they are to their convictions. After the meeting closed the hostess was assisted by Mrs. Dave Blakely in serving refreshments.

Personals

Mrs. T. L. Nickle of Bancroft, is visiting her son, Hubert and Mrs. Nickle.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and little daughter, of Glen Miller, spend the weekend with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stewart.

Mrs. Blanche Alexander left on Sunday to spend a few days with friends in Toronto and will also attend the reunion at the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby.

Mrs. Yule of Oshawa, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Johnson.

Mrs. Corrigal of West Huntingdon, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Ashley.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Wellman, of Peterborough, spent Sunday with friends in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wright of Ottawa, spent the weekend with relatives in the vicinity of Madoc.

Miss Rose Brennan, of Peterborough spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stewart.

Among the successful students who will receive their degree of Bachelor of Arts at Toronto University on Thursday are Alex. Watson, Jeannie Crawford, Elaine Tayler and Barbara Nicol.

ALL IS NOT PEACEFUL IN UNION RANKS

Mounted police, pickets and anti-pickets are huddled in this general melee outside the International Longshoremen's headquarters in New York in a brief but furious battle. Police quelled it in less than a minute. Scores of longshoremen on the anti-picket side left their North and East River piers to rout a picket line of some 200 who were staging a demonstration against alleged Jim Crow tactics of I.L.A. President Joseph P. Ryan. Ryan charged the demonstration to Communists. The pickets were members and supporters of I.L.A. local.—Central Press Canadian.

3RD HILLIER

Hillier 3rd — Rev. C. P. Heaven held Decoration Day Service at Christ Church, Hillier, on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Lloyd Halladay, Miss Moira Halladay, and Mrs. Lindsay Seaman, of Elgin, spent the weekend with relatives in the county and spent Sunday and Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Benway.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Walt and boys, Bata, spent Sunday dinner hour with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Benway.

The continuing dry weather has made a short hay crop in the county. Tomatoes are being hurt by the dry weather as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roote and Larry of Consecon Lake, spent Sunday tea hour with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Benway.

Miss Joyce Benway of Deseronto spent the holiday weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Benway.

Mrs. Mac Hardy, Mrs. Wesley Wright attended the Christ Church Guild on Wednesday at Mrs. W. McFaul's.

IVANHOE

Ivanhoe — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brough and children of Thomasburg; Mr. and Mrs. George Wood and children were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMaster.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Kilpatrick of Belleville visited Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fleming on Monday. Mrs. Donald Fleming and Mr. Ted Fleming spent the weekend in Bath.

Miss Shirley Fleming of Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, will spend Wednesday at her home here. Miss Shirley will be bridesmaid at the Armstrong-Blakely wedding to take place in Madoc Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. A. M. Wooten of Whitby visited Mr. Harry Lovibond on Sunday.

Mr. Arnold Creaser will be in Toronto for the next three months where he will take a layman's course.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burkitt, Tommy and Bobby, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Twiddy.

Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Rose of Brantford, Ont., called in Ivanhoe Friday, renewing old acquaintances after an absence of 45 years. Mr. Rose visited the post office, the home of Mrs. Chas. Mitz, where he used to reside, and Mrs. Baldwin Reid, a former school teacher. It will be of interest to the older Ivanhoe residents to know that Mr. Rose's mother, age 84, is enjoying good health.

Mrs. Ernest Burns of Sask. is visiting her brother, Mr. Reginald Haggerty and Mrs. Haggerty.

Miss Kathryn Duggan of Ottawa, spent the weekend with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Duggan.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Shaw. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw and Wayne spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Blake Ketcheson, Moira.

HALLOWAY

Mrs. Gerald Fredrick and family of Guelph are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bleecker.

We are pleased to report Mr. Don MacInnis has recovered from his recent illness and able to be out again.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Charles Prest is confined to her bed and all wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilson of Belleville called on Mrs. Spencer recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Irvine spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Irvine of Fuller.

Drunken Disturbance In Hospital Brings Fine

Owen Sound, June 9 (CP) —A drunken disturbance next door to a room in which a 16-year-old girl lay dying in hospital here Sunday night had its aftermath in police court when Victor Hinds was fined $40 and costs on two charges.

Hinds was convicted of having a bottle of liquor in a room in the hospital where William Holstock, whom he was visiting, is a patient. He pleaded guilty to a second charge of creating a disturbance.

A second man, Allan Jackson of Owen Sound, had his case adjourned a week. According to evidence both men and the patient were quite drunk, smashing drinking glasses, cursing and shouting.

Holstock's room was next to the room where June Rouse of Miller Lake died of burns the same night.

AGE PREVENTS SHAW

London, June 9 — (Reuters)— Moscow radio today quoted a message from George Bernard Shaw in which he said he is more interested in Russia than in "any other country in the world including my own."

The radio said the Irish playwright's message added that his 1931 visit to Moscow "has remained the most vivid of all my cherished memories."

The message was said to have been recieved by Georgei Zarubin, Soviet Ambassador in London. It was in reply to an invitation to attend the current celebration in Moscow on the 150 anniversary of the birth of Alexander Pushkin.

Shaw's reply said the invitation "was a great honor" but added that "my age makes it impossible for me to accept."

G.B.S. will be 93 July 26.

3-Year Course For Missionaries Being Considered

Kitchener, June 9 (CP) — A short course to train workers for mission fields in Canada is under consideration by the Presbyterian Church in Canada as a means of filling vacant pulpits.

The suggestion of a three-year course—theological studies usually run six or seven years—was put forward Wednesday at the church's 75th general assembly. It met objections and was referred to the presbyteries, the church's regional councils, for their consideration.

Earlier the assembly went on record as opposing appointment of a Canadian representative to the Vatican.

The shortage of trained workers for mission fields and for established congregations was described to the assembly in a report by the committee on recruiting for full-time service. The report called the situation "a real emergency."

The committee said upwards of 100 full-time workers are needed if every congregation which now has a vacancy is to have a settled pastorate. Fifty-six requests for ordained men have been made to the board of missions and another 50 self-supporting congregations have empty pulpits. In addition, the church has 23 active ministers who have reached retirement age.

Few Graduating

The church this year has 10 graduate students in theology and six graduates of the missionary and deaconess training schools available for service. Last year, 72 workers were appointed.

The committee said that upon completion of the proposed three-year course the status of home missionary would be awarded.

The Vatican representative resolution, read by Rev. Gordon A. Peddie of London, Ont., a committee chairman, said in part:

"Whereas, according to the standards of our church, there is no other head of the church but the Lord Jesus Christ, nor can the Pope of Rome in any sense be head thereof; therefore, for the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ and for the wellbeing of the nation, the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada humbly and respectfully request all political parties in our Dominion, and any government which may be in power, not to advocate or set up a Canadian embassage to the Vatican."

Seven Doctors Give Character Evidence in Trial

Kingston, June 9 — (CP)—Cpl. R. W. James of the Ontario Provincial Police was cross examined on the use of a "confidential informant" by Defence Attorney G. A. Martin Wednesday, as the trial of Dr. G. W. Blenkinsop, Kingston child specialist, entered its second day. Dr. Blenkinsop is on trial on five charges of selling drugs illegally.

The informant known as "Costello" took Constable Philip Isber to the doctor's home May 6. Constable Isber testified Tuesday that he represented himself to the doctor as a drug peddler and obtained a quantity of drugs from the doctor on three occasions.

Seven doctors called by the defence gave character evidence for Dr. Blenkinsop. They said he was highly esteemed in the profession for his honesty and competence.

Miss Beatrice Moreland, the doctor's nurse said she had not seen the bottle of cocaine on the table (which Isber testified the doctor had used) when she dusted it off in the morning of June 4. She also testified she had not left the office the afternoon on which R. C. M. P. officials testified Tuesday they saw her leave.

Liberals Returned In Nova Scotia, Carry 27 Seats

Progressive-Conservatives Elected in Eight Ridings

Halifax, June 10 — (CP)—Premier Angus L. Macdonald's Liberal government is back in power in Nova Scotia today with a substantial majority despite Progressive Conservative inroads.

The Progressive Conservatives will assume the role of official opposition in the next legislature, taking over from the C. C. F..

Standings

	1949	1945
Liberal	27	28
Prog. Conservative	8	0
CCF	2	2
Total	37	30

Thursday's provincial election was the fifth win in a row for the Liberals since 1933. Four times they were led by 59-year-old Mr. Macdonald. At the time of the other contest — during the war — he was Federal Navy Minister.

Mr. Macdonald won personal victory in Halifax South with a majority of 2,885 over his Progressive Conservative opponent.

Progressive Conservative leader Robert L. Stanfield, 35-year-old lawyer making his first stab at politics, was elected with his running - mate in the two - member seat of Colchester. He had a majority of 1,247 over his Liberal rival.

C. C. F. leader Russell Cunningham was returned in Cape Breton East with a majority of 714, about one third of his margin in the last election.

PC's Have Eight Members

The Progressive Conservatives rose from no representation in the last House to eight members in the new one by taking five seats from the Liberals and picking up three of the seven new seats — created by redistribution. The Liberals got four of the new seats and the C. C. F. strength remained the same.

In the seats they won, the Liberals had lower majorities in 15 compared to 1945 figures and higher in eight. The remaining four victories were in new seats and therefore there were no comparative figures.

The race for several seats was extremely close. Six were settled by majorities of less than 100 votes.

Mr. Macdonald's entire cabinet was returned with him.

The Progressive Conservatives scored all their victories in ridings bordering the Bay of Fundy — for the most part the province's apple belt. The Liberals counted best in the fishing areas — the south, east and north shores — and swept all five Halifax seats. The C. C. F. strength was confined to the coal and steel centres of Cape Breton.

Returns were complete for all but five ridings.

A total of 21 candidates — 16 C.C.F., four Progressive Conservatives and one Independent-Liberal — lost their $100 deposits for failing to poll half the winning candidate's total.

HOMICIDE SQUAD TAKES OVER HUNT FOR MISSING BOY

2,000 Volunteer Searchers End Official Quest for Michel Fontaine

Eastman, Que., June 10 — (CP) —Two thousand tired, disappointed volunteer searchers Thursday night ended the official hunt for six-year-old Michel Fontaine and Provincial Police took over, following reports the frail lad may have been murdered.

After hundreds of searchers had combed the Brome county uplands for 11 days, the 200-acre Fontaine farm was practically deserted today but Police Chief Edmond Rioux said the search would be resumed "strictly as a local affair."

"As far as I'm concerned," Chief Rioux said, "we are prepared to continue the search until the boy's body is found. We are not giving up."

The chief said a party of 25 or 30 men will go out today, starting from the spot where the boy disappeared.

He said two members of the Provincial Police visited the Fontaine farm this morning.

The suspicion that "something was wrong in the boy's disappearance" mounted Thursday as hundreds of farmers, sportsmen, soldiers and amateur hunters returned from patrols of this wild, heavily-wooded Eastern Townships region of Quebec.

Girl Secretary Knocked Down, Robbed of $1,458

Toronto, June 10 (CP)—Ida Pichineik, 24-year-old secretary of the Beaver Shirt Company, was knocked to the sidewalk, struck across the face and robbed of $1,458 while returning from the bank with the weekly payroll at noon hour today.

The girl, although dazed from the beating, noted the licence number of the car in which the bandit escaped with an accomplice.

She said she believes the two bandits followed her to the bank in downtown Toronto and waited until she came out. They trailed her about 50 yards and then one man jumped out and grabbed the envelope in which she had the money. She held on to the envelope and the man knocked her to the ground and punched her.

The bandits abandoned the car, owned by a car rental company, and got into another automobile.

Police are conducting a large-scale search throughout the city.

Police said they believe the robbery had been planned for weeks. The bandits apparently knew the time the weekly payroll was picked up at the bank and had evidently traced the route the girl took from the bank to her company.

American Soldier Convicted of Desertion

Frankfurt, Germany, June 10—(AP) — An American soldier who says he was held incommunicado for six months by Czech police was convicted of desertion by a United States army court martial Thursday, the army newspaper Stars and Stripes reported.

The paper identified him as Arthur W. Short, 28. It said the court martial sentenced him to one year's confinement and a dishonorable discharge.

MOTHER AND SON BEATEN TO DEATH WITH BALL BAT

Philadelphia Truck Driver Admits Crime

Philadelphia, June 10 — (AP) —A divorcee and her nine-year-old son were beaten to death with a baseball bat in their downtown Philadelphia apartment.

Shortly after the mother died today, Capt. James Kelly of the homicide squad announced police are holding a 29-year-old truck driver who he said admitted the slayings.

Kelly said the truck driver, Robert Gemberling, told him he killed the two for revenge. Later he refused to sign a statement but was ordered held without bail for coroner's action on a homicide charge.

The attack took place Thursday night. Nine-year-old Michael Lubowski was dead when authorities entered the gas-filled apartment. His mother, Mrs. Jean Mills, who had assumed her maiden name, died this morning.

The police captain said that Gemberling related he intended to kill his own wife and son because she had threatened to leave him, but that after he drank a large quantity of whisky, he decided to attack Mrs. Mills and her son.

Kelly said Gemberling gave these reasons for the attack:

He blamed Mrs. Mills for trying to break up his home by telling his wife he had been "running around."

He held Mrs. Mills responsible for giving information that resulted in the jailing of his brother, Jonathan, as a parole violator.

Mrs. Mills was nude when police found her. Her underclothes lay scattered over the radiator. The body of her son was beside her on a bed.

The baseball bat used in the beatings belonged to the nine-year-old boy. Kelly said the assailant crept into their third-floor apartment when the two were asleep.

Gemberling said, Kelly related, that he turned on three gas jets to make sure that the two would die. The coroner's office reported, however, the deaths were caused by the beating.

25,000-Year--Old Mastodon's Tusk Found in Wis.

Milwaukee, June 10 (AP) — A mastodon's tusk seven feet long and 25,000 years old has been found in Washesha county, a public museum official said Thursday night.

It was found by a boy while plowing a field last Sunday. Museum experts have brought it to Milwaukee for study and plan to return to the farm to seek more relics.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, June 10 (CP)— Synopsis: This morning weather map still gives no indication of rain today or Saturday in Ontario. Some cloudiness is present in eastern and northern regions, but this is expected to clear today. Clear and warm is the forecast for all regions Saturday.

Man Must Face Charge of Murder Despite Story of Sorrow and Tears

Detroit, June 10 (AP)— The State of Michigan today was prepared to bring Eugene Braunsdorf to the bar of justice on a charge of murder despite the story of sorrow and tears that lies behind the stern court formalities.

Last May 31, the warrant alleges, Braunsdorf deliberately shot his daughter, Virginia, 25, to death.

The background, as police recite it:

Braunsdorf, 51, has played the bass viol in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for 20 years. Friends knew him as a gentle-mannered man.

For al of her 25 years Virginia had been a cripple. It was hopeless, doctors said.

Recently, there have been financial problems for the symphony.

Braunsdorf brooded.

"I was getting old and the future did not look bright," he said. "I couldn't bear the thought of dying and leaving Virginia alone, helpless and without money."

On the morning of May 21 police found the musician critically wounded in his parked car and Virginia dead beside him.

They said he shot Virginia and turned the gun on himself.

When Braunsdorf recovers possibly within a fortnight, he'll be brought to court.

Prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien got the formal warrant against Braunsdorf Thursday. He said he had no other course.

The case, he said, is "one of those real tragedies."

"But it is not up to the individual to decide who is suppose to live and who is to die."

'I'm Probably More Cheerful' Says Defence Minister After Tour to Hong Kong

Singapore, June 10 — (Reuters) — Defence Minister A. V. Alexander of Britain, calling here on his way home after a rapid tour through Southeast Asia to Hong Kong, said today he was "no less cheerful about the position" than when he arrived.

He added: "I am probably more cheerful."

Declining to amplify these remarks, he said he would be reporting his "own ideas" to the government.

Asked whether he thought Hong Kong could be defended against frontal attack, Alexander said: "Hong Kong is not in the position it was in 1941. Circumstances are entirely different."

"We will resolutely guard this territory for which we are responsible," he added.

Alexander said he now is less anxious about Hong Kong's internal security but he added: "No defence minister ever will be satisfied that internal security does not require improvement."

Canberra — (Reuters)—Prime Minister Joseph Chifley announced today Australia has agreed to release the 27,288-ton liner Georgic, now being used for carrying immigrants, to transport troops from Britain to Hong Kong.

Camillien Houde Enters Campaign As Independent

Montreal, June 10 — (CP) — Mayor Camillien Houde, veteran of a stormy and colorful career in provincial and civic politics, Thursday night entered the federal political fight as an Independent in Montreal Papineau constituency.

Announcing his candidacy, Mayor Houde predicted he was "a cinch to win" the newly - created riding of Papineau in the June 27 election. He was twice defeated as a federal candidate.

One of the most outstanding of Mayor Houde's many political achievements was his election in December, 1944 for his fifth term as mayor of Montreal after spending four years in wartime internment.

He was interned Aug. 6, 1940, for asking the people not to conform with the National Registration law.

Mr. Houde, now a rotund 59, starting as an orphan butcher boy, entered politics in 1923 when he won the Montreal - St. Mary riding in the Quebec Provincial House. A Conservative, he won in a constituency that had been Liberal for 27 years.

He lost the seat in 1927, and entered Montreal municipal politics in April, 1928, when he was elected mayor.

Prime Minister Pleased With N.S. Election

Quebec, June 10 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday he thought the Liberal election victory in Nova Scotia, following a Liberal victory in Newfoundland provincial elections, indicated "what may be expected in the Federal election, June 27."

Mr. St. Laurent, his own election campaigning interrupted temporarily by a laryngitis attack, issued the following statement from his home here:

"As leader of the Liberal party I have naturally been greatly pleased by the election results in Nova Scotia. They are in line with the advance information our friends had given me when I was there three weeks ago.

"Following the similar results in Newfoundland, they can, I think, be taken as an indication of what may be expected in the Federal election, June 27."

Robin Slaughterer Given Term in Jail

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 10 —(AP)—The question "Who killed Cock Robin?" has been answered.

Adolphus Kirk, 36, of Fayette-Adolphus Kirk, 36, of Falette-ville, Tenn.

Judge Darr Thursday sentenced Kirk, under the Migratory Bird Act, to 30 days for "thrashing robins." The government accused Kirk of blinding droves of robins in trees after dark and killing them with stricks.

Kirk also was sentenced to an additional year and a day—for attacking the game warden who arrested him.

Noose-Cheater Hears His Doom For Fourth Time

Tacoma, Wash, June 10. (AP) —Noose-cheating Jake Bird, often doomed but never hanged, heard his death sentence for the fourth time Thursday.

In a brief court session, the talkative Negro was cut short by Superior Judge Hugh Rosellini before he could start his customary courtroom oration. He was sentenced to be hanged July 13.

Since his conviction for slaying Mrs. Bertha Kludt, Oct. 30, 1947, the 48-year-old transient has heard his death sentence pronounced three times, but each time won a stay of execution.

Bird's various appeals and drawn-out legal manoeuvres have taken him into 14 courtrooms and sent his case twice to the United States Supreme Court.

He has admitted complicity in 44 killings throughout the country. Bird brought out his famous "hex" again Thursday in a brief verbal exchange with James Faber, Tacoma News Tribune reporter. Angered by a remark of Faber's, Bird told the reporter he was not long for this world.

Six persons on whom Bird has pronounced the "hex" have died.

His Excellency Recalls Boyhood Days in Ireland

Ottawa, June 10 (CP)—Viscount Alexander Thursday recalled his boyhood days in Ireland when he spoke to students and guests attending the closing ceremonies at Ashbury College, an Ottawa boys' school.

The Governor-General told the group that when he was a boy he lived in Ireland with three brothers.

"We were left pretty much alone to amuse ourselves as best we could and we had a glorious time doing just that," he said. "They were the best times we ever had."

"We had no Dick Tracy, no Little Abner and no Alley Opp and no dances," he said to the amusement of the young audience, which included his own nine-year-old son, Brian.

"To amuse ourselves, we made our own fun," he explained. "We built log cabins in the woods—well fortified to ward off attacks by imaginary Indians—we fished with rods we made ourselves."

PLANE DEAL COMPLETED

Toronto, June 10 — (CP)—Negotiations between the Dehavilland Aircraft Co., in England, and the Royal Egyptian Air Force for the sale of 24 Chipmunk training planes, have been completed, it was announced today. The planes, costing $500,000 will be built at the Dehavilland plant at Downsview, near Toronto, under a sub-contract. Engines and propellors will come from Britain.

The order is the second largest ever received by the company for the modern trainer.

SAVED FROM DEATH

Toronto, June 10 (CP)—A 72-year-old housekeeper, Mrs. Mary Morton, was saved from death in her home early today when a roomer beat out her flaming night clothes with his hands.

Hospital officials said she is "in extremely critical condition" and there is little hope of recovery.

It is believed she awakened early this morning and lit a match to look at her watch. The match fell on the bedclothes and set them on fire.

MINISTERS SEEK SOME ACCORDS OUT OF PARLEY

Vishinsky Accepts American Request

Paris, June 10 (AP)—The foreign ministers of the east and west sought today to salvage some accords from the debris of differences accumulated over discussion of Germany's future.

Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia Thursday accepted an American request that the east-west trade and traffic talks in Berlin be ended by Monday.

The western powers previously had told Russia they were tired of jockeying in the foreign ministers' council and wanted to get results. If the Berlin talks do not produce an agreement by Monday the Big Four foreign ministers will step in.

The current Berlin negotiations for an east-west trade and traffic agreement are being stymied by the rail strike. Britain, the United States and France have told Russia that no accord is possible as long as the Berlin rail strike continues.

Unless the strikers return to work within the next 24 or 48 hours, the Berlin negotiations will have to report to the foreign ministers Monday that they have failed to agree.

Meanwhile the problem of concluding peace treaties with Germany and Austria is up in the air.

Western officials have said the ministers may propose the formation of a four-power commission to continue studying German peace treaty prospects if the present Paris conference breaks up without any positive agreements.

It is believed that Russia and the west are not far apart on the issues holding up an Austrian independence treaty. But neither side is keen on concluding an Austrian treaty and withdrawing occupation troops while neighboring Germany is so unsettled.

Nova Scotians Polled Largest Vote in 21 Years

Halifax, June 10 — (CP) — Nova Scotians polled their largest vote in 21 years in Thursday's provincial election — and gave more than half the vote to the victorious Liberals.

Progressive Conservative candidates polled 40 per cent of the total vote to elect eight of the legislature's 37 members. In the 1945 provincial election, P. C. candidates polled 33 per cent but none was elected.

The C.C.F. popular vote, which elected the same two members as in the 30-seat last house, dropped to 9.5 per cent from 14 in 1945.

Liberal votes, higher than in the last election, dropped from 53 to 50.5 per cent as the party elected 27 members, one less than in 1945

Liberals and Progressive Conservatives entered candidates for every seat and C.C.F. for 21.

Masqueraded as Girl Fire-Eater, Sentenced for Four-Year Desertion

Burtonwood, England, June 10 (AP)—A United States Air Force court martial today convicted Delbert E. Hill of desertion for his four-year absence as "Donna Delbert," girl fire-eater of the English music hall stage.

Hill, who told the court he left the Air Force just after being assigned to duty as a latrine orderly following Japan's surrender in 1945, was sentenced to serve two years at hard labor. He also was ordered given a bad conduct discharge. The airman, a 35-year-old Philadelphian, denied he was a deserter.

He said he always intended to come back to the air force, was merely absent without leave, and pleaded innocent to a charge of deserting in 1945 "to avoid hazardous duty."

Prosecutor, Captain George E. Koontz, opened his case by introducing in evidence the clothes he said Hill was wearing when he was arrested at Newcastle last April 6. They were women's slacks, a light blouse and a pair of pink cotton panties.

Hill, in a shoulder length hairdo and plucked eyebrows, had been appearing in a Newcastle theatre as "Donna Delbert, Demon Fire-Eater."

Hill told reporters he planned eventually to return to the stage in the United States, where he performed as a magician and fire-eater with the Hagenbeck Wallace Circus beginning in 1935 He said he often appeared in the circus as a female impersonator. Hill said he was arrested because "a woman turned me in."

"She was a girl from London who had taken a fancy to me," he said. "When I took a fancy to someone else she went to the police."

Captain Koontz questioned Newcastle police officer J. Hall, who arrested Hill, about rubber bust pads he said Hill used in his female impersonation.

The questioning was halted by a member of the court martial. "We do not need to go into this matter here," he said.

Animals Trapped In Racing Stable At Fairgrounds

Two Horses on Track at Time And Four Others Were Saved

Kingston, June 10. (CP) — Flames swiftly sweeping through the racing stable at the Kingston fairgrounds about 8.30 Thursday night trapped seven harness racing horses, said to be worth at least $5,000.

The stable itself, owned by the corporation of the city of Kingston, and about $2,500 worth of racing vehicles and equipment were also destroyed. Horses and racing equipment were not insured. Some insurance was carried on the stable. Two horses on the track when the fire broke out and four others were saved.

Firemen battled the blaze in the hay and straw filled building for an hour and a half before it was brought undercontrol. Last fire truck left the scene at 3.17 this morning. Hundreds of citizens watched the fire for hours.

The blaze was thought to have begun in the overhead wiring in the loft. An eyewitness account describes a "ball of flame about two feet in diameter" shooting through the loft, quickly igniting the hay stored there and the dry timbers of the barn.

Horses which perished were, Oxford Lad, and Dena Reaper, owned by Burns McKane, Kingston; Capt. Lee, owned by George Murphy, Kingston; Admiral Lee, owned by Johnson Holmes, Kingston; Alfie Lee, owned by Stedman Craig, Kingston; Gay Regent, owned by Edward Birtch, Smiths Falls and Prince All Strange, owned by Cecil Hutchison, Kingston.

Gem Baldwin and Mike Dolan, owned by Albert Watts, Kingston, were led to safety by their Trainer E. Steen. Harvester Express was saved by his owner, Cecil Carleton. Ross Dupre led his chestnut mare, Belle All Strange to safety. Arion Strange and a colt, property of Lloyd Hess, were on the track when the blaze started. All owners lost most of their racing equipment.

Danny Kaye Says "It's a Lie"

Glasgow, June 10 (AP)—"It's a lie", fumed Danny Kaye today.

The American comedian was commenting on a report of the California State Senate Committee on un-American activities which listed Kaye among Hollywood personages who, it said have, "followed or approved some of the Communist party line program over a long period of time."

"Not only have I never been a Communist, Communist appeaser or sympathizer, but I am in direct opposition to the policy of the Communist party.

"Anybody who has given any committee or person any information to the contrary is an unmitigated liar," said Kaye.

Kaye is making a personal appearance tour in Britain.

NO FUEL OIL WOES EXPECTED FOR CANADIANS

Shortage Which Hit Peak in 1947-48 Definitely Finished

Ottawa, June 10 (CP) — The heat will be on in Canada's oil-burning homes this winter

A trade department spokesman says the fuel-oil shortage which hit its peak in the winter of 1947-48 is definitely finished.

Only with a war or such other national emergency, said the spokesman, could the Dominion's plentiful supply of fuel oil turn into a scarcity.

Change in fuel-oil supply has been gradual. It has come about not so much because of the discovery of new oil fields in Alberta, but because of a two-year steel shortage tank program started back in 1946 when both steel and oil were in short supply.

Because of a lack of storage tanks, a sufficient supply of oil couldn't be brought into the large urban areas by ship and rail during the shipping season to meet the needs of the forthcoming winter.

Gradually as more steel was allocated for storage tank production, the fuel-oil supply became easier. But even in February last year the department was juggling supplies, pushing them around to different parts of the country to meet demands.

By the end of the year, however, storage capacity was beginning to meet the production rate —and that, too, was increasing.

In December, 1948, Canada produced 13,285,282 barrels of light fuel oil, compared with 13,827,337 barrels in 1947; 3,256,342 barrels of kerosene and stove oil, compared with 3,024,109; 19,841,026 barrels of heavy fuel oil for industrial use, compared with 16,129,080.

SEALS OWN FATE

Toronto, June 10 (CP)—A suspected burglar last night sealed his own fate by leaping from a first-floor window of suburban York Township home and breaking his ankle.

George Wilson, 45, was removed to hospital and charged with breaking into the home of Mrs. Florence Shilling. He also suffered a bad head cut.

Mrs. Shilling said she noticed a light on in her home when she was returning home and when she entered the man jumped out the window.

KIWANIANS HOLD TAG DAY SATURDAY

In order to further their welfare work the Kiwanis Club are holding their Tag Day on Saturday. The women's auxiliary of the club will play a prominent part in helping to organize and tag but the male members of the club will be out all day. The money derived from the tag day will be used to help some underprivileged child enjoy a few days at camp or give him a chance to work at his favorite hobby when the hobbycraft classes open in the fall at the Kiwanis Centre. The generosity of the citizens is the only way a service club can function and it is to be hoped that the residents will help the club in the fine work they are doing among the boys and girls of the city.

PLAY ALL GAMES AT ALEMITE FIELD

Bill Dennis, convener of the Commercial Softball League, has announced that from now on all league games will be played at the Alemite Field. The game previously scheduled for Wednesday evening at the East Hill playground will be played as the first game of a Friday night double-header. No games will be played on Wednesday.

The new schedule will be published in this paper as soon as it is available.

COUNTY COUNCIL TO MEET TUESDAY

With important business including equalization of assessment, striking of the tax rate and other items on the agenda, Hastings County Council will go into its annual June four-day session in Shire Hall starting Tuesday of next week.

PARK PROPOSED FOR N. FRONT ST.

If plans of the committee materialize there will be a playground for children in the North Front Street district. On Thursday evening more than 20 residents of the area met at the home of Miss Margaret Mason with Arthur Keegan and H. N. Becker of the Parks Board in attendance. The commissioners promised that the Parks Board would offer every assistance in the forming of the playground by supplying swings, sand boxes and other equipment. Two locations were considered and the work will be proceeded with as soon as arrangements can be made.

MOTORCYCLE CLUB HOLDS WIENER ROAST

The Quinte Motorcycle Club celebrated its second birthday June 7 at a wiener roast held at Club Cedars. Forty members and friends attended the party.

James Rapino, secretary of the club, cut the birthday cake, which was decorated with the crest of the club.

Wm. Mattis, Wife Injured as Tire Blows Out

Bancroft (Special)——On their way to Coe Hill to attend a funeral when a rear tire blew out throwing the car into the ditch, Mr. and Mrs. William Mattis, 13 Grove Street, Belleville, were injured Thursday morning.

The injured persons were taken to Bancroft hospital where they were treated by Dr. O. W. Anderson. Mr. Mattis suffered a broken shoulder and was transferred to Belleville hospital, while his wife suffered bruises and shock.

Other persons in the car, George Imback, 13 Grove Street, Mrs. Nellie Ruckstuhl of Trenton, and Harry Butcher of Belleville were uninjured.

The accident occurred three miles south of Steenburg shortly before noon on Thursday, the car going into a five-foot ditch when the rear tire blew out. The accident was investigated by O.P.P. William Fitzsimmons and John Hawkins of Bancroft.

Camp Director For Moira Lake Is Appointed

Frankish R. Styles, B.A., B. Pd., A.T.C.M., has been appointed director of the Moira Lake Camp for boys and girls according to an announcement made today by N. A. Beach, Chairman of the Camp Committee. The camp, located on Moira Lake near Madoc, was founded by the Rotary Club of Belleville and is operated by the Belleville Y.M.C.A. Other members of the Camp Committee appointed by the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. are Mrs. A. McLean Haig, Stanley D. Hagerman, Don G. Williams, G. Spence Wonnacott, Richard W. Hart, Arthur L. Hill and Alfred J. Davis.

Mr. Styles who is visiting the city and camp this weekend and interviewing prospective staff and counsellors, meeting parents of campers and generally inspecting and advising on plans for the camp for this year is a member of the faculty of the Lawrence Park Collegiate Institute, Toronto. In addition to his teaching duties he directs a 70-piece symphony orchestra and himself frequently appears on the concert stage in piano recitals.

Closely Associated With "Y"

Through the years he has been closely associated with Y.M.C.A. work, camping and recreation. He recently conducted the combined orchestras of Toronto Community Centres at the Varsity Arena and also conducted at the final concert in the Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto's Massey Hall.

Mr. Styles has been a member of the Y.M.C.A. camp staffs at London, Kingston, Toronto and Ottawa as well as at the Department of Education, Council Training Camp, Lake Couchiching, Ontario. He also spent a year at Albert College.

Mrs. Styles, a registered nurse with years of camping experience will also be in attendance at the Moira Lake camp.

Another announcement made by the Camp Committee is to the effect that J. Douglas Eaton, director of physical education at the Y.M.C.A., will return to the camp to be in charge of the waterfront and sports program.

Assisting these directors will be a trained staff of counsellors and instructors which should insure every need of the campers being met.

The dates for this year's camp have been announced. The boys' camp will be conducted July 2nd to July 30th. The girls' camp will operate from July 30th. to August 13th. Immediate registration is suggested. Application forms and folders are available at the Y.M.C.A. The committee realizes that a full period of camping is the most desirable outgrowth of good camping experience and has designated that in the selection of campers preference be given to those who register for the full period. The minimum age for acceptance is 10 years.

OBITUARY

MRS. SUSANNAH EVES

Mrs. Susannah Eves, widow of Charles T. Eves, died at her home, 9 Ridley Street, late Thursday afternoon, after an illness of four months' duration.

Born in England the late Mrs. Eves was in her 87th. year and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Smith. The earlier years of her life were spent in Kent, England, and in 1910 she came to this city to reside. She was a member of the Church of England and a parishioner of Christ Church.

Surviving her are four sons, Alfred in England; William and Harry of Belleville, and Albert of Corbyville; two daughters, Mrs. John Noakes, Belleville, and Mrs. Fred Clarke, Point Anne; one sister, Mrs. George Charters, England; ten grandchildren and 3 great grandchildren.

Resting at the Grant Funeral Home, 68 North Front Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MISS MARGARET E. MOULT
(Tyendinaga Township)

The funeral of Miss Margaret Eliza Moult was held from her late residence on the 6th. concession of Tyendinaga township, on Thursday afternoon. The service there and at Victoria Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. A. C. Campbell of Plainfield United Church, assisted by the Rev. John Glover of the United Church at Elgin.

The bearers were Russell Glass, Orley Parks, Harold Skelly, Edward Shannon, Arthur Shannon and Wilbur Sherry.

Summer Program Arranged by Athletic Group

Marmora.—Under the sponsorship of the Athletic Committee of the Marmora and District Memorial Centre Commission a meeting was held in the Legion room of the Marmora Hall on Tuesday evening under chairmanship of Rev. G. D. Young for the discussion of a complete Summer program of recreation.

The chairman called upon Earl Webster, district representative in charge of community programs for the Ontario Department of Education, who outlined the development of recreation programs in Ontario. The speaker, who had made a tour of the village previous to the meeting, spoke of its natural advantages. He said that his department had supported a variety of operations in the various communities which it had reached out to. It did not insist on standards, but it aided the people in each community to work for a local level. The plan was to set up a local committee, supported by a by-law to be responsible to the village council.

He cited various instances where such committees were operating successfully. Te department does not supervise the programs that have been set up. He mentioned that his own visits to municipalities had to be infrequent since there are about 200 for him to cover. He explained that the word "Recreation" meant a full range of leisure time activities. The department attempted to set up leadership training and stimulation courses.

Answering questions from his audience. Mr. Webster said there were 30 or 40 projects in Eastern Ontario on instructional lines. He also gave infomation regarding the special training of supervisors.

At the close of the meeting a motion was carried appointing Reeve W. M. Lynch, A. F. Fraser and Rev. G. D. Young, as a committee to look into the possibilities of forming a program committee on the lines established by the department of Education, so that the advantages offered might become available.

Contract for Sewers, Oiling Awarded but New Tenders Being Called for Sidewalks

Contracts for the construction of sanitary sewers in the county home housing sub-division north of No. 2 highway was provisionally awarded to the Port Hope Construction Company at a special meeting of council held Thursday evening.

Five tenders received for the project will be forwarded to Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers with the recommendation that the Port Hope Construction Company tender be accepted if approved by the engineering firm. Price of the contract was $27,213.35, it being the lowest tender.

In order that there be no delay in getting the work underway the engineering firm was authorized to complete the contract with the construction firm.

Mayor D. L. Storey noted that word had been received from The Tatham Company Ltd., that they would be ready to proceed with construction of homes in the subdivision as soon as arrangements for sewers were underway, while confirmation of the purchase of lots by the Mayer Construction Company was also received.

Street Oiling Let

The McFarland Construction Company of Picton was awarded the contract of street oiling, the tender from this firm being the lowest of the three received. Unit price for a gravel top would be $15,580 or $18,380 for trap rock.

Lightfoot Brothers were awarded the contract for construction of the Sidney Street sewer at $3,589.50.

When only one tender was received for the construction of new sidewalks in Parkwood Heights and in Churchill Heights sub-divisions, council decided to build no walks in the two new housing areas this year, but instead to provide oiled streets as soon as possible.

Wait For Settlement

Residents of the two areas had petitioned for sidewalks to be laid as soon as possible but owing to the danger of settlement in the heavy fill in the area it was decided to wait until another year.

It was considered quite possible that the requirement of guaranteeing sidewalks for 12 months had been mainly responsible for only one tender being submitted. Contractors, it appeared, did not care to take the risk of fill in the two areas settling and causing cracks in the concrete walks.

From a cost standpoint it was felt by council that it would be to the financial advantage to wait until next year before laying walks in the two areas.

City Engineer Charles Mott recommended instead that streets in the areas be oiled as soon as possible.

Call New Tenders

Tenders will again be called for the construction of concrete sidewalks in areas not in the new sub-divisions.

Mace Rigby was awarded the contract for the supply of grading of 5,000 yards of additional fill for the Churchill Heights area.

The only other business conducted at the special meeting of council was the passing of a recommendation for the repair of catch basins on Queen Street as quickly as possible. It was stated that as result excavation work sand was getting into the catch basins and would have to be removed.

Inspector Hayes Tells of Work Of Police Dept.

Inspector J. Clair Hayes, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Y' Men's Club held in the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday night. Taking as his subject, 'Law Enforcement as a Profession,' outlined the innumerable duties the police department were called upon to perform, all of which must be discharged with courtesy and without favor, even though accompanied by great risk. He outlined and gave credit to the local force which it was seen was growing to keep peace with the city's growth.

Carelessness on the part of citizens and also neglect and lack of co-operation caused unnecessary problems which if understood and appreciated by the public would lead to more efficiency by enabling the force to concentrate on the urgent matters confronting them.

Detection of crime by finger printing was a most interesting aspect of the work described by Inspector Hayes. The ability of the force in co-operation with the department at Ottawa to track down criminals is deserving of the greatest praise.

The speaker was introduced by the General Secretary and Y's Man Alfred J. Davis and thanked by Austin Watkin. Hugh Watson was Sergeant-at-Arms and Vern Weir led in the singing.

At the executive meeting of the club to be held on Monday June 13th. teen-age work and support of the camp and other Y.M.C.A. projects will be considered. The chairman of the meeting was president, Gerald B. Hyde, who it was announced will be attending the Y's Men's International convention at Minneapolis along with Y's Man Austin Watkin.

Waterfront Shows Signs of Life As Summer Nears

The Belleville waterfront has been showing real signs of life recently. Boats are being lowered from their berths into the water, engine repairs being made, boat houses being repaired and last but not least the bathing suits are coming out of the mothballs.

About 25 boats are now anchored in the waters between South Front St. and Victoria Park and every day there are more of them moving out of boathouses, most of them with a new look. Owners of these crafts have been hard at work unseen by the public eye for the past few weeks sanding the boats, applying fresh coats of varnish, tuning up the motors and giving them a general overhauling.

Boathouses, too, have also been given a new look after the beating taken by them through the long winter months. Coat after coat of paint is being applied to these dried and cracked boards.

It will not be long before the rental boathouses will hit their peak either. For over a month now all kinds of small craft have been used by early fishermen and pleasure seekers.

During the past week bathing suits have been taken out of mothballs for the next two or three months. Every afternoon about four o'clock, as soon as school is out, Victoria Park becomes overrun with energetic youngsters who do not like to wait for the summer months to do their swimming. In a short time, with most of the schools closed for the summer, the park will be busier than a bee hive.

Male Quartet Will Give Program Here

The Houghton College Male Quartet will be featured in a service at the Wesleyan Methodist Church on Everett Street, next Tuesday. Professor James Harr, first tenor for the quartet and instructor in English at Houghton College will be the faculty representative He will be speaking on the proposed college dormitory for women and showing pictures of campus life.

The quartet is on an extensive tour of the Canada and Champlain Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist Church from June 14 to August 28 and is scheduled to conduct services in about 50 churches and camps.

Houghton College is a liberal arts college situated in the Genesee Valley in Western New York State. A college of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, it ministers to students of almost 50 denominations representing many states and several foreign countries.

Ross Green Named To Tennis Executive

Ross Green, Holloway Street Tennis Club, was elected to fill the vacancy on the Bay of Quinte Tennis League executive caused by the resignation of Vic Lancaster, who has been transferred to Toronto, at a general meeting of the league held last night. President Les Higby was in the chair.

The meeting reviewed the season's activities thus far and reports revealed a satisfactory state of affairs.

Owing to the fact that the Quinte Tennis Club is holding a tournament on July 10th, certain revisions were made to the general schedule. These are, July 10, Point Anne vs. Trenton instead of Point Anne vs. Quinte No. 1 and July 17th, Point Anne vs. Quinte 2 instead of Point Anne at Trenton.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 10. (CP)— An easier trend developed as the session progressed here today. A wide list of industrials slipped quietly from early firmness and base metals sagged. Gold issues that were well up Thursday had trouble holding their gains as slight selling pressure entered.

Activating was generally centred in the industrial list where a wide list of issues showed losses ranging up to more than a full point. Several issues sold down to new lows. International Paper led a weak paper list lower and early advances in refining oils and utilities were pared. Steel slipped downwards.

Base metals opened stronger but began to fade in mid-session. Consolidated Smelters was ahead $1 at the opening but soon lost the advantage. Quemont, International Nickel, East Sullivan and Normetal were among the losers.

McIntyre and Kerr Addison eased fractions in senior golds while junior producers showed losses ranging up to 25 cents. The group was strong yesterday but realizing sales cut into the better gainers.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, June 10 (CP)—Produce prices quoted on the spot market here today follow: Churning cream, No. 1, 58 cents fob, 62 delivered.

Butter prints unquoted.

The egg market was firm today on good demand at advanced prices. Country shipper's quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large 54, A medium 52, A pullet 45; grade B 41-42, grade C 37-38. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 57-58, A medium 55-56, A pullet 52; Grade B 47, grade C 42.

Butter solids: First grade tenderable solids 58; other first grades 56 1-4.

HOGS

Toronto, June 10 (CP) — Hog prices at Stratford today were: Grade A $33.60 from farmers and $33.75 from truckers. At Hull dressed grade A hogs were $34.75 delivered.

Young Fruit Trees Reported Dying In Hamilton Area

Hamilton, June 10 (CP)—Young fruit trees are dying, the strawberry crop is almost "washed out," hay crops are cut to well under 50 per cent of normal, tomatoes, peas, potatoes and all other crops are seriously affected, and many district wells are going dry as a result of long-continued lack of rain in this area.

With no immediate relief in sight, and the weatherman forecasting clear and warmer weather for the Lower Lakes area, fruit growers and farmers are worried. Municipal water systems throughout the affected areas are pumping at full capacity and water demand is becoming greater every day, as every available tank truck hauls water to the surrounding rural areas to re-fill empty cisterns and even wells.

The sweet cherry crop is now not expected to exceed 50 per cent of normal although early predictions were for a bumper crop. Young peach and cherry trees, not yet deeply rooted, are dying out, and even some of the older trees are beginning to be affected.

The Department of Highways reports that maintenance of gravel roads is becoming difficult. "They are so dry," an official said, "that holes develop very quickly and it is hard for the graders to keep the roads in shape."

No Relief in Sight

Toronto, June 10 (CP)—Showers are falling in some areas of Northern Ontario but, in southern sections of the province, no relief is in sight from the worst drought in years. The forecast for the Lower Lakes region is clear and a little warmer.

The dry spell which has virtually stopped growth in fields and gardens during the last two weeks is making its effects felt in other ways. Applications for extra farm labor are being cancelled in the Kitchener area, where farmers say their hay crop may be so scant that it will hardly be worthwhile cutting.

Farmers are worrying about next winter's stock feed supply. Hay and pasture fields have almost stopped growing. Milk production is reported dropping.

By the calendar, this is strawberry shortcake season. But growers say the berries on sale in Toronto and other cities this week may be the last for this year unless rain comes soon.

Cool weather, accompanying the dry spell, is said to be setting back field crops, especially corn and soybeans.

Frost killed flue-cured tobacco crops near St. Thomas this week and set growers scouring the district for seedlings to replant their fields.

In the rich agricultural areas of Essex county in southwestern Ontario, farmers startd to pump water out of streams and lakes and onto the parched soil in an attempt to save their crops.

Collection of Wartime Periodicals Reveals Drama, Humor of Soldiers

London, June 10 — (CP) — A collection that will reveal the drama, humor and boredom of soldiers in wartime is being organized at the Imperial War Museum in Lambeth.

It is a collection of newspapers, magazines and wallpapers produced by soldiers all over the world in both world wars—the only collection of its kind.

Among the many thousands already collected are hand-written news-sheets produced daily in German prisoner-of-war camps, newspapers published by troops abroad, and others distributed among members of the French resistance movement.

Some ran for only two or three editions. One, the Spitsbergen Polar Post, came out only once. Typewritten on one side of a foolscap sheet, it was published by Canadian troops who invaded Spitsbergen in September, 1941.

Although they were only there for a few days the Canadians managed to give news from all over the world, picked up from the BBC.

The last item on the sheet was "All English pubs are completely out of beer and are now serving cold tea."

Most prisoner-of-war camps had their own news sheets some even hand-written. A sapper, moving from camp to camp for five years, wrote a newspaper everywhere he went. It started in Stalag VIIA as "The Daily Louse, net sale nil, circulation 1, proprietor, editor and reporter, Sapper Vic Crozford." but the effort proved so exhausting the paper was converted into a weekly.

Bag Happy, the magazine of Oflag 79, was a well-produced colored publication. Only one copy of each edition was produced, however, and it got dog-eared beyond recognition as it was passed from hand to hand.

Although librarian L. Yates-Smith started the collection some while ago, there are many gaps still to fill. A few days ago someone sent the only three editions of Tankbuster, the organ of the 10th Anti-Tank Regiment.

London Letter:

Whitechapel Pictures and Exhibits Depict East London's History

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 10 — (CP) — East London's history, from the first Roman soldier to the 20th-century costermonger, is told in the "East End Story," an exhibition presented by Whitechapel Art Gallery.

Through a collection of exhibits and pictures loaned by five borough libraries, Roman Soldiers, Huguenot weavers, street hawkers, grave snatchers, merchants, shipbuilders and murderers jostle each other along a grim but romantic road to present times.

Seventeenth - century street criers in Tempest's colorful prints sell their socks and onions. An unfaded piece of brocaded silk, brought to London by 17th - century refugees, and a snipping from the Coronation robe of King Edward VII tell the story of the Spitalfields silk industry, started by the Huguenots and still carried on today.

A grim reminder of the days before anaesthetics is an operating table from the London hospital — and with it a heavy iron bell that was rung to call all able - bodied men to hold the patient down.

Lent by the Jewish community of East London is a faded petition once sent to Oliver Cromwell asking him to allow the Jews to settle in England.

Evidence of days when the East End was a residential district for rich and fashionable people is contained in the carefully - scripted letters of a Mrs. Mary Young. In one of them dated 1823 she tells of spending £9 at the butchers for one order of meat.

Early struggles of British trade unionists are depicted in a display of strike posters preserved from a number of industrial strikes at the close of the 19th century. Typical of these is a large black - lettered notice topped with the words "Hear Ye, Hear Ye."

One odd fact revealed by the exhibition is that bricks from the Hackney, East London, brickyards went to the re - building of Moscow after it had been destroyed in the Napoleonic wars.

One of the earliest oil paintings on view shows an armed Roman soldier, wearing the homeless look common to all occupying troops, looking down on a flotilla of ships gliding up the Thames.

Air Force Day Program Leaflets Dropped by Plane

Trenton Air Station is going all out, as are many others across Canada, for Air Force Day tomorrow. Early this afternoon leaflets were dropped from an aeroplane flying over the city.

Many features are being offered at this display tomorrow, including free rides in an R.C.A.F. speed launch, free movies, and free rides in a Link trainer. A drill display by the boy cadets and girl cadets of Trenton High School will be presented along with formation flying of Vampire Jet planes, model competition and display, fire fighting display and parachute dropping. The program opens at 1.30 p.m. and concludes at 5.

The presentation will be in charge of Group-Captain A. Lewis, A.F.C.; and Group-Captain S. A. Greene, M.B.E.

PROBE WOUNDING OF MAN

Montreal, June 10 — (CP)—Provincial police reported today they are investigating the wounding of a man, identified only as Villeneuve, in the backwoods country 40 miles north of the Ottawa River hydro development at Rapides Des Joachims.

Police said the man was wounded by the discharge of a gun in the hands of a companion. They had no further details on the circumstances of the wounding.

100 YEARS OLD

London Free Press will mark on Saturday the one hundredth year of its publication. This memorable event will be observed in a record and striking way by the publication on Saturday of the largest edition ever issued by a newspaper in Canada, one consisting of 228 pages, on which more than one year's work has been expended to give a thorough review of the life and growth of the wide community which the paper has served and of the newspaper itself. The Free Press has been a leader among newspapers in Canada. It has exerted a lasting influence upon the widespread area which it has served and thereby upon the Canadian public.

Newspapers bear the very stamp of life and progress as study of their pages shows. They are a record of developments and of the vitality of the people they number among their readers. The Free Press and the community of London and its district have grown up together. Here are pictured the life and progress of countryside settlements, villages, towns and London itself. Here are felt the influences which have been at work in the lives of the people day-by-day as th press records events. In them is the account which is not to be found even in books, that of community and district life, as it is lived day by day across a century, which only a modern enterprising newspaper can give. No individual can give such a record of the passing time.

The Free Press has always held to the highest traditions and ideals of its founders and of the press generally. It has been inspired by the highest motives and traditions and the result is to be found in its vitality of enterprise and influence upon its widespread reading public. It has served for a century a great number of readers for the Free Press and its public have grown with the years.

On this centennial occasion newspapers in all parts of Canada will be paying tribute to the enterprise and influence which have characterized the Free Press since it was first founded in 1849 and wish for it a future as bright, successful and influential as has been its record in the past one hundred years.

OF JACQUES CARTIER

Canadians are justly conscious of the historic past of their country and feel proud of the record of colonization in the early generations following Columbus' history-making discovery of the new continent of America. To Jacques Cartier fell the honor of leading that expedition which set out to find a northwest passage to the Orient and which led him to the eastern coast of what was to become New France and later Canada. He went home at the end of the season and returned to continue his explorations in the following year, sailed up the St. Lawrence with three vessels, and left the larger craft at the mouth of the St. Charles and with the barque and long boats pushed westward, the barque grounding in Lake St. Peter but the boats reaching Hochelaga, where Montreal now stands.

There has now been discovered in the Cathedral of St. Malo, France, birthplace of the explorer, what are thought to be the grave and relics of Cartier.

This news of discovery appeals to the people of Canada and also to the people of Normandy who gave to the early established colony pioneers who helped to make French Canada and to advance exploration and development of the Dominion.

With such fine spirits dominating the achievements of that age there should remain and there does remain to this day the inspiration or charm of the lives of these heroes of the sea, these builders of nations of the western world. In their fresh young life, for these American nations are young yet as compared with the patriarchal nations of Europe, people of today seek and find inspiration.

If the last resting place of the Commodore Jacques Cartier is established to be in the Cathedral at St. Malo, as is suggested by the discovery made by Dr. Gustave Lanctot, the find will have an abiding interest for Canadians who while they have recognized St. Malo as the birthplace and home of Cartier were not certain where the discoverer of Canada was laid to rest.

Many nations have had a romantic beginning but surely none more so than the nations of North America.

TO MAKE THE TOURIST HAPPY

Many times this and other newspapers have tried to emphasize the importance of courtesy, good service and fair prices in the development of our profitable tourist industry. It is good to see that the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada has put its organization actively at work to this end.

The tourist expects, and has a perfect right to expect, good food, comfortable beds, decent roads, fair treatment, and a courteous reception.—Ottawa Journal.

HOUSECLEANING WOES

Dear doctor, the truth I now write is
That nothing unwholesome I've eaten.
I've pains that must come from arthritis,
Or maybe it's rugs I have beaten.

For weeks I've lugged things to the attic,
With rarely an hour for relaxing.
It may be I'm growing rheumatic,
Or is it the floors I've been waxing?

I've crawled and I've climbed although tiring,
But never a whimper or grouse made.
Housekeeping has left me inquiring:
Do men get the knees of a housemaid?

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 10th., 1929.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McDonald, Cedar Street, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. W. Fletcher, have returned home after spending a few weeks in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Adams, Albert Street, have returned home after an enjoyable motor trip during which they visited Lindsay, Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Watertown and the Thousand Islands.

Mr. Charles E. Hanna went to Kingston today to attend a meeting of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association.

Mr. Robert Tannahill has returned home after an extended trip to the British Isles and on the continent.

His Honor Judge Deroche is holding court in Kingston.

June 10th., 1919.

Last evening at the Ann St. School Grounds a fast and brilliant game of baseball was played between two Y.M.C.A. Junior League teams, the Red Sox and the Tigers. The Tigers played a good game and it was only owing to the fact that the Red Sox have such good fielders that the Tigers were defeated. The final score was 5 to 3 in favor of the Red Sox. The following composed the teams Red Sox, Cretney, Moxam, Storks, Myles, Maraskas, Joss, Ashley, Herity and Latchford. Spare man, R. Clarke;. Tigers, Ashley, Hunter, Holway, Barrage, Low, Kemp, McKonesky, Buskard and Anderson. Spare man, T. Storks. H. Moxam twirled airtight ball up to the 6th innings, when the Tigers found him for three runs. Cretney, the Sox pitching ace, relieved him and retired the Tigers in one, two and three order for the rest of the game. Holway on first base played a good game, fielding his position perfectly. Maraskas and Myles on second and third made one brilliant catch each. J. Hunter the pitcher for the Tigers, pitched the best game of his career last night. R. Kemp at short stop was seen to advantage and he can compete with any short stop in the league. Eddie Thomas gave entire satisfaction as umpire.

The steamer Annie Lake will run to Massassaga Park tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. A good orchestra will furnish music for dancing at the park. Come and enjoy a sail on the bay. Capt. O'Rourke. (Advt.)

The steamer Varuna will run to Massassaga Park this evening, leaving at 8 o'clock and returning to the city at 10:45 o'clock. Fare for round trip 25 cents.

At Hotel Quinte last evening a meeting was held for the purpose of organizing a yacht club. There was a good attendance and the prospects are that the grand old sport of sailing will be well looked after. The following officers were elected: Commodore, H. Corby; Vice Commodore, Stanley E. Carman; Rear Commodore, J. Walter Evans; Secretary, Clifford Walker; Treasurer, F. B. W. Moore; Captain, William Rogers; Executive Committee, P. H. Wills, W. Carnew, B. L. Hyman, J. W. Murray, Sanford R. Burrows, R. E. Orr and A. P. Allen.

Mr. W. R. Carmichael of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, was in town today.

Police Magistrate J. J. B. Flint is in Warkworth today on legal business.

Mr. George Jones of Syracuse, N.Y., is visiting his parents at their home on the Front of Sidney township.

Mrs. S. E. Haight is visiting friends in Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. Harry Thompson, an old Belleville boy, who is now a successful druggist in Buffalo, N.Y., is visiting his father, Mr. William Thompson, Ann Street.

The steamer "William Booth" will make three trips daily to Massassaga Park, leaving here at 10 a.m., 3 p.m. and 7 p.m., until further notice.

A horse attached to a buggy backed across the sidewalk on Front Street this morning and came in contact with the glass in a large show window in Mr. Charles N. Sulman's store. The glass was demolished. The horse was frightened at the steam roller.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

On my way to work, I drive through a large public park. And this morning I was interested to see a young fellow in a jeep cutting the acres of park grass with a great wide lawn mower towed behind.

I stopped to watch him. He was very skillful. He shaved up close to the trees, and with a couple of reversals of his jeep, he even trimmed the grass close to the boles of the trees. On the open areas, he slew the grass with great speed and precision. I got out of my car and spoke to him the next time round.

As I suspected from his masterly handling of his outfit, he was an ex-service man with a good many tours of ops on jeeps.

"The last time I remember seeing this grass cut," I told him, "it was being done by a platoon of middle-aged, even elderly men, each with a small individual lawn mower. Others were squatted down with grass clippers, trimming around the trees."

"This is a lot cheaper, quicker," said the jeep lad.

What happens to those old men?" I wondered.

"Well, it's this way," explained the young fellow. "The money the parks department saves by using me and this jeep leaves more money to pay old age pensions and other benefits to those old fellows . . ."

"But the work?" I pointed out. "Wouldn't those elderly men prefer a job to a hand-out?"

"I couldn't say," answered the lad. "I'll have to find out when I get old. Personally, I'd say it was kind of tough pushing a lawn mower after you're sixty. Most people look on labor-saving devices like this jeep and mower as something that throws good men out of jobs. The way I look at it, we've got to keep on inventing labor-saving gadgets like this in order to support good men who have done their trick of hard work."

"Well, uh . . ." I reasoned.

"At all events," smiled the lad, as he let in his gears, "I don't want to be driving this jeep when I'm sixty!"

Firm Absolved Of Any Complicity In Armament Ring

St. Catharines, June 10. (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said on Thursday night in an election campaign address that he has received assurances from Washington that the Electric Boat Company of the United States had been absolved of any complicity in an internatioinal armament ring.

This is the company which George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Wednesday night at Fort William had been allowed to purchase the $22,000,000 government-operated Canadair Aircraft plant at Montreal at a fraction of its cost.

Mr. Drew charged that the firm which manufactures submarines, had been investigated by a U.S. Congressional committee in 1934 as a member of an "international armament ring."

Mr. Howe said he had received telephone calls Thursday from a high United States naval official and a member of a Senate investigation committee denying Mr. Drew's charges.

The trade minister made only passing reference to Mr. Drew's Fort William statements in his speech, which was in support of H. P. Cavers, Liberal candidate in Lincoln.

Mackenzie's Column:

Despite Labor Govt. Britain Pays Homage to King

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

This is an odd though likable old world of ours.

Britain, with its Socialist Labor government paid homage to its King Thursday amidst the splendor and pomp of by-gone days.

The occasion was the celebration of His Majesty's 53rd birthday—an event observed throughout the Commonwealth. For the first time since the outbreak of war in 1939 London saw the traditional trooping of the colors — one of the most stirring and colorful of Britain's pageants.

Just how does all this imperial display fit in with socialism—or does it? I put the question to an Englishman in New York, and for a minute had him stopped.

Solidarity

"Why," he said. "I never thought of it like that before. I guess it's because the King is the same to us as your flag is to you. He stands for the solidarity of our unwritten constitution, for liberty, for civil rights.

"Then personality plays a part. In the old days a monarch was honored because of his power. But things are different now. The monarch is outside politics. King George is liked for himself — he is a good fellow. And he has a grand family.

"And, of course, this Royal pageantry is a fine 'show.' It fills a sentimental gap. I think you have to lump all these things together to understand why we like our monarchy."

India an Example

We recently were given another reason why the King fills a useful place in the affairs of Britain. The great Dominion of India, which received its independence Aug. 15, 1947, announced that it intended to become a republic. As a republic it couldn't be a member of the British Commonwealth because the commonwealth members recognize the King as their King.

The Commonwealth didn't want to lose India, and India didn't want to leave, but republics don't have kings. However, in the Commonwealth Conference in London at the end of April India agreed to accept the crown as "the symbol of the free association" of the independent commonwealth and, as such, the head of the Commonwealth.

Thus the crown still continues to be the bond that holds the commonwealth together.

Cats and Birds

(A Hamilton Spectator Editorial)

Dogs must be kept under restraint during certain months of the year. Why not cats too? ask bird-lovers. This is an old controversy, that has produced bitterness in the past, but it reached the Illinois Legislature, where it became quite an issue.

After six years of effort friends of the birds in Chicago and elsewhere in the state succeeded in getting a bill passed by the legislature that provided for keeping cats on the premises of their owners. Once they strayed from that area they became a public nuisance and could be painlessly seized by any citizen. A cat thus taken could be ransomed for one dollar.

It was then that a diversity of opinion began to rage between cat owners and bird-lovers. The governor of the state finally vetoed the bill, and the State Senat upheld his veto by 28 to 12. The bill therefore became void.

More than ordinary interest attaches to the incident because it is something that concerns every owner of a dog, a cat, and the friends of the birds. Viewpoints clash sharply in this question and everything depends on how one approaches it.

Dogs are for the most part too nervous and impatient to be a serious menace to the birds. Cats, however, being the stealthy creatures they are, will lie perdu for an hour or two at a time to catch their prey. Bird-lovers agree that cats are the deadliest foe of the winged songsters morever, they point out that it is difficult to think otherwise when all one finds of a beautiful cardinal that has been coming to a window-sill for months to feed is a red bill and a few tail feathers. Or it may be a Baltimore oriole, or the little wren and its brood of wee ones when they have left the bird house on the upright of the back verandah.

Birds have little chance of survival where one or two cats are prowling about a back yard from dawn to sunset. Nor do pet squirrels either. Even better than legislation as a solution of this problem would be a bell on every cat. It is a simple remedy that would cause no hardship to the cats and give most birds enough warning that they'd have an even chance for their lives.

Had the Illinois Bill provided for belled cats, the measure might have become law.

BACK TO NATURE

This is the season of the year when, in most parts of the country, we can best enjoy life outdoors. All this month, millions of Americans will be spending vacations or weekends or afternoons in the mountains, in the woods, or at the seashore. It is almost a real instinct, especially for us city-dwellers, to get close to nature when the weather is fine.

Man's love of natural beauty seems to be as old as the human race. We all know the feeling of relaxation and well-being which follows a restful afternoon on the beach, or a cool dip in a forest-rimmed mountain lake. And nature is as good for the mind as for the body. Doctors frequently establish their private mental sanatoriums in the country so that the peaceful and lovely scenery may help restore sick minds.

Man-made works, the symbols of our progress, are splendid, but they cannot compare with the infinite beauty and wonder of God's works, which are best seen and felt in their unspoiled magnificence in the country. Do not let this season pass without letting the healing, calming, and strengthening power of nature work on your mind and body.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INDUSTRY

Coming in from Boston to New York, recently, for nearly an hour before reaching my station, I viewed the great panorama of industry, with lights sparkling like the jewels from a woman's throat. As far as the eye could see—lights, factories, great business structures, apartment buildings, stores and jewelled streets. Then suddenly the train went underground, and in a few minutes the station and destination, and up into the open air again.

I kept thinking of all this as I recalled a robin, building its nest near my library window. I sat and watched. How carefully she placed each spray of grass, bits of string, and other material which she had gathered from about my home. And then I was reminded of that tiny warbler at my summer island retreat, as she built that hanging nest, hung securely with strings of Spanish moss to an overhanging branch of a beautiful birch.

Then I got to thinking of one day when I was busy writing in my Lodge and heard droppings that sounded like a heavy hail storm — but as I went to my verandah and noted the sun shining I was puzzled until I noticed dozens of pine cones drop to the roof of the cabin cook house, and then I knew that one of my red squirrel friends was busy.

It is curious how a squirrel handles these pine cones. Quickly it is tossed to the end where the scales come off easiest, and after one or two are removed, it finds the tiny seed that it eats, and in quick fashion soon has the cone stripped, clean from its slender centre holding. But I find few of these eaten cones. Most of them are carried industriously, one after the other, to a hole where it is stored for hungrier days.

I discovered one day a curious method of removing the pitch from the face of the squirrel. A tough oak leaf was licked with the tongue and then the little fellow would wipe its face until clean. Some, who had a rather muddy appearance before, often showed a round clean spot on the face after this act in contrast to the before washing! Nature's creatures are never idle. Industry is their forte!

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH AMERICAN MEDICINE?

I'm just a bumbling doctor trying to make a noise like an authority or something. My excuse for quacking it here in the public prints is that I try to heed the Hipprocratic injunction. Ol' Doc Hippocrates, you know, commanded his followers to this effect: Do Good If You Can, But Do No Harm.

It is easy to understand why so many physicians dislike me and my works. I can't complain about that. But I do feel I have a grievance against the rank and file of the American Medical Association —not for any honest or intelligent judgments the doctors may form or express concerning my teachings. But for the downright gullibility of so many members of that yesman organization in regard to the motives which inspire the Pooh Bah in his attacks on me in the editorial columns of the one-man health magazine published by the AMA.

Not that I have anything to lose—indeed, with every such assult upon me by the loud mouthed and unchecked "official spokesman," my newspaper health column has gained greater circulation. So it seems to me that if the American Medical Association officers could somehow find the courage to recover control of their Association and function as officers instead of yesmen, the relations between the profession and the public would be considerably better than they are under the shameful dictatorship of the past two decades—the American Fishbein Association.

The attitude of the rank and file of the dental profession is not so easy to understand. With occasional exceptions all the dentists I get to know personally or through correspondence seem to tolerate me even though we may not agree on the subject we happen to talk about. But so far as the voice of the dental profession is concerned, I'm a pretty bad egg. At least that is the impression a reader of the editorial columns of the Journal of the American Dental Association must form; if he or she does not know me very well. How much of this aversion may be due to my advocacy of immediate denture service — a modern development which demands more skill than many dentists have—and to my belief and teaching that the practice of brushing the teeth has nothing to do with conservation of the teeth, is for the public to decide. This, like many other questions, is a question of opinion and not one of fact. I express only my own opinion. Readers, physicians, dentists, all may accept or reject my opinion. Would you have me avoid all "controversial" subjects? If I did so, who would read this column anyway?

For many years I was a member or fellow of the American Medical Association, and indeed prior to the arrival of the Big Noise I was persona grata and had the cordial co-operation of the people at AMA headquarters—but then the editor was not scheming to get my job. Two or three years ago, however, I decided I couldn't stomach it any longer, so I withdrew.

One trouble with the American Medical Association is that it is too wealthy, thanks to the extreme elasticity of the censorship of advertising in the comic weekly.

If the specter of state medicine which now haunts the profession becomes a reality we may blame it on the maladministration of the organization during twenty years of dictartorship.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Cracked Corners

What causes the cracks at the corners of my mouth? The lips get almost healed and then crack again. I probably drink too much coffee and too much beer (F. L. P.)

Answer—Better switch to milk—drink not less than 1 1-2 pints (three large glasses) of fresh whole milk, skim milk, buttermilk, separator milk or whey every day. This is the best food source of riboflavin (vitamin B2). Riboflavin deficiency is a cause of such fissures and maceration at the corners of the mouth.

Oh, Skinny

I am a very thin person, but I desire very much to gain weight. Can you offer any suggestion? (J. P. P.)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask fo pamphlet How to Gain Weight.

Prevention of the C-R-I

We think your teachings on the prevention of C-R-I make sense. Since we began putting your teachings into practice in our everyday life we have had few such illnesses in our family. How may one obtain copies of all your Little Lessons? (C. E. F.)

Answer—Send twenty - five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for the booklet Call It Cri. In the back of the booklet the Little Lessons are listed.

Development of Canada's Resources by Immigration Advocated by R.D. Arnott

Reduction of taxation with the national income preserved through the development of Canada's natural resources by proper immigration, was advocated by R. D. Arnott, Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings South, at a meeting in Wallbridge Hall last night.

The natural resources of the country are in a "ridiculous shape" at the present, he charged "and I am surprised that none of the three major political parties has mentioned it. They have not as yet been touched, and won't be until we get the people to develop them."

He defined the Liberal Government as "old, tired, and in power too long." With its wartime 100 per cent control it has developed a boss complex and hates to let go of it, because it has become accustomed to have everyone carry out its orders-in-council. "And we," he said, "have got the complex that the government is the boss and do anything they say without question."

"If you are satisfied, then send them back into power," Mr. Arnott said. "But are you satisfied as individuals to have the government take part of your earnings, the cream, in fact, and leave you the skimmed milk to live on?"

George Drew when named leader of the Progressive Conservative party in Ottawa took the play away from the government and asked so many embarrassing questions that they closed Parliament to evade the answers.

"Then out of Ottawa came cheques representing compulsory savings. They made big fellows of themselves. But that was your own money the same as you have in the bank. They were not giving you anything."

Got Same Dose

Farmers, and rural people the last two or three years found out they were brothers to urbanites as far as income tax is concerned, because "they got the same dose that we did."

"Income tax in wartime was necessary," Mr. Arnott asserted, "but any government that piles up a 600-million-dollar surplus, well, that's just plain taxes. Imagine 600 millions more than was needed. That's our money. Now it's going out in all directions, just before election. A slick trick."

Increased old age pensions were but a trick on the part of the government, the speaker charged. "The government increased the pensions to $40 a month but it decreased the earning power of the pensioners to $120 a year."

Mr. Arnott termed the distribution of family allowance cheques to Newfoundland families a few days before the election there as "not illegal, not crooked but smart political timing."

Predicts Two Victories

"I fully expect," he said, "that Newfoundland will return an almost solid Liberal representation. But there are only seven seats, and this time the tail will not wag the dog."

He predicted that Nova Scotia's Premier Angus Macdonald, "who has given good government" will be sent back by a big majority in the provincial elections. "But," he added, "today, provincial; June 27th, a Conservative sweep — and I mean sweep. Do you think the people of Nova Scotia are satisfied with Ottawa."

Mr. Arnott said he was a great believer in two-party politics. This election, he added, may be the death of one of the three major parties. The Conservatives, Liberals, or C. C. F. may be wiped out politically and drop out of sight as completely in Canada as the Liberal Party in Britain.

The Progressive Conservatives if elected to power will restore in Ottawa a government of the people by the people and for the people.

Will Be Servants

"We will form a government to give the country leadership for the next five years and intend to be servants, not masters of the people, in other words, responsible government."

Prime Minister St. Laurent, Mr. Arnott termed an "honest gentleman, but he does not know how to run an election any more than my five-year-old son. I see the fine hand of the old master Mackenzie King. Just straight politics."

George Drew, if elected, will legislate for the Dominion of Canada as a whole and should his party be called upon to form a government he will endeavor to look after the interests of everyone, not just the Conservative Party. Mr. Arnott told the audience, "If I am elected as a representative of the riding I will serve it as a Canadian as Mr. Drew would want me to."

"Another thing to be done and George Drew is the man to do it, a man bold and clever enough to draw together the different interests in Canada. We are all living in the same country and thus far any attempt at national unity has been lip-service."

Will Call Conference

Drew has promised, the speaker declared, that he will call a conference between the Dominion and the provinces as the first step toward real national unity. "He'll do it for what we have needed in Canada is leadership and Drew has proved that he has it."

Referring to the CCF Mr. Arnott said, "we hear a lot about them in Saskatchewan but you never read about their governmental co-operative schemes."

While in the Ontario Legislature, the speaker said he had pointed out to George Drew that it would be wise to have a representative gathering of Ontario residents in the galleries to hear what went on between CCF and Communist members. If this had been done there would be no fear of any future elections going their way.

In conclusion Mr. Arnott paid sterling tribute to the splendid work done for the riding by the last sitting member Mr. George H. Stokes.

Supporting Speakers

Heading a battery of supporting speakers, Mr. Harry Rollins said that George Drew was the hub of the Conservative wheel and "the candidates and we are the spokes and must operate in complete harmony." He said that Mr. Arnott was well-known here as he had served in Toronto. "He is aggressive, honest and will give the same sound leadership in Ottawa as he did in Toronto."

Mr. Jack Haig quoted several statements made by Liberal Cabinet ministers which decried the operation of their own government. Referring to the North Star contracts, he charged that the Hon. C. D. Howe had gone to the U.S.A. and brought back a Tammany Hall from the country of its origin.

"This minister last fall," he said, "charged that George Drew was responsible for the power shortage. Later, Mr. Howe's colleagues in his own department at Ottawa issued statistics that proved that nothing but the lack of rain was responsible."

"Mr. Howe knew his statement regarding Drew was false and when Drew challenged him to debate he ran and squealed that he would meet him in Ottawa. Howe knew he could not discuss provincial matters on the floor of the House."

Found Wanting Claim

The government at Ottawa has been tried and found wanting, Mr. Haig said. "They have become so full of their own self-righteousness and have worshipped at their own shrine so long that they cannot criticize without becoming invidious. The only way we can get a new deal is by sending Drew to Ottawa."

Responsible government is one of the main issues of the election, Mr. John Lennox said. One hundred years ago blood was shed in the fight for it. Now its principle is being threatened by Ottawa. Another issue is whether the country is to have a bureaucratic or a democratic government; whether it is to be ruled by order-in-council or the government brought back to the proper position to govern the people.

Must Get Out and Vote

Mr. George Reid said that the Liberal party had promised easing of the income tax, but the order was never passed. He was definitely sure Drew will be the next prime minister and that "Dick" Arnott would represent the riding. Liberals and CCF will be out to vote "and so must we" he said.

Mr. Elmer Sandercock, MLA, Hastings West, reviewed the government's increase in old age pensions stating that the limitation to $600 of earning power including pensions of pensioners would affect 20,000 pensioners in Ontario adversely.

Speaking of housing Mr. Sandercock said he did not believe in low-rental houses. "It would have been better if the working man or veteran had been able to buy his home. Drew when in Ottawa will see that something is done about the matter.

Construction Under Way

Hydro construction in Ontario is well under way, he said. He quoted statistics showing the many miles of lines laid since 1947 and the large increase in the number of consumers. "George Drew will give the same fine government to the Dominion as he did to Ontario," Mr. Sandercock concluded.

Mr. Harry Morrow, president of the Sidney Progressive Conservative Association, was chairman at the meeting which included a large number of ladies. Musical highlight was the splendid artistry of sixteen-year-old Helen Grant whose performances on the xylophone brought rounds of applause. Miss Grant was furnished piano accompaniment by her mother, Mrs. William Grant.

Anniversary Edition Will Contain 228 Pages

London, Ont., June 10 — (CP) —The London Free Press celebrates its 100th birthday Saturday.

In recognition of the anniversary, the Free Press Saturday will publish the largest single edition ever put out by a Canadian newspaper. A paper of some 228 pages, in 12 sections, will be distributed to its 74,000 subscribers.

The Canadian Daily Newspapers Association said it has no record of so large a single edition of standard-sized pages ever being published in Canada.

As a second recognition of the anniversary, the Free Press commissioned Orlo Miller to write a book, "A Century of Western Ontario"—a history not only of the company but also of London and of Western Ontario.

A dinner attended by the company staff and associates will highlight the day's activities.

Year in Preparation

The Free Press centennial edition took more than a year in preparation and is a careful review of human endeavor in Western Ontario, of which the newspaper has been an integral part throughout its 100 years. Development of the communities of the southern peninsula of Ontario—industrially, commercially, politically, educationally and socially—is illustrated in its pages by word and picture.

The Free Press was founded as a weekly publication in January 1849, by William Sutherland, an Edinburgh Scot, who had come to Canada three years previously.

His interests were sold to Josiah Blackburn, effective Jan. 1, 1853. From that time to the present, the interests and traditions of the newspaper have been guided by the Blackburn family. W. J. Blackburn, now president and managing director, is a grandson of Josiah Blackburn. He represents the third generation to direct the destinies of the newspaper.

Started as Weekly

The newspaper first was published as a four-page weekly in 1849 and was known as the Canadian Free Press. An attempt to convert it to a daily publication was made in 1852 without success. Three years later a second attempt was successful.

Side by side with the daily, a weekly paper was continued as a separate venture for 40 years, but the place of a weekly in a growing city was disappearing at that time, and finally it was abandoned.

The free press currently has 375 full-time employees, and about one per cent of the population of London derives a livelihood from it.

There are additional hundreds of part-time employees located through its circulation area.

Washington Spotlight:

Democrats Blame Republicans For Damaging 'Lets go Home' Talk

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 10 — (CP)— This sun-baked capital city, where foreign diplomats once received "tropical" pay, is talking in a traditional, heat-happy June monotone.

The newsboy, for instance: "Hot enough for yuh, mister?" The cop on the corner: "It's really the humidity, bud; try not to think about it." The soda-jerk: "Golly, I drink a coke for every one I sell!"

And on Capitol Hill, perspiring congressmen are starting the annual pre-summer talk about packing up and heading home. That, in turn, has the layman asking:

"If we pay them by the year, why don't they work by the year?"

Behind the stepped-up tempo of this wailing about the weather is a political bombshell which may explode at the slightest nudge.

Little Progress Made

Since early January, when Congress met, little progress has been made toward implementation of the program of which President Truman and the Democratic party were elected to power. Three major matters — labor legislation, the North Atlantic Treaty and extension of reciprocal trade measure—may be dealt with within a few weeks.

But much more remains on the books: arms for Europe, civil-rights legislation, the international wheat agreement, the St. Lawrence seaway project.

Some observers see Republican skullduggery in the growing talk about closing up shop. The best strategy of opposition, they say, is delay. Thomas L. Stokes, a columnist for the Washington Star, puts it bluntly:

". . . Opponents of the President's program are playing that strategy now to the limit. Both in and out of Congress they are promoting the 'back-home-for-Congress' campaign. That is the real story. No one should be fooled."

Truman's attitude — publicly —is that Congress' progress hasn't been too bad, really. He said at a recent press conference, though, that he will remain in Washington until the legislators do their job.

He added, too, that he'll be president until 1953. This was interpreted generally as a roundabout acceptance of the probability that most of his program will be shelved until next year.

Tactics Would Doom Program

If, however, the let's-go-home talk is opposition-inspired, the same deliberate delaying tactics could be allied again in 1950. If they were successful both times—and Republicans regained control in the Congressional elections next year — the Truman program would be doomed. For the last two years of his term he would be wrestling again with the virtual impossibility of getting a Republican Congress to put his Democratic ideas into effect.

Because of this possibility—remote as it may seem today — Democratic leaders will do their utmost to keep Congress in session as long as possible.

Cup and Saucer Shower Held For Bride-Elect

On Saturday afternoon last, Mrs. George Ostrom, 90 Gordon Street, held an afternoon tea, and cup and saucer shower, in honor of Miss Vera Flindall, bride-elect of this month, which was attended by a large number of neighbors.

Mrs. E. Holst, and Mrs. C. Hogle presided at the tea table, while Mrs. Ron Waite, and Mrs. J. Peets replenished.

An interesting feature of the shower was the complete surprise by which Vera was taken. She graciously welcomed all to her future home. After spending a pleasant afternoon together, a hearty vote of appreciation and thanks was accorded the hostess, with good wishes being the order of the day.

Friends, Neighbors Honor Bride-Elect With Lovely Gifts

The evening of Wednesday last, was the scene of a pleasant surprise when friends and neighbors of Cannifton, Corbyville, and the surrounding community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mathews to honor their only daughter, Hilda, in the event of her forthcoming marriage.

The early part of the evening was spent in an enjoyable game of bingo, and in viewing the bride-to-be's many lovely gifts already received.

Mrs. R. Woods, on behalf of the Community, presented Hilda with the gift of a pressure cooker/and matching kitchenware. After Hilda's pretty "thank-you", and a hearty singing of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" by the gathering, dainty refreshments were served.

The staff of the Bell Shirt Company gave Miss Hilda Mathews, a bride of this month, a shower at her home in Cannifton, Monday evening. She was the recipient of many beautiful, as well as useful gifts. Refreshments brought a happy evening to a close.

Wedding Cake Conceals Lovely Pre-Nuptial Gifts

Mrs. William Wockasen, Buffalo, N.Y., and Mrs. J. L. Diamond were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower recently held at 26 Queen Street, in honor of the bride-elect, Miss Monna Wyatt, at which around fifty guests assembled.

The evening was spent in playing bingo, after which the many gifts were presented concealed in a large simulated wedding cake.

After the opening of the handsomely tied parcels, Monna graciously thanked the givers for their expression of regard, and refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Lovely "Alameda" Delightful Scene Of Garden Party

Lovely "Alameda" on the Bay of Quinte, the home of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Graham, with its spacious lawns and beautiful flowers, was the setting on Wednesday afternoon, for one of the season's first garden parties, held under the auspices of Mrs. Ponton's group of St. Andrew's Ladies' Guild.

The many guests were welcomed by the gracious hostesses, Mrs. Graham, and Mrs. Ponton and ushered into a charming old world atmosphere laden with the delicate fragrance of lemon colored lilies, orchid-shaded iris, and mauve and white lilacs in baskets and crystal holders about the room, through whose tall, curved windows could be seen the blue waters of the Bay. At one end gleamed a welcoming fire upon the generous hearth, and at the other, the ornate, handwrought gates of Spanish design, which in no small manner added to the feeling of happy camaraderie evidenced by the smiling groups in conversation.

The tea room, to which the guests were ushered by Mrs R. D. Ponton, and Mrs. Archibald Cameron, with its ivory panelled walls, and dark furnishings its long tea table centred with a silver, fretwork basket filled with perfume-laden double-white lilacs and lemon lilies, upon a centrepiece of Irish linen and Honiton lace, flanked by ivory candles in silver holders with matching place mats, backgrounded by a large crystal vase of lemon lilies and graceful, flower-laden branches of spirea Van Houti upon the tall, dark, cabinet, made a delightful picture not soon forgotten.

Those who presided at the tea table during the earlier portion of the afternoon were—Mrs. J. G. Hornsby, and Mrs. O. W. Duff and during the latter part, Mrs. C. E. Argue and Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, while those who convened the tea table included Mrs. E. O. Keeler, and Mrs. Gerald McIlhinney with their assistants, Miss Edith McLean, Mrs. Jack Marshall, Mrs. Chester Smith, Mrs. Robert Chadwick, Mrs. Alan Argue and Mrs. J. O. Brisbane.

In the drawing room, the home cooking table was backed by three tall windows through which gleamed the waters of the Bay, and the velvety lawns, each window framing a picture of its own, and round about the diamond-cut crystal bowl of spirea Van Houti, and lilies which centred the table were the dainty cakes and cookies, each tagged by a pretty price card, some with flowers and some with gorgeous cardinals birds. Those who convened this beauteous array were, Miss Hay and Mrs. Arthur Hill.

Miss McLean presided at the collection table, and the convener of the garden party was Mrs. Richard Hart.

A delightful garden party, perfectly convened and splendidly successful.

Women's Institute

RIVER VALLEY W.I.

Rawdon.—The June meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. R. H. Philip with over 30 in attendance. The new president, Mrs. Harold Morgan, presided and Mrs. Clarence Chard conducted several musical numbers in honor of the King's birthday, and also led in "Rounds".

The roll call was answered with the "Name of a Flower" and each paid member received an Institute pin.

Mrs. J. L. Donohoe gave the financial report with over $200 on hand for the new year. Fruit boxes valued at 80 cents will be sent to all sick folks.

Mrs. Alex Bush was appointed delegate to the District Annual which will be held in Stirling with Pine Grove as hostess W.I.

Mrs. Don Donohoe gave a report of the recent Achievement Day and described the various displays. Sixteen homemaking clubs were present with 110 in attendance. The aspects of being a good hostess were based on etiquette, table setting; flower arrangement, parties, games, recipes and smart tips on dishwashing.

"Kitchen Meditations" were read by the president, Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a concise report of the recent "Speakers' Conference" which she had attended, and stated that it had been stressed that all Institute members should have a thorough knowledge of parliamentary procedure, and presidents should strive to have as many members as possible participating in the meetings. Mrs. Roy Bush brought a few comments from the same meeting.

A purse contest was won by Mrs. Hugh Jones, Mrs. Donohoe gave a "Makeup" demonstration with Mrs. Percy Utman as model.

Refreshments were served and Mrs. Earl Morrow voiced thanks to the hostess and to the lunch committee.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Don Donohoe.

PLAINFIELD W.I.

The Plainfield W.I. held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. Clayton Hall with an attendance of 25 adults and nine children. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. V. Elliott. Mrs. O. Rollins led in community singing. The minutes were read and adopted, followed by roll call "One Simple Rule of Etiquette".

Delegates were appointed to the District Annual at Melrose and the financial report was given.

It was decided to have a speakers' Service for the the co-operative program on "Health Before and After 40", "What to do Until the Doctor Comes", and "Officers' Rally".

Plans were made for a pot luck dinner and quilting in the Orange Hall on June 23. Dinner 25c.

Mrs. Blake Parks gave a humorous reading "A Troublesome Husband". Reading was given by Mrs. S. Parks. Music by Mrs. C. Pryor was enjoyed. Mrs. Clarence Hall gave "Qualities of an Institute Member", taken from a W.I. meeting at Guelph. Mrs V. Elliott spoke on Achievement Day at Stirling. Mrs. C Marshall demonstrated several patterns of diamond sox and graham wafers with lemon filling made from condensed milk and lemons, also rice krispie cookies which were served later for refreshments.

Meeting was closed and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton moved a vote of thanks to the hostess. Refreshments were served and a social half hour spent. The collection received amounted to $1.76.

Mrs. Catherine Lattone Will be Guest of Honor on 89th Birthday

If you care for a spirited game of euchre, a length walk or a mild discussion on events of the day, why seek a young companion. Mrs. Catherine Lattone, native of Hastings County will supply your needs even if she is celebrating her 89th birthday today.

The elderly lady in remarkable health with keen vision and mental alertness, is residing with her daughter-in-law on Station Street, and tonight she will be the guest of honor at her birthday party being held at the home of Mrs. C. Ostrum, 27 Johnson Street.

Nearly five decades of life have taken no more than their natural toll. Mrs. Lattone, a member of St. Michael's Church, arises early every Sunday morning and walks the long distance from her home to the church.

Her favorite evening entertainment is a brisk game of euchre, and you have to be good to send this silver-haired bright-eyed lady down to defeat.

She takes a keen interest in current events and of life going on around her. She has rarely been indisposed and today, her natal day, sees her in splendid health.

All her life has been spent in the district between Tweed and Belleville. Born in Hungerford township she later removed to Plainfield where she resided for a half century. For the past ten years she has stayed in Belleville. Her husband, John Lattone, former Plainfield farmer, passed away 20 years ago.

Two sons were born to the union, Levi, residing on the old homestead at Plainfield and the late John, who passed away two years ago. She is proud of a granddaughter, a grandson and a small great granddaughter.

Women's Lib. Assoc. Hears Many Speakers

A large and representative meeting of the Belleville Women's Liberal Association was held in their club rooms, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. George Wilson, president, expressed her pleasure at seeing such a large number of ladies present.

A record of an address of Mr. Harry Hamilton, campaign organizer for Ontario, was then listened to. He said satisfactory results of any campaign are in procuring large numbers of workers. Liberals know full well what Liberalism has given to the Dominion of Canada. Everyone has a task to do so get busy and ask assistance of others as hundreds of workers are needed.

He urged his listeners to keep well informed on all questions of Liberal interest. Work will to the job and do not leave it all to the candidate.

This talk was followed by an instructive talk given by Mr. George Jordan, president of South Hastings Liberal Association, who also was agreeably surprised to see so many ladies all ready to do their part.

Many People Indifferent

The City of Belleville is away behind in getting out the votes, which was proven by reading the number of votes not cast in the different wards in recent elections.

Mrs. William Gardiner, convener of membership organized E. Follwell, 269 George Street. She also received an encouraging response.

Mrs. J. J. O'Connor, convener of social activities added to her group as a preliminary for a tea to be held at home of Mrs. E. Gaughney, president of Trenton

A short talk was given by the candidate, Mr. F. Follwell. He complimented the ladies on their assistance in past elections. He had attended meetings throughout the riding and was well pleased to see so much work and interest displayed in the election, from friends within and without the fold of Liberalism.

Great Duty To Perform

Next followed Mr. M. McGaughey, president of Trenton Liberal Association. He said elections are serious affairs and demand great study on the part of the voter, so study Liberalism. There is a great duty to perform on June 27., so spread the advantages of Liberalism.

He said women workers are so necessary, as women never undertake a job, without doing their best to see it brought to a successful conclusion.

The complete riding executive was in attendance, along with the speakers mentioned were Mr. Rush, president of Hungerford Association and Mrs. J. Walsh, president of Tyendinaga Association also Mrs. J. Goodwin, regional secretary for Central Ontario Women's Liberal Association.

The meeting was closed with the serving of refreshments by the Social committee.

ST. ANDREW'S AUXILIARY

The St. Andrew's Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society held a pleasant meeting at the manse on the lawn with flowering trees and flowers.

Mrs. Mantle, the president, conducted the business. Mrs. C. Baragar reported that she already had quilts and some toys for the bale. The rally for the presbyterial was announced for June 21, in Gananoque.

Mrs. Hornsby was asked to take charge of the program.

DREW PLEADS FOR EQUALITY OF EDUCATION

Says it is the Duty of the National Govt. to Provide for All

(By Canadian Staff Press Writer)

Sudbury, June 10 (CP)—Equality of opportunity in education for all Canadian children was proposed Thursday night by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, as a means of consolidating national unity.

Addressing an election campaign rally here, he said he believes it is "the duty of the national government to provide, no matter where people live, equality of education for all children in this country."

Earlier, in a 15-minute address broadcast over CBC national network, Mr. Drew repeated his charges that the $22,000,000 government-operated Canadair Aircraft plant at Montreal had been sold to the Electric Boat Company of the United States, submarine manufacturers, for an insignificant sum.

A government under his leadership, he said, would place the plant "under management which has as its purpose the best interests of Canada."

He also again described the American firm as a one-time member of an "International Armament Ring."

Repeats Charges

(At St. Catharines, Ont., Trade Minister Howe told an election rally he had received assurances from Washington that the company had been absolved of complicity in an armament ring.)

Mr. Drew repeated his charge that Mr. Howe had conducted the sale of Canadair by "secret" negotiation.

He quoted from the evidence of a U.S. congressional committee which investigated the Electric Boat Company in 1934 a letter written in 1928 to "another armament manufacturer" by Lawrence Y. Spear then vice-president of the company and a now director of Canadair Limited. It said, in part:

"It is so bad that the pernicious activities of our State Department have put the brake on armament orders from Peru by forcing the resumption of formal diplomatic relations with Chile. My friends advise me this gesture means that all contemplated orders must go over until next year.

Mr. Drew said that at a time when Canada has joined the Atlantic Pact to preserve peace "our defence requirements must not be placed directly or indirectly in the hands of those who regard efforts to preserve peace as pernicious."

Presbyterians Pay Tribute to Loyal Members

Kitchener, June 10 (CP)—The 75th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada yesterday paid tribute to members who stayed with the church 24 years ago today when a church union move split the Presbyterian Church.

Union of a Presbyterian group with the Methodist Church brought a rift in the assembly of the Presbyterian Church then convened. At midnight, June 9, 1925, members of the Presbyterian Church who dissented from union met in Toronto to sign a protest. At one minute after midnight the Presbyterian Church was continued.

Under provisions of the union, the original Presbyterian assembly had assented to end the church at midnight.

A motion honoring those who remained with the church was carried unanimously today. Eight assembly delegates who signed the midnight protest rose today on request. They included Rev. A. H. Reid, Montreal; James Dutton, Peterborough; Clarence Pitts, Ottawa; F. A. McDiarmid, Ottawa; E. W. McNeill, Toronto; Rev. C. L. Cowan, Hamilton; W. P. Cone, Red Deer, Alta; and Rev. T. W. Taylor, Toronto.

In a report submitted by the committee on articles of faith, and tabled by vice-convener Rev. G. L. Douglas of Woodstock, it was stated that infant baptism is one of the most difficult and controversial subjects confronting the theological world today.

Rev. T. W. Taylor, clerk, said that if the parents have been baptised and profess faith in Christ, they are members of the visible church, irrespective of what particular church they belong. The matter of deciding the sincerity of the parents' attitude resides with the minister, he added.

Under consideration by the church as a means of filling vacant pulpits is a short course to train workers for mission fields in Canada.

TO VOTE AT HAVELOCK

Havelock, June 10 (CP)—This village 25 miles east of Peterborough has been dry for 40 years but June 15 a vote will be taken among the 1,200 residents for or against a retail liquor store.

Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh, leader of the dry campaign, says the village doesn't want "any possible drunkenness."

Restaurant-owner Tom Patterson says he favors a liquor store because it would increase business from thousands of tourists who visit the area every year.

COLDWELL DENIES TIE-UP BETWEEN CCF, COMMUNISTS

Claims Conservatives Will Not Win More Than Five Seats in Quebec

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Kelowna, B.C., June 10. (CP) —M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, charged Thursday night that the Progressive Conservative and Union Nationale parties are conspiring in a "sinister and menacing" alliance to gain power in Canada at any cost.

In predicting that the Progressive Conservative Party would win fewer than five seats in Quebec in the federal election June 27, Mr. Coldwell said there "has never been a more sinister and more menacing conspiracy to gain control of the Canadian people than the alliance between Premier Duplessis (of Quebec) and Progressive Conservative Leader, George Drew.

Mr. Coldwell, who delivered his first two British Columbia campaign addresses in the Okanagan Valley at Armstrong and Kelowna Thursday, accused Mr. Duplessis of sending Provincial Police into the asbestos mines in an attempt to break the strike of workers fighting for better conditions.

The C.C.F. leader charged Mr. Duplessis "is being descredited at the present time" and because of this the Progressive Conservatives would not win five seats in Quebec.

In addition, Mr. Coldwell predicted, the Conservatives would have fewer seats in the next parliament than the 69 they held in the last House.

Mr. Coldwell described Mr. Drew as a "rather diminutive replica of R. B. Bennett" and contended there is no reason why the same depression that occurred under the Bennett government in the 1930s won't happen if Mr. Drew becomes prime minister.

In the C.C.F. leader's Armstrong address, he denied any implication that there is a secret agreement in British Columbia between the Communists and the C.C.F.

"If there was any vestige of truth in that suggestion, I would not support the C.C.F. in the British Columbia provincial election," he said.

Baby in Shaft 15 Inches Wide Saved by Hook

Paris, June 9 — (Reuters) — A 20-month-old baby who fell into a 20-foot pumping shaft only 15 inches wide, was rescued today with a boat hook. The incident occurred at Arques in northern France.

Twice the hook tore at baby's clothing as rescuers tried to pull the child up. The third time the boat hook held and the baby was brought to the surface unharmed.

COUNCIL BARS PETS

Long Branch, June 9 (CP) — Long Branch citizens had better wait before they let their children buy rabbits or other such pets. Village council Wednesday night gave second reading to a by-law restraining citizens from keeping swine, cattle, mink, foxes and rabbits. Birds that crow also are taboo.

Veteran Newsman Of Toronto Tely Dies at Home

Toronto, June 10. (CP)— G. Wilfred Bowles, veteran newspaper man on the staff of the Toronto Telegram, died at his home Thursday. He suffered a stroke Tuesday and failed to regain consciousness.

He had been a member of the Telegram staff since 1910 and since 1936 was chief of the joint Star-Telegram Bureau at City Hall. The bureau is a staff of Toronto Daily Star and Telegram reporters who cover the police courts.

Mr. Bowles was born in Orangeville and worked for a time as a reporter on the Dufferin Post, the Orangeville newspaper. In succession he served the Brantford Expositor, the old Toronto Globe and then returned to the Dufferin Post as editor.

He left the Post to return to the World and then in 1910 moved to the Telegram.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

The Cross Revisited

By ROY L. SMITH

The story is told of a young business man, during the period of the War Between the States, who had been drafted into the Union army. According to the law then in force it was possible for him to be excused from military duty providing he could find someone who would serve in his stead. Such a man was found, somewhere in the community, and the young business man went on with his affairs as usual.

Then one day the word came back that the substitute had been killed in battle. Immediately a profound change came over the young business man. When he appeared upon the street nothing was sufficient to bring a smile to his lips. He moved among his neighbors saying nothing that was not absolutely necessary. He walked everday like a man under some overwhelming spell.

When it could be arranged he contrived to bring back to the community the body of the dead man. He purchased a beautiful site in the village burying ground and interred the body with the utmost tenderness and respect. Then he caused to be erected on the spot a dignified monument on which there appeared these words: "To the memory of The Man Who Died for Me."

Barrabas Appears

A preacher sat at his desk late one Saturday night in a painful effort to complete his sermon for the following evening. It was to be an Easter sermon, and he had announced that he would speak on the subject, "The Cross Revisited."

Something of the spell of the occasion had taken hold of him, so that he was unable to reduce his thinking to strictly logical terms. That which he had outlined in his mind originally as a good solid and substantial discussion of the theological aspects of the cross of crucifixion simply would not develop, try as he might.

Suddenly his fancy took wings and in his imagination he saw the shadowy figure of a huge hulk of a fellow, very evidently of the rougher sort, hurrying down the dusty highway at the close of the evening, quite evidently in a desperate hurry. He had just come to a sharp turn in the road when, there upon the crest of a low bald hill, he saw three empty crosses standing out against the evening sky.

Hardened fellow that he was, there was something about those three gaunt crosses that arrested his mind and left him standing, feet wide apart and arms hanging loosely, in the middle of the road. For a full minute he stared. Then, with a wild cry, he leaped from the road and cried, "That one was mine!" And pointing with a long bony finger at the cross in the centre he approached it slowly, as if in a spell. He was trembling now. Something like a palsy seized upon him and he sank into the thin grass as if stricken. All the time his lips moved, but no sound came from his throat. For some minutes he crouched, terrified. Then, pulling himself together in a mad frenzy of fear, he took one last horrified look at the cross, arose, and ran wildly across the hills. It was Barrabas, the robber, whose freedom had been purchased when Jesus had died in his stead.

The Sunday School lesson for June 12: "Jesus' Death and Burial," Matthew 27:57-61; Mark 15:15-47; Luke 23:26-47; 24:1-6; John 19:23-37.

Pilate Passes By

Scarcely had Barrabas disappeared across the hills when a Roman chariot rounded the arm of the little hill, and a high officer of the Empire, together with his wife, drove down the road in the direction of the crosses.

The woman was sobbing quietly, and the officer was staring straight ahead. As they drew near to the foot of the hill crowned with the empty crosses the woman chanced to look up for just a second, and the ghastly sight met her eyes. With a sudden intaking of breath she covered her lips with the fingers of one hand and clutched at her husband's cloak with the other.

"There! There!" she whispered hoarsely. There's where He died!" "Claudia," the officer exclaimed, wearily. "I've said it a hundred times. I didn't want to do it. Those Jews would have burned the city if I hadn't, they were that mad." "Oh, Pilate," the woman whispered, "I know. But I warned you. And this man had something like God about him. He did not deserve to die."

Is It I?

And as the procurator's chariot disappeared down the highway the preacher bowed his head upon his desk and prayed, asking God, "Was it not for me that He died? Forgive my complacence."

CROFTON

Crofton — Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boyer of Belleville, Mrs. Wm. Kellogg of Ajax and Mr. James Bleeker of Centerton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Luke at their summer resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Laforte and children motored to Toronto on Saturday and spent the day with their mother and aunt, Mrs. W. J. Gray and Mrs. Florence Rogers and other friends, returning home in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Morrison and Wayne, Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. B. Jones.

Mr. W. Salisbury motored to Toronto on Sunday and spent Monday in the city.

Mr. Amel Stevenson of Arnprior spent the weekend with his daughter, Mrs. W. Salisbury and Janet.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Alyea and children of Hillier were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bongard and Jerrold.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. John Gray with a very good attendance. Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Harvey Dainard.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Munro and Keith were tea hour guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vangesen at Glenora.

PURIFIES AIR

Electronic equipment has been developed to remove dust from the air by giving an electric charge to the particles which can then be gathered by an oppositely charged device.

Brighteners

Los Angeles — Yes, there are bad gnus.

Take Nefarious Ned for instance. Noting that Ned was becoming gnurotic, Chief Keeper Allen coaxed into his pen at Griffith Park Zoo's lovely lady gnu.

After proper introductions Allen left the gnusome to themselves.

Ned pawed the ground in welcome. His gnu girl friend pranced coyly around the pen. Suddenly she stopped and sniffed at a Brahman bull in an adjoining cage.

Ned apparently considered this a violation of his gnutrality. He charged and gored her twice, luckily not seriously.

Allen placed them in separate pens, opining that in a couple of days they'll be rubbing gnoses like any gnormal gnulyweds.

Glascoe — Archibald MacKirdy, 50-year-old business man, has chosen to go to prison here because he disagreed with the law on the meaning of a word.

He was found guilty and fined $8 for failing to stop his car at a road sign which said "Halt." MacKirdy argued that "halt" did not require a complete stop.

Rather than pay the fine, he chose to go to prison for 15 days as a martyr in what he described as "the interest of the public."

His wife said: "My husband is a very highly - principled man."

Newark, N. J. — John Taylor slipped on a rug in his third - floor apartment Wednesday. He slid right out a window and landed on the sidewalk. He escaped with some bruises.

Bedford, England — A judge at Bedfordshire Assizes had dreams of an island.

Not a desert island with waving palms and blue lagoons, but an island populated entirely by aged burglars and thieves.

Sentencing a 61-year-old hotel worker to six years' preventative detention for theft, the judge said: "On the kind of island I am thinking about there would be no escape for these old criminals. They could spend their lives quite happily burgling one another."

Marion, Ia. — On his 100th birthday, Jackson W. Bowdish, yesterday got an honorary degree from Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Ia., in lieu of the sheepskin he didn't pick up 77 years ago.

Bowdish, who was enrolled in old Cornell Academy from 1868 to 1872, left school when he got a job one month before graduation and didn't go back to participate in the ceremonies or get his degree.

President Russell Cole of Cornell made the presentation of the degree, that of Bachelor of Philosophy, at Bowdish's home here because Bowdish has been confined to a wheel chair for several years.

Elizabeth, N. J. — A female cat named Buddy is pretty rich as cats go.

She got a $1,000 legacy Monday under the will of her late mistress, Miss Georgianna Wilmer Kremm.

Miss Kremm left the money to provide for lifelong care for the nine-year-old tabby. Miss Kremm died May 19 at the age of 70.

London — Britain's state-owned general post office rates 70-year-old Arthur Peaston as a "temporary" postman. He has never been fully established in the civil service.

The temporary postman has:

Served with the post office for 49 years;

Walked more than 100,000 miles delivering letters.

Wisborough Green, England — Villagers here held an open-air service to pray for the rain which would save their crops. As they prayed, the rain suddenly came — so heavily that the service had to be completed in church.

Washington—The United States Army is making available about 3,000 surplus mine detectors for sale to local law enforcement agencies to use in searching for criminal evidence.

The electronic device will locate buried firearms, and even clothing. In fact, Fido's bone won't be safe.

LATTA

Latta — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Treverton were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Denyes on Sunday.

Misses Margaret and Ileen Carleton of Oshawa spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Carleton and family.

Mrs. Harry Harrison spent a few days with Mrs. James Arkles and family at Madoc.

The W. I. was held at Mrs. Clayton Hall's on Thursday afternoon.

Misses Margery, Patricia and Fern Baker of Bloomfield, spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Carleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Sills, Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Edmund Carleton, attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Harry Mullet at Crookston on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton called on Mr. and Mrs. N. Wilder on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Ralph Wilder spent Monday afternoon with Miss Annie Hamilton.

Deepest sympathy is extended to all sorrowing relatives of the late Mrs. Margaret Moult of Mt. Pleasant who passed away suddenly on Tuesday morning.

David Stanley Wilder spent Monday afternoon in Plainfield.

Appeal Against Judgment Has Been Dismissed

Toronto, June 10 — (CP)—An appeal against a judgment handed down last year upholding a discriminatory clause in a deed banning Jews, Negroes or members of colored races from Beach O'Pines summer resort near Grand Bend, Ont., was dismissed Thursday in the Ontario Appeal Court in written judgments.

The case arose out of the sale by Mrs. A. M. Noble to Bernard Wolf, London businessman. The judgment halted the sale.

The discriminatory clause is in the deed obtained by Mrs. Noble who asked a court order which would set the clause aside so she could complete sale of her property to Wolf for $6,800. The clause is effective until Aug. 1, 1962.

Mrs. Noble applied for a ruling that the restriction against Jews was illegal.

Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder upheld the clause as both "legal" and "enforceable" on June 11, 1948.

The property Mrs. Noble attempted to sell was part of an area which has been restricted since 1932.

Chief Justice Robertson summed up the issues involved in the appeal thus: "The question to be determined in this appeal is not whether a certain person is such a person as comes within the description contained in the restrictive covenant. The submission of the appellants is that the restrictive covenant is so uncertain in its meaning that it must be regarded as unintelligible and therefore void. The covenant should be declared void only if it is impossible reasonably to give it any meaning. I concur in Mr. Justice Schroeder's judgment on this point."

As to whether the restrictive clause was contrary to public policy, His Lordship said: "The purpose of the restrictive clause is obviously to assure in some degree that the residents are of a class who will get along well together. To magnify this innocent and modest effort to establish and maintain a place suitable for a pleasant summer residence into an enterprise that offends against some public policy requires a stronger imagination than I possess.

"I suppose that if, instead of saying somewhat bluntly that persons of certain race or blood are excluded, the covenant had said that only persons of specified race or blood should be admitted, nothing would have been said about public policy. There is nothing criminal or immoral involved; the public interest is in no way concerned . . ."

LANDS TROUT ON GUT HOOK

Fort Erie, June 9 (CP)—Using a gut hook for perch, Dick Brand of Fort Erie West, Wednesday caught a 26½ pound lake trout in the Niagara River near here. The fish, measuring 43 inches in length, is said to be one of the largest lake trout ever taken out of these waters.

VALUE TREBLES

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—Value of all Ontario field crops marketed in 1948 has more than trebled since 1939, G. F. Perkin, commissioner of marketing Ontario Department of Agriculture, reported this week. Total value of field crops was $369,349,000 while fruits, vegetables, potatoes, and turnips were valued at $79,960,000.

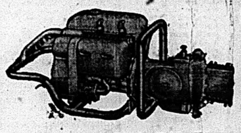
"PIONEER" TWIN
One and Two-Man Power Chain Saw



The New Powerful Light Weight Twin

Made with the same precision as the famous One-Man Pioneer Power Saw, the Pioneer Twin Cylinder Power Saw is the result of 10 years of experimenting and testing in co-operation with the man in the woods.

The I.E.L. Twin answers the need for a light weigh efficient power saw that is readily convertible from one man to two-man operation with ample power for both.

JUST IMAGINE, A TWIN-CYLINDER CHAIN SAW WEIGHING LESS THAN 45 LBS.

This saw is powered with the revolutionary Multi-Port engine whose outstanding efficiency has already been proven with the famous Pioneer One-Man Saw.

The Multi-Port Engine is a product of the experimental and testing laboratories of the I.E.L. engineering department specifically designed and developed for chain saw use.

Operators everywhere continue to be astounded at the dependability and efficient performance of this outstanding engineering achievement.

Standard one-man felling and bucking bars up to 4inches. Can be supplied with clip-on tail handle for two-man operation.

Dual finger tip engine controls and hand grips conveniently located for efficient one or two-man operation.

Twin-cylinder Multi-Port Engine—Perfect Balance—No Vibration.

Full 360-degree eight-position swiveling without putting the saw down.

The large cup awarded to the school with the highest number of points was won by Shannonville school No. 1 with a total of 69 points. This cup was presentey by Mrs. Kenneth Juby to Evelyn Loft as the school representative.

The ladies of the Home and School Association were in charge of the refreshment booth. Great credit for the success of this project is due to Mrs. Stanley McDonald, Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, Mrs. Ray Reid, Mrs. Kenneth Juby, Mrs. Herbert Brant, Mrs. Clifford Maracle and Mrs. A. Kilburn.

The teachers are to be commended on their efforts in preparing for this very successful meet. Messrs. William Slavin and Orvill Reynolds also deserve high praise for their planning and direction of the events. They were assisted by Miss Verna Fox, Messrs. Brant, Jack and Elgin Lougheed as judges and timers.

CENTENARY

Centenary—Rev. H. H. Hillis, Belleville, was guest speaker at Centenary Church on Sunday morning. He spoke as a representative of the Ontario Temperance Federation and chose as his text the 37th to the 39th verses of the 8th chapter of Romans: "Nay in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Mrs. Elwood Free and children, and Miss Baker, of Sunderland, spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ray.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hart accompanied Mr. and Mrs. G. Brenton, Corbyville, on a motor trip to the east coast.

Rev. H. H. Hillis had dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. Ray and family.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Garrison called on Mr. Samuel Kelly, Holloway, on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Edmondson and Mr. and Mrs. F. Edmonson and attended the wedding of their cousin, Mr. Lloyd Downey.

Centenary was well represented at the Sunday School Convention at Sidney Baptist Church on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Campbell, Stirling, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Garrison on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Woods and Dawn spent Sunday visiting relatives at Maynooth.

Mr. Rex Adams, London, called on a few neighbors in the community over the weekend.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Criminals on their way to be hanged in early England were presented with a glass of ale along the way.

Education Board Holds Regular Session

Stirling—Stirling Board of Education met in regular session at the High School on Monday evening with Chairman C. I. Hatton presiding, and Messrs. J. B. Belshaw, M. J. Black, H. Donnan, R. E. Fox, C. E. Macklin, W. Wright, R. A. Patterson and Dr. E. A. Carleton in attendance.

Following the adoption of the minutes of the previous meeting, Principal Wells gave a brief report on his attendance at the O.E.A. and thanked the members for the honorarium towards his expenses.

Shop Work

He reported on the inspection of the Shop Inspector who found the equipment and the work being done at the local schools in good order and expressed a wish that arrangements would be made in the new public school for teaching shop work.

Mr. Wells also made requistion for a quantity of cherry lumber, a radio and a record player, and permission to provide a special film for religious education. All requests were granted.

High School Needs

Principal Good submitted a list of High School needs which were granted and asked the Board for a settlement of the salaries of the High School staff in keeping with the schedule adopted by the Centre Hastings High School Area of which Stirling is to become a part. The allotment of study periods before the exams was left in the hands of the Principal.

The purchasing committee was authorized to purchase sufficient coal for the current year.

High School—David's Electric $8.34; Dominion Store $5.81; Telephone (2 months) $10.30; Stevenson's Ladies Wear $1.19; J. S. Whitehead $4.67; Munroe's Grocery $9.48; Bartlett's Grocery $15.38; J. L. Good $2.85; Gestetner Co. $36.16; J. C. McGee $2.65; C. B. Rollins $5.00; H. Francis $2.25; G. Noble $18.24; H C. Martin $9.47; H. Jones $15.50;; Hatton Hardware $133.53; Central Scientific Co. $14.81; Industrial Arts $6.00.

Teachers' Salaries

In the absence of H. R. Tompkins, Chairman of the Teachers' Committee, Dr. E. A. Carleton reported on the offer of re-engagement to the public school teachers. On motion the Board approved the action of the Committee and set a maximum of $1,850 for lady assistants.

Following a discussion on High School teachers' salaries the Board authorized the Teachers' Committee to adhere to the schedule of Area Board for September and December.

Four Directors Issue Statements Denying Charges

Montreal, June 10 (CP)—H. O. West, president of Canadair Limited, said in a statement Thursday night the company and its products "have been made the objects of the most virulent and unfounded attacks by Mr. George Drew in soliciting the support of the electorate of Canada."

Simultaneously, four company directors issued statements denying a charge made by Progressive Conservative leader in a campaign address in Fort William Wednesday.

The statements were made by Senator Peter Campbell, J.P.E. Collette, Vice-Marshal Frank S. McGill and Senator Adelard Raymond.

Mr. Drew was quoted as having said Trade Minister Howe had pursauded "some outstanding and highly reputable Canadian business men to go on the board of Canadair along with the representatives of the Electric Board Company" of the United States.

Mr. Drew charged that Canadian taxpayers took a heavy loss when Canadair's $22,000,000 plant here was sold to the American Company for $4,000,000. The company manufactures North Star aircraft whose performance has been criticized by Mr. Drew.

In his statement, Mr. West said: "It is not a part of the business of this company to enter into political controversy, and it has made every effort to refrain from doing so. However, certain statements which have been made and inferences created cannot be justified by political expeliency, nor can they be ignored, because they are unsupported by the facts, misleading to the public, and prejudical to Canadian industry including the company and its employees.

"The ill-considered, unfounded and damaging statements which have been made tending to impugn the character of the company, its officers, its directors and its products lead one to believe that Mr. Drew either ignores the facts or is engaged in a deliberate attempt to malign the company to serve his own political interests."

Senator Campbell said:

" . . . I would like to deny the charge made by Colonel Drew that any pressure was brought upon me or that any request was made to me by the Right Honorable C. D. Howe, or anyone on his behalf to have join the board of Canadair Limited, and I am sure this is the case with all other directors . . . "

Mr. Collette said: "It was with surprise and disgust that I read Mr. Drew's remarks in reference to Canadian directors of Canadair Limited having been told by Mr. Howe to take directorates without any knowledge of the nature of the company, and I strongly deny any such allegations . . . "

Air Vice-Marshal McGill: "I wish to strongly deny the statement of Mr. Drew to the effect that Mr. Howe or any other government official had anything to do with my joining the board of Canadair Limited."

Senator Raymond said: " . . . I must say that as far as I am concerned this is completely untrue."

Norman Banfield Tells Rotary of Childhood

Stirling—The weekly Rotary meeting was well attended on Tuesday night with 24 members and visitors present. The highlight of the evening was an address by Norman Banfield, a member of the Trenton Rotary club. Norman who is secretary of his own club and a very active member, certainly gave the members of the Stirling club something to think about as far as crippled children's welfare is concerned.

He told the story of his own life from the beginning to the present time and it was one to remind his listeners. His story told how as a child of a few months he was stricken with infantile paralysis and how through the generous support of a local service club, after nine operations he finally was able to go to a Boy Scout camp where he learned to walk at the age of twelve.

A little later in life he took a business course and, after never having been in school before graduated with a percentage of 89.25. Today he is undoubtedly one of Canada's finest citizens and besides his work as an accountant, he is devoting his time to furthering the work in aid of crippled children .

Guest present at the meeting included Orloff May, E Jones, Herb Smith, Percy McGuire, Don Sutherland, Arthur Bateman, Bill Gardner and Norman Banfield.

MELROSE

Melrose—Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLaren and boys were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Allison, Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Embury entertained their three daughters from Toronto over the weekend and holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fairman, Huff's Island spent Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffrey. Mrs. Fairman, mother of Mr. Fairman and Mrs. Jeffrey, who has spent the winter with her son and his wife, accompanied them to Melrose and will live with her daughter for the summer.

Mrs. Vernon Pascoe and baby Patsy have been with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Clapp for a few days since leaving Belleville Hospital.

Miss Marcia Blatherwick of Belleville spent Monday with Jean McLaren.

Members of Melrose W. I. are hosts to the other branches of the district for the annual meeting to be held in the United Church here on Friday. Plans have been made to serve the dinner in the same place. A large number of delegates and interested workers is expected.

Mrs. Fred Davis is visiting her daughter Mrs. Earl Sayers.

Mrs. Bob Miller and Marcia with Mrs. A. Blakley all of Madoc, spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Grant McLaren.

Mrs. H. Demille recently returned home from visiting her daughter Mrs. F. A. Robinson, 4th line.

W. M. S.

The June meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Milligan on Thursday afternoon with 11 in attendance.

The president, Mrs. McMeachan, presided using the program in Missionary Monthly the theme "Keeping the Lord's Day". Meditation was presented with the leader Mrs. McMeachan, and the leader Mrs. J. English.

In the absence of the secretary Mrs. G. McLaren, Mrs. C. Osborne read the minutes of the last mteting.

A letter of thanks and appreciation had been received from Toronto for the quilt and clothing sent for relief abroad. A letter of thanks from Mrs. E. Pascoe was also read for cards received from the W.M.S. secretary during her recent illness.

It was decided to send for the Blue Book.

The July meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. E. Badgley and the August and September meeting to be dispensed with.

In the absence of the group leader Mrs. Riley, Mrs. Bailey took charge with a reading "Keeping The Lord's Day", and also "One of the Great Missionaries," James Chalmers.

Offering $2.60, the card and flower fund was also received.

The hostess served refreshments at the close of the meeting and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Detroit Tigers Can Take Credit For Stopping Yankee Cakewalk in American Loop

By JACK HAND

Credit Detroit Tigers with stopping New York Yankees' cakewalk in the American League.

Casey Stengel's Yanks took a six-game lead into Detroit Monday. Now the margin is 3½, and sinking fast. Red Rolfe's Tigers have won eight of their last ten games.

Art Houtteman, a young man who nearly lost his life in a serious auto crash at Lakeland, Fla. in spring training time, did the latest job on the Yanks, a six-hit, 9-3 Tiger triumph Thursday. It was the Yanks' fourth straight loss, three to Detroit.

With Houtteman taking a regular turn now, Virgil Trucks (8-3), Hal Newhouser (6-5), and Freddie Hutchison (3-2) taking a regular turn, the Tigers rate as real pennant contenders.

Hoot Evers, was a one-man team Thursday. Evers banged out a triple, double and three singles for five hits. He scored three runs and drove in two more.

Connie Mack's Philadelphia A's also closed in on the Yanks, gaining third place, five games out of first, by edging Chicago White Sox 1-0 in 12 innings. Dick Fowler, the Toronto right-hander, won a tight duel with Bill Wight on a walk, Luke Appling's two-base error and an infield grounder.

What happened to St. Louis Browns? After losing 11 in a row, they finally copped a win over the Yanks in the second game Sunday and now have knocked off Boston three in a row. The total of four is their longest win string.

Finally Wins One

Dick Starr, a non-winner who had lost seven, finally made the win column with an 11-0 shutout over the Sox. It was the Red Sox' seventh defeat in their last nine games.

Brooklyn clung to that half game lead in the National by subduing Chicago 9-8 while both St. Louis and Boston won to remain right on their heels.

Ralph Branca was unable to stand the prosperity of a 9-0 lead. He was knocked out in the eighth when the Cubs scored five times in a futile effort to pull it out of the fire. The Dodgers wrapped it up early with a six-run blast in the second that routed their old jinx, Lefty Johnny Schmitz.

Howie Pollet, back in his 1946 form, stopped the slumping New York Giants with six hits, 4-1, as the Cardinals made it six straight wins and 15 out of 17.

Bob Hall turned back Cincinnati with seven hits as Boston romped home with a 10-2 decision. Southworth benched his "big" hitter, Bob Elliott, who has gone 0 for 20 in recent games. Tommy Holmes, returning to the lineup after a three-week stay on the bench, celebrated with two doubles and a triple.

Philadelphia Phillies squeaked past Pittsburgh, 4-3, in 18 innings, the longest game in the majors since 1946. Del Ennis' single, a double by Andy Seminick and Jack Mayo's fly ball broke it up in the 18th after Murry Dickson had hurled 11 scoreless relief innings.

GUIDED BY RADIO

Merida, Mexico, June 10 (AP) — A nine-foot long plane, marked "property of Army Air Force" was recovered Wednesday from the sea by a fishing boat. A gasoline-powered craft, it was found about two miles off Cozumel Island, on the east coast of the Yucatan Peninsula. The plane had a wingspread of only six feet. There was no evidence it carried a pilot. It apparently had been line-powered craft, it was found guided by radio.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"RIDE 'EM, COWBOY"

"Whipper Billy Watson, who's he?" snarled the towering Sandy O'Donnel giant matman of the land of the Arkansas Traveller when he heard that the popular Whip would take over the spot vacated through circumstance by Mike "The Body" Sharpe in the main wrestling bout at Memorial Arena tonight. "Seems to me I've heard of this young Canadian upstart who figgers he's some punkins at rasslin'" went on the big southerner from south of the cornflower state.

"At any rate bring him on. Reputations don't count and when I'm through with him tonight he'll be ready to learn the game all over again. The idea of putting a guy like that in the ring with me. I'll mow him down, sweip me your town will think an atomic bomb has hit it when I really get goin'". Modest bloke, wot. In any event the Whipper smiled behind the carefully groomed moustache as he went through the paces perfecting his Canadian Commando and avalanche holds that have sent so many aspiring candidates for the British Empire championship into temporary oblivion.

The Whip doesn't scare easily and he figures that with the O'Dennel raving about his prowess and strutting his stuff besides showing off his percheron torso and brahman bull buttocks, he "the Whip" will step in uninvited and whittle the O'Dennel down to his size.' There is no love lost between the pair and tonights main go should be of the sizzle, slam, and slash variety with no quarter given nor asked and everything in the calendar of wrestling available.

Tug Carlson, he of the Scandinavian moniker and physical appearances and who is a powerful wrestler besides, takes on the deep-dyed villain of the mat in the person of Wee Willie Davis in the semi-final. Wee Willie is an aggressive sort of bloke who cares not whether he uses a stilson wrench, a broad-axe, a baseball bat or a regiment of infantry as long as his desire for victory is attained. Well, we'll see what happens in this part of the show. In the preliminary two newcomers, Lovelock and Mihilakis clash and your guess is as good as ours as to what will be the outcome.

WATCH OSHAWA

Riding high on the crest of two straight victories and looking down on the rest of the pack, the Oshawa Merchants entry in the COBL, at the moment hotter than the south end of a firefly, will provide the main baseball feature over the weekend here. They meet the cellar-dwelling Batawa Shoemen at the Exhibition Grounds Saturday night under the kleigs and the game should go down in the archives as one of the best. It should, whether it does or not is another story.

Oshawa's new battery, pitcher Gingerich, and catcher Tyconny, who when at home get their mail somewhere in Pennsylvania, have found their stride and have paced the Oshawans to two straight victories over the 1948 champions from Peterborough. But the Shoemen, defeated them in a close 4-3 game in Oshawa at the team's last meeting and fully intend to repeat on Saturday night. Let's hope the Easton crew were only foolingj in that exhibition game against the Kokomo Clowns on Wednesday night, for they'll have to do a heap better than that if they intend turning back the Men 'o Tyson here come Sateve.

Manager Bill Easton of the Batawa crew has acquired himself a new pitcher, one Doug Mott, of Belleville who apparently has been hiding his flinging light under a bushel for some time. 'Twas news to us that the son of City Engineer Charles Mott was a pitcher but the Batawa maestro beat us to the punch. Mott pitched a good three innings against the Kokomos the other night in Batawa, but we have yet to see him in league competition.

We're not plugging Oshawa, although they need it, from a press point of view, but Batawa had better be on its best behavior Saturday night if they want to walk away with a victory. As we mentioned before the Tyson crew are hot and unbothered, and intend to increase that victory string at the expense of the Shoemen. And that means a neat bit of pastiming when we should be indulging in beans, brown bread and bath.

Manager Tyson will likely send his ace Gingerich back to the mound for his third victory while Bill Easton will, in all probability, pin his faith on the good right arm of Gordy Muffitt. Game gets under was at 8.30.

WHAT'S THIS?

"Hey boss look for maybe some fireworks in baseball circles in the immediate future, if not sooner. They's sumpin cookin', bud and it ain't the family spuds. Mebbe you'd better git out from under before the explosion comes, don't say I didn't tellya.

yours
Oscar—the office cockroach."

SATURDAY FUN

Soccer tomorrow brings together the Trenton and Northern Electric teams, but at the moment there is some doubt as to whether the Trenton management will be able to field a team. Watch this column tomorrow for definite info. On the baseball front Picton will be the guests of the RCAF Flyers at Trenton Air Station field in an afternoon game starting at 3 o'clock while Northerns trek to Trenton on the same mission. Tonight Point Anne goes to Napanee where they take on the Gibbardville crew in a twilight tussle.

Toronto Leafs Only Two Games Away From Top

By The Associated Press

Alex Garbowski, young shortstop of the surging Toronto Maple Leafs, is beginning to sock International pitching in the style that made him a standout in lower classifications the last three seasons.

Garbowski has been hitting a .406 gait for the last nine games. The lanky infielder's over-all mark is only .247 but he has picked up 35 points during the last week and has failed to hit in only one of his last nine games.

Thursday night he drove home six runs to lead the Leafs to 14-9 triumph over Baltimore Orioles.

Garbowski pounded a home run, triple and two singles.

Billy Glynn and Johnny Blatnik also homered for the Leafs who now have won nine out of their last 10 starts. Ed. Wright, with help from Jocko Thompson, picked up his seventh triumph.

The victory enabled the third-place Leafs to move within a game of the runner-up Buffalo Bisons and to within two of the league-leading Jersey City Giants. Both Buffalo and Jersey City divided doubleheaders.

The Giants split a pair with the fourth-place Montreal Royals, winning the second game 5-3 after the Royals grabbed the first 11-6.

Montreal started and finished with a bang in the opener scoring five runs in the first inning and six in the final. Oscar Grimes belted a two-run homer for the Royals and Fred Gerken clouted a three-run homer off winning pitcher Clyde King for the Giants.

West Westrum's 15th homer of the season with a man on in the seventh inning enabled George Bamberger to attain his seventh victory as against one setback in the finale.

The Bisons crushed the last-place Syracuse Chiefs 9-3 in the first game but bowed 3-1 to the two-hit pitching of Hank Perkowski, towering lefthander, in the nightcap.

George Byam drove home four runs on his fifth homer and a pair of singles to feature Buffalo's first game 12-hit attack.

Newark Bears edged Rochester Red Wings 5-4 to halt their three game losing streak and snap a three-game Rochester winning skein.

Bud Heslet's sixth home run of the year in the seventh inning proved to be the decisive run. Russ Derry poled his 14th homer for Rochester in the eighth in a pinch-hit role.

ANNUAL SMELT CATCH

In recent years total annual landings of the east coast smelt fishing industry have ranged between 5,000,000 and 7,500,000 pounds.

Alex Kellner, Hottest Mound Asset of Year

(By The Canadian Press)

The American League agrees today that baseball's Connie Mack is the luckiest guy in the business.

He may have bad luck, they admit, but he has gool luck too. The latest exhibit is rookie pitcher Alex Kellner, hottest mound-asset of the 1949 campaign.

The 24-year-old Kellner has won seven times for Philadelphia Athletics ,three from the league-leading New York Yankees. He's lost three and has appeared in a total of 12 contests.

At the season's start, Kellner didn't figure to stick long with Philadelphia. Then Dick Fowler, Phil Marchildon and Bill McCahan turned up with sore arms. Mack took a chance, pulled Kellner off his relief chores and converted him into a starter.

Tommy Henrich, hard-hitting mainstay of New York Yankees, was out of the line-up in the New York-Detroit game Thursday with a knee injury. Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees said at Detroit the outfielder hurt his left knee during a slide in Wednesday night's Yankee-Tiger game.

Stengel said he will probably bench Henrich Friday to give the knee a chance to get back in shape.

Fifteen countries have accepted invitations to take part in the Empire games at Auckland, N.Z., in February. The games are expected to be the biggest festival since their inauguration in Canada at Hamilton, in 1930.

Accepting are Canada, Australia, British Guiana, Ceylon, England, Hong Kong, India, Jamaica, Pakistan, Rhodesia, Scotland, Singapore, South Africa, Trinidad and Wales.

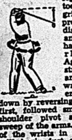
At Fairmount Park, Ill., Pete Watermolen, 63-year-old harness racing driver, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Thursday night when his horse fell and threw him heavily to the track. Driving Doctor Clardy in the conditioned 25-class pace, the veteran reinsman saw his horse stumble and fall about 20 yards after the field broke. Watermolen was knocked unconscious and was rushed to hospital where he was pronounced in fair condition.

Spud Worthy, handled by Bob Lamb, went on to win the race and returned his backers a $12 mutuel .

At Montreal, the touring Scottish International football team scored their second victory in as many nights by defeating Eastern Canada All-Stars 5-2 Thursday night before a crowd of about 10,000. The Scots blanked the Ontario All-Stars 2-0 Wednesday night in Toronto.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead



At the top of the backswing pictured at the left, the club is just a bit more than horizontal. Most of the weight is on the right leg, but the left toe still firmly grips the ground, providing the indispensable balance you must have to swing rhythmically. Again notice the straight left arm and fully cocked wrists. The player will start down by reversing the hip action first, followed smoothly by the shoulder pivot and the down sweep of the arms. The uncocking of the wrists in the downswing will begin just about the time hands are about hip-high in the downswing. If this player should start uncocking his wrists at the top of the backswing, the power the wrist action provides will be expended in mid-air long before impact, and the swing will be converted into a sweep rather than a snap when club meets ball. In the diagram, notice that the left foot is toed slightly out. And notice that the clubhead passes then slightly out across the direction line.—(Copyright 1949, John F. Dille Co.)

Mack Wearing Contented Look As Fowler Wins

Chicago, June 10 — (AP) — Connie Mack is wearing a contented expression — Dick Fowler's 12-inning, 1-0 victory over Chicago White Sox Thursday meant more to the Philadelphia Athletics than just another victory.

Mack said a week ago that Fowler — lanky Toronto righthander — was the "key man" in his pitching picture.

If the big boy could overcome the bursitis condition that gave him arm trouble last season and in the first weeks of this campaign, Mack said he felt the A's pennant chances were better than good.

Last Saturday, Fowler set down the Cleveland Indians for his second triumph against three losses — but Mack still wasn't certain the tall Canadian Army veteran was on the road to recovery.

Thursday night's performance was as good an indication as Mack can expect.

Fowler went the 12-inning distance, striking out three and walking two as he allowed the White host seven hits — the only extra base blow a double by first baseman Charley Kress.

But the big boy's performance in the pinches provided the greatest source of satisfaction to Mack and battery coach Earl Brucker.

Brucker feels this may be one of Fowler's best years — although he has a long way to go to equal his 1948 record of 15 wins against eight losses and an earned run average of 3.78.

Bought from Toronto Maple Leafs in 1941, Fowler left the A's to join the Canadian Army in 1943. He rejoined the Mackmen in 1945 and Sept. 9 of that year pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the St. Louis Browns.

DENY MOSCOW REPORT

Rome, June 10 — (Reuters) — The Italian Ministry of Defence Wednesday night denied the Moscow radio reports that the United States was building military bases in Italy. The ministry described as "completely devoid of any foundation" Russian allegations that Italian workers were being used to construct bases and that there were large numbers of United States servicemen in Sicily.

Shock Device Used to Take Trout Census

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 9.—(CP)—The State Conservation department is taking a trout census in northern streams by means of an electric shocking device which stuns fish.

The 1949 census shows that waters considered "fished out" or nearly barren of trout contain hundreds of worthy trophies that owe survival to their refusal to respond to lures.

It answers complaints of poor fishing by demonstrating that responsibility for poor catches usually rests with the angler, according to Dr. A. S. Hazzard, director institute for Fisheries Research.

The portable device consists of positive and negative electrodes thrust into water from five to 20 feet apart and fed an alternating current from generators operated by a gasoline engine. Electricity stuns fish to a depth of three feet and they are netted and counted.

MUST REPORT KILLS

Amendments to Quebec hunting regulations require that hunters report to game wardens within 15 days their kills of moose or caribou.

Theft of Life Savings Charged To Hamilton Men

Sarnia, June 10 (CP)—Charged with theft of the life savings of an elderly Petrolia widow, Alfred E. Fletcher, 34, and Harry Rockefeller, 30, both of Hamilton, were remanded until next Thursday for trial.

The two are alleged to have taken $2,500 in cash, six $100 Dominion of Canada Bonds, a brooch, a signet ring and brass knuckles from the home of Mrs. Thomas Polley, 63, at Petrolia last Saturday night.

Police got a break in the case when a thinly -wrapped parcel addressed to a woman in Vancouver, broke open in the London postoffice. Noticing the brass knuckles, officials at the post office checked the parcel and found money and bonds and jewelry which was later identified by Chief Constable Fowler as the missing goods.

Mrs. Folley told police the money, bonds, jewelry and keepsakes were kept in a cardboard box upstairs in her home and were found missing when she opened the drawer in which the box was usually kept.

The widow added that since the death of her husband five years ago, she had made a practice of keeping sums of money, bonds and valuables in the box which she kept in various hiding places around the house.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 10 (AP) — Eddie Dyer is keeping his Cardinals' line-up fairly stable for these days, when some manager's switch everything but the batboy's uniform to meet right—or lefthand pitching . . . But Eddie isn't opposed to such changes. He just doesn't have a team that would be improved much by switching . . . "Billy Southworth won the pennant last year by switching," Dyer says. "Most left-handed batters hit 50 points better against right-hand pitching than against southpaws . . . I say most of them—not fellows like Stan Musial . . . Up to last year Stan thought he wasn't as good against left-handers. He could hit them, but he didn't think he got as much power. This season it doesn't seem to make any difference," . . . Eddie, enthusiastic as he is about Musial, doesn't give Stan all the credit for the Card's spurt into the thick of the pennant race. "It's due," he said, "to three fellows starting to play ball at once—Musial, Enos Slaughter and Howie Pollet."

On The Nose

Last week Sam Clevenson of the Laconia, N.H., Citizen predicted that high school football and weight tossing star Bernie Lacroix might beat the State discus throw by 25 feet. The mark was 130 feet 8 inches. Just a day or so later, Lacroix won the State title with a 157-6 heave . . . Sam couldn't have come closer if he had measured it himself.

If Palestinian and Eddie Arcaro come home in the Belmont tomorrow, Eddie will tie Earl Sande's "modern" record of riding five Belmont winners.

Name Golfers Falter in U.S. Open Tourney

Chicago, June 10 (AP)— The United States open golf championship looks like Tom, Dick and Harry tournament after the first round with Les Kennedy, one of the lesser-known professionals, pacing the field with a two-under par 69.

Kennedy, 31-year-old Pawtucket, R. I., shooter, competing in his first open, posted his top ranking score Thursday afternoon after touring Medinah's treacherous No. 3 course, a par 36-35—71 layout.

Kennedy goes to the post for today's second 18-hole round with a one stroke lead.

Back in 1942, Kennedy was rated with Lew Worsham and Johnny Palmer as the three brightest prospects in golf. The last two went on to grab their share of honors, but Kennedy was banged up in an auto accident in which his wife was killed.

Kennedy, winner of the New England P,G,A, crown for three years in a row, had eight one-putt greens and chipped in from 20 feet on another to fashion his 69.

Bunched at 70 were a pair of "unknowns" in big time golf, Chuck Farlow of Greenboro, N.C., and Al Brosch of Garden City, N.Y., plus two big-namers, Chick Herbert and Herman Barron.

Two lesser-lights also were in the 71 bracket—Pete Cooper of Point Verda Beach, Fla., and Bus Peelle of Kansas City, Kas. With them were such illustrious fellows as 53-year-old Bob Cruickshank, Worsham, the 1947 winner;Palmer Claude Harmon, the 1948 Masters' titlist; and Ralph Guldahl, former Medinah pro whose feat of taking the open in 1937 and 1938 is still hot-stove talk.

Only straight hitting Barron and Methodical Palmer were among the favorites to follow script. Sam Snead dug out of the trees for a 73, Bobby Locke, Lloyd Mangrum and Byron Nelson needed 74. Veteran Gene Sarazen and Cary Middlecoff settled for 75s. Jimmy Demaret staggered in with 8, his worst round in years.

The forest caused most of the trouble. Demaret and Vic Ghezzi played tag among the oaks on the 580-yard No. 7 for ponderous eights.

Amateur Frank Stranahan, Canadian and U.S. amateur champ, fell into the also-ran class equalling Demaret's 82.

Palestinian or Ponder Picked For Belmont Race

New York, June 10 — (AP)— Paddock pundits pick Ponder and Palestinian for Saturday's Belmont Stakes, but long shot addicts are eyeing Sun Bahram — a dark horse, literally and figuratively.

The dark bay colt, by Bahram from Suntica, is bred ideally for the $75,000 - added fixture's mile-and-a-half distance, longest the current crop of three-year-olds has been asked to travel.

His parents passed along to Sun Bahram some of their noted route-running ability. Bahram won the 1935 Epsom Derby and Britain's triple crown.

He cost an American syndicate a reported $160,000.

Suntica, a triple Oaks winner in the United States, excelled at long distances back in 1932.

Sun Bahram's most important effort this year was his fourth in the Preakness of a mile and three-sixteenths.

Sun Bahram is owned by Mrs. Eben H. Ellison, Jr.

Pricemakers figure Sun Bahram about 8-1 in the Belmont. Ponder is rated a 6-5 favorite; Palestinian 2-1; Capot 4-1; Old Rockport 15-1 and Saint Nicholas 40-1.

HOW'S YOUR NEW HOME FOR SIZE, DEAR?
PERFECT! AND AS SNUG AS A BUG IN A RUG, TOO—THANKS TO MR. WOODPECKER
IN THE PAST, THE PILEATED WOODPECKER, OR "COCK OF THE NORTH," WAS HELD RESPONSIBLE BY MANY FOR "DESTROYING" TREES SUCH AS THIS—BUT WE NOW REALIZE SUCH A TREE IS DOOMED BEFORE THE WOODPECKER STARTS EXCAVATING FOR THE WORMS AND GRUBS THAT INFEST ITS DECAYING HEART
ED HUNTABLE

Woodpeckers protect trees by eating tree-killing insects. In addition, their discarded nests (woodpeckers make new nests every year) are used by tree-nesting ducks. These valuable game birds are likely to be scarce, where woodpeckers are scarce. Woodpeckers should be protected for the double role they play in keeping nature in balance.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 10. (AP)—Orson Welles' film version of "Macbeth" is getting rid of its Scottish accent.

Republic has started work on removing the burr from the Shakespearian speeches in the Welles film. The sound track is being recorded again and the picture is also being re-cut. Although made two years ago, the film has not been released generally. It was not well received after its preview here.

The problem is how to re-record speeches of Welles himself. Presumably the picture will be flown to Europe for that purpose.

Frank Fay and "Harvey" come to a parting of the ways in Vancouver next month. The actor and the six-foot rabbit have trod the boards for four years and nine months and Fay wants to get away from his pooka pal.

Cary Grant says he has no plans for an immediate vacation, although he won't work for the rest of the year. "I'm going to stay home and count my socks," says he. . . . . .

Lee Bowman and his wife may join the trek to Europe after he finishes "House by the River".

Capsule Review

"Sorrowful Jones" (Par.) is Bob Hope's first chance at acting. He does a fine job as a Broadway bookie who becomes the unwilling foster father of a little girl. Sprinkled between the warm story ('Little Miss Marker' was the original) are plenty of gags to keep up the laughs. Lucille Ball and Mary Jane Saunders give able help, although the sitter is no Shirley Temple.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A simple bidding system makes your bridge easy. It tells you in advance how many tricks are held by partner at the start. One trick is added for each raise in the last partnership number.

An opening one bidder shows a minimum of five tricks. He assumes two tricks in the hand of partner. Why? His own five and the two in partner make up the seven tricks required for a bid of one.

♠K Q 9 8 2
♥9 7 6

South can count a total of seven tricks in his hand. He has five high cards (aces, kings, queens) and two short cards in clubs. Each is counted as one trick when bidding in any suit.

His north partner responded with a bid of two hearts. The south hand has another biddable suit to show. It is in diamonds. This he showed on the second round with a bid of three diamonds.

North held a rebiddable heart suit. To show it he said three hearts when he made his second bid. South has support for a rebid suit in hearts and went to four hearts.

They thus arrived at a contract of four hearts. This requires the taking of ten tricks. Would you like to see if they have that many tricks between them? Count what their bids showed.

The south opening promised five. The north reply was a raise in number that used up a third trick. The south bid of three diamonds was a raise in number. It used up a sixth trick.

The north second bid of three hearts was not a raise in number. So, it showed no more tricks. All north has promised by his two bids is a total of three tricks.

South raised to four hearts. This used up a seventh trick. Total the seven shown by south and the three promised in north and you have the ten needed tricks. Kid stuff.

Shell Oil Crew Wins Thriller From Plumbers

A three-run rally by Howe and Hagerman in the bottom of the seventh just failed to catch the front-running Shell Oil crew last night as the oilers took a thrilling 8-7 win in the opening game of a Commercial Softball League doubleheader, played at the Alemite Field. In the nightcap CNR Nationals took a 14-6 victory from McFarlane's Woodenware.

The opener was a pitcher's duel from the start with Adams and Reid in rare form. The plumbers started their scoring in the bottom of the first frame, punching over three runs on three walks and two singles.

Shell Oil tied the score in the top of the third, sparked by pitcher Reid's lead-off homer to left field. Howe and Hagerman went one up in the bottom of the third when Tomaso, who had walked, scored on successive errors to the right fielder and the pitcher.

The Oilers went on a batting spree in the fifth with the first four men hitting safely, and subsequently scoring. Plumber hurler Adams pulled himself and Cook went in to relieve, retiring the side without further damage. The oilers added their final tally in the sixth with Miller scoring on Jones' double to left field.

A walk to Amo, a single by V. Murray and a double by Callaghan combined to give Howe and Hagerman three runs in the seventh in a rally that just fell short of overtaking the leaders.

Reid went the route for the winners, walking five, striking out five, and giving up six hits for seven runs. Adams started for the losers and in four innings gave up nine hits, seven runs and three walks, while striking out four. Cook went the rest of the way, giving up one hit and one run, to be charged with the loss.

Loose Fielding

Loose fielding and too many walks gave C.N.R. a lopsided win in the nightcap as they took advantage of McFarlane miscues to down Woodenware 14-6.

Both teams counted one in the first frame and played on even terms until the bottom of the third when two walks, two singles, and an error handed the Nationals four runs and a lead they never surrendered. The trainmen came back for five more in the fourth with Hurrie's three run homer being the pay off blow. Three errors put two aboard and counted one run for the C.N.R. squad in the fifth when Hurrie unleashed another homer to clear the bases and put the trainmen beyond reach.

McFarlane's, looking far from beaten, came back in the sixth to stage a four-run rally on singles by Marsh, George and McNally, and a home run by pitcher Baldwin. Woodenware counted their final run in the seventh when Galpin walked in Scanlon with two away. Peters flied out to deep centre field to retire the side with the bases loaded.

"Lefty" Day started for C.N.R. and in four innings set the opposition down with one hit for one run. He walked three and struck out two. Galpin came in in the fifth and in three innings was nicked for three walks, four hits, and five runs.

Baldwin went the distance for McFarlane's walking seven, striking out four, and giving up a dozen hits for 14 runs.

Big man at the plate was C.N.R. first sacker, Hurrie, with two homers, a double and a single in four trips.

Trenton Flyers Defeat Kiwanis By 18-12 Count

A first inning scoring spree by the Trenton Flyers under the lights at the Fair Grounds last night proved too much for the Kiwanis Juniors as the Flyers handed them an 18-12 defeat.

The Juniors battled hard to try and best the Trenton squad and in the eighth inning they pulled themselves within three runs of their opponents only to see them pull away with another three runs in the ninth.

Don Semark's finger seemed to affect his style of pitching and he was replaced by Bill Strachan after he had yielded eight hits and nine runs. Fred Titus replaced Martin on the Trenton mound in the first inning when Kiwanis threatened to tie the score.

Renaud led the hitting for the winners with a home run in the second and three singles. Dunning and N. Samain were able to run close on his heels knocking off two triples and three singles between them. Trenton were able to take the Kiwanis team for 20 good hits and gave up 15 hits.

Dave Lockyer was the best for Kiwanis in the hitting department with two singles and a triple. Bush took the only other long hit with a double in the eighth inning. It was also Locker's hitting that helped Kiwanis to pull up as much as they did as he knocked in five runs.

Bradshaw, Soules and Strachan were able to take the enemy pitchers for two hits apiece, while Semark, Galbraith, Dolan, Tom Schrieder and Bush were able to make at least one hit apiece.

J. Samain, Coursol, Zaleski and Maracle took two hits apiece while Barton remained the only one hitless of the whole squad.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had prooens for dizzert, and I said, Aw heck, wizzickers, prooens.

William, are you going to sit there idly and listen to him use that tone of voice about good wholesome prooens? ma said, and pop said, Now look here, young fellow, there's nuthing wrong with prooens that a little enthusiasm wont fix. The other evening I saw a movie that was prooens multiplied a million times. But some producer got so enthusiastic about the silly plot that the picture actually got made. So all you have to do is feel enthusiastic about prooens and by gollies they'll seem like the most fassinating little objects you ever got outside of. You'll feel like a butterfly sipping nectar, or maybe even like a hippoptamuss gargling ice creem. You'll feel yourself growing bigger and stronger and more brilliant with every prooen. It's just a case of enthusiasm. Give 3 cheers for every prooen you eat, and the victory is yours, he said.

G, do you meen 3 big cheers rite out loud? I said, and pop said, Yee gods, no. Three sincere but inaudible cheers to yourself, he said.

Aw heck, pop, that wouldn't be any more fun than just taking 3 berths, I said. Cant I yell them out loud just once and see what effect it has on the prooens? I said, and pop said, We maybe just once, in a subdued sort of way.

Now listen, both of you, ma said. I'm on the thin edge of a head ake, and I dont want to be deliberitly pushed over the verge she said, and I said, Well anyways, pop, why dont you try making yourself enthusiastic when ma wants you to go out and play bridge 2 nites in succession, like she wants you to do tonite?

Now that makes a little practical sense, ma said, and pop said, Benny, eat your prooens in dignified silence, and that'll be the end of it.

Which it was.

Canada Collects Books To Restock Looted Libraries

By ROD CURRIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, (CP)—Some 150,000 books, valued at approximately $300,000, have been gathered at the Canadian Book Centre here for distribution to needy European libraries.

"That sounds like a lot of books," said Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, director of the centre, "but there are hundreds of European libraries who could take our complete lot."

Since the Bureau officially opened in February, Canadians have been saving books and sending them here to be sorted and "screened" in preparation for shipment overseas. When all the books have been listed, the catalogues will be sent to European libraries upon request of the library heads.

"We are going to start by trying to help eight countries—Belgium, France, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Italy, Poland, Greece and Germany—she said "and then later on, we will try to extend our services.

"The letters we receive from foreign libraries, who were bombed or looted during the Second World War, are pitiful," said the librarian. "The need is terrific and we needy all the books we can get our hands on."

The books are being sorted so each library can order directly the exact type and class of books it most desires.

Mrs. Reynolds said: "Even though our big drive is over we still want all the books we can get our hands on."

Piles of Books

These books come from all parts of Canada and are donated by libraries, clubs, schools and from personal collectors.

The floors of the rectangular, bungalow-style building which houses the book bureau, are covered with cartons of books—text books, classics, dictionaries, books of knowledge and whole sets of medical and engineering journals.

The national central library at Nanking, China, reported a loss of about 400,000 out of its prewar collection of 500,000 volumes, and a London library lost its entire collection.

The hidden "treasures" which Mrs. Reynolds and her staff find in these books provide an interesting and diversive hobby.

Mrs. Reynolds has collected a fficient number of trinkets and momentos to cover one wall of her office. Included among her collection are three four-leaf clovers, a personal note dated 1866, hand-painted place cards, a photo of a group of Y.W.C.A. officers and a clipping of a 1909 New Year's party held at the Halifax City Home.

Mrs. Reynolds, who studied at McGill and Dalhousie Universities, said there are a number of very old volumes among the collection.

"We are keeping the very old books and Dr. William Lamb, the Dominion Archivist, has consented to look them over this summer and see if there are any of interest to the archives."

POLICE COURT

Pleading guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the Swift Canadian Company plant and office last March, Elgin Fawcett, formerly of this city, was given one year's suspended sentence when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today.

Fawcett had been in custody since June 3rd when he was brought back to the city from Port Dalhousie where he was apprehended by provincial police. He was ordered to pay court costs of $4.50.

Inspector J. C. Hayes stated the accused, with another man had entered the Swift Canadian Company plant and had stolen six pounds of butter, which had later been sold to raise funds to purchase wine.

Fred Gryce, city, appearing on a theft charge, had his case enlarged for one week. The Crown inticipated a plea of guilty and asked for the week's enlargement to bring witnesses.

Autograph Hound Still Pursuing Two Celebrities

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

West Wickham, Kent, England (CP) — George Morley, who has been collecting autographs for nearly 50 years, has more than 1,000 famous signatures—but there are two he cannot get.

They are those of Sir Thomas Beecham, peppery symphony conductor, and Field Marshal Lord Montgomery.

"I shall keep after them," Morley said, "and eventually I hope to get Stalin's, too."

Collecting is done by letter. Morley, a retired bank clerk, encloses a stamped addressed envelope with the letter and gives a short synopsis of the celebrities already in his collection.

In 1938 playwrite George Bernard Shaw replied: "Sell you album at once and leave your unfortunate contemporaries in peace."

"I was going to leave it to a London hospital," Morley said, "because I have no children to carry it on after I am gone. Now I may sell it instead."

The collection, begun by his father in 1851, consists of two large albums arranged in sections with photographs and biographical details beside each name. Royalty, dictators, sportsmen, soldiers, airmen, explorers novelists, dramatists, poets, painters and statesmen are all there.

Hitler Wouldn't Write

Some of the signatures were hard to get and many refused. Hitler refused, but Mussolin obliged and Franco sent an autographed photo of himself.

One of Morley's most treasured exhibits is a blotting paper imprint of Queen Victoria's signature secured by his father. Other treasures are:

A fragment of the score of La Traviata in Verdi's own handwriting; a postcard from Antarctic explorer Scott bearing a picture of his ship Discovery and Cott's signature; signatures of King George V., actress Ellen Terry, dancer Anna Pavlova, Toscanini, Tetrazini, Browning, Dickens, Kipling, Gladstone, Edison, and Rudolph Valentino.

Of most movie stars, Morely says: "There are far too many of them. They are famous today and nobodys tomorrow. I cannot keep up with them.

He criticizes bobby-soxers and youngsters who mob celebrities on first nights.

"They are a menace to the serious collector and give the hobby a bad name.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

It was a leather-bound thing given to her when she was 14, and it had a lot of rich entries dating spasmodically through her middle 'teens and even into her freshman year at college, but it was blanketed with dust now. Tenderly she wiped it clean. It was almost a holy thing with her. Respect for it stamped Polly as still a very romantic somebody at heart.

She could not have realized it in this quiet moment alone, but she was reverting back to younger girlhood again, grasping at something that often meant comfort or release for an emotionally upset young person who lived a somewhat lonely life on a ranch. The diary served, in truth, as a confessional. Suddenly she smiled at it—flash of maturity taking hold in her again—but she took up her fountain pen and began to write.

"It has taken another girl's love for him to awaken my own love," she confessed there. "I had thought myself past such things. A senior in college is not supposed to be as silly—" she stopped, crossed out silly and wrote "impressionable as a high school sophomore, but I love him more passionately than I ever dreamed I could love any man, and I may as well be honest about it to myself.

"I write it down here because I have to 'talk it out' some where and I have just seen another girl talk out her feelings to me. I wouldn't want to inflict myself on anybody! Not that it is unfair, or anything but sweet, really. But some of us like to keep sacred things to ourselves. Maybe we shouldn't. Maybe I too should take some friends into my confidence. It might make me feel better. But it would distress me, too. It is good just to write it. At least it helps me clear my thinking, which is really what I seem to need.

"I do not wish anybody to read this diary, ever. At least not while I am alive. But I hope if anyone ever does, please don't laugh, whoever you are. I hate people who laugh at beautiful things. No, I don't hate anyone, but I believe in—" she underlined those two words—" the beauty of certain ideals and standards and if you don't, you are to be pitied.

"Ken is not to be blamed if he falls for Joy. She is beautiful. She is sweet. I mean that! ("I may be horrible in my many ways but at least sneaking jealousy is not one of my faults.) I think Ken is a lot like Ward. He is big, and loves to work alone a great deal; and while he is awfully smart; I know he could be tremendously impressed by a glamorette. Joy has so many things. She is prettier than any movie lovely. She has so much confidence in herself, and yet can be as clingy and—" she paused here, fishing for a word—"and helpless like, as a little girl. Ken would fall for that. Any man would. I could use that technique but I won't! I never have tempted any man just because I am a girl, or led him on because I could play on his masculine instincts. I don't intend to start now. If Ken would only. If Ken could be made to see me and like me for what I am."

She was getting incoherent now having written herself out. She gazed off through a window for a quarter-hour. Finally she stood up. She gazed at her diary, smiled again self-consciously. But she put it away back in the drawer and locked it, then went outside.

The little session in private had done a lot of good, so that she ate lunch with more zest than she had expected to. She went then to confer with her mother and a mexican woman about hanging some new curtains in the bedrooms.

About 2 o'clock a motorcycle pop-popped out the road from town and a delivery boy brought a package to the ranch house door. Deliveries were not common this far out. Polly herself took the parcel, marked from the swankiest shop in Phoenix.

"It's addressed to me!" she announced, excitedly.

"What is it, dear?" her mother asked.

Polly undid the wrappings to reveal a belt of silver conchos, hand-tooled and dainty, Indian made. Each concho was set with a semi-precious stone from the western mountains.

"Moth-er! Isn't it beautiful! And it's from Joy. Joy Boone!"

The note with it was short:

"Thanks, to a real friend. Saw this downtown. Thought it belonged to you. Joy."

The little token, an expensive one really, set Polly's spirits up for the remainder of the day. That it had come from a girl now admittedly her love rival did not matter so very much. The gesture was sincere, and sweet.

Polly suffered alternate ups and downs of spirit over this week end; up when she contemplated Ken Palmer and what a whoolly earnest somebody he was, a scholar destined to go high in his profession; down when she realized with little black pangs of misery that Joy Kathryn Boone was making a play for that same Ken! She refused to consider details of her competition with Joy.

"I'll just wait!" she told herself. "Matters will have to take their natural course. I don't know what will happen. I only hope one of us doesn't turn out to be a heel!"

She realized intuitively, even though she didn't actually phrase it, that the gift from Joy had further tied her hands. Could that have been planned deliberately by Joy? A tactical move to restrain Polly on the basis of friendship? No! Polly was angry with herself for even thinking of it.

News had struck the Frontier University campus when Polly got there again Monday morning. A knot of girls, talking excitedly, was gathered around Administrative Building bulletin Board. An elaborately colored sign read:

FRESHMAN MASQUE

Hear ye! Ten nights hence the dead shall live! Collegians all shall revert to history, looking and living the parts of Grand Ones from the past! Civic Auditorium, Central Avenue and McDowell Road, 9 p.m. Reservations, $5.

That was, of course, the first big social peak of the autumn season for Frontier. The annual freshman ball, to be as tradition will it, a costume affair. Of course every Frontier girl was excited. Cowboys from nearby ranches, and cadets from the new aviation school, would furnish most of the escorts—already anticipation and preparations had been keen, and here was the date announced. Polly found Joy Boone bright-eyed with interest.

"Is it as grand as they say it is?" Joy demanded of her.

"The freshman ball is always marvelous, Joy."

"Swell! Come on with me, you old black-headed thing, and give your little sister some advice. Honest to john, Polly, you'd think I had never been around! Tootsy Carlson says I'm acting like a little country girl just come to town out here."

"Good! She wouldn't have you a jaded worn out city sophisticate would she?"

"No. And I'll never wear out—ha! I'm simply drippy with vitamin B! But seriously Poll, you've got to do me something!"

She had led Polly aside, for privacy. Her secretive air was just sufficient to arouse curiosity. She tugged, half shyly, at a leather button on Polly's gorgeous new wine-colored corduroy jacket.

"Listen, Poll," her voice dropped low, " about Ken—he's scared of his shadow around girls, you know that . I happen to remember that he doesn't dance. He told me so out at your house that evening of the barbecue. But I—oh Polly, he'd never ask me himself! Couldn't you kind of, uh, prime him for me?"

"P—prime him, Joy?"

"Sure! You know. Tip him off to ask me for a date. To the Freshman Masque. He could learn to dance meantime, learn enough. Oh please, Polly dear! I do want it so!"

Polly swallowed Her huge brown eyes seemed to go even larger, and she avoided looking directly at the lovely blond girl.

But, slowly she nodded. Friendship is friendship; a sacred thing. She moistened her lips; her chin threatened to tremble. She nodded again.

Anyway, Dr. Palmer had said Joy Boone's good will should be tactfully cultivated, for the possible ultimate benefit of Frontier U. If Joy who had too many millions and was very impulsive with her money should come to love Frontier as dearly as most of the girls, then the endowment fund --it was a crass way to look at it, maybe, but at least it was unselfish, and higher education was certainly a laudable thing.

Too, the thought helped Polly control her own emotions now.

She nodded agreement to Joy a third time. Joy, who was talking quietly but in vivacious, enthusiastic way.

$1,000 is Raised For Stricken Woman

Cooksville, June 9 (CP)—A carnival held by the business men of Cooksville, a Toronto suburb, to raise money for Mrs. William Belford, whose husband and two children were burned to death in a fire in their nearby Dixie home a week ago, netted a total of $1,000, officials announced today.

The money raised Wednesday brought the total raised by local residents for the family to $3,000, they said.

FULL-FLEDGED NATIONAL LABOR CODE

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 9 (CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said Wednesday night he favors a full-fledged national labor code but added that it could not be enacted without full agreement of the provinces.

"You must walk before you run," he said in a public forum sponsored by the Niagara Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce and attended by other candidates in Welland riding.

TWO MAXWELL BROTHERS PERISH IN HOUSE FIRE

Railway Workers Defy Govt. Demand To End Stoppages

Possibility All Lines Will Be Brought to Standstill

London, June 11 (CP) —Railway strikers today defied a government demand to end their "Sunday only" work stoppages on Britain's nationalized rail lines.

Engineers and firemen demand revised schedules which will not keep them away from home at night, went ahead with plans to halt their trains on north-south lines at midnight tonight for the fourth weekend in a row.

Meanwhile 49,000 London trainmen were called to a mass meeting Monday to decide whether to bring all London's surface and underground lines to a standstill. Railway union officials said any action taken would be unofficial and without union sanction.

In addition to the schedule changes demanded by engineers and firemen, the country's railwaymen seek a general wage increase of 10 shillings ($2) a week.

Labor Minister George Isaacs Friday night rejected a request by the railwaymen's union for government intervention in the strikes. He drafted a reply to the union calling for its immediate withdrawal of support of the Sunday stripes.

Isaacs was scheduled to make a country-wide broadcast on the situation later today.

Communique Issued

After a hurriedly-called cabinet meeting Friday night, attended by Prime Minister Attlee, a brief communique was issued which said that "a report on the railway situation was received." and that "the position at the Liverpool and Avonmouth docks was under consideration."

Some 10,000 dock workers at Liverpool and Avonmouth have been on strike for several weeks in support of the Canadian Seamen's Union.

The C. S. U. is involved in a dispute with the ship owners over the signing of contracts with a rival union, the Seafarer's International Union.

In reply to the railwaymen's request for government intervention, Isaac said that while the strikes continued, the assistance of his department could not be made available.

"I must therefore ask your executive to give me without delay an undertaking that as far as they are concerned Sunday strikes will stop," he added.

Presence of service ministers at the cabinet meeting indicated that more troops may be used to overcome dislocation caused by the rail and dock strikes.

U.K. CONSIDERS ARMS SHIPMENTS TO ARAB STATES

Bunche Claims Embargo Still in Effect When Asked His Opinion

Lake Success, June 11 (CP)—Britain is considering resumption of small arms shipments to Arab states, informed sources here and in London said Friday.

United Nations officials said British representative Sir Alexander Cadogan called on the U.N.'s Palestine mediator, Ralph J. Bunche to ask his opinion. Cadogan is understood to have told Bunche his government feels the recent armistices Israel signed opened the way for the lifting of the U.N. arms embargo.

These informants said Bunche answered that, in his opinion, the arms embargo is still in effect.

Cadogan is said to have pointed out that Britain has contracts to supply arms to some of the Arab countries and that the countries involved are pressing for delivery.

A British spokesman said "a decision has been reached or will be reached shortly to send a limited quantity of small arms" to Iran and Trans-Jordan "for internal use only." This, he said, would follow the precedent set by France recently in sending small arms to Syria.

The spokesman said Britain felt such action would not violate the U.N. cease-fire since neither the type of arms nor the quantity would be of a nature to jeopardize peace in the Middle East.

In London, sources close to the Israeli delegation said resumption of any sort of arms shipments to the Arabs might gravely interfere with the already-deadlocked Arab-Jewish peace talks in Lausanne, Switzerland.

These talks bogged down on the frontier-refugee question. Arab states refuse to discuss Israel's boundaries until something is done about the Palestinian Arabs —estimated 800,000—who fled their homeland when the Israelis took over.

The Jews refuse to discuss the refugees' plight until the question of the new state's boundaries is settled.

Roller-Coaster Rider Plunges 54 Ft. to Ground

Toronto, June 11 (CP)—Jarred from his seat in a roller-coaster Norman Murray, 17, plunged 54 feet to the ground Friday night and survived. Officials at the West-End Sunnyside Amusement Park said Murray and three companions had been riding the roller-coaster for nearly an hour before the mishap.

Doctors said the youth suffered a broken jaw, deep cuts and the loss of five teeth.

One of his companions, Stanley Rame, said Murray had been sitting in a seat with a friend, Myrtle Atwell. Murray reached over to put his arm around the girl and fell over the side, Rame said.

"I was talking to Norm one minute, then he was gone," Rame related. "It felt as if the roller-coaster was going 90 miles an hour.

"I heard Myrtle scream. But none of us knew what happened. Maybe Norm stood up a little and lost his balance. One minute he was there. The next minute he wasn't."

GUNFIRE MARKS C.S.U.-POLICE CLASH IN B.C.

Several Seamen Hurt, Bloodied in Skirmish

(By The Canadian Press)

Gunfire marked a fresh outbreak of violence in Vancouver Friday as the Canadian Seamen's Union strike against the Shipping Federation of Canada entered its 11th week.

The west-coast action, during which two rifle bullets just missed a squad of police, brought the strike back into the headlines almost a week after the Communist-led C.S.U. was suspended by its parent body, the Trades and Labor Congress.

Forty officers held a C.S.U. force at bay while a crew from the rival Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) boarded the freighter Rockside. A policeman was knocked off his feet and several seamen were bruised and bloodied during the skirmish.

Also from Vancouver came a report that the C.S.U. had offered to settle the strike in that port on the basis of interim agreements reached with the captains of two vessels, the Triport and Lakeside.

Meanwhile, there were reports of shipping operators' troubles abroad being cleared up, except in the United Kingdom where 10,000 dock workers are out at Liverpool, Avonmouth and Bristol.

Unloading of ships at these three ports, many with perishable foods, is at a virtual standstill. The dockworkers' stoppage was called in sympathy with the C.S.U. strike.

The C.S.U. ordered the strike March 31 when Canada's east-coast operators signed a working agreement with the S.I.U.

Court Ruling Clarifies Will Of Brockville Man

Toronto, June 11 — (CP)—A court ruling Friday clarified the 33-year-old will of William Henry Comstock, Brockville manufacturer.

The court was asked to determine whether shares in the Comstock Co. Ltd., transferred to three daughters and to Mr. Comstock's widow, were vested in them absolutely.

Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder ruled that they were not. The will stipulated that the daughters were to receive "only the dividends from the shares during their lifetime and during marriage for their separate use, free from the control of any husband."

The daughters are Mrs. Esther Lee Langmuir, Toronto, Mrs. Wilhelmina Henrietta Brownfield and Mrs. Griswoldene Chaffey Lewis, of Brockville.

Stratford-on-Avon is More Shrine For Visitors than Centre of Industry

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Stratford-on-Avon, Eng., June 11 (CP)—This is Shakespeare's home town, but as no precise survey of the tourist industry has been made, no one knows what Shakespeare means to Stratford in tourist revenue.

Some estimate it at £25,000 ($100,000) in a busy week. Others say the figure is higher.

Whatever it may be, Stratford remains unspoiled by the thousands of tourists who go there every year. For every fake piece of history there is a real Tudor cottage with quaint leaded windows and bulging seams, or a crooked archway with a garden behind where a sundial marks the passing hours.

Stratford still is more a shrine than a centre of industry. People speak of the house where Shakespeare was born as the Birthplace, and they say it with an air of reverence.

A writer recently described Stratford as "a mixture of Shakespearian experts and people whose history is charmingly jumbled."

This is evident from the legions of theorists and research workers who throng the ancient town, offending the true Shakespearian with new and novel findings. Many for instance are willing to believe that Shakespeare's plays were written by almost anybody but Shakespeare himself.

Those who believe Bacon wrote Shakespeare are numerous, but there is another group, headed by a Stratford schoolmistress, who claim that Anne Whateley — his sweetheart before he married Ann Hathaway — was part author of many of Shakesepare's sonnets and even had a hand in the writing of "Othello."

They argue that Shakespeare applied for a license to marry Anne Whateley one month before he married Ann Hathaway and that the former was a "constant source of inspiration" to the poet.

Members of this group travel the countryside combing whole libraries for evidence that will support their theory. Whether they succeed or not matters little to the hordes now invading Stratford from all parts of the commonwealth and beyond. The majority are satisfied that the sole author of Shakespeare's works lies sleeping beside the River Avon in Holy Trinity churchyard.

Mayors Approve Establishment Fund of $250,000

Quebec, June 11—(CP)—Mayor George C. MacLean of St. Boniface, Man., Friday was elected president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and municipalities, which ended is week-long convention today with election of officers and the passing of two resolutions.

Mayor MacLean succeeds mayor Lucien Borne of Quebec, who remains on the national executive as honorary president.

Venue for the next year's convention is Saskatoon, Sask.

In an effort to curb need of relief unemployment and "loss of morale to families" in the event of large scale unemployment, the convention adopted a resolution saying the federal governments should be asked to prepare now "a program of desirable public works that could be proceeded with, if, as and when a condition of acute unemployment arises in any part of the country.

Thursday the mayor approved a $50,000 establishment fund to back up a vast program of action for the coming year.

Total amount of the new federation fund is to be paid by municipalities over a period of five years.

Mayor Borne explained the money would go to furnish the municipalities with specialized technical services on municipal problems. He said this would lead to "substantial economies."

The mayors adopted the view that municipalities should preserve their characteristics as public bodies elected by the people and responsible only to the people.

The administration of schools, municipal police and elections should remain under the control of the local population and its representatives.

The mayors adopted a resolution proposed earlier, requesting the federal government to institute a department of municipal affairs directly.

They decided that provincial taxes on gasoline and auto drivers should be shared with the municipalities. They also thought that tax exemptions enjoyed by government properties was unfair to municipalities and deprived them of legitimate source of revenue.

The mayors were in favor of any convenient solution to the housing problem and added that it was a federal, provincial and municipal matter.

Pork is Scarce, Prices are up

Hamilton, June 11 — (CP) — Local meat wholesalers and retailers indicated Friday that pork prices in Hamilton have gone up an average of 10 cents a pound in the last 10 days, while beef has had a more moderate jump.

A survey shows pork chops were up from 59 cents a pound to 69 cents. Beef was up a nickel, while T-bone steaks, selling at 68 a week ago were now 75 cents per pound. Other prices he listed were: side bacon, up 10 cents to 68; cooked ham, up from 93 to $1.10; back bacon, formerly 85, now 95; and peameal bacon, up from 69 to 85.

Dealers said pork tenderloin had jumped from 90 to $1.10 and $1.15. One dealer reported his prices had gone as high as $1.35.

JAGUAR TERRORIZING PASSENGERS IS SHOT

Las Palmas, Canary Islands.—June 11 (Reuters)—Marine authorities boarded the Belgian steamship Christian Sheld on her arrival here today from South America and shot a jaguar which had escaped from its cage and terrorized passengers.

The jaguar was one of a collection of wild animals for northern Europe the Christian Sheld was carrying.

The captain had radioed advance warning to Las Palmas Friday saying the jaguar was at large on the ship.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, June 11 (CP)—Synopsis: A very warm weekend is forecast for most of Ontario. Warmer air reaching the province from the southwest will bring increasing humidities today and Sunday.

Scattered thunderstorms occurred Friday night through Ohio and Southern Indiana. Thunderstorm activity is expected over Northern Ontario again Sunday evening but for the remainder of the province the end of the dry spell appears remote.

ONE MENTIONED IN SPY TRIAL TAKES OWN LIFE

Former State Dept. Aide Found in River

Washington, une 11 — (AP) — Police said today that one of the men mentioned in the Judith Coplon trial Friday had committed suicide here last week.

He was Morton E. Kent, 48, Chevy Chase, Md., whose throat-slashed body was found floating in the Potomac River last Saturday. District Coroner MacDonald pronounced the case a suicide.

Kent was a Harvard graduate er State Department aide. Top-secret documents of the F.B.I read at the Coplon espionage trial Friday said he had been in contact with Russian secret police.

Kent was a Harvart graduate and spoke nine languages. He joined a private firm here five years ago after working for both the state and labor departments and for the Board of Economic Warfare.

Detectives who investigated his case said they were positive his death was a suicide. He had rented a boat, and several persons saw him canoeing near the Three Sisters Islands.

Two hours later his body was found. A cheap kitchen paring knife was found at the water's edge the next day.

Contact Named

The F. B. I. data listed George Dimitrov Sotirov, a Bulgarian now employed as a clerk by the United Nations secretariat, as the agent for the Russian intelligence service Kent contacted.

At the time of Kent's death, his wife said he was depressed over loss of his job. A company official said Kent was discharged because "we were merging our export division."

He said Kent had been checked on by the F. B. I. on several occasions "because of his contacts with foreign embassies."

Fourth In Year

The Kent death was the fourth in a year of men whose names had been mentioned in official espionage inquiries.

Laurence Duggan, former State Department aide, died in a 16-storey plunge from a New York office building. Shortly afterward Representatives Karl Mundt (Reep. S.D.), then a member of the Un-American Activities Committee of the House of Representatives and now a Senator, disclosed that Whittaker Chambers, acknowledgeed former courier for a wartime Red spy ring, had listed Duggan among his information sources.

Harry Dexter White, former assistant secretary of the treasury, died of a heart attack last August a few days after denying testimony by Elizabeth Bentley that he was one of her sources of wartime secret information. Miss Bentley said she was an agent of the Soviets at the time.

W. Marvin Smith, Justice Department employee, plunged to death down a Justice Building stairwell after he was named as the notary who witnessed papers in the sale of an automobile that has figured in Chambers' accusations against Alger Hiss, former State Department official. Justice Department officials attributed Smith's death to personal affairs and said it had no connection with his routine action as a notary.

A second paper read in court Friday told of a fantastic red spy ring which indulged in nudist sprees, the report said this ring had two agents working inside the United States Army's intelligence section at the Pentagn in 1946.

Members of the ring allegedly threw wild all-night parties for co-operating army and navy officials in a hideaway in Arlington.

When court adjourned for the weekend defence lawyer Archibald Palmer had made public all or part of 12 F. B. I. reports and snatches from another 18.

RAIL STRIKE ENDS

Tokyo, June 11 — (AP)—An electric railways workers strike, which tied knots in the transportation of 1,000,000 commuters ended today on orders of occupation officials. The walkout began Thursday in a row over the firing of 19 union officials from their railway pobs. Occupation authorities insisted that communists were back of the dispute.

John Dies Making Futile Effort to Rescue Younger Brother from Flaming House

Parents, Two Other Brothers Escape in Night Clothing

Nineteen-year-old John Maxwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Maxwell, 24 North Park Street, gave his life in a vain effort to save his 13-year-old brother early this morning when fire swept through their home at the corner of North Park and Donald Streets, just outside the city.

The parents and two other brothers, Jerry 23, and Ronald 16, escaped from the fire which gutted the Maxwell residence and forced another family in the double house to escape in their bed clothes. The fire started shortly after two o'clock this morning.

The mother of the two dead boys was first to notice the fire. Ordinarily a very sound sleeper she woke up to smell smoke and investigating found an adjoining summer kitchen completely ablaze.

Mother Gives Alarm

She went back to the bedroom and wakened her husband and then ran downstairs to phone in the fire alarm and warn Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rothwell who, with their children lived in the other half of the house.

In the meantime Mr. Maxwell wakened the four boys sleeping upstairs. Jerry and Ronald escaped through an upstairs window onto the roof of a verandah from which they jumped to the ground but the two boys who lost their lives followed their father downstairs and apparently attempted to escape from the house through the kitchen where they were trapped.

"I think Glen must have darted out into the kitchen and Jerry went after him to try and save him," stated the distraught mother. "I still can't realize the two boys are gone."

She said Mr. Maxwell had escaped through a living room door at the foot of the stairs instead of going through the kitchen.

Flames Block Entrance

When it was realized that the two boys had not come out of the house the father and 23-year-old Jerry attempted to go back into the burning building to find them. Flames blocked their entrance.

Origin of the fire is unknown but Mrs. Maxwell stated it apparently started in the summer kitchen at the back of the house. She said the fire spread with great rapidity and it seemed only five minutes after the flames were discovered until it was impossible to get into the house.

Mr. Maxwell, an engineer with the C.N.R. had come home from work at midnight and had gone straight to bed. Ordinarily he went to the ice box in the summer kitchen to get a bite to eat before going to bed. The Maxwells have lived in Belleville nine years.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance stated the fire alarm had been rung in at 2.45. A second alarm was turned in ten minutes later. When firemen arrived already flames were shooting out through both upstairs and downstairs windows and were spreading across the verandah roof over which the two Maxwell boys had escaped.

20 Firemen Respond

Twenty firemen answered the alarm with off-shift men resorting to the fire halls. Two pumpers and two ladder trucks were rushed to the fire.

"We went all out to save the building as there was danger of the entire going", stated the fire chief. "However, we were greatly hampered by the lack of water pressure and even with the pumpers the pressure was still low."

The bodies of the two boys, found lying several feet apart in the kitchen, were badly burned, the fire chief stated.

John Maxwell, the elder of the Maxwell boys who lost his life in the fire, was just completing high school and intended to go to normal school next term to study as a teacher. He was a midshipman with the local sea cadet corps.

Glen, who died with his brother in the kitchen of their home, attended Prince of Wales School where he was in grade VII. He was also a member of the sea cadets.

Fire Chief Vance was of the opinion that the two boys must have attempted to go through the kitchen only to find their way blocked with flames. Then it appeared they must have attempted to run through the fire to the door only to be struck down.

No Clue to Cause

Mrs. Maxwell could offer no suggestion as to what might have caused the fire. There were few electrical appliances in the summer kitchen and the hot plate had been turned off since early evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell are staying with a married daughter, Mrs. J. Whalen, 86 Chatham Street. Another daughter, Shirley, was not at home at the time of the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rothwell and their two daughters, Joan 14, and Elinore, 10, and son Lawrence, 6, occupants of the other half of the duplex dwelling, are staying with friends in Point Anne.

The Maxwell half of the dwelling was gutted and the roof damaged, while the roof of the Rothwell section of the house was considerably damaged. The house is owned by Charles Ketcheson. Cedar Street.

Firemen ran 2200 feet of hose in four lines to bring water to play onto the flames. Fire Chief Vance stated the reason for low water pressure which hampered effort of firemen may be the small water main constructed recently by Thurlow township to serve the area.

Stupor-Producing Drug Aiding In the Treatment of Alcoholism

Atlantic City, N.J., June 11 —(AP)—A stupor-producing drug is aiding in the treatment of alcoholism, the American Medical Association was told Friday.

The idea, said two Seattle physicians at the closing session of the A.M.A.'s 98th annual meeting, is this:

In the trance-like state produced, the patient can still talk, and he is interviewed by a doctor seeking to learn the real reasons why the patient began hitting the bottle in big-league style.

Then, after learning "salient points in his alcoholic history" the doctor gives the entranced patient "strong suggestions against alcohol and toward correction of faulty habits of thinking."

Work with the drug — called "pentothal" — was described by Doctors Frederick Lemere and Paul O'Hollaren of the Shadel Sanitarium for the treatment of alcoholism at Seattle.

They said it was an effective aid in the treatment of heavy drinking associated with nervous tension.

Their report was bared on a three-year follow-up study of 479 patients treated with pentothal alone or in combination with a "conditioned reflex" treatment.

The researchers said that 58 per cent of the patients followed were still on the wagon after three years.

The doctors said some patients cannot stand the drug at all, and some others develop an abnormal desire for it—akin to their craving for alcohol.

WEST OFFICIALS EXPECT NEW MOVE FROM VISHINSKY

Diplomat Thinks Talks Will Not End at Close of Next Week

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

Paris, June 11 (AP)—Western officials look for a new move by Russia when the council of foreign ministers reconvenes Sunday.

Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia asked before adjournment Friday that no meeting be held today. His western colleagues agreed to the Russian diplomat's request.

A Russian press officer was asked why Vishinsky wanted an adjournment until Sunday afternoon.

"He wanted the day off, that is all," was the answer.

Western officials speculated that Vishinsky, after consulting with the Kremlin, might make a move that could change the course of the Paris conference.

They noted these aspects of Vishinsky's call for a one-day recess:

It came soon after State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States warned that the days of the conference were numbered unless Russia gives ground.

Secondly, Vishinsky's request was made immediately after the conference reached a near-deadlock on three German issues before the council. These were four-power control in a politically- and economically-reunited Germany; Berlin and the currency question, and preparation of a German peace treaty.

Vishinsky explained his request merely by saying he was going to be "busy."

The United States has insisted that the foreign ministers meetings adjourn at the end of next week.

A senior east-European diplomat, however, told a reporter: "I don't think the conference will end next week."

Lombardo Halts Start of Trials To Break Record

Lake Placid, N.Y., June 11 (AP).—Guy Lombardo today delayed the start of his attempts to break the world speedboat record in Henry Kaiser's boat, Aluminum First, because of a defective propeller shaft on the boat.

The orchestra leader-speedboat driver held up the trials over a mile course on Lake Placid while a new shaft was being flown in from Detroit.

There was doubt whether it would arrive in time to be installed for trials today.

If not, Lombardo, a native of London, Ont., plans to try Sunday to shatter the mark of 141.74 miles an hour set 10 years ago by the late Sir Malcolm Campbell in his Blue Bird.

JOSEPH H. KNOTT RETIRES FROM C.N.R.

Joseph H. Knott, for 22 years an employee of the Canadian National Railways, retired from the company's service, Thursday, June 9.

Mr. Knott has been on holiday since May 20. Just before leaving on his vacation he was presented with a sum of money by Walter Morris, a fellow employee on behalf of his co-workers. Mr. R. Babb, Locomotive Foreman, spoke briefly at the presentation.

Mr. Knott started with the C. N. R. in March, 1922, as a cleaner. He was transferred to a travelling pipe fitting gang as a pipe fitter's helper in 1935, and came to Belleville in October, 1942, to work as a machinist's helper, in the motive power department.

LIBERAL MEETING HELD AT HILLCREST

Residents of Thurlow township and Hillcrest attended a Liberal meeting in the interests of Frank S. Follwell at Hillcrest School on Friday evening. The meeting was also addressed by George Jordan, president of the South Hastings Liberal Association.

Mr. Follwell in his address stressed the need, that every eligible voter sees to it that they register their franchise on election day. He urged that if the voter wanted to protect family allowances, increased old age pensions, progressive labor legislation and the new health plans, he should support the government now in power. At the conclusion of the meeting, the assembly enjoyed a dance and a delicious lunch served by the women of the community.

HEALTH EXPENDITURES

Cornwall, June 11 (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario said here Friday the total expenditure on health in Ontario this year—including a federal government grant of $5,00,000 of $6,000,000—will amount to more than the total provincial budget of 25 years ago. Health expenditures will total $31,000,000 this year, he said, and "we hope to have eventually the finest health service in the world."

Cementmen Lose To Napanee Squad By 12-6 Count

The Point Anne Cementmen fell one rung lower on the Belleville District Baseball League ladder last evening when they were victims to the Napanee Lions 12-6 in Napanee.

The Lions capitalized on two walks, and five hits, one a double by Jocko, in the third inning to pour over six runs for a lead they never relinquished. Lead off man Vern Green, who walked, came home on a wild pitch in the first frame to start the scoring for the Lions.

Mallory counted a single run for Point Anne in the second frame. Bob Strahan engineered a triple play for the cement crew in the second inning spearing Burtt's liner to second base, doubling Hayes, and throwing to first to nip Murphy.

Napanee counted twice in the fourth on four errors and wound up their scoring in the eighth with two more on three errors.

Point Anne got one in the fifth—two in the sixth and two in the seventh. The Pointers left eight men stranded on the basepaths.

Line up—Point Anne—Genereau, M. Green, Elliott, Mallory, Maracle, Bennett, Strachan, P. Green, J. Green.

Napanee—V. Green, B. Green, Gerow, Jocko, Markle, Hayes, Murphy, Murphy, Burtt, McTaggart, Hooper.

Abbott Predicts 60 Quebec Seats For Liberals

Fredericton, June 11 — (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott predicted here Friday that the government will win 60 seats in the province of Quebec and make a clean sweep of all seven of Newfoundland's seats in the June 27 federal election.

Mr. Abbott made no prediction on the result in Ontario, but he told a Liberal campaign meeting here his colleagues had assured him that the party would regain traditionally Liberal ridings in the western part of the province.

The finance minister said the C. C. F. probably would take some Toronto seats, but that the party would suffer losses to the Liberals in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Abbott termed as a "bluff," the description of "an election promise" given by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, of this year's budget.

"We have brought down our budget," he said. "We have put the tax reductions into effect, and when we are returned they will stay in effect."

Corbys Win Weird Softball Contest From Engineers

A ten-run stretch drive in the last three innings just fell short as Provincial Engineers fell victim to Corby's last evening in a weird 17-16 ball game played at the Alemite Field.

The Engineers had the tying run on third with two away in the ninth when pinch hitter Farrar struck out to give Corby's the victory.

The game was a weird assortment of errors and heavy hitting that at times had the fans thinking that neither team wanted to win particularly if they could help the opposition to score. However, the numerous errors sharpened tempers on both teams and it was only stern discipline on the part of the umpires that prevented a major flare-up.

Provincial Engineers opened the scoring in the top of the first scoring four runs on two errors, a triple by Ed. Donovan and a home run by McGuire. Corby's got one back in their half of the first. Engineers tallied a single run in the second. Corby's took advantage of two errors to St. Dennis, Baldwin's single and a triple by Moon to score two runs in the second. They added four more in the third on three hits and took a big lead in the fourth counting three on three hits, one a two-run homer by Harold Reid.

Runs Pour Over

Engineers added one run in the fifth while Corby's came back for a brace of counters in their end of the fifth. They poured over four more in the sixth on three singles and a double and wound up their scoring with one in the eighth.

Pitcher Baldwin was put out of the game in the sixth with two away for interfering with a base runner and Hunter came in to relieve. He was nicked for seven hits and ten runs in the last three frames but managed to keep the win intact. Baldwin went five and two-thirds innings, walking one, striking out five, and giving up five hits for 6 runs.

Bawden went the distance for the Engineers, walking three, striking out four and giving up 16 hits for seventeen runs, in front of some shoddy fielding on the part of his mates.

The line-up:

Provincial Engineers: F. Donovan, lf; St. Dennis 2nd., replaced by Burley in 4th.; Gallagher ss; E. Donovan cf; McGuire c; Watson 3rd.; Hanna 1st.; Carr rf; Bawden p. Carr batted for Hanna in 9th.

Drew Runs Into Heckling by Communists

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Timmins, June 11 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Friday night ran into communist hecklers.

Just as he rose to begin a speech at a political rally here, a group of alleged Labor - Progressive party workers hung a large cloth sign over the balcony of the meeting hall, reading: "Remember iron-heel Bennett, defeat Drew."

Someone in the crowd shouted, "Give 'em hell, George" and "Go after them boy." A girl in the crowd shouted: "You haven't a chance."

Mr. Drew retorted, "That little voice is exactly representative of the strength of that organization."

"That tiny handful of communists should go back to Russia and stay there," he added.

The sign was pulled in less than two minutes after, it was hung out.

Mr. Drew commented: "That sign didn't disappear any more quickly than the communists will when we form a government after June 27."

Near the end of Mr. Drew's speech, some one yelled: "What about 1932."

Mr. Drew replied: "There seems to be one small voice still here that would rather have troubles than dollars in this country."

BOY SEVERELY BURNED

Toronto, June 11 (CP).—Said to have hit a power transformer with a stone from a slingshot, Garry McRae, 11, was brought here Friday night from Stamford Township, near Niagara Falls, for treatment for severe burns suffered when the transformer exploded. The blast cut off power service on rural lines served by the Decew Falls System.

MARGARET INVITED

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 11 — (CP) — Mayor William L. Houck, Friday night cabled an invitation to Princess Margaret Rose to visit this honeymon centre if she comes to this continent. A similar invitation was cabled by Mayor William R. Lupton of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. MATTIE M. GEROW

The funeral of Mrs. Mattie Minerva Gerow, late residence, 51 Dundas Street east, was held Friday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville cemetery was conducted by Archdeacon the Ven. Arthur Smith, Rector of St. Thomas' Church.

The bearers were Harry Allan, George Duesberry, Fred Bly, Claude Thompson, Frank Belnap and Laurel Gerow.

MISS M. MAUDE REID
(Claresholm, Alta.)

As quietly and peacefully as she lived, Miss Margaret Maude Reid, aunt of Mrs. E. Moffatt passed to her reward Tuesday evening at Claresholm, Alta., on May 3rd. Her death was unexpected as she had been quite well until Sunday. Although of a retiring disposition, she had many friends in the Claresholm district.

She was born in Shannonville, Ont., Feb. 24, 1872, and came west 40 years ago to make her home with her sister, Mrs. Tillotson. An ardent church worker Miss Reid devoted much time to the endeavors of St. John's Anglican Church when it was first established in Claresholm. She travelled to many Southern Alberta points with the staff of the School of Agriculture, judging cooking and baking exhibits at the school fairs. She maintained her interest in young people until her death. Her hospitality, kindliness and goodwill will long be remembered by the members of the Air Force and their families who found a home at Moffatt's during the war years.

Besides her niece Mrs. E. Moffatt, and a nephew Mr. Earl Reid of Claresholm, several nieces and nephews survive in Eastern Canada.

The impressive funeral service was held Friday at 2:30 p.m. at St. John's Church with Rev. Mr. Flagg officiating. Numerous floral tributes were in the chancel and covered the casket. "The Sands of Time Are Sinking" and "Rock of Ages" were sung. The mourners present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Moffatt, Mr. and Mrs. K. Strader, Mr. and Mrs. J. Moffatt of Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. G. Moffatt of Fernie, Mr. D. Moffatt of Kingston, Ont., Mrs. E. Dickson, Mr. W. Moffatt of Blairmore.

Pallbearers were Keith Lambrose, Stanley Wyatt, Wesley Reid, W. Rice-Jones, W. J. McKenzie, E. Dickson. Burial followed in the family plot.

MRS. CHARLOTTE E. GREEN
(Frankford)

Frankford, June 11 (Special)—The funeral of Mrs. Charlotte Eliza Green, widow of Harrison Green, was held on Wednesday afternoon from the Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford, to Trinity Anglican Church where service was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. A. J. Anderson, who also said the committal prayers at Frankford cemetery.

The bearers were Alex. Wannamaker, Norman Weese, Delbert Rose, George Nicholson, Earl Morrow and Wesley Wallace.

F. S. Follwell Attends Series Of Lib. Meetings

At meetings held recently Frank S. Follwell, Liberal candidate for South Hastings, spoke briefly to residents of Belleville, Deseronto and Stoco. Mr. Follwell spoke mainly on the record of the Liberal Government.

Speaking at a dance held at Wensley's, Herchimer Ave., he stated:

"No other country has given her veterans the opportunities they have secured under the present government. Family allowances, Unemployment Insurance and Old Age Pensions were instituted by the Liberals."

Mr. Follwell also stated that he was in favor of additional housing, increased hospital grants, better social service and a new health scheme.

The Liberal candidate was also guest of honor at a social evening held on Thursday in the Parish Hall, Stoco.

Assault Charges Are Dismissed Against Officers

Toronto, June 11 (CP)—Charges of assault against three Toronto police officers were dismissed Friday by Magistrate Thomas Elmore.

Chief Constable John Chisholm laid the charges after Douglas Tolmie, 32, accused Sgt. William Kelso and Constable Joseph O'Rourke and John Payne of beating him up last Feb. 14.

The magistrate said he did not believe Tolmie's testimony and was impressed with that of the three officers.

Tolmie said he was beaten up when officers arrested him on an assault charge. He won an appeal against his conviction on the assault charge. Friday he reiterated his claim that he had not resisted arrest but admitted he had struggled with the officers.

WHAT WAS INSIDE?
An unlabeled bottle . . . a prescription container with the number defaced . . . an envelope with a few loose tablets, perhaps passed along by a friend. Often your pharmacist is confronted with these clueless exhibits and asked by customers to guess what these medicines were, and to supply "some more of the same."
Pharmacy is a science that cannot be pursued by guesswork, nor by smelling, tasting or looking at unidentified substances. When you request a medicine and give merely a vague description—or present an unlabeled bottle—you are asking your pharmacist to introduce an element of chance into his professional work. He has no choice but to refuse, for your safety is far more important to him than just another sale.
Labels should be protected; containers kept; prescription numbers carefully preserved, if more of a medicine is likely to be needed or your physician wishes the prescription to be refilled. Then, your pharmacist will be glad to help you. But he will not take chances or guess. By declining to take such chances, he is acting in the interest of your safety and your health.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

GLADIOLUS

THE PRONUNCIATION AS ACCEPTED BY THE AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY IS GLAD-I-O-LUS AND THE PLURAL IS THE SAME. IT IS DERIVED FROM THE LATIN WORD Gladius, MEANING SWORD AND WAS FORMERLY KNOWN AS THE SWORD LILY.

MODERN GLADIOLUS VARIETIES TOTAL NEARLY 3000 IN NUMBER. COLORS RANGE FROM VERY DEEP PURPLE TO THE MOST DELICATE PINK. THE PRIMULUS TYPES ARE HIGHLY RECOMMENDED. THEY COME IN PASTEL SHADES POISED ON LONG SLENDER STEMS. THEIR ORIGIN IS THE TROPICAL FORESTS OF AFRICA NEAR THE GREAT VICTORIA FALLS. THEY WERE FIRST COLLECTED ABOUT 50 YEARS AGO.

AUGUST IS PREËMINENTLY THEIR MONTH. THEY SHOULD HOLD AN IMPORTANT PLACE IN EVERY GARDEN BECAUSE OF THEIR RICH COLORS, EASE OF CULTURE AND THEIR VALUE AS CUT FLOWERS.

PLANT FROM EARLY MAY TILL LATE IN JUNE. IF PLANTED AT TWO WEEK INTERVALS THEY MAY BE ENJOYED FROM JULY UNTIL FROST.

PLANT IN GROUPS IN THE SHRUB BORDER, ALONG A ROUGH STONE WALL OR AMONG PERENNIALS. IF PLANTED DEEP THEY SELDOM NEED STAKING. GLADIOLUS COMBINE EFFECTIVELY WITH MANY GARDEN FLOWERS.

CUT WHEN THE LOWER FLOWERS ARE OPEN, THE SPIKES WILL BLOOM COMPLETELY IN WATER. ARRANGE IN SIMPLE POTTERY VASES OR BASKETS AND CHANGE THE WATER DAILY.

COMBINE WITH FLOWERS THAT ARE LOOSE IN FORM AND NEUTRAL IN COLOR.

CULTURE

GLADIOLUS STEMS GROW FROM A CORM WHICH SHOULD BE PLANTED FROM 3 TO 6 IN. DEEP ACCORDING TO SIZE AND 6 IN. APART. BULBS REQUIRE RICH, WELL-DRAINED LOAM WITH OCCASIONAL APPLICATIONS OF COMMERCIAL FERTILIZER. GENEROUS WATERING AND CULTIVATION WILL ASSURE THE FINEST BLOOMS.

BULBS SHOULD BE DUG IN THE FALL AFTER A HEAVY FROST. DRY, THEN SEPARATE THE NEWLY DEVELOPED CORMS FROM THE OLD BULB WHICH MAY THEN BE DISCARDED. STORE THE NEWLY FORMED CORMS IN A FROST PROOF CELLAR. PLACE IN OPEN CONTAINERS FULL OF BARELY MOIST SAND OR PEAT MOSS.

THRIPS SOMETIMES CAUSE DAMAGE. A SIMPLE TREATMENT IS ONE OUNCE OF NAPTHALENE FLAKES TO 100 BULBS. APPLY AT THE BEGINNING OF STORAGE AND ALLOW TO REMAIN THREE TO FOUR WEEKS. THIS WILL EFFECTIVELY CONTROL THRIPS WHICH ARE THIS FLOWERS' WORST ENEMY.

CONSULT YOUR SEEDSMAN OR NURSERYMAN FOR THE FINEST VARIETIES.

PRICES ARE REASONABLE AVERAGING ABOUT .75¢ PER DOZ.

WHEN CUTTING LEAVE FOUR LEAVES UNTOUCHED IF POSSIBLE. IF THRIP OR APHIS APPEAR DUST OR SPRAY WITH THE NEW D.D.T.

CORMS THAT ARE 1¼" UP IN SIZE ARE RECOMMENDED FOR GENERAL GARDEN USE.

GLADIOLUS IN SOME OF THE NEWER VARIETIES GROW 5 FEET TALL WITH BLOSSOMS 6 INCHES ACROSS. IT IS REALLY AND TRULY A SUPER FLOWER

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

PHILADELPHIA VIREO

"Just listen to that Vireo, Alice. What's the matter with him? He doesn't sound natural."

"No I don't believe it is our Red-eyes at all. It must be a Philadelphia Vireo. The bird books say something about them sounding similar. Let's look them up."

The girl found that they were correct. This Vireo was less emphatic, singing in a leisurely manner. Also his voice was unusually high pitched. But another difference was particularly interesting. Every little while this fellow doubled a low note, as if stuttering, and then slid up to quite a high note. Each time this happened it sounded exactly the same, and was something the Red-eye never did.

"So we've discovered a new species to add to our list Alice remarked happily.

The Philadelphia Vireo could be heard a great part of each day, but it persisted in remaining in the very top branches of the tallest trees. Fully a week passed before it could be seen enough to note particulars. Then all doubt as to its identity was banished. This was the smallest Vireo they ever come across, so must be less than five inches long. Like the Red-eye, it was greenish grey, with no wing bars; but underneath it was even yellower than the Red-eye is in autumn. It had light eyebrows. When binoculars were used, a dark spot was quite visible near each eye. This was an important distinguishing mark.

The pair certainly lived nearby, but the nest was too high to be located. According to all information given in the books this was natural. It should be pensile, placed between forks of a branch, and made of strips of bark, a kind of moss called usnea, and plant fibres. There would be three or four white eggs, spotted with dark around the large end.

The Philadelphia Vireo is badly named, because its breeding ground is in Canada, or just over the American border. Coniferous woods are generally, though not always, the best places to look for one. There are some good reasons why hardly anything was known about this birrd until 1884, and few people are yet acquainted with it. In appearance, it might pass for a warbling Vireo; the song, except to a trained ear, could come from a Red-eyed Vireo; and its home is situated so high up in the thick foliage that bird and nest are constantly hidden from view.

Presbyterians May Increase Pay of Ministers

Kitchener, June 10. (CP)—Presbyterians across Canada will decided within the next few months whether salaries of their ministers are to be increased.

A new salary schedule was put before the church's general assembly Thursday in closing stages of its 1949 meeting. But the assembly left the decision to the Presbyteries, the regional councils of the church. If two-thirds of the presbyteries favor it, the plan will go into effect by next Feb. 1, to the extent that money is available to meet the pay raises.

The present minimum salary is $1,800 a year. Several delegates expressed the view during the nine-day assembly session which ended Thursday night that low salaries are discouraging young men from entering the ministry.

Under the new plan, the basic minimum would remain at $1,800, plus use of a manse or provision of a rent allowance. In addition, up to $300 a year would be paid to enable a minister to operate an automobile and there would be other supplements depending on length of pastorate, length of service in the church and pension fund payments. Special grants would be made to married ministers, with extra allowances for dependent children.

The church's board of administration would supervise the plan.

A change in the name and affiliation of the church's committee which deals directly with rural activities was suggested but the general assembly took no action. Rev W. S. Sutherland of White Church, Ont., asked that the committee on rural needs be renamed the committee on rural life and that the committee be made separate from the Board of Evangelism and social action.

HUNT BEARS

Blind River, June 10 — (CP)—United States fishermen holidaying here are leaving their fishing tackle in camp. So many bears are reported in the district that the "fishermen" prefer bear hunting and in the last four days nine bears have been shot near here. One man shot a 325-pounder, the largest kill reported.

Whitehall Notebook:

Sloppy English Used in British House Arouses Criticism of Member

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 9 (CP)—Parliament is looking for a simple, straightforward word which means the same as "have under surveillance."

Henry Strauss, one of the most spirited back-benchers in the House of Commons, set the search in motion. In a committee debate on the National Parks bill, he moved an amendment to substitute the word "watch."

He said the phrase it would replace was incurably woolly."

Lewis Silkin, Minister of Town and Country Planning, replied he didn't like either the original or the substitute. He said he will try to find a suitable verb to make the meaning more exact.

Passion for Precision

Strauss, a tall, dark-haired man with a passion for precision in language, withdrew his amendment. But first he rose and smote his fellow members with a lecture on English.

"It is difficult to find a sentence which breaks every rule laid down by the authorities for the writing of good English," said the Conservative member for the English universities, "but here the draughtsman has succeeded in doing so."

He quoted five rules for writing good English:

"Prefer the familiar to the far-fetched, the concrete to the abstract, the single word to the circumlocution, the short word to the long and the Saxon to the Renaissance."

The phrase "have under surveillance" broke all these rules.

Strauss, 57, is a tireless scholar—he obtained high honors at Rugby and Christ Church, Oxford—and a tireless crusader for better English.

In an election pledge, he said: "I will try by lectures and writing to encourage the use of decent, simple and straightforward English, and to arrest the corruption and debasement of our language."

Jargon Jars Him

He carried out the pledge. A constant critic of official "jargon" and gobbledycook, he was quick to point out that when the government spoke of export targets being in danger, it should have said the targets were not in danger themselves, but in danger of not being hit.

He also objected to the phrase "over-all target". It would be pretty difficult for anybody to miss if they really had an over-all target, he said.

His classic criticism involves a paraphrase of one of Winston Churchill's phrases. Would the response have been the same, Strauss asks, if Churchill had said:

"Donate us the implements, and we shall finalize the assignment."

Given Sentence For Theft of 160 Beetles From Museum

London, June 10 — (Reuters)—Elphinstone Gilmour, 26-year-old member of the Royal Society of Entomologists, today was sentenced to three months in prison for stealing 160 beetles from the London Natural History Museum.

A selection of beetles, the largest the size of a crab and the smallest just visible with the naked eye, were shown in court.

It was said in evidence that Gilmour, who pleaded guilty, was first suspected when the museum authorities read an article by him describing a beetle in his collection which the museum believed unique in its own cabinets.

44-Pound Salmon Caught in Gaspe

Montreal, June 10 — (CP) — It could be that Tot Morgan of Montreal is in a 1949 class by himself as a fresh - water salmon angler.

In Montreal his wife had the chore today of having a 44-pound salmon carved up after receiving it from Mr. Morgan who caught the salmon on the Grand Cascapedia River in the Gaspe last Monday.

Eleven years ago, fishing the same river, Morgan's angling chum Alex Learmouth landed a 41-pounder which outweighed anything Morgan caught. This time he suggested to Mrs. Morgan, when he expressed the fish to her, that Mr. Learmouth would be an able man to cut the 44-pounder up — and doubtless suffer some pangs of envy at the same time.

DROUGHT DOESN'T BOTHER

Brantford, June 11 — (CP) — Ontario's drought doesn't bother G. H. Edge in Brantford township. His crop of rye, planted on an old river bottom, stands nine feet high in places and most of the grain tops six feet.

Says Farmer Pinned By Tractor Strangled Self to End Agony

Red Creek, N.Y., June 10. (AP)—A farmer pinned by an overturned tractor strangled himself with twigs to end his agony, a coroner's physician reported.

James Jenkins, 52, was cought Thursday beneath the machine when it tipped over backward while hauling a mower up a steep hill in an orchard. The tractor seat crushed his abdomen.

Coroner Charles Single said Jenkins apparently grasped twigs from a nearby bush, placed them around his throat and strangled himself.

FOREST FIRE RISKS

Woodland fires are destructive of much of the wealth of the country and Woodland World this month warns that "risk of forest fires will reach a new peak this summer because the weather will be hotter and more thundery" than usual. Since lightning causes about 20 per cent of forest fires, the situation becomes all the more alarming."

This warning is given by Frank Edwards, Woodland World's weatherman, "whose prediction that the 1949 fire hazard would be earlier and higher is borne out by the costly rash of fires this spring."

Besides the normal danger of fire in the woods is the scientific fact as stated by Edwards, that "increased radiation from the sun is on the upgrade. The kind of weather they've had in the southern hemisphere is headed this way. In Australia around Christmas it was insufferably hot and dry with severe thunderstorms."

The warning therefore comes to everyone who goes out into the woodlands to make sure that every precaution is taken to prevent a fire starting from a match or unquenched fire.

SWIMMING SEASON'S DANGERS

Summer is drawing very near and already the appeal of the waters is heard. At such a time it is particularly of importance to draw attention to the swimming season which all too often is marred by water tragedies.

The time is very near when schools will be out and the exodus to the haunts by lake and river will have begun where there is in the very freedom which goes with the season and spirit which is apt to make some children and adults less careful than at other seasons of the year. This is natural because at this time, everyone feels the liberty of the outdoor life which calls to be enjoyed to the fullest—but with ordinary care to avoid accidents.

Summer brings often a toll of loss of life through drowning that it is well to call to mind the risks that attend bathing in places as the bather may not be familiar with the conditions of the depth of water, the nature of the bottom at the place of bathing where there may lurk danger from jutting rocks or unsuspected deep holes.

There are some rules it is well to follow for protection of oneself and others. These include:

The selection of a safe swimming place, where there are no obstructions, dangerous currents or undertows is necessary for safety.

Care in watching for signs of warning is needed.

Bathers should not rush into water after a meal; rather they should wait for an hour or so before they enter the water. This will give the opportunity to cool off before one begins to exert oneself in the water and throw extra strain in the human system.

Bathers should not overdo their exercise in the water. They should realize they have limits to their strength and use their swimming ability as their guide how far they can go from shore with safety.

Swimming alone is unwise. It is far better to bathe with others so that if anything should happen, there would be help at hand and some one to give the alarm for help. Besides swimming in groups is much to be desired as creating more opportunity for real sport and enjoyment.

Swimmers are advised to avoid water in a thunderstorm and when they are tired.

When children are in the crowd at a beach they naturally require close watch lest they go into deep water.

If there are craft on the lake or river it is necessary to take every precaution against being struck by boats. Bathers are admonished to stay out of the water where there are motorboats.

Everyone should be careful, avoiding risk at all times. The person who is apt to be careless throws a burden on others, perhaps obliging them to go to his rescue through recklessness or thoughtlessness in getting into water beyond his depth. Such carelessness may make bathing dangerous for others.

About boats there is necessary ususual care to avoid upsets, or falling into the water.

CROSSING PLACES

The one thing the motorist can scarcely completely guard against is the hen-like propensity of many pedestrians suddenly to scuttle backward or forward — but preferably backward — after starting to make a crossing. If walkers would use legal crossing places and drivers would remember that at these places the person on foot has the first right there would be far fewer intersection accidents involving pedestrians than there are now.—Montreal Daily Star.

JUNE BRIDE

Sweet bride of June! Your wedding day,
Which once had seemed so far away,
Has come at last,
The dreaming passed,
And now there are the vows to say.

So young, so beautiful to see
In all your wedding finery,
'Tis joy and pride
To be a bride,
But there are happier days to be.

You're lovely now, but lovelier still
Will be the roles that you may fill
As time goes by.
The first faint cry
You hear your baby make will thrill.

God grant you grace with added years
And softer charms when age appears,
But still above
All else are love,
A joyous home, and faith for tears.

OFF THE RECORD

"I thought it would be more appropriate if in the baby's room you used crayon instead of paint."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 11th., 1929.

Mr. Harry R. Moorman has been appointed General Sales Manager of the Riggs Motor Sales. His many friends wish him great success in his new undertaking. Mr. Moorman is a member of the Radio Quartette and is widely known and popular and is well experienced in business affairs.

Mr. John Elliott of this city was guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club.

Mr. Charles E. Hanna of this city was re-elected second Vice President of the Eastern Ontario Retail Merchants' Association at a meeting in Kingston recently.

A majority of the members of the County Council enjoyed a ride yesterday afternoon in Mr. Walter Aselstine's fine new bus which will operate between this city and Tweed.

30 YEARS AGO

June 11th., 1919.

An interesting game of baseball was played on the high school grounds between the Leafs and the Tigers; the final score was 1 to 11 in favor of the Leafs. W. Strachan and Kerr were the stars for the Leafs and A. McAlpine and J. Jeffery were the Tiger stars. The following composed the teams: Leafs, W. Strachan, C. Kerr, D. Ketcheson, C. Bryant, T. McArthur, H. Townsend, C. Ketcheson, H. Lewis and A. Bell. Tigers, A. McAlpine, J. Jeffery, R. Arnott, W. Deroche, J. Moffatt, J. Deacon, Collins, E. Buchanan and Pele. Umpire Hodge gave entire satisfaction.

Mr. Charles Meagher has purchased the Roblin property on Charles Street.

A social was held on the lawn at the Foxboro Presbyterian Church last evening and was a very enjoyable affair. Mr. R. J. Graham was chairman and an excellent program of music and speeches was presented. Johnstone's Kilties Band of this city furnished excellent music.

The Printers and Albert College baseball teams played a match on the hospital lot yesterday afternoon. While it was not exactly a gilt-edged exhibition, it was interesting and the teams were well matched. The Printers commenced as though they were going to make a cricket score, getting six runs in the first inning, but after that the College pitcher, Delong, held them down pretty well until the seventh inning when they hit him hard and scored eight runs. It was decited to call he game a draw at this point, although it should have been forfeited, as the College team refused to play the full nine innings. When the game stopped the score was 23 to 1 in favor of the College team. The following composed the teams: Printers, Cornell, Brown, S. Stevenson, MacDiarmid, Howe, Cherry, T. Stevenson, Dunn and Duffin. Albert College, Delong, Marks, Houston, Parry, Jamieson, Ford, Roland, Nutbrown and Brownlee. The umpire was Billy Ponton and he gave satisfaction to both teams.

Mackenzie's Column:

No Shift Seen In U.S. Policy On Nationalists

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Both the harassed Chinese Nationalist government in Canton and the triumphant communist leadership in the north are manoeuvering energetically for position in the forthcoming phase of their bloody civil war.

Diplomatic efforts directed toward the western world are in part taking the place of gunfire during a pause in the victorious red drive. From Nanking comes word that communist officials there are urging western powers to withdraw recognition of the Nationalist government. Meantime, the Nationalists have appealed again to Uncle Sam for aid.

Washington has taken the position that it will not recognize any communist regime so long as a responsible Nationalist government exists. The other western powers have been playing along with the United States in this policy.

Military Aid Out

In the matter of the Nationalist bid for further aid, there is no sign that the United States intends to shift its policy of not giving further military help. American aid at present is limited to providing economic help out of a fund of some $54,000,000 which is handled by the economic co-operation administration.

The Nationalists say they have a "definite plan" for defence of territory still in their hands.

Reds Waiting

The communists aren't rushing into establishing a "government" of their own at this juncture. The communists already have laid down the conditions under which they will be prepared to enter diplomatic relations with foreign powers.

1. Foreign armed forces must be withdrawn from China.

2. Relations must be based on "equality, mutual benefit and mutual respect for each other's independence and territorial integrity."

3. Recognition must be withdrawn from the Nationalist government.

Obviously the United States will recognize the communists if and when they establish a responsible government for China. However, the signs seem to read that even then the western powers aren't likely to abandon any Chinese elements which are friendly to the west, no matter what their political complexion.

LIGHTS MATCH TO SEE TIME, IS BURNED TO DEATH

Toronto, June 11 (CP)—Mrs. Mary Horton, 72, died Friday night of burns suffered when a match she used to see what time it was set fire to her clothing.

John Walsh, a roomer in the house, heard the woman scream. He rushed into the room and smothered the flames with a blanket. Mrs. Horton was taken to hospital.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Among bird watchers there is a very large proportion who claim hawks to be their chief interest. And of all the hawks, the peregrine falcon or "duck hawk" as he is generally called in American, is the prince.

You can watch the sky a good many years without seeing a peregrine. Possibly in the days of the now extinct passenger pigeon, the peregrine might have been common, because pigeons are his meat. A friend of mine crawled down a cliff to visit a peregrine eyrie and found amongst the rubbish of many generations of peregrines on this ledge, a whole heaping handful of leg bands off homing pigeons. As the location of the eyrie was roughly midway between Kingston, Ont. and Montreal or Ottawa, it is to be supposed that the racing pigeon fans who send their birds by express from Montreal to Kingston, and viceversa, to fly home, could find among these leg bands the explanation of the mysterious disappearance of a good many champions.

The peregrine is a bird killer. Thrushes, flickers, blue jays, robins and all manner of medium sized birds are his staple diet; but it can take a wild duck; and some watchers have seen the spectacle of the "blue darter," as it is called in the South, diving like an arrow on a flying duck, knocking it instantly dead. It will preform its incomparable dive on a sitting duck, as sportsmen know who have seen a peregrine dive, from hundreds of feet, on a wooden decoy. The blow can be heard, as if it were a hammer blow. Yet the peregrine's flight control is so incredible, it apparently does not even wet its toes.

In size, they are little less than a crow; their flight is like a pigeon's with a rapid rowing motion of the wings, unlike most hawks. To see one is a rare distinction, though they nest from the Arctic to the southern states. To see one is like seeing Kilroy, who was here but never is.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IN THE YEAR 2,000 AND AFTER

Now and again we get letters from certain readers who claim they are atheists. These folks insist that the idea of God is an unwarranted assumption and that it has caused more trouble in the world than it has accomplished good. How, they ask, can one believe in an unseen world? The very term, "unseen world," is contradictory.

You use electricity in your home, do you not? Electricity is unseen. Do you have a radio or a television set? No one has ever seen the waves which bring these messages and pictures into our homes. Did you ever see a thought? Certainly you do not for a single moment deny that there is such a thing as thought. Do you believe in love and friendship? These realities are utterly unseen.

Probably if the truth in known, it would be discovered that the seen world is such an infinitesimal little fragment of a great unseen universal order that one is led to wonder how any significance at all can be attached to it. Remember the ant who probably concludes that his ant-hill comprises the universe.

We shall not be here to listen to the judgment pronounced on the men of this generation, but the thoughtful anticipation of it may well cause us to wince.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FRIENDLY UNDERSTANDING

Just think for a moment of how much trouble could be eliminated in this world if people would only try to understand each other. It's misunderstandings that start disputes, cause hateful things to be said (that one often regrets later) and which often end in a most tragic manner.

Take inter-national affairs for example. If those seeking a solution for troublesome problems would meet friends, and discuss all points in a friendly manner, how quickly all misunderstanding would be wiped out. And what a world we would then have!

How comforting is that one who comes to you when in trouble or sorrow and gives friendly understanding. Perhaps no words, even are expressed-just the friendly eye or grasp of hand. What a world of meaning may be transferred by this friendly understanding.

To many of us jump to conclusion without thinking or trying to understand the other one's viewpoint. Each of us has a right to believe in his own way, so that when a misunderstanding arises with anotheer we should immediately put it upon a friendly basis and in considerate fashion proceed to a friendly understanding.

How few of us have learned the great value of these two words-I'm sorry?And yet they have wiped out many an unhappy misunderstanding, and brought light into many a troubled mind and heart. Consideration for the feelings of others is an art because a friendly understanding is always then the happy result.

So much of life is a compromise -a give and take. But when we try to give more than we take, we are the winner! Most misunderstandings hinge upon a very small thing. We can well afford to overlook much and play up to the more important phase of any problem in which we are concerned. The other fellow has his side, and it may be the right side! Or, our side may be the right one. By a friendly understanding both sides may bring about one right side. Give it a trial and see what a happy ending!

Letters to the Editor

Wants More Houses

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer—

It was with interest that I read your artiole, "Bombshell Tossed in Local Housing Picture."

It seems that Alderman Allin is bound and bent that the ex-service man is not to get a place fit to live in. Every time he gets beat out on his arguments, he hunts around and at the next council meeting comes up with something else.

We, the citizens of Belleville, along with the rest of Canada, promised the boys when they went over, that they would be looked after when they came back. A home is the first thing a fellow needs before he can work at the industries which are clamoring at our doors, especially the "Half Million Dollar Ones", yet every move that has been made to get homes within the reach of these fellows' pockets, has been bucked by somebody or other. Alderman Allin has at least come out into the open, with his bucking.

There is only one thing I can wish on these buckers who are against these homes, irrespective of where they are, (no homes, no industries,) homes must come first) and that is that they would be fixed as I was, eleven kids and a judge's order to get out, Alderman Allin and anybody else against these housing schemes would sing a different tune.

As for the sewerage off the bay shore causing an objectionable odor, let these people go to the C. P. R. bridge where the sewer empties into the river and get an eyeful of what is floating down there; I am sure they would be tickled pink that the MacDonald Ave. sewer is going out into the bay.

Yours for more houses and quickly too,

Charles J. Jeffs,
59 Purdy St.

THAT GALLANT FIGHT, THAT WILL TO LIVE

Oh well, soldiers, sailors, woodsmen, hunters, fishermen, arctic explorers, Eskimos, surveyors, forest rangers, herdsmen, ranchers and other characters who seldom tarry here at the fireside are hardened to exposure, so naturally they don't catch "cold —until they get back to the comforts of civilization. That's the way the fireside philosophers dismiss them when any one asks rhetrically why exposure to severe cold and wet does such characters no harm.

In a $2.50 book of about the length of the 25 ct. red book in the Little Lessons in the Ways of Health—the one titled What to Eat and Why—just published, the author, a novelist, describes his heart attack, coronary thrombosis. He says that one of the eminent cardiologists who was hastily summoned for consultation remarked that the patient's chance to survive the night was negligible. "But he was reckoning without the miraculous power of resistance and the stubborn will to live."

Notice that the cardiologist (heart specialist) was eminent. Heck, the convention of them who were hastily summoned were eminent. Of course. Who would have any truck with specialists who are not eminent in such an emergency?

Here I feel impelled to make this observation: Sir James Mackenzie, whose Diseases of the Heart is a medical classic ranking with Sir William Osler's Practice of Medicine, discussing the importance of determining the value and significance of any symptom in affections of the heart, specifies the observations that must be made and adds "It is evident that such observations can be undertaken only by a physician who is likely to see the individual patients during all these circumstances and that can be done only by the general practitioner." Elsewhere in his book Mackenzie says "Instrumental methods appeal so strongly to the imagination . . . but I have little hesitation in saying that, as a means of estimating the heart's integrity and capacity, and elucidating the significance of symptoms, they can supply only very limited information."

Take away the electrocardiograph and other gadgets which "appeal so strongly to the imagination" and what has the "eminent" (how Wiseacres love that word!) cardiologist that your family doctor does not have? I'm not going to tell you, because I've said enough already to make all "heart specialists" hate me.

The publisher's propaganda for the $2.50 fifty-cent book, says that the book's author "fought his way back to health." On the jacket of the book the blurb says it is "more than the story of an exciting and inspiring fight against a terrible enemy."

Maybe I'm cold fish about such sentiment, for I can't understand what this romantic novelist means by "stubborn will to live" or "miraculous power of resistance."

Fear of an illness, an operation or a crisis or an unfavorable outcome unquestionably militates against recovery or tends to aggravate the patient's condition.

So far as "will to live" is concerned, that is instictive in every human being, and in every animal, for that matter, whether courageous or cowardly, and it is childish to pretend any one individual has more or less of it than any other.

Most of the fear that physicians and surgeons have to contend with in everyday practice, medical and surgical, is based on ignorance and misunderstanding. I hope the teachings propagated in this column have allayed or prevented more fear than they have caused.

HOWE PERSONALLY AUTHORIZED TO MAKE SALE—DREW

Calls Upon Trade Minister to Make Public Details of the Sale

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Espanola, June 11 (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, in a political address here Friday night quoted from a government order-in-council which he said was "secret" and which authorized Trade Minister Howe personally to conclude the sale of Montreal's Canadair Aircraft Plant.

Calling upon Mr. Howe to make public the details of the sale, he said the order was passed Jan. 21, 1947, and never was tabled in the House of Commons or printed in the Canada Gazette.

Mr. Drew quoted from the order in repeating his charges that the $22,000,000 aircraft plant, which was operated by the Government, had been sold to the Electric Boat Company of the United States for a fraction of its actual value.

(In a political address at Hamilton Friday night, Mr. Howe denied Mr. Drew's statement that the sale was secret and that no tenders were called. He said the government asked Canadair's original director to form a corporation strong enough to survive. This was done through Electric Boat on a lease-option arrangement.)

Mr. Drew again asked "why were no Canadian aircraft manufacturers given a chance to buy this plant and carry out the construction of aircraft required for the Royal Canadian Aircraft and Trans-Canada Air Lines."

He also wanted to know why Mr. Howe chose "to deal with the Electric Boat Company, which specialized in the construction of submarines."

Later, speaking at Timmins, Mr. Drew renewed his demands for devaluation of the Canadian dollar and said the government has "perpetuated a shameful fraud on the people of Canada which is limiting the production of every gold mine in the country."

There was no reason why Canadian gold should be sold below its "real worth on the international market."

NATIONAL HEALTH PLAN PROMISED WITHIN A YEAR

Coldwell Makes Statement in Address Given in British Columbia

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Kamloops, B. C., June 11 (CP) — M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, said in a political address Friday night, that a C. C. F. government, would pass a national health insurance bill within a year after being elected to office.

He said "final proof" that the Liberal government does not now plan to provide health insurance at an early date might be found in an address by Prime Minister St. Laurent in Hamilton last Saturday, in which Mr. St. Laurent said it would be dishonest to institute any health insurance plan under present conditions.

In a campaign address in this interior British Columbia city, Mr. Coldwell made these points:

1. The C. C. F. would draft health insurance legislation so the plan would come into effect within three years of election to power. It would not let Canada's shortage of hospital beds delay the introduction of the plan.

2. "Definite federal proposals "would be laid before a conference with the provinces called soon after the C. C. F.'s election, and "if two or three seemed intent on blocking the success of the conference, as Quebec and Ontario were in 1945, then the (C. C. F.) federal government would take full responsibility and go ahead on its own."

He said a government drawn from his party would legislate for financial aid to any provinces wishing to embark on health insurance.

"The people of Canada could deal with their provincial governments at election time if they failed to accept the federal financial aid and put health insurance into effect in their provinces."

The health insurance plan, like that introduced by the Labor government in the United Kingdom, would include full prepaid medical, dental and hospital care, Mr. Coldwell said.

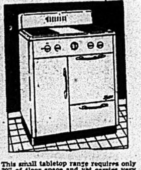
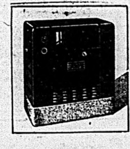
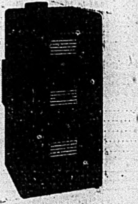
The "Condon" brings a new era of kitchen comfort. It takes a woman only one glance to see that it is much more than just a new coal and wood stove. It represents a new perfection in household comfort and convenience. One size only — with roomy 18" oven, high shelf or high closet optional. Large, efficient firebox means lower fuel bills — that fast heating oven means better baking $192.50



This small tabletop range requires only 30" of floor space and yet carries very complete equipment including insulated oven, automatic top burner lighter, oven heat control, broiler drawer and storage compartment with cutlery drawer. The cooking top is especially convenient with work space located between two sets of burners. The joint of top and background is kept free from dirt by use of a rounded fill-in stripe $130



Findlay Oil Burning Heaters have won an enviable reputation for themselves .. the feature of this new heating system which you will like best is the case with which you control the temperature of your home. By simply turning a dial which controls the oil flow, you can have as little or as much heat as you desire. This unit has an electrically operated fan which speeds up circulation of heated air $136 75



Findlay oil burning heaters distribute heat by two effective methods — circulation and radiation. They give you "dual service." As Circulators they keep the air of the house in motion, taking it in at the bottom of the casing and sending it out heated at the top. As Radiant Heaters they distribute a steady pleasant warmth to the area near the heater. This is made possible by the special perforated casing which adds greatly to the efficiency of Findlay Oil Heaters 105.50

LINES TRANSPOSED

At the meeting held recently by the Belleville Women's Liberal Club and reported in this paper on Friday, several transposed lines made reading of the article difficult.

The complimentary tea to be sponsored by the club will be held at the home of Mrs. F. E. Follwell, 269 George Street, 's the way the article should have read.

WEDDINGS

McCUTCHEON—KETCHESON

The marriage of Lois Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ketcheson, Tweed, to George A. McCutcheon, Phm.B., son of Mr and Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon of Galt, was solemnized at the bride's home on Wednesday, June the first. Rev. A. L. Siscoe officiated.

HAINES—LINDSAY

On Saturday, June 4, at 2 p.m., at the Pentecostal Tabernacle, Belleville, a pretty wedding was solemnized when Gereen Doris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manson Lindsay, Belleville, was united in marriage to Samuel Haines, son of Mr. Albert Haines, and the late Mrs. Haines. The Reverend W. R. Pair, of Picton, officiated, before an altar of iris, spirea and peonies.

The wedding music was provided by Miss Grace Barker, and Mrs. Elias Wright, soloist, of Tweed, sang "O Promise Me", during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was demure in a white floor length gown of slipper satin, the front panel with its three rows of lace edging was caught up over an underskirt by pink rosettes, and the back ending in a short train. Her full length veil of tulle illusion was held in place with a braided band of the same satin and she carried a white Bible and roses.

Mrs. Garfield Reilly was matron of honor, wearing a gown of turquoise blue sheer, and carrying an arm bouquet of roses.

Miss Eunice Reilly was bridesmaid, gowned in pink taffeta, with bouquet of roses, and little Eunice Sinclair was flower girl

Mr. Garfield Reilly was groomsman and the ushers Donald Sinclair, William Stapley, and Ronnie Reilly.

After the reception which was held at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple left for Toronto and Detroit, and upon their return will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs Robert Wright, Mrs. Delia Sedore, Miss Elsie Sedore, Mr. Donald Sedore, all of Tweed; Miss Neta Lindsay, Miss Ethel Lindsay, Mr. Ross Phillips, Mrs. Hannah Lindsay, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Wright, Madoc; Mrs. Thomas Emery, Mrs. Daniel Emery, Lindsay; Mrs. Rachel Saltern, Tweed and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sinclair, Trenton.

WESTFALL—EMPEY

Rev. C. A. Perkins officiated at the very lovely wedding of Joan Jacqueline Empey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Empey, Rossmore; and Mr. Wm. Westfall, son of Mrs. Myrtle Westfall, Trenton, on Saturday, June 4, 1949, at 4.30 p.m. in Holloway Street Church, Belleville.

The altar was prettily decorated with spirea, snowballs and red peonies, orchid and white iris. Mr. Connor presided at the organ, while Miss Barbara Diment, the soloist sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register, "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in a gown of white sheer velva, floor length. Her veil of embroidered tulle was caught to her hair by a crown of pearls and silver. She carried a cascade of red roses.

Miss Eleanor Heagle, Stirling, was matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of daffodil sheer velva and half halo hat to match, and carrying a basket of sweet peas and lily-of-the-valley and yellow roses.

Miss Sheila Empey, sister of the bride, was senior bridesmaid, and wore a floor length gown of orchid sheer velva with matching half halo hat, and carried a basket of sweet peas and roses.

Miss Mona Empey, also sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and wore a floor-length gown of blue sheer velva with half halo hat to match, and carried a basket of sweet peas and roses

Mr. Brennan Maxwell of Toronto, was groomsman, and ushering were Mr. Bruce Westfall, brother of the groom, and Mr. Geo. McQuade, of Trenton.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for about 20 guests. The rooms were decorated prettily with tulips and spirea. While the bride's table was set in the dining room, suitably decorated with pink and white streamers. The three-tiered cake between the silver candelabra and tall tapers made a pretty table.

The bride's mother, in a white and navy ensemble, wearing a corsage of red roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a lovely navy dress and hat, and a corsage of red roses.

Out-of-town guests were from Lindsay, Toronto, Madoc, Stirling and Trenton.

Scout News

Since this column was started a few weeks ago several enquiries concerning different aspects of Scouting have been received. It was suggested that a portion of the column be devoted to answering these. If anyone wishes to have any questions, concerning Scouting or Cubbing, answered in "The Question Box" would they kindly send their questions with name and address to R. K. Smith, 31 Hillside Street, or Mrs. Margaret Kemp, 329 1-2 Front Street, or give them to anyone connected with Scouting. These will be turned over to the proper authority for answering and whenever possible the answers will be published in "The Question Box".

Trenton Cuboree

The Cuboree which was held in Trenton last Saturday was attended by 13 packs from Picton, Batawa, Cobourg, Trenton and Belleville. There were approximately 275 Cubs present. Various Trenton citizens outside of scouting judged the competitions in first aid, skipping, book balancing, grand howls, tug of war, jungle dances and 3-circle games. The 1st (St. Thomas) and 2nd Packs were awarded Grade A and 8th Pack Grade B on the competitions. The Belleville Local Association provided two buses for the Cubs and their leaders. Everyone enjoyed the afternoon's outing, picnic supper and particularly the free refreshments. Next year's Cuboree will be held in Picton during the first week in June. Pictures of the Cuboree can be procured by contacting the leaders of the respective groups.

Would the person finding a Cub leader's tam on Everett St., on Wednesday, June 8, kindly return to Mrs. Walden, 62 West Moira Street.

The Question Box

Q. May parents or friends attend Cub or Scout Meetings?

A.—We urge parents and friends to come to the meetings so that they can see what the leaders are endeavoring to do for the boys. There are also many occasions throughout the year that everyone is especially invited to attend and partake in Scouting activities.

Q. Why do the Cubs salute with two fingers outspread and the Scouts with three fingers together

A. Cubbing is based on stories by Rudyard Kipling in "The Jungle Book" which tells of a boy named Mowgli who was brought up by Akela the Lone Grey Wolf of the Seeonee Pack. The two-fingered salute represents the two upright ears of an alert wolf. They also represent the two parts of the Cub law. "The Cub gives into the Old Wolf. The Cub does not give in to himself." The Scout salute using the three fingers represents the three parts of the Scouts promise. "On my honor I promises that I will do my best—to do my duty to God and The King. To help other people at all times. To obey the Scout Law".

Q. What time do Scout and Cub meetings get out?

A. Scout meetings usually close between 9 and 9.15 p.m., and Cub meetings between 8.30 and 8.45 p.m., and the boys are told to go directly home.

Girl Guide Unit Entertains Mothers; Guide Badges Presented

A year marked with splendid achievement by the members of Company Two, Belleville Girl Guides was brought to a close recently when badges and awards were presented at an enjoyable mother and daughter banquet held at the S.A.C.O. Club rooms

At the close of the supper, Mrs. Oliver, Division Commissioner, made a few interesting remarks and explained about the camp to be held at Ameliasburg. All Guides who have their Second Class or within two tests of their Second Class may attend this Camp. It will be held from July 17 to July 27. Our District Commissioner, Mrs. Watson also gave an inspiring address and closed with an appropriate poem.

Presentation of Guide badges then took place the first a short ceremony in which Captain Margaret Govier awarded Second Class Badges to Carolyn Brown, Ruth Watson, Jessie Seames and Dorothy Penney.

District Commissioner Mrs. Watson presented the following badges, Little House Emblem to Ann Briens, Frances Ann Mitchell, and Carolyn Little; Astronomers Badges to Diana Lewis and Carolyn Little; Child Nurse Badges to Barbara McLuskie, Carolyn Brown and Carolyn Little; Cooks Badges to Beth Wilbur, Ann Briens, Carolyn Little, Carolyn Brown, R. Watson, Jessie Seames, Diana Lewis and Barbara McLuskie Dancer Badge, to Carolyn Brown; Emergency Helpers Badges to Ann Briens and Barbara McLuskie; First Aid Badge to Barbara McLuskie; Friend to Animals Badges to Carolyn Brown and Carolyn Little; Gardeners Badge to Carolyn Brown; Hikers' Badge to Helen Weston; Homemakers' Badge to Dianna Lewis, Carolyn Little, Frances Ann Mitchell, and Barbara McLuskie,

Hostess Badges to Beth Wilbur, Frances Ann Mitchell, Carol Weston, Helen Weston, Ann Briens, Diana Lewis and Carolyn Little, The Laundress Badges to Diana Lewis, Carolyn Little, Frances Ann Mitchell, Carolyn Brown, and Jessie Seames; Pathfinder Badge to Carolyn Brown; Needlewoman's Badge to Beth Wilbur, Carolyn Brown, Jessie Seames, Barbara McLuskie and Diana Lewis; Pioneers Badges to Carol Weston, Helen Weston and Beth Wilbur; Readers' Badges to Frances Ann Mitchell, Barbara McLuskie and Beth Wilbur; Skaters' Badge to Diana Lewis; Stalkers Badge to Carolyn Brown; Swimmer's Badge to Ruth Watson; Woodsman Badge to Helen Weston; Writers' Badges to Diana Lewis and Carolyn Little; Cyclist Badge to Carolyn Brown; Entertainer's Badge to Carolyn Little; Naturalist Badge to Carolyn Little and First Class Badges to Jean Tonkin and Helen Weston. Ann Briens will have earned her First Class Badge as soon as she passes one more test

The Captain presented twenty service stars to those who had attended seventy-five per cent of the meetings.

The eagerly awaited announcement of the year's winning patrol was made by the Captain, Dandelion Patrol being the winners with 360 1-2 points. Their leader, Frances Ann Mitchell was presented with a polishing kit for metal badges; a Be Prepared pennant, and Guides with polishing kits for metal badges. The patral coming second with 303½ pts was the Forget Me Not Patrol whose leader, Carolyn Little and the Guides were presented with Guide Blazer Badges.

The evening was brought to a close by the singing of the Guide Evensong and Taps.

Mary Jordan, Lieut.

On Tuesday the Pack held their closing meeting in Queen Mary School auditorium. The parents present received a good understanding of Brownie work as all the steps in Brownie life were represented. An enrollment ceremony was held first in which Tweeny Brenda Black was enrolled as a Brownie. Then as Brown Owl repeated:

"Well done, Brownies, you have won
Service Star for service done;
Keep on trying, never slack,
'Tis for the honor of the pack."

First year service stars were presented to Joan McGrimmon, Elaine Coles, Carol Fuzzen, Beth Follwell, Shirley Sutherby, Sharon Rump, Audrey Elgie, Carolyn Franklin and Joan Dickey.

In the next ceremony, Golden Bars were presented by Brown Owl Leach of 4th Belleville Brownies to Gwen Hopkins, Mary Lessels, Shirley Sutherby, Sharon Trapnell, Elaine O'Neill, Joan Day, Helen Moynes, Carol Spafford, as Brown Owl told them:

"Now you wear the Golden Bar, Show the world what Brownies Are."

In the third ceremony Brown Owl Leach also presented Golden Hands to Carol Poste, Sondra Randle, Carol Pringle, Helen Gill, Marlene Browning, Shirley Orrill, Beverly McKenzie, Barbara McKenzie, Linda Keel, Beverley Samuels.

This means they are now first class Brownies, and as Brown Owl says: "A full-grown Brownie now you stand, and wear the sign of the Golden Hand."

Mrs. D. Stewart, member of the executive of the local Association, presented a Fourth Year Service Star to Carol Poste, who has also won her wings, and will "fly" up to Guides in the Fall. This was followed by the Brownie hymn and Pow-wow at which Brown Owl Leach told the Golden Hand story and Mr. C. I. Frederick spoke to the Brownies telling them a short story very appropriate to their Brownie work. The meeting closed with Taps.

4TH BELLEVILLE BROWNIES

The 4th Belleville Brownie Pack held a wiener roast at the river on Thursday after school. Each Six had its own camp fire, built and tended by the Brownies, who have been working for their Golden Hands badges. After all the wieners and marshmallows were roasted and eaten, camp fires put out and everything tidy, some of the Brownies gave a play of the Brownie story. Brown Owl told the story of a Brownie who climbed to the Golden Land and the picnic ended with Brownie Taps.

Brown Owl, Tawny Owl and Mrs. Meldrum, who helped for awhile with the Pack last Fall, were in charge. Thirty Brownies and Tweenies were at the picnic and there was not one burn or cut or bruise for a Brownie to practise First Aid on.

CO. 7 GIRL GUIDES

On Wednesday, instead of their regular meeting, Co. 7 packed a nosebag lunch and headed for country. They halted just north of Lazier's Dam, along the river bank. After supper, the company split into four groups. Three of the groups worked on their second class tests, stalking, trail and nature, with the majority of the girls passing their tests. After scrambling along the river bank, and through the bush dodging, successfully we hope, poison ivy, berry bushes and other obstacles for some time, the Guides returned to the camp site where the other group had a campfire waiting for them. During the campfire program two charades were put on—the Poppy patrol illustrating the 8th law—"A guide smiles and sings under all difficulties" and the Bluebell patrol acting out "Weeping willow". As the campfire started to die down the girls enjoyed a marshmallow roast. The meeting ended with the singing of taps.

2ND BELLEVILLE BROWNIES

On Saturday afternoon last the 2nd Belleville Brownies Pack went out to find a Fairy Ring. They were unable to find a place where the Little People had been but they found a very lovely spot of their own. Under the direction of Brown Owl, Samuel and Tawny Owl Coles games were played in the usual lively Brownie manner. A peanut scramble added to fun. Lunch time is always welcome after all had had their fill and the grounds cleared up it started to rain sending the Brownies and leaders home sooner than planned. All reported a very enjoyable time and wish to thank Mrs. W. N. Ponton for permission to hold their picnic on her grounds.

Canadian Scene Provides Motif Of Color Print

By Jean Thompson
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto,—(CP)—There are any number of things at the Canadian International Trade Fair to interest the housewife who is looking for a new idea in home decoration. Or if she wants that certain something to keynote her summer wardrobe, she can find it at the Fair, too.

Attracting comment on all sides is a Canadian-inspired screen-printed design incorporated in draperies.

Used as decorative hangings by a firm displaying handkerchiefs, the draperies have been the subject of almost as much discussion as the lawns and linens of the kerchief trade.

The design, a square enclosing single habitant figure in realistic colors, comes from French Canada. Executed on Canadian-spun rayon by a Montreal firm; the habitant and other designs are both original and exclusive.

Another design takes a Nova Scotia fishing village for its motif and a French Canadian farmyard is the basis of another. The prairies are to be represented by an abstract design based on wheat fields.

Commission Artist

Marion McCrea, a Vancouver artist whose first love was pottery, is currently working on patterns inspired by the Canadian scene. She was commissioned to do the work after the Montreal firm had seen photographs of her pottery designs in a photographic exhibition in Montreal.

Interesting silver costume jewelry pieces inspired by ancient Celtic designs appear in the Scottish exhibit. One of the most unusual pins is an ancient type safey pin, still worn by Moslem women today and appearing in museum collections of ancient Roman jewelry.

Traditional Shetland wool designs, hand-knitted by crofters, are included in the Scottish exhibit. No two patterns are alike, the multi-colored geometric patterns being adapted by the individual knitted in berets, sweaters and gloves.

Scotland also provides huge pastel-tinted bath mats, 72 by 54 inches for home and beach use.

If you want the latest in electric stoves, there it one now on the market with built-in pressure cookers.

Picnic plates turn up in aluminum foil, thin, shining and fluted. Similar to the paper picnic plate, the new ones can be used over and over, and are sturdy enough for oven use.

Medical Records Carefully Filed

Winnipeg (CP)—Anyone interested in library science will find the medical record variety no "snap" course, say Sisters Mary Paul and St. Cyprian, record librarians of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto.

They instructed a six-day refresher course here for an enrolment of 38. It takes a year-long course in an approved school — either at St. Michael's, Toronto, or Hotel Dieu hospital, Kingston, Ont., or five years' experience in all duties plus a pass in the examination to become a registered librarian.

The aim of the course is to provide instruction for experienced but unregistered librarians. The curricuum includes medical terminology, study of Greek and Latin roots, medical record ethics and practice in the code by which diseases are filed.

The medical records which contain the patient's identification and his symtons are kept under lock and key.

No one but the patient's doctor may have access to the files. Lawyers and insurance men are kept at arm's lenghth unless both the doctor and patient have given their signed consent.

Medical records are valuable to the patient and doctor, and for use in medical research. Occupatons and diseases are cross-indexed in code numbers to supply information to the research physician.

So secret are the files that a research physician studying heart disease would have no idea whose particular record of heart symptom he was examining.

Classic Casual

By ALICE ALDEN

Silk shantung, the darling of the fabric world for spring and summer wear, is the choice for a good classic casual that adds up to a wonderful dress for uncluttered daytime wear in town or for travel and resort. Two shades of gray are lined at the waist by a handsome cummerbund of brilliant scarlet. A pert patch pocket adorns one hip, and a side-placed pleat adds fullness for fluidity of movement.

Dolls' Faces Owners' Whim

New York, - (CP) - Scribbles "the doll with 1,000 faces," starts life with no face—or at least only a blank expression.

Depending on the mood of the child who own Scribbles, the doll can laugh, cry, pout, sleep or sneer. The doll comes with a pack of special crayons and the child can draw and redraw her version of how Scribles should look.

Scribbles is the creation of Estonia-born Mrs. Elvy Kelep. When she came to the United States in 1932, she had only $57. Having been a civilian pilot, she turned to making a living by producing an air-minded doll named Parachute Patsie. When the Second World War ended, however, demand for the dolls dropped.

Stuck with 50,000 doll faces from her business, Mrs. Kelep asked herself, "why not make a doll every child can draw a face on?" A manufacturer pounced on the idea and Scribbles now is selling widely.

The dolls, both boy and girl, have brown or yellow hair framing their blank faces, gay plastic dresses and a pocket containing the crayons.

Mrs. Kelep loves to draw up new faces and expressions for Scribbles. She says she is only a half-baked artist but remembers her childhood when she always wanted creative playthings, toys to stimulate the imagination.

She says Scribbles, which sells for about $2.50, may even become a parlor game.

"I know my friends can't resist drawing on faces," she says.

Fashion Flashes

SIMPLE HANDLING of novelty fabrics results in dresses that are smart and wearable. New and pretty is a crinkly rayon crepe overlaid with narrow satin stripes. Nice in navy for a simple, short sleeved dress with a fake peplum that juts out slightly over the hips. Zip fastened from the deep V neckline, which has lingerie touches.

ONE GIRL who always wears black in the evening, sets off her black dinner dresses and strapless evening gowns with a long, very narrow stole of white fox which she drapes around shoulders and arms.

THERE'S FLATTERY in pink, which explains the popularity of the pink hat, especially for wear with after-dark clothes. Soft pale pink felt is used for a forward-jutting bonnet, trimmed with clusters of pink and blue silk hydrangeas with green silk stems. One cluster of flowers accents the side-dip.

THE LURE OF LACE is well expressed by a dress of black Chantilly lace worn by a famous singing star. Very molded through the torso, it flares towards the hemline with masses of tiny net ruffles. Net ruffles edge the deep, strapless neckline, through which pink velvet is twisted.

Lending a Hand, Means Cash And Play for Ont. Farmerettes

Toronto (CP)—The girls are the pick of the crop when it comes to harvesting the fruit and vegetable produce of southern Ontario's lush farmlands.

At least that's the opinion of farmers who benefit from the Ontario Farm Service Force—an energetic young horde of holiday farmers. The vanguard of some 3,000 who will help farmers again this summer already has started out.

Girls—the farmerettes—predominate among this group whose motto says they are "lending a hand." Let one veteran farmer tell you why:

"We take girls in preference to men every time. Men working here before worked only a day or two and never came back. The girls have been coming back for six years now."

The service force idea, in its sixth year, is a two-way system whereby farmers get vitally needed seasonal labor and city folk get fresh air and exercise with pay. Crops like fruit and vegetables must be picked quickly when they ripen—a lot of help is needed in a hurry. Then too, any amateur gardner knows that weeding and pruning is an all-year task on any farm.

Ordinarily farmers can't afford to keep a permanent staff big enough to do the rush work. The service force spreads this necessary labor over a lot of farms, handling each farm's peak season as it comes.

The backbone of this system is a series of camps set up through the southern Ontario growing area. The camps, 33 in all, operated on a co-operative and private basis, provide the working force necessary and the social outlets desirable for the system to operate. Some 1,800 recruits are housed for the summer. They get room and board, and recreation too in return for 8-10 hours work a day.

In addition the camp dwellers get adequate supervision. Camp "mothers" supplied by the Y.W.C.A. organize the food, activities and morals of the workers. They maintain a regime of "early to bed, early to rise" guaranteed to comfort worried parents and assure healthy workers.

Of course variety is the keynote of the service force system. A farmerette can find almost any kind of a job she wants—everything from grubbing weeds to climbing trees. And for the talented few there's always an opening over a stove.

It's hard work but satisfying—there are few jobs as worthwhile as helping to feed Ontario.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A VISIT TO THE "45 CLUB"

You remember that "45 Club" I've written about several times?

The reason I've written as often as I have about this Long Island, N.Y., group is because I hoped it might stimulate the formation of similar organizations in other places.

I have so many letters from both men and women who complain of being lonely and needing friends. Many of them, after reading what I have said about the "45 Club," have written to ask how they could start groups of this kind in their own home towns.

Recently I paid a visit to the "45 Club" at one of its evening meetings in Jamaica, Long Island. It was a very interesting experience.

One of he things I found out was that the only way this kind of group can be organized and carried on successfully is for someone to have sufficient unselfishness, iniative, energy and interest in other people to be willing to devote a large amount of time, completely without financial compensation, to the work inevitably involved in such a project. I talked at length with the woman who conceived the idea of a club for men and women 45 years of age and older; who carried through its organization and is now its permanent chairman; and I was greatly impressed by her willingness to put in many hours every week to the job of keeping it going. She has no remuneration of any kind other than the satisfaction she derives from seeing the pleasure and congenial companionships that have come to many lonely people through her efforts.

She has a number of assistants who, in their various capacities as secretary, treasurer, committee chairmen, etc., also work hard for the good of the group. But one and all assured me that the friends they have made as a result of their membership in the club, and the joy it has brought them, have made their labors amply worthwhile.

On the evening of my visit, there was, first, a short business session for the forty or more members present; then an entertainment program, after which the meeting broke up into groups to play cards and games, and otherwise amuse themselves for the rest of the evening, which concluded with the serving of simple refreshments. Nothing stronger than coffee is ever served.

Most of the members of the club, which meets twice a month in two different Long Island cities, are women, but there are a few men who come because they enjoy the companionship and the simple good times that they find there. One after another, the members came to me to tell me what a difference the club had made in their lives, and how much happier they were because of the friends they had made through it.

Naturally, in any project of this type there are always some people who misinterpret its purpose, and come frankly in search of husbands, or just plain dates. But this sort of person quickly loses interest and drops out, when she or he discovers that this is not the aim of the club, whose sole object is congenial group activity.

As I have said before, if there is anyone, anywhere, with the initiative to start a project of this type, I will gladly be glad to tell them the careful steps by which the Long Island club was organized. But I wish to stress once more that it is no "Lonely Hearts" venture, but an honest and sincere effort to provide wholesome, social activity for middle-aged people who have come to feel a lack of this in their lives.

American-Born Princess Viggo Loves Denmark

By Birget Mangor

Copenhagen, —(CP)—A gay and happy housewife, speaking perfect Danish, is quite a natural thing in this country. But when the housewife is an American-born princess who has been married to her prince for a quarter of a century, it is really quite a story.

The story began in New York in 1924, when Eleanor Margaret Green, 29, married H.R.H. Prince Viggo, grandson of King Christian IX, and thus became Princess Viggo, Countess of Rosenborg.

The story went on through 25 years of good times and hard times. Sitting in the lounge of her villa "Store Mariendal" in Copenhagen's suburban Hellerup, the princess told it heself:

"It was very difficult, of course, for a New York girl to arrive in a foreign counry as a member of the royal family," she began, "but I was received by the Danes in the friendliest way."

"The entire royal family did all they could to make me feel at home. I soon made many friends here in Denmark and after a while I felt just like any happy Danish housewife."

Childless in her marriage, the princess has had plenty of time for her hobbies. She has been an expert rider, has travelled a lot, and is much interested in literature and languages. Last, but not least, the princess is very fond of music.

"I have been singing for many years, but unfortunately I can only play the piano with two fingers. All the same, I have been composing a bit, mostly small marches in the Italian and French style."

Some of her compositions have been published and broadcast by the Danish radio.

Wartime Privations

The war and the German occupation brought Princess Viggo face to face with exactly the same problems as other Danish housewives. She did what she could to help others under the Nazi yoke and felt unbelievable relief when, at last Denmark was liberated.

"In those days I felt more like a Dane than ever," the princess said. "I joined the Voluntary Women's Corps and was trained in cooking in the kitchen of a hospital where I had to serve during possible air raids. After that I was trained in nursing. In the last years of the war when my husband, a colonel in the Danish cavalry, had to hide with other military men, I joined the Red Cross.

"My clothes were worn out. Even a princess couldn't buy new dresses. After the war I was just as happy as all Danes to receive parcels with clothes from friends in the United States.

"Denmark really could do little to help people who suffered so terribly, but in some ways we could do our part to encourage them."

The prince and princess will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary on June 10 quietly at home as a private family event. Among the first of the guests no doubt will be a half-dozen youngsters of the Danish royal family, to whom the one-time Miss Eleanor Green of New York has become a dearly beloved "auntie."

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Drugstore Beauties

Medical science and modern living conditions have prolonged the span of human life. Cosmetic chemists are doing their best to prolong the period of youthful appearance of women. Before the sisters took to creaming their faces, wrinkles loomed up early. Laboratories by the hundreds compound toiletries for which would-be lovelies spend millions and millions of dollars each year. Perfume is widely used by the frail sex, and the perfume industry is a large one. All of feminity is bent on the business of making birthdays of no importance whatsoever.

Through the use of chemicals, every woman who was born with straight hair can be a curly girl. A boon to the poor dear with the jackstraw thatch. Now she can shell out a few dollars, turn the trick herself. Isn't it wunnerful?

Cosmetic chemists provide us with rouge to act as understudy to the natural blush that has departed forever and for aye, for some reason or other. They give us rosy lipstick to pretty up the lips. They are constantly offering new shades, because women are always seeking something exciting. In the quest for good looks, the older ones hope for a magic ointment that will erase wrinkles. Well, maybe, some day, who knows?

Femininity Concentrates on Making Birthdays Unimportant

The most difficult problem that the cosmetic chemists has to deal with is hair dye. Time was when certain chemicals that are used on furs were employed to console the grey-haired woman, but they were found dangerous and were prohibited by law. Now no woman is likely to experience any difficulties when changing the color of her mop. When professional attentions are sought, the operator may give a skin test first. The trouble in home applications is to find precisely the right color. Many women are able to touch up a few gray hairs at the temples.

We use chemicals to put the ruby glow on our fingernails. Certain acids can be used for the removal of warts, but women should be warned against this practice. It is not safe to meddle with growths of this character. A physician who specializes in treatment of diseases of the skin and scalp will remove various blemishes by means of the X-ray or electrolysis. Properly done, no scars result.

Henna is a harmless herb that is used in powdered form to bring auburn tints to dark hair. But the so-called henna compound is blended with dyeing agents, must be applied with great care and correct timing.

The blonde darlings who see their golden halo getting tarnished resort to the peroxide bottle. This chemical, like dyes, calls for the skill and experience of a trained operator.

British Jail Has Comforts Of Home for Women Prisoners

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Askham Richard, Yorkshire, England (CP)— A curly-headed youngster sleeps peacefully on the porch of a country house set in ten acres of landscaped gardens

On the neatly-clipped lawns young women read the Sunday papers or chat and smoke. The BBC news can be heard coming from a radio inside.

It could be a summer camp or a girls' recreation centre. But in truth it's a jail with a new look.

Britain's prison commissioners decided on a new approach to the problem of rehabilitating girl offenders.

They bought Askham Grange, whose 100 oak-panelled rooms had often rung to the gaiety of hunt balls.

They named Mary Size to run the place and told her to make it like no other jail.

And Miss Size, warm-hearted although long a prison governor, did just that.

Redecorated House

First she had the house done over. Rooms were painted a bright Devonshire cream color. Vases of flowers from the gardens were brought in. Sleeping rooms, arranged to accommodate from two to seven girls apiece, were made homelike with personal snapshots. Tables for eight were set up in the dining-room.

Gradually the prison population was built up to 66, all first offenders. Two brought babies with them to the prison. Miss Size called them "a great joy".

The seven matrons call the prisoners by their first names. Makeup is allowed. The girls can buy cigarets from their prison earnings and newspapers are provided. Card games and ping pong are among recreation-room diversions and an occasional dance is arranged.

The girls are on a 38-hour work-week They are taught cookery, sewing, housecraft, laundry work, decorating, handicrafts and home nursing. And, of course, they keep the house shipshape.

Although there are no bars and no walls at Askham Grange, there have been no attempted escapes. The girls know they'd get no chance to return if caught again. They go back behind regular prison bars.

And of the 143 women who have graduated from Askham, only two have got into trouble again.

Teacher Shortage Hits New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)—So acute is the shortage of school-teachers in New Zealand that scores of classes are in the temporary charge of housewives, farmers, young students and headmasters' wives. Dozen of positions are advertised without attracting a single applicant.

The crisis has been caused by the raising of the school-leaving age to 15, together with a sharp increase in the birth rate over the last few years. The situation has been intensified through the slow intake of student teachers during the war when many young people leaving school went straight into war service.

The need is most acute in country schools with one or two teachers. In place of fully-qualified teachers, education boards have had to enlist the help of farmers' wives and the wives of teachers already at the schools.

Education Minister McCombs has appealed to former teachers, especially women who left the service on marriage, to return temporarily to overcome the shortage. He thinks it will be at least two years before sufficient teachers can be trained to meet the problem. In the last three years the number of students at teachers' training colleges has almost doubled, so that sufficient fully-qualified teachers will eventually be available.

Some uncertified teachers at present employed have had a university education, but the majority have had only a few years at a high school.

It is naturally difficult to secure uniformity of teaching methods throughout the country under such conditions.

This is the normal aim in education in New Zealand where every effort is made to give country children as good an education as those in the cities. Conditions of service make it necessary for most teachers to spend several years at small country schools. As a result country teachers form a cross-section of young teachers on their way up and trained in the latest techniques.

RESCUE IN SIGHT

Apparently unperturbed by two days of drifting helplessly when the engine of his fishing vessel went dead, Walter Wilson, 70, of Lorneville, near Saint John, N.B., was finally towed home by the Saint John pilot boat a few minutes after this photo was taken. Well fed on the three days' provisions he had on hand, the elderly fisherman was rescued after a passing steamship radioed his plight to Saint John.—(CP Photo.)

A demand for an autumn election in Britain was made from inside the Labor party ranks. Lord Strabolgi veteran Laborite, told a Labor conference that further nationalization should be deferred until Britain had voted confidence in the Labor government's socialization program. Sir Stafford Cripps, answering an appeal for some hope of let-up in the austerity budgets, replied there would be no solution to financial problems other than greater production. Herbert Morrison, lord president of the council, cut off debate on the election plans as it would aid the Conservative opposition in laying their campaign plans. Prime Minister Clement Attlee will announce the date of the election if the government decides to go to the country this fall.—Central Press Canadian.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McQUILLAN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP) — Baytown Colonel would rather curl up on a phychiatrist's couch than race his heart out against a bunch of other greyhounds.

Baytown Colonel works himself into a such pitch of nervous tension in the racing kennels he suffers from cramp during the event. Twice recently he had the measure of his opponents. On both occasions he collapsed as he turned into the back straight.

It was clearly a phychiatrist's case, said greyhound pundits. And Baytown Colonel took "nerves" treatment from Harley Street psychotherpist Charles Brook.

Then the test.

The dog looked a certainty from the start but coming into the back straight 8,000 Walthamstow Stadium fans saw him double up with cramp to finish fourth.

As attendants carried the dog away, owner C.W. Charles said:

"Phychology does not seem to have done my dog any good. But we still hope to run him in the (greyhound) Derby, although it will all depend on his condition.

"The idea of having him psycho analyzed came from trainer Stanley Biss, who thought it might be well worth while."

Despite his recent poor running, Baytown Colonel has been backed down to second favorite for the Derby. He is considered one of the outstanding dogs of the year.

Philip Wills, British Gliding Association chairman, has beaten the British national distance record for single-seater gliders with a flight of 230 miles.

He landed at Gerrans, Cornwall, five hours, 50 minutes after casting off from a tow plane over Hatfield, Hertfordshire. The record is subject to confirmation.

Previous record was 216 miles, set in the United States in 1947 by Charles Wingfield in a British glider.

George Beard, 28-year-old taxi driver, and his "fare," saw Wills' glider land. They acted as witnesses, signing a "certificate" on a business card.

Tom Hall 48, of Yealmpton, Devonshire, hadn't played football for 20 years, but after his wife and child died it became his chief interest to watch local games.

A keen supporter of the Yealmpton club, he went with the team to nearby Bridgerule to cheer them.

Yealmpton was a man short, so Tom was asked to play. He was pleased.

But 20 minutes after the game started, he fell dead. The match was abandoned.

EMPLOYEES GIVEN RAISE

Blind River, June 11 — (CP) — Town employees here have been granted an over-all wage increase to overcome the high cost of living. The increase amounts to $15 a month and is retroactive to the first of the year.

HEAT EXPLODES BULLETS

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 11 — (CP) — Firemen Thursday had to duck revolver bullets as they fought an automobile fire. The car, a police cruiser, turned over and caught fire and the driver — Constable Joseph Ross, left his revolver on the seat as he scurried out. By the time firemen arrived the intense heat was beginning to explode the bullets.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop wasn't down to breakfist yet, and ma said, Oh dear, I have a million things to do today.

I bet you cant even name a thousand, I said.

Which I bet she couldn't, and ma said, If your father would only agree to have dinner up on the Avenue this evening, it would at least solve the cooking problem.

He allways claims there's no place like home, I said, and ma said, I know he does, and of course it's a very nice thawt, but sometimes I wish he wasn't quite so sentimental about certain things.

Which just then pop came down and ma waited till after his ferst cup of coffee, saying, Oh dear, William, you have no idea of the bizzy day that's stretching ahead of me.

I envy you, my dear, I'm afraid mine is going to be rather slow, judging by the way bizzness has been going, pop said, and ma said, I could see my way comparatively cleer if I didn't have a long marketing list overshadowing my day. Oh dear if we didn't have to eat, we'd have so mutch more time for everything elts, she said.

True enough, but we'd miss a lot of good food, pop said, and ma said, We haven't eaten out lately. Maybe you can think of some place where the food appealed to you, William, she said.

Why yes, by gollies, there was a place where we had a big plate of soop and a little stake that I remember as though it were yesterday, pop said. Come to think of it, it was yesterday, he said, and ma said, Why William Potts, we ate rite here at home yesterday.

That explains it, pop said.

And he laffed like anything at ma's expression and then asked her if she thawt she'd like to have dinner up on the Ave

Being the happy end of the subject.

HARD TO SETTLE DOWN

Toronto, June 11 — (CP)—I bert Bruce Robertson, 9, fin hard to settle down. He is in c tody of police here after be "captured" during his 12th ru away escapade since January. The slender, well-mannered boy said he wanted to go to the country. He lives in one room with his parents and a 15-year-old sister.

Tab Fighting Philadelphia Phillies as the Dark Horse In National League Race

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Tab the fighting Piladelphia Phillies as the dark horse in the National League race.

Coming strong after a faltering start, Eddie Sawyer's young men have passed the fading New York Giants and moved into first division They're only three games back of Brooklyn.

Kenny Hentzelman's 3-2 decision over the sizzling St. Louis Cardinals Friday night was the Phil's fourth straight victory and their seventh in the last eight games.

Heintzelman ended the Card surge after six successive victories, dropping the birds a game and a half back of leading Brooklyn. The Dodgers protected their half-game edge on Boston by whipping Cincinnati 10-5 while the Braves were dropping Chicago into the cellar 6-2.

Gran Hammer, brilliant shortstop prospect of the Phils, hammered Al Brazle and his successors for four hits to pace the Phil's attack.

The Dodgers broke loose with a six-run seventh inning climaxed by Carl Furillo's two-run homer, to give Joe Hatton his fifth victory. Despite two homers by Jimmy Bloodworth, the International League's all-star secondsacker with Montreal last season, Hatton went all the way. Bloodworth knocked in four runs in all.

Cubs In Last Place

Warren Spahn nudged the Cubs into last place with a six-hitter.

The Cubs, playing their last series under manager Charlie Grimm who moves into the front office Monday, when Frankie Frisch takes over.

Southpaw Bill Werle helped Pittsburg escape from the basement when he spun a neat three-hitter against the New York Giants 6-1. The loss was the Giants' fifth straight. They now have dropped all the way from first to fifth in five days.

Wally Westlake hit a homer with Ralph Kiner on base in the second to get the Bucs off to an early lead over Larry Jansen. Pete Castiglione helped retire Jansen for the afternoon with his sixth loss when he opened the eighth with a home run.

Vic Raschi put the New York Yankees back on the win path, snapping a four-game losing string, with a 3-2 edge over Cleveland and pitcher Gene Bearden. It was the ninth win for Raschi and his fifth in a row.

Raschi almost blew the game in the ninth when the Tribe rallied before 67,031, the largest Cleveland crowd of the season. A walk to Thurman Tucker, Larry Doby's triple and Joe Gordon's single gave the Indians two runs. Raschi ended the game by making manager Lou Boudreau round to Jerry Coleman.

Joe McCarthy's woes continued as his Boston Red Sox blew another one 4-2 to Chicago. After losing three straight at St. Louis, the Sox were beaten on a four-run third inning.

Rain washed out a scheduled night game between Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns. Washington and Detroit were not scheduled.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Due to the great amount of local and national sport copy and a reduction of space on sports pages, no box scores of baseball or softball games will be published from this date until playoffs with the exception of the Central Ontario Baseball League.

Box score records, however will be kept and made available for seasonal records.

Co-operation of managers of some of the teams in the Belleville Baseball League has been disappointing. They have not bothered even taking or having had taken box scores of the games in which their teams participated, yet they have howled to high heaven when a full account of the aforesaid games were not published.

Officials of teams in all phases of summer sport received due warning at the start of the season, that unless their co-operation in forwarding reports of sports fixtures was forthcoming, stories of their activities would not be published. The sports staff of this paper is only human and cannot like Alley Oop be wherever he wants to be at the push of a button.

According to the Trenton sheet a baseball game between Peterborough and Batawa was played on the Fair Grounds on Thursday night. It must have been one of those pre-dawn affairs for unless our sports assistant and the fans were seeing things the affair took place between Kiwanis Juniors and the Trenton Flyers. We studied the COBL schedule with a microscope, even contacted Secretary Jack Devine who knew nothing of the alleged episode.

It is going to be a tough weekend as far as sport are concerned. This afternoon, there is a soccer game at the Fair Grounds when Northern Electric meets the Trenton team at three o'clock. But here's something. Frank Grandame informed us at a late hour yesterday that his Northern Electric baseball team is playing the Trenton (town) team in Napanee this afternoon.

Soccer, me'lads, it fitba yez want.

This afternoon at three o'clock there's a soccer do at Fair Grounds, lads. Northern Electric, be goom, takin' on a team from Trenton. Be there, m'lads, 'twill be worth zeein'.

So much for that. youse guys and gals have had it. But tonight baseballicy-minded fans should go to the Exhibition Grounds and see this senior baseball show between the high-flying Oshawa Merchants and Batawa.

The Batawa team at the moment are in the cellar position of the COBL loop, Oshawa, as perhaps we have told you before are tops of the league. They're sitting pretty. Oshawa, that is, but the Batawans might yet show them a stiff argument. It should be a rather good bit of baseballing at Exhibition Grounds tonight. Game at 8.30.

Toronto, June 11—(CP)—Picture retired heavyweight champion Joe Louis, a beard tucked into the top of his trunks, or perhaps curled in a snood under his chin, doddering forward to meet another hopeful challenger and you'll see what a suggestion by Don (Sudbury Star) Mackintosh might lead to.

Half serious, half joking, the nickle city scribe says: Heavyweight boxing champions should be made to keep defending their titles until such time as they get themselves licked...there should be a law agin them retiring undefeated."

Of course, Mackintosh admits it's hardly feasible. He predicts "the next champ will only be a chump as far as some cauliflower—controlling bodies are concerned, particularly (in England) where Jack Solomons figures that either Bruce Woodcock of Freddie Mills should be in there somewhere."

Want "Genuine" Champ

Solomons would like to pit a Woodcock-Mills survivor against Lee Savold for the "genuine" world's title, and notes Mackintosh, "the (Solomons) scoffs at the idea that a champion might emerge from the Ezzard Charles-Joe Walcott mix being promoted by Joe Louis later this month."

This month of June, however, will settle the question for the time being and, says Mackintosh, "if Charles could knock Walcott out—or beat him decisively—we'd at least have a champion that Louis didn't lick.

Bites Back

At a civic banquet at Sudbury last month, given in honor of the Sudbury Wolves—Canada's representatives at the European world hockey championships last winter—the press and radio of Canada were roundly assailed because they "unfairly criticized" the team and "did not give publicity where it was deserved."

Since then several Ontario spots writers have answered that they merely criticized those who sent the team because the Wolves were not the strongest amateur hockey team available.

However, Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon besides agreeing on that point, has a little criticism of his own to offer. Bill writes:

"Messrs Dudley, Silverman and others who were so displeased with the press criticism should adopt a more kindly nature towards who used space in making any reference to the club, that could have gone in for things of more reading value."

'Whipper' Watson Hard Put To Subdue Sandy O'Donnell

A badly battered Whipper Billy Watson emerged more or less mowed but unbloody from his terrific clash with Sandy O'Donnell in the main bout of the wrestling card at Memorial Arena last night.

The "Whipper" was the victor. But not until after he was subjected to terrific punishment at the hands of the O'Donnell.

In short the villainous methods of the O'Donnell proved his downfall, for the opportunist Watson, after going through the more or less 'Spanish Inquisition' tactics, suddenly turned on his foe and with quick decisive methods won the second and deciding fall of the match.

The card in all was one of the best ever seen in Belleville. In the preliminary, Al. Lovelock (believe this or not was Queen's University football and basketball star) and Sliding Billy Hansen staged one of the best preliminary bouts ever seen in this city. It was a draw.

And adding to the general picture was the rambunctious bout between Tug Carlse, Swedish grappler and the towering Wee Willie Davis. Carlson got the nod.

Sandy O'Donnell, the huge hunk of man from south of the border proved to not only the faithful but the "Whip" that he was not to be fooled with. In fact had sandy had the majority of aggressive tactics and villainy, he would have won hands down.

But he had not reckoned with the "Whip."

Watson, much to the chagrin of his supporters, was apparently helpless before the ferocious attacks of O'Donnell. In the first fall, the O'Donnell subjected the Whip to more or less excruciable punishment.

In fact, Referee Cliff Fox, after O'Donnell persisted in his wild tactics, disqualified him. The crowd howled its approval.

Came the second fall. It was a more or less a repetition of the first bout but with Whipper Watson watching his opportunities, it did not take long. The Whip smashed into action and pinned the proud Sandy O'Donnell before he could say Frank Tunney. Let's have 'em back.

Plans are Made To Develop Junior Tennis Talent

Development of Canadian Junior Tennis talent, long conducted on a regional basis, became a national movement Friday with announcement at Montreal of a program by the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

The plan calls for a series of district elimination meets, followed by provincial meets, and a final Dominion championship tournament in Ottawa. Sectional winners qualifying for the national title must be declared by July 25.

Drafted by the C.L.T.A.'s Junior Training committee under Harold Marpole, the plan will be supervised across the Dominion by Laird Watt, former Davis Cup star.

The Ontario Cricket Association will hold trials at Armour Heights Toronto suburb, July 1-3 to help pick the team that will meet Quebec at Toronto July 16-17 in the annual interprovincial match. Team chosen also will represent Ontario in the Canadian championships at Edmonton and Calgary starting July 23. Players will be invited from many Ontario cities, including Ottawa, London, Peterborough, Brantford, St. Catharines, Windsor and Hamilton.

Canada's 1949 Bisley team left Montreal Friday by train for Quebec City to embark on the liner Samaria for England. The Bisley meet held annually by the National Rifle Association, starts the second week of July at Bisley and lasts for two weeks.

From Hamilton comes word that Joe Pal, halfback with Lew Hayman's Montreal Alouettes in 1948 will move into the Hamilton Tigers backfield this year. Pal Thursday signed a contract to play with the Bengals in the Ontario Rugby Football Union and will team up with such fast-moving gridmen as Merle Hapes, late of the New York Giants, and Jack Stewart.

At Arcadia, Calif., Ralph Neves, one of the United States' top jockeys, Friday was suspended pending an inquiry by the California Horse Racing Board into touting charges. The Hollywood Park Board of Stewards announced for activities detrimental to racing, Neves is suspended. It quoted from a report by the thoroughbred racing protective bureau that an investigator for the bureau, masquerading as a business man, had been driven to Neves home to pay off a tip on the eighth race June 3, won by Alfa.

A daily double payoff of $1,380.40 occurred at Narragansett Park, Pawtucket, R.I., Friday when R. C. Adams' Whim Wise, a $347.40 for $2 longshot, captured the second race. H. M. Stack's Micmac won the first race and returned $7.20 for $2.

At Hartford, Conn., Bert Thiel, Hartford righthander, Friday night pitched a seven-inning no-hit,, no-run game against Elmira Pioneers in the opener of an Eastern league doubleheader. Hartford won 7-0.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Here's the way you should swing a No. 4 iron. Notice that the ball is positioned slightly forward of center, perhaps an inch. And observe that the left foot is further back from the direction line than the right and the toe is pointed more toward the hole than you should have it with straighter faced clubs. With this iron the club should take the ball just after the bottom of the arc of the swing. You need no divot with a No. 4 iron nor with the other straight faced clubs No. 1, 2, 3. The more lofted the iron, the more open the stance should be and the closer the heels should be together. And of course the more lofted the iron, the shorter the club shaft, so that you should stand nearer to the ball. The shorter the shaft the more perpendicular you should make the swing and the shorter is the backswing. If the highly lofted irons Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8 are correctly swung you inevitably take some divot because the clubhead does not reach the low point in the arc of the swing until just after clubhead meets ball. Better read that all over again and fix the principle in your mind. You'll be happy when the boys begin paying you dimes at hole No. 19.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, — (CP) — George Stern's the name.

He's only 21 an he's had only nine professional fights as a heavyweight. His handlers are so sure he's a great prospect they are prepared to back him to the tune of £5,000 ($20,000) against any of the big boys in the boxing business. But there's a catch.

The story began last year when Sam Cowan, promoter at Manchester's Ardwick Stadium for 20 years, took a trip to Chelsea barracks to have a chat with George, who then was in the Scots Guards. It seemed the lad only had to breath to beat opponents in service tournaments.

George was bought out of the army. Trainer Fred Hall was engaged. Sam threw in his promoter's licence for a manager's ticket.

So for a time it was nothing for the Scottish lad, who proved to be a "natural." He won his first professional contest on points and eight more victories followed.

Then came the snags. Cowan has asked London, Leicester and Glasgow promoters to give George a break. But no one seems to fancy Stern.

Maybe it's because he's in the "awkward squad" a southpaw.

Soccer at its fastest and most skilful—they call it "fives'—was seen at the festival of the football held at London's Empress Hall June 4 in aid of the National Sports Development Fund.

There are five players instead of 11 and the ball must be kept below knee height. The game is so fast that five minutes each way is enough for trained professionals.

There was also a competition of head tennis—heading a soccer ball back and forth across a net—judged by Walter Winterbottom who also demonstrated training methods for England's international team.

The thunder of rugby boots will give way to the patter of athletes' shoes on Scotland's famous international ground, Murrayfield, this summer.

The British Legion is organizing a sport meet there, at the end of July.

Among the athletes who may compete will be Mrs. Fanny Blankers-Koen, triple Olympic champion from Holland.

The Farmer and the Sportsman

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.

The more I see of the Great american Sportsman, the more I lose patience with him. It's reaching the point where I dislike the word "sportsman" and I use it only when necessary. The rest of the time I use "hunter" or "fisherman", and let it go at that.

To be sure, most hunters and fishermen are pretty good fellows. They obey the fish and game laws, respect the rights of others and generally behave themselves. It's the odd "sportsman," who breaks all the rules, who is the one that makes things tough for the rest of us.

NO HUNTING
NO FISHING
THIS MEANS YOU

There is a valley not far from my home which for a great many years gave us excellent ringneck shooting. The farmers who live there are pleasant people and they allowed us to hunt where we chose. Then one sad day a group of five rabbit hunters invaded the valley.

Acted Like Gangsters

A farmer and his twelve-year old son also were hunting rabbits, and the boy shot a rabbit ahead of this party's dog while they were well out of range and, in fact, concealed by a small rise of ground. The five men insisted that the rabbit was theirs.

When the farmer objected and ordered them off his land, they beat him into unconsciousness, took the rabbit, and went away leaving him lying there. Today the entire valley is posted against hunting.

About fifteen miles from the desk where this is being written there is a trout stream that winds its way down through the meadows and fields of a lovely valley. This stream has deep pools, undercut banks, and long, smooth "feeding runs," and it can and does show us some excellent dry-fly fishing.

Then the boys from "over the hill" in the coal mining regions began to fish there. They broke down fences, started grass fires littered the farmyards with trash and lunch papers and otherwise annoyed the residents of the valley.

Last spring the entire valley was posted. Some of us, who make it our business to try to provide better fishing and shooting for our area, took time out and visited every farmer in the valley. We were fortunate in being able to have every trespass sign removed.

Thoughtless and Selfish

Two days after the season opened, the fish warden drove through this valley to see how things were going. The first farmer showed him two cars parked well out among the furrows of a field of winter wheat. The next showed him a broken fence, knocked down intentionally so that a fisherman could park his car.

The third reported the theft of three ducks, pets of the children. The fourth showed the ashes of a grass fire, perilously close to a barn. The fifth showed a lane blocked by three cars, making the working of two fields impossible for that day.

And so it went, on down through the valley. Next year that stream no doubt will be "private water," open only to a few.

Some years ago North and South Dakota invited the sportsmen of the nation to come and shoot pheasants. You know the story The slaughter was nothing short of shameful. In addition, a great deal of damage was done both to property and livestock. One "sportsman" from Baltimore actually shipped home over seven hundred pheasants.

Naturally South Dakota took steps to discourage out-of-state hunters. With the present restrictions and high fees, shooting in South Dakota is hardly worth the trip to a non-resident.

And so it goes, right straight across the board, You, in your own personal experience, can probably cite countless discourtesies to land owners and breaches of the game laws.

Obvious remedy

The remedy is perfectly obvious. Until the right-thinking sportsmen take matters into their own hands, rebuking offenders on the spot and reporting breaches of the fish and game laws, the meat hog and hoodlum "sportsmen" will continue to hamper our freedom to enjoy the outdoors.

The warden do what they can but there simply aren't enough wardens to do the whole job. Mr. Fisherman and Mr. Hunter, the real solution of the problem lies in your hands.

'Fordham Flash,' Frankie Frisch, To Succeed Grimm

Boston, June 11 — (AP) — Charlie Grimm tomorrow will lead his Chicago Cubs on the field for the last time.

Jolly Cholly will become vice-president in charge of baseball operations and the man he selected, Frankie Frisch, the old "Fordham Flash," will succeed him as field manager.

Frisch, signed to a contract which will run through 1951, will assume his new post in Chicago next Monday when Jimmy Gallagher, who has been general manager of the National League team, will become vice - president in charge of business matters.

Owner Philip K. Wrigley told of these changes Friday a few hours before the Cubs slipped into the National League cellar after being whipped 6-2 by the Boston Braves.

"The change was for the best interest of the club," Grimm told baseball writers.

"Mr. Wrigley flew into New York and we talked over the entire situation. He was worried about my health and that the poor showing of the team might be injurious to me.

"The players have given me their best and I'll take the rap for our showing just as I gave them credit for winning three pennants in 10 years for me as manager.

"There's nothing wrong with my health. Of course, I'm disappointed, who wouldn't be.

"I didn't want to be kicked upstairs. We talked it all over and Wrigley convinced me he needed a baseball man in the front office because baseball has become such a vast business."

Wrigley told interviewers: — "Charlie will live longer in his new job."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON

New York, June 11 (AP) — Shortly after the National Fastball League went all out to step up hitting, even moving he pitcher's slab two feet farther back than in regular softball, this moan arrived from publicity man Rodger Nelson of Fort Wayne, Ind. . . . "My boys are making my job tough. I'm trying to sell more offence and here's what they do in the first 11 games: Held our opponents to three runs; shut out the opposition in the last nine games and run up 68 consecutive scoreless innings . . . only bright spot is our batting average of .276."

Sportspourri

Red Hogan's Kansas University Baseball Team, walloped by Oklahoma A. and M. in the fifth District National Collegiate playoffs, is at lesat consistent. It made nine errors in the opening game this season and nine in the final playoff game . . . Bert Sheppard, now player-manager of the Waterbury, Conn., Colonial League club, will return to a big league park July 26 when he pitches for the leg-amputee veterans team against the arm-amputee veterans at the Polo Grounds . . . Television fans' favorite for the Belmont this afternoon ought to be that horse "Sun Barroom."

Toronto Leafs Tied for Second In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

The walls of woe expressed by International League managers when Montreal Royals received pitchers Johnny Van Cuyk, Clarence Podbielan and Pat McGlothin from Brooklyn are being heard again.

Unimpressive in their first few outings, the trio is starting to click and the Royals to move.

McGlothin, a big righthander, came up with a 1-0, one-hit shutout over the league - leading Jersey City Giants Friday night.

Bill Gardner spoiled McGlothin's bid for a no-hitter with a sharp single to left in the eighth inning. McGlothin fanned four and walked seven in hanging up his third victory.

Andy Tomasic had no one to blame but himself for the loss. He walked pitcher McGlothin to start the third inning. McGlothin moved around on two infield outs and scored on Bob Morgan's single to left.

The triumph moved the fourth-place Royals to within two games of the Giants who hold a one game edge on the second place Buffalo Bisons and third place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Ken Burkhart pitched the Syracuse Chiefs to a 2-0 three - hit victory over the Bisons.

The Chiefs clipped Ernie Silverman and relief age Bob Hooper for 12 hits.

Al Porto, with help in the ninth from Nick Strincevich, pitched the Leafs to a 6-3 decision over Baltimore Orioles. The Leafs scored a run in the second on a passed ball and four more in a third-inning uprising.

Porto blanked the Orioles until the eighth inning when Frank Mancuso belted a two-run, pinch-hit homer, his eighth of the season.

Rochester Red Wings scored twice in the ninth after two out to beat Newark Bears 6-5. Russ Derry started the rally with his 15th homer.

Belmont Stakes Will be Run With Eight Colts

New York, June 11 (AP).—Eight colts with definite designs on the 1949 three-year-old crown today are scheduled to take a crack at the $91,500 Belmont stakes.

This 81st running of the mile and one-half classic doesn't have a real outstanding, contender, such as Citation a year ago. But there are enough "ifs" and "ors" to make it one whale of a horse race for the expected crowd of around 50,000.

Four big questions were uppermost in minds of the turf faithful:

1. Can Calumet Farm's Ponder duplicate his Kentucky Derby victory in another of those thrilling come-from-behind gallops?

2. Will Isidore Bieber's Palestinian, third in the Derby and second in the Preakness, finally make the grade into the winner's circle in this final jewel of the triple crown?

3. Does Greentree Stable's Capot have the stu to travel a mile and a half, and hold off the others as he did to take the Preakness?

4. Or will some rank outsider—and there are several in the race—repeat 1933 history when Joseph E. Widener's Hurryoff, a 50 to 1 shot, romped home by eight lengths in the mud to take it all?

Here's how they'll line up in order of post position this time:

Palestinian, Ponder, J. Graham Brown's Saint Nicholas, David Shaer's Engel Man, Clifford Mooers' Old Rockport, Woodvale Farm's Halt, Capot, and Mrs. Eden H. Ellison's Sun Bahram. All will have 126 pounds.

If eight go, the winner will drag down $60,900.

Ponder is expected to be the post-time favorite, and is being quoted at 6 to 5. Last Saturday Ponder came from seventh place to take the mile and one-eighth Peter Pan, while the favorite Capot ran out of the money.

Palestinian, the probable second choice, walloped Olympia and set a Garden State Park record of 2:01 4-5 in winning the Jersey stakes over the mile and one-quarter route two weeks ago.

Outsider Heads U.S. Open Match By One Stroke

Chicago, June 11 (AP)—Al Brosch, a David among golf's Goliaths, clutched a one-stroke lead today as the 49th United States Open entered a pressure-packed 36-hole wind-up.

With some of the game's greatest champions unqualified on the sidelines, the 37-year-old outsider from Garden City, N.Y., headed a field pruned from 162 to 51 survivors with a 36-hole total of 141. The deadline was 150.

Brosch Friday coupled a par 71 with his opening round of 70. He reached the halfway point a mere stroke ahead of another "unknown" Buck White of Greenwood, Miss., and the prominent Cary Middlecoff.

Middlecoff, the former dentist who has been bagging golf gold for three years, rebounded from a dismal 75 to a course record-matching 34-33—67 for the 6,891-yard Medinah No. 3 layout.

White blazed into contention with a pair of 34's for 68 to go with his opening 74.

Bracketed at 143 were Claude Harmon, the 1948 Masters' winner, who had 72-71; veteran Clayton Hefaner with 72-71, and Les Kennedy who balooned to 74 after copping the first round lad with a 69.

Another lesser-light Pete Cooper of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., notched a second round 75 for 144.

Ellsworth Vines, Bobby Locke and 20-year-old Bob Harris were next with 145.

Only five strokes off the pace at 146 were Ralph Guldahl, ancient Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Palmer, Jack Isaacs of Longley Air Base, Va., and Sammy Snead, who posted two 73s.

Six former champions failed to get under the 150 qualifying figure. They were Byron Nelson 74-77; Gene Sarazen (75-73); Tony Manero (79-78); Chick Evans (76-76); Billy Burke (76-80) and Lawson Little (77-76).

Also sidelined were other big names in golf, such as Frank Stranahan, Smiley Quick, Bob Hamilton, Denny Shute, Dutch Harrison, Dick Metz, Jimmy Demaret and Bud Ward.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Pitching, Vic Raschi, Yankees—became major league's first nine-game winner with 3-2 victory over Cleveland, allowing only five hits.

Batting, Gran Hamner, Phillies—led Phils to 3-2 win over St Louis with a double and three singles.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 11 — (AP) — "I want to be in Rome day after tomorrow. Get me there."

A request like this wouldn't throw Ray Cardillo, whose travel agency gets many Hollywood stars where they want to go. After 17 years of it, nothing surprises him.

"Most of my trade with the stars is spur-of-the-moment," he commended. "For instances, I learnd about the Bob Hope tour about three days before he was to leave."

He referred to the comedian's tour of the United States earlier this year. The two air jaunts touched on 80 cities and ran up a transportation bill of around $100,000. And there was nary a hitch, except for a 15-minute take-off delay because singer Billy Farrell overslept.

Biggest Ever

Th Hope junket was the biggest thing Cardillo arranged. He has also fulfilled star requests for hotel reservations in long Beach, 20 miles distant. Nothing is too big or too small.

You and I may be thinking about vacatoins this time of year, but not movie stars, said Cardillo.

"They seem to figure they should be doing something in the summer -- either plays or tours like Hope's," he remarked. "And I guess the truth is that they can't afford to be idle. As Hope says, "I'd like to take a vacation, but the government won't let me."

This business of showing tricks has its moments of restraint. Times are when it cramps your style. As when your next bid requires a raise and you lack an additional trick.

Not that this is a serious handicap. Usually no harm comes of it. In such cases, there is no serious need of making your next bid. And there are ways of overcoming this apparent stymie if necessary.

You know that each player starts with a basis of tricks. Also that each raise shows another trick. Also that bids follow the order of choice in T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump.

However, you may have a takeout that requires a raise and lack another trick. Or you may have an assist that requires a raise and lack the additional trick that would permit you to show it.

South opens one heart with this hand:

♠A 9 4
♥K J 8 3
♦A Q 9 7
♣10 4

His opening promises five tricks. He has exactly five and no more. Consequently, no future bids of his may be a raise in the last partnership number. He has no tricks for number increases.

Suppose his partner responds with a bid of one spade. South has an unshown biddable diamond suit. To bid it here he would have to say two diamonds. He lacks a sixth trick for such a raise.

He also has adequate support for the spade suit bid by partner. To show it here he would have to say two spades. He lacks the sixth trick for such a raise. Therefore, he must not takeout or assist.

The takeout by partner is forcing for one round. He dare not pass. Lacking enough tricks to show his takeout or assist, he must bid no-trump. Only this bid is left to him without a raise.

Are you wondering what will happen if north passes? Unless north has something more to say, they probably belong in one no-trump. Life is not always bitter.

Noel Coward's New Comedy Will Star Gertrude Lawrence in Autumn

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, June 11 — (CP) — Gertrude Lawrence and Noel Coward, a sparkling theatrical team, may jointly provide Broadway play-goers with a treat in the autumn.

Coward's new comedy, "South Sea Bubble," is scheduled for fall presentation here by John C. Wilson. The British wit and dramatist returned recently from Jamaica, where he is believed to have written most of the play.

Miss Lawrence, now playing in London in "September Tide," may head the cast. She has long been anxious to appear in another Coward script. With the playwright in or due to arrive in England any day, the drama probably will soon be in Miss Lawrence's hands.

"South Sea Bubble" is the first comedy Coward has written since "Blithe Spirit."

Stage Marco Polo

Donn Byrne's novel, "Messer Marco Polo," is another dramatic project slated for Broadway in the coming season. It is planned as a musical, to be produced jointly by Stanley Gilkey and Donald Oenslager. The latter, a scenic designer, would be making his managerial debut. Robert Nathan, author of the novels "One More Spring" and "Portrait of Jenny," has been charged with writing the script. "Messer Marco Polo" is to have lyrics by Johnny Mercer and music by Robert Emmett Dolan.

Gertrude Stein Play

"Yes Is For a Very Young Man," a play by the late Gertrude Stein about France during the German occupation, was presented this week at the Cherry Lane Theatre by Off Broadway, Incorporated. The play is talky but it conveys interestingly the feelings of patriotic French villagers while their country was under enemy control during the Second World War. Miss Stein provides an interplay of challenging philosophical ideas. And the language is not as unintelligible as in some of her work — that is, for the average theatre-goer.

Gene Lockhart, a native of London, Ont., and his daughter, June, both stage notables, have left for Germany by plane to play the father and daughter roles in the comedy, "John Loves Mary," for audiences at United States air bases in Europe. The whirlwind tours calls for 30 performances in 15 days . . . Mary Bothwell, Toronto-born soprano who now lives in New York, is in Europe on a concert tour.

Prime Minister Ready to Resume His Campaign

Quebec, June 11 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent will resume his election campaigning Monday, it was announced Friday night.

A minor attack of laryngitis interrupted his strenuous speaking tour two days ago.

The prime minister will address a public meeting at Longueuil, Que., Monday morning and during the day will visit Jacques Cartier, St. Lambert, Laprairie, all in the Montreal district.

He also will address a public meeting at Farnham in the Eastern Townships, also Monday morning.

On Wednesday the prime minister will address public meetings at Arnprior, Ont., and Renfrew, Ont. in the afternoon, at Pembroke in the evening.

AT THE BELLE — Cheek to cheek. Van Johnson and Loretta Young are on very friendly terms in "Mother Is a Freshman," 20th. Century-Fox new Technicolor comedy hit, showing today and Monday at the Belle.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to take a walk with pop before supper, and ma said, William, I wish you'd stop at the market on your way back and pick me up a half pound of butter and a box of Feather Fluff soap flakes.

Did you say Feather Fluff flakes, for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, Yes, Jeffery Linly talks about them on the radio every afternoon on his show, to the skies in his enthusiastic yet gentle way, goodness, your tongue just melts in your mouth.

But yee gods, aren't they the soap flakes that you complained made your hands ruff and red and your finger nales brittle and your eyes weepy and your hair limp? pop said, and ma said, Dont exaggerate, William, I didn't say anything about my hair. But I will confess the rest of it is true, and also that particuler soap made me sneeze uncontrollably and gave the clothes, a sort of dark unpleasant tinge and left a sort of sticky coating on the dishes she said.

Then why in Sam Hill do you want me to berden myself with a box of it when you know how I hate to carry even useful packidges? pop said, and ma said, You wouldn't ask that question if you listened to Jeffery Linly every afternoon the way I do. He says sutch awful things in sutch an innocent way that you just cant help loving him, and he has sutch a personnel, trusting way of talking that the very thawt of not trusting him in retern makes you feel unbearably ungrateful, in spite of all the evidence to the contrary. But please dont get the idea that I'm actually going to use the Feather Fluff flakes, William. I just want my conscience to be at rest by knowing that I have a box of them on the shelf while Jeffery Linly is talking, she said.

I'll bring you the butter, pop said.

Which he did.

Rocket-Range Barber Denies Acting as Spy

Washington, June 11 — (AP)— Reports from the Coplon espionage trial that the Federal Bureau of Investigation checked on the Russian Embassy, a barber at a rocket - testing range and a Russian language newspaper today produced protests from the barber and the paper's editor, and silence from the Embassy.

Already parts of the 12 reports have stirred up sensations aside from the question of whether Judith Coplon pilfered government secrets while working in the justice department.

One report quoted a "reliable" informer as saying a barber at the White Sands proving ground in New Mexico, where guided missiles are tested, was expected to be able "to get photographs and other information" for transmission to the Russian Embassy in Mexico. The barber was identified as Eugenic Chavez.

In El Paso, Chavez said that "I never spied on anybody or tried to be a spy." He said he has left-wing sympathies and subscribes to the communist newspaper, the Daily Worker.

Another report discussed the San Francisco Russian - language newspaper Novaya Zarya, published by Gregory T. Soohoff and said the F. B. I. had received "numerous unsubstantiated allegations" that the newspaper was subsidized by the Soviet government.

Soohoff commented at San Francisco that this was "a great injustice." He said his paper has not been biased in its presentation of news and that it has not received "a single cent" in subsidy from anyone.

One imformant said communists here receive instructions from attaches of the Soviet Embassy and the Bulgarian Legation.

The trial ended its seventh week Friday. Miss Coplon is accused of removing Justice Department secrets with reason to believe they would be used to the benefit of a foreign power, Russia.

Two Squadrons Will Fly to Man. For Exercises

Ottawa, June 11 — (CP)—Two squadrons of Royal Canadian Navy Sea Furies will fly from Dartmouth, N. S., to Rivers, Man., shortly for eight weeks of army co-operation exercises, naval headquarters announced today.

The 17 fighter planes comprise the 19th Carrier Air Group, part of the group's ground crew will be flown to Rivers in R.C.A.F. transport aircraft while the rest of the crewmen will make the trip by train.

At Rivers, home of the joint air training school, the navy pilots will receive advanced training in air coverage of troops during landing operations and other phases of air support of ground troops.

The aircraft will leave their base at the Dartmouth naval air station June 21 with stops scheduled at Rockcliffe airport and Port Arthur. The flight will pass over Saint John, N. B., Montreal, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Kenora and Brandon.

The big single - seat Sea Furies are capable of a speed of more than 450 miles an hour. They can carry two 1,000 - pound bombs or rockets in addition to their four 20-millimetre cannon.

PILE OF QUESTIONS

On April 18, 1949, the Candian Government Bureau received 3,937 enquiries.

Cold Room Lockers Have Come to Deseronto

Lockers, for the convenience of Deseronto and District residents, are being installed by A. E. Walker, prop. of Stover and Sager's general store, Deseronto, to be known as

WALKER'S FROSTY LOCKERS

The boxes will rent for $10 per year and the First year's rental of $10 is payable now to the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Deseronto.

Owing to the delay in obtaining steel lockers the plant will not be in operation for six to eight weeks. The locker rent now deposited in the bank will be refundable as of August 31st., if the plant, due to unforeseen circumstances, is not in operation.

This money will be placed in a Trust Fund, which cannot be drawn upon until the lockers are in operation.

The first year's box rental will come into effect September 1st. Therefore, if the lockers start operation previous to this date, no rent will be charged for the period from the starting of the service to September 1st.

Anyone wishing to take advantage of the free service period must make their deposit previous to the opening of the lockers.

Boxes $10.—A. E. WALKER, Prop.—Drawers $12.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

Two days after the formal announcement of the date of the Freshman Masquerade, to which all Frontier University girls and their dates would be welcomed, nine boys had called Polly McMurray to put in their bids. These included not only ranch friends of her and her brother Ward, but young men who lived in Phoenix as well. She thanked each of the nine and courteously told them no. For once, popularity did not leave her heart singing.

When she should have been happiest, she moped about the college like some droopy, bespectacled bookworm.

"Something wrong with the old metabolism, Polly?" one girl asked. "You needn't let anything—or anybody—get you down, kid! You have too many friends."

"I know, Sue. Thanks a lot. No, I'm just—just awfully busy and and all." Sue Rivers was an old and true friend from a neighboring ranch, a junior at Frontier.

"There's talk," Sue went on. "We know you have been invited to the Masque, so it can't be that. Some of the girls aren't so lucky, you know. We lack your gorgeous brown eyes—you are the prettiest thing, Polly dear!"

Polly squeezed her friends hand in thanks, but talked no more here.

She had a task to do, she told herself, and she meant to do it. So she went directly to the college library. It was always a good bet that she could find a certain party back in the Old Records room. Sure enough, he was there, surrounded by files of 1880 newspapers this morning.

"Ken," she began, "you're coming out to Paradise for dinner tonight. Won't you, please??"

"Why Polly! Sure thing! Hadn't expected such an invitation. We'll study together, hunh? There's some stiff calculus that—"

She smiled sweetly at him. "We will not! You'll do all that in spare moments today, mister. I have other plans. Ward and I. Be there at six. We eat early."

Her brother Ward wasn't in on the plan, yet. But she would tell him in good time Also, she cut back to the Administration Building and found Sue Rivers again. She invited Sue to dinner also.

Sue, who was awfully nice but who would never be pretty.

She did her own studying even as she had ordered Ken to do—in spare day time, She was home by five o'clock. She had bathed and dressed simply and was chatting with Sue who had ridden over from the Rivers ranch on a horse, and together the two girls welcomed Ken when he rattled out in his funny old jaloppy. Ken had on white trousers and an open green coat—gay sports outfit in tops fashion here in the balmy southwest. A chill would touch Arizona at sundown, but this part of the state never knew real cold.

Ward, too, was dressed, and delighted. That young man worked furiously at the business of ranching. He was paying off a half interest in his dad's entire holdings here, paying by raising his own herd, by serving as foreman for the Paradise enterprise by doing two men's labor of bossing and thinking. He hadn't nearly enough time for the sociability he craved, he was only 26 years old himself.

"Hi, Ken, you old mangy son-of-a-gun you!" he greeted the young collegian. "Sure glad Sis popped up a little party. Hear we're going to practice dancing tonight. Well, fellow citizens, I need it. How's the old college work, hunh?"

His hearty man-talk delighted Ken. Ken Palmer, who was the only male student in a college of 600 girls. There was something earthy and solid about Ward McMurray.

The dinner was bountiful and good, and if Ken was surprised by Polly's plan to practice dancing afterward, he didn't complain. At least not at first. There were new phonograph records. Polly and Sue, as they expressed it, had themselves a time bossing two big broad-shouldered boys. Herding them in the cutest dance steps, Laboring to instill a new sort of grace in their movements.

The two males proved to be good students. Ken could dance very well with either Polly or Sue by 9 o'clock. Most important, he was gaining confidence. Both girls were "naturals"; only the most impossible gawks could have failed to respond to their rhythmic motions. But at 9.30 Ken wondered if Polly weren't tired. Ward had taken Sue away, saying they could drive five miles over to the highway store and bring back some ice cream for refreshments.

"No, you are not stopping," Polly answered Ken's query. "Of course I'm not tired. And you have to dance perfectly before I let you graduate, mister! But we can have an intermission. Come sit by the fireplace."

It was just cool enough to need a fire. The huge ranch living room was dominated by this fireplace, which was a rustic, head-high thing made of native rocks. It was so delightfully old fashioned that it even had a wrought iron bracket which swung around to hold black kettles over the blaze. Ofttimes the boy and girl knew, good things to eat cooked here.

"All the place needs is a spinning wheel," Ken said, smiling.

"Sit down, Ken," Polly invited again. "I have something to say to you."

She was not gay, not talking lightly. Not all responsive to this exceedingly romantic setting. The electric lights were out, and only the ironwood logs sent shadows dancing about the room. Big Ken's ruddy face was illuminated theatrically. He looked so young! Polly had to avert her eye lest the panic that lurked inside her arise again to take command. She couldn't afofrd to be panicky now.

Ken sat in a straight chair with seat of laced rawhide; but she sat lower, on a stool made of cross section of sahuaro cactus wood. The top of her stool was calf skin with its thick hair still on. She crossed her slender ankles, staring at the fire.

'Mmmmmmm!" Ken sang, low tone, appreciatively. He was looking at Polly. "There's a phrase—'prety as a picture'—you've heard it, Polly. Well, you sitting there that way with the fire light playing on you—"

"Hush, Ken. It's sweet, but I'm the one to talk tonight. Now—come to think of it, though, you were doing right well! Sure you were, Ken! That's the sort of things girls like to hear!"

"Oh!" He was suddenly self-conscious again. He reddened a bit.

"But listen to me now." Polly had a prim little speech all prepared. Determinedly she went on with it. "Ken, there is a girl at college who likes you very much. She is a nice girl. Very popular. Now Ken, just to be frank about it, we all know you are kind of bashful and all. You lack confidence. That's why I have been making you learn to dance. Now Ken, I want you to promise me something."

"What, Polly?" She had his interest.

"I—Ken, promise you will go tomorrow and ask that girl for a date. Ask to take her to the Freshman Masque. She—I can assure you she is pretty! Oh, she'll be the most popular somebody there! You'll be awfully proud of your date. Will you ask her, Ken?"

The young man did not answer. He just frowned a bit in sheer surprise, staring at the lovely person beside him.

"Will you, Ken? She's a friend of mine. And all of us. She—Ken, there's another reason, too. In fact your dad would be much interested in that. But skip that for a moment. Just let it be a personal thing, a—a happy sort of personal thing." Polly had to pause and swallow. This was a hard speech for her to make.

"Oh. Thanks a lot, Polly. Thanks. But who—who—?"

"Ken, it's Joy Boone."

"Joy." He repeated it, looking now at the fire. Polly nodded.

"Promise me you'll ask her. Tomorrow."

He didn't say anything for a long minute. He just sat there watching the blaze. Great coals were forming casting their warmth. Little green twigs would go "spzzzz!", adding life to the fire, otherwise there was silence here.

Finally he did speak, in tone ever so low and kindly. "Polly, I am forced to remember Priscilla and John Alden. I am— bookish, you know. Do you recall what John Alden did? The unselfish thing?"

"It's the prettiest story in American literature. The situation isn't quite the same here, of course, because John really loved the girl himself even though he spoke for Miles Standish. While you—you, of course—no, Polly. No, I won't promise!"

He suddenly sat up straight in his chair and his voice became stronger, more hearty, as if they hadn't been discussing personal matters at all. His tone was quite easy and matter-of-fact.

"Polly, it's getting late and Ward and Sue will be coming back, so I must ask you something. Will—will, you go to the Freshman Masque with me? Will you? Please do, Polly. I'd be ever so honored."

British Order Belgian Troops To Occupy Plant

Dismantling Squads Quit After Germans Upset Carts

Duesseldorf, Germany, June 13 (Reuters) — The British military government today ordered Belgian troops to occupy the Essen Coal Company's synthetic gasoline works at Bergkamen.

Dismantling squads at the works withdrew today after Germans had overturned carts and automobiles to block their entrance.

One hundred troops with tanks and armored cars occupied the works without incident.

Dismantling squads withdrew when the 'defenders' seized lumps of coal from the dumps threatening to use them as missiles.

Their action was a challenge to Maj.-Gen. W. H. A. Bishop, British Regional Commissioner for north Rhine Westphalia, who warned the Germans over the weekend he could close the works completely if interference with the dismantling of four plants continued at the Dortmund kerosene works.

Dismantling of the other two plants due to start today — the Krupp synthetic gas plant and the Gewerkschaft Viktor works —was reported to have started.

NOMINATION DAY BEING HELD FOR GENERAL ELECTION

Expected More Than 800 Persons Will Signify Intention to Run

(By The Canadian Press)

This is nomination day for Canada's June 27 general election. As many as 800 persons — perhaps many more — are expected to make their candidature official.

Nominations close at 2 p. m. local standard time in 254 of the country's 260 constituencies—six remote ridings closed nominations May 30 — and those who intend to remain in the running must have their official papers and deposits of $200 each in the hands of returning officers by that time.

Up to Sunday night, compilation by The Canadian Press showed that 801 candidates had been announced.

These were 258 Liberals, 247 Progressive Conservatives, 171 C. C. F., 51 Union of Electors, 24 Social Credit, 19 Labor - Progressive, 17 Independents and 14 representing minor groups.

These totals likely will be swelled by last - minute entries or candidates not previously announced.

There will be 262 Commons seats at stake in this election. Two of the 260 constituencies—Halifax and Queens, in Prince Edward Island — elect two members each, bringing the seat total to 262.

The number of seats open for election in the 1945 general election was 245. The total has been increased by 17 through the addition of seven for the new province of Newfoundland and 10 for new ridings created since 1945.

The total of candidates officially nominated in 1945 was 954, the largest field in Canadian history. There were 672 in 1940 and 892 in 1935.

In terms of Eastern Daylight time, nominations close as follows this afternoon in the various zones across Canada:

Newfoundland, 1.30 p. m.; Atlantic, 2 p. m.; Eastern, 3 p. m.; Central, 4 p. m.; Mountain, 5 p. m.; Pacific, 6 p. m.

Any Qualified Voter Can Run

Any qualified voter may run as a candidate or nominate another person.

The candidate must file with the returning officer in the riding in which he is running an official nomination paper containing the signatures of 10 voters who nominate him. He must sign it, certifying he agrees to run. The document must contain no political designation.

The nominee also must make a $200 deposit which is returned to him if he polls one-half of the vote total of the winning candidate election day. Otherwise, the money goes to the Crown.

The Cap's compilation of candidates announced show Ontario, with 83 seats, with the biggest candidate total — 259. These were 83 Progressive Conservatives, 82 Liberals, 75 C.C.F., seven Labor-Progressives, three Social Credit, two Independents, three Independent - Liberals, one Independent-Social Credit, one Socialist-Labor, one Farmer-Labor and one Union of Electors candidate.

INVITE PACT REPRESENTATIVES

Washington, June 13 (CP) — The veterans of foreign wars has invited the countries joining the United States in the Atlantic pact to send representatives to the V.F.W. Golden Jubilee convention in Miami Aug. 21-26. Officials announced Sunday that Canada, Britain and Denmark already have accepted and others "have shown great interest."

Say Cominform Meets in Poland To Discipline Tito

Warsaw, June 13 (AP) — A highly-qualified informant said today the cominform (communist international information bureau) is meeting in Poland to plan action against Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

The informant said communist leaders from all the so-called democracies of Eastern Europe also are drafting a new propaganda campaign in an effort to undermine the effects of United States aid to Western Europe.

What form this campaign might take is not known.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, June 13 (CP)—Synopsis—Scattered showers and thunderstorms tonight will bring some relief to drought stricken areas of Southern Ontario. A disturbance extendnig across Northern Ontario and Wisconsin this morning is moving southeastward accompanied by showers and thunderstorms. Cooler air behind the disturbance will cover the entire province by Tuesday morning bringing an end to the current heat wave. Tuesday will be sunny and cooler in most regions of the province. By Tuesday afternoon the cool air will begin to recede from northwestern Ontario in advance of another disturbance moving eastward across the northern prairies.

Experts Scout Idea of Depression Slump Seen Only End of Inflation

Washington, June 13 (CP) — Expert opinion on the future meaning of recent reports of climbing unemployment and falling business in the United States range from optimism to gloom.

Most optimistic are Government officials, inclined to view the slump as the end of inflation rather than as the start of recession.

Some private economists, especially in universities, take the same long-range view and stress factors that support the general economy. A few industrials also belittle the slump.

But, in general, the closer you come to the public the gloomier are the predictions.

Manufacturers are likely to say production will go down the rest of this year, pick up in early 1950. Business men, the most pessimistic, say the buying public is balky and the manufacturers unrealistic in maintaining prices. Some business men say things are going to get worse, much worse. They look for unemployment to spread. They don't think 1950 will be a good year at all.

Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of President Truman's economic advisory council, hinted that council members are not seriously disturbed—yet—when he told reporters last week, "we couldn't expect to keep unemployment where it was last year."

What does bother the economists is that May is a month when the number of idle normally drops, when the economy is running high or low. Last month it went up—and substantially up.

However, Ewen Clague, United States Commissioner of Labor Statistics, says that in the high-employment years of 1947 and 1948 the labor force (working or looking for work) jumped an average of 2,900,000 in the May-July period.

Of this number, an average 2,350,000 got jobs, thus adding 550,000 to the unemployed. However, Clague says, the great bulk of these were young people and students. Unemployment among the over-25 "bread winner" group was up only four per cent among males, 19 per cent among females.

Room where John Maxwell, 18 (inset), died in a vain attempt to save his brother, Glen, 13, is shown after early Saturday morning fire swept the two-storey residence in this city. The boys' parents, two other brothers and a family of five escaped.—Globe and Mail.

Motorship Ready For Arctic Trip

Montreal, June 13. (CP)—A trim young lady arrived here during the weekend to prepare herself for a 9,000-mile trip through the Arctic.

She is Hudson's Bay Company's new motor vessel, Rupertsland, here to undergo inspection and take on supplies in preparation for a supply-carrying visit to a score of isolated settlements in Canada's Far North.

Successor to the ill-fated Nascopie which struck a reef and went down on July 21, 1947, the 160-foot Rupertsland was built at the Fairfield yards on the Clyde and was launched last November 30.

She will leave here July 7 loaded with supplies ranking from flour and tea to children's books.

VETERAN MINISTER DIES

Windsor, June 13 — (CP) — A veteran of the Methodist and United Church ministries both in Western Ontario and Manitoba, Rev. James Wilkins, died at nearby Comber Saturday after a long illness.

Mr. Wilkins was born at London, Ont., Aug. 2, 1884, and spent his boyhood in that city.

Altogether he served for 27 years as a pastor in churches at London, Goderich and Windsor.

NEGRO GOES WILD TWO ARE DEAD

South Hill, Va., June 13 (AP)—A frenzied Negro ran amuck near here Sunday leaving two persons dead and five other persons injured before he was captured following a gun battle with police. Police said Earl Powell 33, "went wild" with a shotgun and a knife while searching for his wife.

CONVINCES OPPONENT

Maidenhead, Berkshire, England (CP)—Mrs. J. Maxwell is a very convincing debater. She opposed so convincingly a proposal "That women are inclined to imitate men" at Maidenhead Debating Society, that even its proposer H. B. Sheasby, voted for her. She won by 15 votes to four.

Thunderstorms Tonight, Cooler Air to End Heat Wave

Toronto, June 13 (CP).—Scattered showers and thunderstorms tonight will bring some relief to drought-stricken Southern Ontario, it was forecast today by the Dominion Public Weather Office here.

Forecasters said a disturbance extending across Northern Ontario and Wisconsin today is moving eastward, and should break the drought spell, now in its third week. Cooler air behind the disturbance should cover the province by tomorrow morning, ending the current heat wave.

Tomorrow should be sunny and cooler in most Ontario regions. By tomorrow afternoon the cool air should begin to recede from Northwestern Ontario in advance of another disturbance moving across the northern prairies.

Rain will probably be most welcome in the St. Thomas region where tobacco farmers are flying in seedlings from Quebec to replace plants lost by last week's heavy frost. Rain at planting time would almost assure the tobacco growers a good crop.

Even a heavy fall of rain will not be of any use to the strawberry crops in most districts. Fruit growers say that the strawberry crop is virtually ended, literally burned out by the dry weather. However, wet weather will greatly increase the chances of a good raspberry crop maturing later in the season.

Russia Inciting 'Disorder And Violence in Japan'

—MacARTHUR

Tokyo, June 13 — (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today told Russia she is inciting "disorder and violence" in Japan. The Supreme Allied occupation commander also accused the Soviets of "inconsistent demagoguery."

In a bristling reply to a letter from the Russian mission chief charging that Japanese labor was being suppressed, MacArthur said:

"The Soviet letter, replete with inaccuracies and misrepresentations of fact, could be disregarded as routine Soviet propaganda did it not so completely mask the Soviet role as an inciter of disorder and violence in an otherwise orderly Japanese society."

The letter which drew MacArthur's fire was written by Lt.-Gen. K. N. Derevyanko, chief of the Soviet Mission here and member of the Allied Council for Japan. It was delivered Saturday.

Derevyanko charged:

"Suppression of legal activities of trade union and of other democratic organizations as well as the club law and mobbing of trade union leaders, progressive-ly - minded persons and participants of various labor demonstrations and meetings."

Police Leave for Eastern Que. To Probe Report Missing Boy Found Buried Under House

Montreal, June 13 (CP).—Hilaire Beauregard, assistant director of the Quebec Provincial Police, left Montreal today for Eastman, Que., following a report that the body of six-year-old Michel Fontaine had been found buried under the house of his farmer father, Charles Fontaine.

This news was given out by Noel Dorion, Special Crown Prosecutor, after he had left the office of Mr. Beauregard.

Few Details

Mr. Dorion said there were few details but that the report seemed so well-founded that there was nothing to do but investigate on the spot.

Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, the province's medico-legal expert, accompanied Assistant Director Beauregard.

(In Eastman, an official at the town hall said that Mayor Jean Fortin and Police Chief Edmond Rioux had already left for the isolated farm house. The official said that Fortin and Rioux had left Town Hall after receiving a telephone call from Montreal but he was unable to confirm whether the body actually had been found.)

This development came after a week of unsubstantiated rumors that the body of the farm boy who has been missing since May 30 had been found.

Until today, police said they had uncovered nothing concrete in the hunt for the boy.

Eastman is some 70 miles east of Montreal and the Fontaine farm is about four miles off the main Montreal-Sherbrooke highway, deep in the backwoods mountain country where the high hills of Vermont extend over the Canadian border.

The boy last was seen when, on the night of May 30, he went to a back pasture to fetch the cows with his two brothers.

SAYS ITALIAN GOVERNMENT AWAITS RETURN OF TRIESTE

Trieste, June 11 — (AP)—Italian Premier Alcide De Gaspere told a political campaign rally last night "The Italian government awaits the return of Trieste." His address climaxed a campaign for the free city's first municipal elections in 27 years, scheduled for tomorrow. Britain and the United States have urged the return to Italy of this east-west trouble spot.

PICKET LINES FORMED AROUND KINGSTON PLANT

Aluminum Workers Want 15-Ct. Hour Raise

Kingston, June 13 — (CP) — Picket lines were formed Sunday night across entrances to the Aluminum Company of Canada by members of the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.) seeking wage increases.

The action followed a strike vote which union organizer Don Montgomery said affected 1,100 production workers. Montgomery said a vote by 600 union members at an afternoon meeting was four to one in favor of a strike.

The union spokesman said he expected that 250 craft workers would refuse to cross the production workers' picket line. The rest of the 2,100 plant employees, foremen and office staff, are not directly concerned in the walkout.

The basic starting wage at the plant is 80 cents an hour. The union seeks a 15-cents-an-hour increase; the company has offered a 10-cent boost. Other union demands include eight statutory holidays instead of four and a shift bonus of 7½ cents an hour in place of five cents.

Union men said certain maintenance workers and the office staff will pass through the picket lines.

"The union is calling this 'operation rest cure,' " Montgomery told reporters. "We're not calling it a strike. The workers' nerves have been put on edge so much by negotiations, they feel they need a rest."

Ben Gill Cheese Factory in P.E. County Burns

Ben Gill cheese factory, one of the largest in the Prince Edward county district, was destroyed by fire at noon on Sunday.

The flames were first noticed in an attic partition near the boiler room and were soon beyond control. Exact cause of the fire is not known although it is believed the flames started from the boiler.

Bloomfield Fire Department answered the call for assistance and were responsible for saving the cheese factory curing room and the nearby factory house. Mountain View fire Department also answered the alarm. Three hundred and fifty-five cheese in the curing room were saved, although some were water damaged.

Blake Richards, president of the factory, stated today it was expected the factory would be rebuilt immediately. A meeting of the patrons is being held this (Monday) evening. The burned factory was constructed of concrete with a metal roof.

With four cheese vats Ben Gill was making 30 cheese per day at the time of the fire. Maker is Tom Wannamaker.

Four Years After End of Second War Weapons Cover East, West Frontiers

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 13. (Reuters)—Four years after the end of the Second World War, sub-machine guns and rifles cover some 500 miles of the frontier between east and west, from Adriatic to the Baltic.

Through the long land barrier, built by the wartime Allies, there are only three passages.

One, from Helmstedt to Berlin, has been reopened, although some think only tentatively, by the Russions. Another, itself the scene of a "little blockade", leads from Bavaria into Czechoslovakia. The third, hampered by many restrictions, goes through occupied Vienna towards the closely-watched borders of Hungary and Slovakia.

Trade, restricted as it is, follows other routes. But in the main only these three gaps exist for the passage of people attempting to go about their normal business in an abnormal Europe.

A tour revealed not only by arms kept at the ready, but also by a clash of ideas, hatreds, jealousies and prejudices.

In the south, Marshal Tito's Yugoslavs look with equal suspicion on people from both the east and west.

Russian troops, well trained and maintained and apparently indoctrinated in contempt for the "western imperialist warmongers", form an armed barrier across Austria from Hungary to the Czech border.

Czech sentries, armed, accompanied by police dogs and supported by aircraft, cover the only area not directly controlled by Russia between the Baltic and Yugoslavia.

From Bavaria to the Baltic, enclosing Berlin and the northern approaches to Bohemia and Poland, the Russian line of guns and rifles continues northward.

Part of the tour was made before the lifting of the Berlin blockade May 12. The second half, made in some expectation of a lessening of hostility, brought the discoverey that all was as it had been. The guns were still pointed east and west.

Drownings Take Heavy Toll in Ontario List

Plane Crashes, Electrocution And Fires Cause of Others

(By The Canadian Press)

Twenty - seven accidental deaths were reported in Ontario in the wake of a mid-continental heat wave which drove thousands of persons to cool resort spots. In all 33 fatalities were reported in Eastern Canada to The Canadian Press.

Drownings took the greatest toll in Ontario with eight reported.

A plane crash, near London, Ont., killed John Pocock, 18-year-old student pilot from Lambeth, Ont.

A radio amateur in Guelph, was killed by a short circuit in his equipment while talking over the air to a fellow operator at York, near Hamilton. William M. Gammon, 43-year-old Professor of Botany at the Ontario Agricultural College was found slumped over the transmitter.

Burns Prove Fatal

Burns suffered Friday night in a hydro transformer explosion proved fatal during the weekend to Gary McRae, 11, of Niagara Falls, Ont. Police said he scaled a 35-foot tower during a birds' nest hunt and came in contact with a high tension wire. Mary Horton, 72, was fatally burned at Toronto when a match set her clothing ablaze.

A Great Lakes sailor, Graham Hewton, 18, of Lion's Head, Ont., lost his life during a midnight swim in Hamilton Bay. Virginia Dennis, 11, of Niagara Falls, Ont., slipped off a Niagara River sandbar at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont. A seizure following a dive into the Thames River at London, Ont. cost the life of Marmaduke Burden, 21, who recently moved to Ontario from Newfoundland.

Slipped from Rock

Lena Skyua, 14, was drowned when he slipped from a rock into the Credit River near Toronto. Weddell Bonter, 36, met death in Weller's Bay, 30 miles north of Picton, by toppling from a motorboat while trying to fill the gas tank of an outboard motor.

An automobile-truck collision near Sarnia killed William Burke, 22, of Roseland, Ont., and Glen McCort, also 22, of Windsor. Catharine Brohman, 16, of West Montrose, Ont., Harold Adrian, 15, of Burford, and Albert Conroy, of Timagami, Ont., died in separate mishaps by falling from moving vehicles.

A jalopy crash in Toronto fatally injured John Russell, Marvin Powless, 20, died at Ohsweken, Ont., of injuries suffered when an automobile he was driving overturned three times. Andree Lebonte, five, was killed by a car while playing in front of her home.

Three Babies Suffocated

Three babies were suffocated in their cribs. They were John Pietrosko, two year, of Toronto; Mabel Brese, two months, of London, and Sharon Bibble, age six years, of Hamilton.

Allan Olds, six, of Hamilton, was killed while crawling under a shunting freight train. Mrs. Fred Boyce, 53, of London, Ont., accidentally drank liniment and died.

C. W. A. Thiffault, 25, a stock attendant with the Canadian Pacific Railway, died from injuries received Sunday when two eastbound C.P.R. freights collided at Bolkow, Ont., 150 miles northwest of Sudbury. His hometown was hot immediately available.

Other drownings included Thos. Philpot, Toronto contractor who sank out of sight as he tried to free a snagged fishing line on a lake near Orillia, Ont. He was near other fishermen but none of them could swim. Another fishing trip on Night Hawk lake, about 20 miles east of Timmins, claimed the life of Alex Shumllak, 32-year-old miner from South Porcupine.

A pleasure cruise between Kingston and Cornwall, on the St. Lawrence River, ended in the drowning of Albert Jesmer, a retired river captain. The party of five reported Jesmer fell overboard.

450,000 MINERS ORDERED OUT BY JOHN LEWIS

"Share-the-Work" Plan at the Back of the Walkout

Pittsburgh, June 13 — (AP)—John L. Lewis' 450,000 coal diggers today began a week - long walkout — but the United Mine Workers' chief kept working to get them more benefits.

His plans may include a "share-the-work" system to give all miners about the same amount of work, and pay, when demand for coal is slack.

"If we are going to starve in this industry at any time, we will just all starve together," he said at a union convention last fall. He declared the available work would have to be shared.

The Labor leader ordered the walkout as new contract discussions were under way with one segment of the industry — the Southern Coal Producers Association. He said the industry needs to be "stabilized."

As usual, the nearly half-million U. M. W. dues payers did what their leader ordered—they stayed home. Lewis called the walkout under a provision of the contract which says the miners work only when "willing and able."

The U. M. W.'s present contract expires June 30. The miners are scheduled to resume work a week from today — then quit again on June 25 to start their annual 10-day vacations.

If a new contract isn't signed by the time the men end their vacation they're not expected to return to work.

WOMAN LOSES PURSE CONTAINING $100

It was a rather expensive round of beers for a local woman Saturday evening who reported the loss of her purse containing approximately $100 in cash.

After enjoying a few drinks with friends the woman had gone to the washroom and had come away leaving her purse. When she missed her purse a few minutes later and returned to the washroom it had disappeared.

SERVICE STATION ENTERED, $65 TAKEN

"Cliff" Murphy's service station on Dundas Street East, was entered Saturday night with $65 being taken from the office, according to local police.

Early Sunday morning the patrolman discovered the door leading to the service station standing ajar and investigation revealed the window leading to the men's washroom had been forced. The proprietor of the business later stated the above amount of money was missing from the station.

NO NUDIST FOUND BY POLICE OFFICER

It must have been the heat which affected the man's head, or else he was going "all the way" in an effort to cool off.

At any rate Sunday evening, a Sidney Street resident called on several occasions to report that a man was parading around a back yard in the nude.

Police searched the area but were unable to locate anyone who appeared to be copying the behaviour of members of a nudist colony.

TAXIMAN FINDS FARE IS INTOXICATED

It was a long drive for a Kingston taxi man who Saturday evening drove a fare to this city only to find that he was under the influence of liquor.

The Kingston taximan reported to police he had driven his fare to several addresses in Belleville and then to a local hotel where he was refused admission because of his condition. It was then that the taxi driver took his fare to the police station where he was charged under the LCA.

BLACK AND WHITE PART COLLIE FOUND

City dog catcher Thomas Thorn has a black and white part collie and hound which was picked up over the weekend on city streets. The dog was wearing neither collar nor tag when picked up.

TWEED

Branch Plant To be Established

Tweed (Special) — Confections Incorporated, a large Chicago confectionery firm will establish a branch plant in this village, it has been announced.

The firm will commence immediately to move machinery into the Tweed Steel Works building recently vacated by the Stewart-Warner Company. To start the firm will employ about 30 women and ten male workers.

Vice president of the firm, Webb W. Hawkins, and Angus Watt, representing Kraft Foods, arranged for location of the branch plant in Tweed after contacting the Chamber of Commerce.

It is expected the new industry will be in production in Tweed shortly after July 1st.

Officials of Confections Incorporated were directed to Tweed by Alex B. Smith, industrial agent of the Canadian Pacific Railways.

Mr. Hawkins pointed out that mostly local labor will be employed by his firm and where available, supplies will be purchased in Tweed.

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce are proud of the new industry and expressed their appreciation to W. S. Gordon, general manager of Tweed Steel Works, and the industrial branch of the C.P.R.

Cigaret Butt Blamed for Fire

Believed caused through a pedestrian flipping a cigaret butt up onto the folded canvas, one of the window awnings at the A & P store on Front street was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning.

Firemen stated there were no occupants above the store and the blaze must have been caused by a passerby flipping a cigaret onto the awning. About half of the awning was destroyed before firemen extinguished the blaze, while the heat cracked one of the plate glass windows.

Cigarets were also blamed for a fire in the sidewalk grating in front of Moore's candy store on Front street. The fire caught in papers and sawdust and damaged the basement window casing.

Again on Bridge street, the basement window under Brown's Shoe Repair was reported afire. The cause of the blaze was not known and firemen extinguished the blaze before damage resulted.

Thomas Yerrow Tendered Banquet On Retirement

Fifty-two years a railroad man and for the past 35 years roadmaster for the Belleville-Toronto stretch of double track, Mr. Thomas Yerrow, 276 Bleecker Ave., has made his last "run" over the 100 miles or so of track for which he is responsible.

On June 14, Mr. Yerrow, who started with the railroad back in 1898 as a laborer in the "extra gang" at Trenton, will officially retire. He has been stationed at Belleville as roadmaster since 1919.

Local officials of the Canadian National Railways, including superintendents from divisions throughout Ontario, district roadmasters and trackmen and other associates tendered him a banquet and presentation at the Hotel Quinte.

Born in Sidney Township

Born in the second concession of Sidney in 1884, Mr. Yerrow took his education at the neighboring brick schoolhouse and at the age of fourteen years went to work with the railroad. He has since followed the same occupation.

He recalled that in 1904 he was "promoted" to assistant foreman of the extra gang and the following year was made section foreman at Colborne. It was here he met and married the present Mrs. Yerrow. He was made road foreman in 1914 and went to Peterborough, five years later coming to Belleville.

As roadmaster he has been responsible for the past 30 years for track conditions between here and Toronto. Each week since then and sometimes twice per week he has passed over his route to Toronto, many times on a "gas car", examining track.

Although he is through as a railroader he still does not feel much like retiring and will be on the lookout for some small job "to keep me busy."

Has No Hobbies

He says he will have to find himself a job because he has no hobbies — he is not even a fisherman, allowing his son Clifford to uphold family honors in this respect. But he will continue to reside in Belleville which he considers his home town.

Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Yerrow. Four were sons, two of whom followed their father's foosteps as railroaders.

Eldest son, Bruce, lives in Galt; Clifford, with the C.N.R., is at Toronto, and William is at Buffalo. The other son, Norman, lost his life one year ago in a railroad accident at Toronto. The daughter is Mrs. Gordon Blue, of this city. There are six grandchildren.

It was a family reunion for the Yerrows as well as a day for company felicitations. Members of the family were home for the occasion and there was a big anniversary cake cut in honor of the occasion.

Officials Present

Officials attending at the banquet and presentation held at the Hotel Quinte in Mr. Yerrow's honor included: E. H. Locke, superintendent of the Belleville Division; W. G. Doherty, of London, and former superintendent here; Alton Johnston, office engineer, Toronto; F. C. Campbell, divisional engineer; Raymond Carr, superintendent at Allandale; J. W. Risk, superintendent of works equipment for the Central Region; G. K. Fraser, district engineer.

District roadmasters attending, included Glen Stock, Lindsay; J. Carson, Toronto Terminals; Sandy Martin, Peterboro; J. Brennan, Gananoque; Jack Fraser, St. Thomas; Arthur Leveck, Cornwall, and Jack Crisp, and union representative, Eric Thomas.

Clerk of the local division, Newton Thompson, acted as chairman for the evening's program, which saw a substantial cheque presented to the retiring roadmaster on behalf of officials and associates.

Musical entertainment for the evening included songs by Jimmy Bankier; piano selections by Alec Gordon and readings by Jack Green. S. E. Purpin, of Colborne, favored with a few spirited old-time fiddling selections.

Ten Thousand Attend Display At Trenton Air Force Base

Upwards of ten thousand sundrenched visitors invaded the Trenton Air Station last Saturday afternoon during the annual observance of Air Force Day.

The program opened at 1:30 p.m. with a wing ceremonial drill display by 173 Squadron Trenton Air Cadets, and the Girl Cadette squadron of Trenton High School. The salute was taken by Group Captain A. Lewis, AFC. The parading cadets and cadettes were led by the air cadet band and a pert, high-stepping drum majorette. Mayor Kenneth Couch of Trenton was on the reviewing stand with Group Captain Lewis.

At the conclusion of the drill G/C Lewis officially welcomed the visitors to the station.

At 2.15 the fire fighting department staged a demonstration of the latest fog nozzle equipment in the extinguishing of oil fires. Using no chemicals the firemen advanced behind the cloud of vapor right up to the raging inferno, and in less than a minute had put out the blaze. A running lecture on the evils of fire and the damage which it causes annually in Canada, was broadcast to the crowd from a sound truck, while the fire fighting was in progress.

Rocket Firing Display

A rocket firing display by men from the Air Armament School followed the fire-fighting. Flyers from the school, flying rocket-equipped Harvard trainers, bombarded a small island off the southern end of the station. The rockets, travelling at a 1,000-mile-per-hour on impact, had no warheads, but even so they kicked up mountains of spray when they hit the water, and created miniature dust storms on impact with the island.

Para rescue personnel staged an air rescue operation on the main field complete with supply dropping and a parachute jump. The drops were made from a Dakota aircraft, and despite the high wind blowing across the field, all drops were accurate.

Formation Flying

The flying display featured formation flying by a group of five Harvards, slow and high speed passes over the field by an Expeditor, a Ventura and a Mitchell, stunting by a single Harvard, and bombing by a flight of three Harvards.

A giant Lancaster flew over the field on one engine. A North Star aircraft passed over the field with two propellers on one side feathered. The beautiful transport plane landed, taxied in front of the crowd, and took off again.

A Mustang stunted over the field doing a series of graceful rolls and loops. The climax of the flying show was the performance of the Vampire jet plane. The speedy craft flashed over the field in several high speed passes, rolling and looping to the direction of the spectators. Radio communication was maintained with the pilot from a set on the ground. Spectators could talk to the pilot through the two-way radio and ask him to perform any trick they wished.

Static Displays

Many interesting static displays were presented for public inspection in the large hangars. Parachutes used in the dropping of food and medicines were hung from the rafters. Women eyed the nylon with patterns in their eyes. Life saving jackets and life rafts were on exhibit. A new device for preserving equipment attracted much attention. It was a spray type machine that blew out a fine mist of vapor that congealed in the air to form a cob-webby material that insulated what it covered from moisture and air when applied in sufficient thickness.

Stripped-down machine guns and a partially dismantled Vampire drew large crowds of children and adults alike. An automatic pilot was forever righting a forever teetering platform, and several budding Lindberghs flew Link trainers around in circles.

Mechanics were introduced to the mysteries of flush-patching aluminum without dinting or damaging the metal. Air-minded tots crawled, clawed, or climbed their way through many planes lined up on the tarmac in front of the hangars.

12,000-Pound Bomb Viewed

Down in the armament school astonished spectators had their first glimpse of a massive 12,000 pound bomb. Rocket equipped Harvards and a rocket toting Mosquito stood in silent majesty on the floor looking very, very potent. Boat lovers, distracted by all this fuss over aircraft sought solace in the marine branch and spent their time admiring the small sailing craft on the hangar floor. The more nautically inclined were given free boat rides on the bay in air force crash boats.

Baseball enthusiasts were treated to a contest between the Trenton Air Force squad and the Picton town team.

The program officially closed at 5.00 p.m.

OBITUARY

FREDERICK CHAS. ANDERSON

Frederick Charles Anderson, 169 Ann Street, died early Sunday morning at the Roe Nursing Home, Marshall Road, after a lengthy illness.

The late Mr. Anderson was in his 88th. year, and was born in Quebec, his parents being the late Major Charles J. Anderson, and his wife, the late Ellen Barron. He was a member of the Canadian Civil Service and for many years he held a responsible position in the Post Office Department at Ottawa and retired in 1939. Twenty-five years ago he came to this city to reside. He was a gentleman of the old school and held a high place in the regard of all who knew him.

Mr. Anderson was a member of the Church of England and was a faithful parishioner of St. Thomas' Church. When age and health permitted he took an active part in the work of the parish.

Mr. Anderson was a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and was one of the few remaining members of his class.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Minerva Catherine Kerr; two son, Mr. Stuart H. Anderson, Los Angeles, California, and Mr. Frederick Barron Anderson, Picton; one sister, Miss Florence Anderson, Toronto. A daughter, Mrs. Vaudrey Christie, died in November, 1937, and a son, Eric Munro Anderson, lost his life in action while serving with the armed forces in France on October 10th., 1916.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

EDWARD JAMES GROTTO

Edward James Grotto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward James Grotto, 1 Sanford Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Sunday morning after a brief illness. Born in this city he was in his 15th. year and attended Bridge St. United Church and Queen Alexandra School.

Surviving him, besides his parents, are his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Grotto, and Mrs. Clara Roblin, all of this city.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street, and interment took place at Belleville cemetery.

WM. HERBERT WRIGHTMEYER

William Herbert Wrightmeyer died at his home, Trent Road, near Bayside, early Monday morning after a lengthy illness.

Born at Selby, Ontario, the late Mr. Wrightmeyer was in his 73rd. year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Wrightmeyer. He spent a few years of his life in Hamilton and California, but the greater part of his life was passed in this city. For several years prior to 1914 he filled with efficiency the position of superintendent of the Children's Aid Society here. During the First Great War he held the rank of Captain with the 155th. Battalion and served as a training officer at Barriefield. Later he was engaged in the insurance business for a considerable time. By many friends he was held in high esteem. In religion he was a member of the Bethel Hall.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Nellie Winch; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Kline, Vancouver, B.C.; one son, Mr. Thomas G. Wrightmeyer, Belleville, two sisters, Mrs. W. R. Luscombe, of Belleville, and Mrs. Frank Buckley, Los Angeles, California. A son, Eric Wrightmeyer, died four months ago in Vancouver, B.C. Also surviving are three grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church St., at Victoria Ave.; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MICHAEL FRANCIS CONNELL

Michael Francis Connell, 101 John Street, died suddenly as the result of a heart seizure while engaged as an electrician on a job in Thurlow township on Saturday.

Born in Belleville the late Mr. Connell was a son of the late Michael Connell, and his wife, the late Margaret Conway. All his life was passed in this city and to many friends his sudden death has brought much regret.

He was a member of St. Michael's Church and in connection with the parish he was a member of the Holy Name Society and the League of the Sacred Heart.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Mary Buchan; one sister, Miss Mayme Connell, at home; two brothers, Maurice Connell and John Vincent Connell, both of Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MRS. RUBY ALICE PHILLIPS
(Rednersville)

Mrs. Ruby Alice Phillips, wife of Mr. A. E. Phillips, died at her home in Rednersville after a lengthy illness on Sunday evening.

The late Mrs. Phillips, who was in her 73rd. year, was born in St. Catharines, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Smith. For some time she lived in Toronto and twelve years ago she moved to Rednersville. When a young woman she graduated as a nurse from the Rochester, N.Y., General Hospital, and practised her profession in Lockport, N.Y., Vancouver, B.C., and Toronto. She was a member of the Rednersville United Church and when health permitted she took part in the activities of the Women's Association.

Surviving her are her husband; one brother, Walter Smith, of Akron, Ohio; three sisters, Mrs. Lorena Dempsey, of Port Colborne, Ontario; Mrs. R. G. Stafford, of Rednersville, and Miss Opal Smith, of St. Catharines; also several nephews and nieces.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition. (St. Catharines paper please copy.)

Deline's Cabins Purchased by Paul Haggis

The tourist home and cabins on Dundas Street East, formerly owned by George Deline and recently purchased by Joseph Perille of Toronto, has been acquired by Paul Haggis, of this city. The name will be changed to Paul's Motel and Cabins. The coffee shop will be continued under a lease given by Mr. Perille and will continue to be known as 'Russ' Coffee Shop.

The business will not be a new one to Mr. Haggis as he has successfully operated restaurants and hotels in Port Hope and other places. In 1940 Mr. Haggis purchased "The Canadian Hotel" in Belleville, and operated same until 1944, when he then purchased the Crystal Hotel, which he is operating at the present time.

His son, George Haggis is manager of the Crystal and his other son, John Haggis, will take over the management of the motel and cabins. Alterations are now being made at the property and practically all new furniture will be added.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 13. (CP)—Prices dipped steadily to new lows for the year or longer in dull trading here today. A wide list of industrial issues showed losses hanging to more than a point and base metals were pushed lower by slightly increased selling pressure. Golds and western oils were quietly easier.

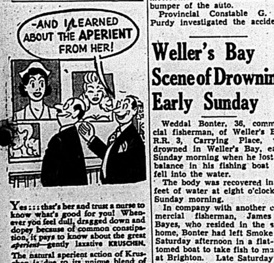
Volume for the first three hours was 361,000 shares.

The industrial group dropped to the lowest since mid-March 1948 as several issues sold at new lows for the year. Papers led the downward trend with early firmness in utilities, liquors and refining oils disappearing as the session progressed. Losses began to increase in mid-session as activity picked up slightly.

Noranda led base metals lower, losing a full point at 49 3-4. The group dipped to the lowest price level since October 1946. Smelters, International Nickel, Hudson Bay and Waite Amulet were among the losers.

Western oils were down to the lowest since October 1948 as losses ranged up to 15 cents in key issues and Calgary and Edmonton was down to a new low.

Gold producers were quiet but moving on a softer trend.



-AND I LEARNED ABOUT THE APERIENT FROM HER!

Yes ::: that's her and trust a nurse to know what's good for you! Whenever you feel dull, dragged down and dopey because of common constipation, it pays to know about the great aperient—gently laxative KRUSCHEN.

The natural aperient action of Kruschen is due to its unique blend of saline minerals, the same as are found in the natural waters of famous medicinal springs. Kruschen offers you these four advantages:

EASY TO TAKE—Dissolves quickly in water, or your morning coffee, tea or fruit juice. Most folks find the small morning dose is best.

WORKS FAST—Usually within the hour. Does not spoil your day.

GENTLE ACTION—Its formula is balanced to act gently, without discomfort.

TIME-TESTED—Over 300,000,000 packages sold throughout the world.

Let Kruschen help you as it has so many others. Try a regular morning dose of this great aperient and know yourself what it is to have "that grand Kruschen Feeling". 25c and 75c at all drug stores.

N.Y. Stocks Decline Further

New York, June 13 (AP) — Fresh selling today hammered the stock market near to a five-year low.

Key issues dropped a few cents to more than $2 a share.

Trading volume stepped up as prices steadily gave ground.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks broke through its low for 1947. This, in turn, was but a short distance from a low since 1944.

Wall Street reported nothing startling in the weekend news to account for the latest decline. Market weakness coincided with the start of a scheduled one-week walkout by the country's soft coal miners but it was considered questionable whether this had any immediate effect on prices.

The stock market, though, is blanketed with a mood of pessimism created in recent weeks by a steady flow of unfavorable business developments. Layoffs at industrial plants are spreading, unemployment is increasing, price cuts are more and more the order of the day, and total personal income is lower.

That is only one side of the picture, of course, but apparently the only side to which Wall Street is paying much attention.

Among some of the hardest hit stocks were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Kennecott Copper, Du Pont, International Paper, Santa Fe, Soither Railway, Nickel Plate R. R., and Standard Oil (N. J.).

Rider Suffers Broken Leg In Collision

Eighteen year old Donald Smith of Halloway suffered a broken leg Sunday afternoon when the motorcycle which he was riding collided with an auto at the intersection of North Front and College streets just north of the city.

Smith was taken to hospital where the fracture was reduced by Dr. G. S. Cronk, following which the young man was released to be taken home.

Smith was reported to have been riding north on North Front street when a southbound vehicle driven by Andrew Knott, 15 Railway Terrace, was about to turn left onto Donald street. When Knott saw the motorcycle he stopped his vehicle and the motorbike crashed into the front bumper of the auto.

Provincial Constable G. R. Purdy investigated the accident.

Weller's Bay Scene of Drowning Early Sunday

Weddal Bonter, 36, commercial fisherman, of Weller's Bay, R.R. 3, Carrying Place, was drowned in Weller's Bay, early Sunday morning when he lost his balance in his fishing boat and fell into the water.

The body was recovered in six feet of water at eight o'clock on Sunday morning.

In company with another commercial fisherman, James F. Bayes, who resided in the same home, Bonter had left Smoke Pt., Saturday afternoon in a flat-bottomed boat to take fish to market at Brighton. Late Saturday evening they left for home and when near Barcoven Beach their motor ran out of gasoline.

Bonter refilled the tank and then asked his companion for a cigaret. As he reached for the smoke he lost his balance and grabbing Bayes both men fell into the water.

The boat half filled with water but the motor kept running and Bayes managed to steer it 30 feet to the shore. Bonter failed to come to the surface. The accident occurred about two o'clock and the body was recovered by George Offen, Carrying Place, six hours later. An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. R. A. Thompson, of Wellington.

Bonter was a married man with two small children.

Dance Staged By PC Party Much Enjoyed

Picton, (Special)— A crowd estimated at 1,500 persons enjoyed a dance on Picton Market Square, Friday night. Arranged by the Young Progressive Conservatives of Prince Edward, the event was staged as an opportunity for the P.C. candidate George Tustin, to get acquainted with the electors. The gathering was notable from the standpoint that it is doubtful if as many young people ever gathered together in the county for any event. They numbered around one thousand, and represented all parties. If their elders take their politics too seriously, there was no evidence of it among the younger voters. They lost no time enjoying round and square dancing to fine music of Rolston's orchestra with Carmen Scott and Bill Hood calling for the squares and Dave McNamee singing the vocals in fine style.

The large, newly paved square was filled to capacity with dancers while hundreds formed lines around the edges and hundreds more sat in cars. Colored lights, posters and flags added to the colorful setting.

A welcome was extended by the Y.P.C. Club president, Woodrow Blakely, who was associated in arranging the evening by a committee including Phil Dodds, County organizer, Barney Hepburn, Roger Strawbridge, George VanSkiver.

Candidate Heard

The candidate, George Tustin, spoke briefly. He stressed that a Progressive Conservative government would increase income tax exemptions and reduce the sales tax which he declared was one of the hidden taxes which hit the small wage earner most. "We will put an end to the snooper business in connection with income taxes and business", he declared amidst applause.

"It is part of the P.C. party policy, that the nuisance tax, the radio license, be abolished", he stated.

Mr. Tustin urged that all exercise their franchise. Study the party policies and then decide. He pointed out that statements of the party were not mere election promises but were part of the party platform drawn up at a great national convention.

"Producers committee will be called upon to assist in establishing prices for farm products, and there will be floor prices and an early announcing of such prices so that production can be planned in advance," he said.

Importance Stressed

The importance of the export market was stressed by Mr. Tustin, who said that a Progressive Conservative government would seek new markets and attempt to recapture those lost. "Such markets are important to providing employment," he said.

How dose the P.C. party plan to reduce taxes and continue social security measures, asked Mr. Tustin. Answering, he declared that this can be accomplished by giving the country good, honest government, cutting out extravagance and reducing the general costs of government administration. He stressed the social security measures would not be affected but that they would be better administered.

The policy of the Progressive Conservative party is freedom, security and opportunity for the individual. I feel that the Progressive Conservative policy is one which will develop this great country of ours to the advantage of every Canadian, he concluded.

Mr. Tustin was introduced by Philip Dodds, who stressed the candidate's agricultural background, which enabled him to present the viewpoint of agriculture in the House. He said Mr. Tustin had often spoken in the House urging floor prices and other legislation to assist the farmer.

Held High Regard

"Mr. Tustin" said the speaker, "is a successful business man; he has held the highest municipal honors in his native town; he is always willing to assist anyone regardless of their political beliefs and enjoyed the esteem of everyone who knew him. He will give all his time to representing you, if re-elected," he said.

"There has been plenty of talk" said Mr. Dodds. "It is now time for action on housing, time to attack the high cost-of-living and to look to the future to maintain employment and prosperity. He urged that Mr. Tustin be given an opportunity to serve as a member of the Drew government, which he predicted would be formed after the election.

Mr. Tustin served as chief opposition whip of the last House, there is reason to believe he will be given wider opportunity of service if elected June 27, Mr. Dodds concluded.

DRIVER HURT IN CRASH

Lindsay, June 13 (CP)—Three-year-old John Bouch, Jr., of nearby Reaboro escaped serious injuries today when he was thrown out of his father's car which was hit broadside by another car driven by Robert W. Hamilton, of Toronto. John Bouch Sr. was not hurt but his young son received abrasions to face and arms. Hamilton suffered three cracked ribs and a cracked breastbone, when the steering wheel went into his side. Both were released from hospital after treatment.

TWEED

Msgr. Byrne Lauds Leadership Of the Pope in World Affairs

Tweed—"Catholics and many non-Catholics alike, recognize the great wisdom of the Pope, and his views pertaining to the temporal and spiritual matters of the world," Rt. Rev. L. J. Byrne D.P., LLD., Ph.D, told the C.W.L. convention at a banquet meeting during the CW.L. convention held here.

Speaking on the various Popes, the vicars of Christ, and dealing especially with the encyclical of Pope Leo XIII, Monsignor Byrne paid tribute to the wisdom and analysis of world affairs provided by the various Popes of the Roman Catholic Church.

"The vicar of Christ is privileged to offer theories on matters of God's world, which must include problems of economic, social and political scope," stated Msgr. Byrne, who was introduced by Rev. Simon LaSage P.P. of Chesterville, formerly of Tweed. Well known in Tweed, Mcgr. Byrne has been in the priesthood for the past 25 years.

Referring to the market crash of 1929 and the school of "dog-eat-dog" which had brought it about, the speaker said that the words of the Pope were taken then as a keen judgment of the world's affairs and tsudy groups were formed to discuss his words.

"Pope Leo XIII gave answer to the world's problems," the speaker emphasized, "and he taught the whole human family to strike out on new paths of endeavor."

Holding of World's Money

Msgr. Byrne referred to holding of the world's money by a small group at that time, and how they had placed a yoke of slavery on the world. He said that the Pope declared that "socialism is worse than the enemy it seeks to destroy." All over the world, periodicals preached social reform, and arts of munificence sprang up all over," stated the speaker, remarking that co-operatives and credit unions were offsprings of the same source. He concluded by quoting from various heads of the Roman Catholic Church in Rome, including the definition of a Christian home, as given by Pope XII.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. McGlade of Smiths Falls diocesan, president, who also addressed the gathering, and reported for the archdiocesan of Kingston.

The president of the Tweed subdivision, Mrs. W. LaSage was in charge of the meeting, and the address of welcome was given by Very Rev. L. B. Garvin V. F. director of the Tweed subdivision.

Provincial greetings were brought by Mrs. W. A. Walker of Toronto, the provincial president, and by Miss Isabel Hutton, of Ottawa, the National vice-president of the Catholic Women's League of Canada.

Presentations Made

The presentation of the Magazine Drive trophy was made to Mrs. Kathleen Doyle of Belleville. A presentation was made to Msgr. Byrne, to celebrate his 25th anniversary in the priesthood by Mrs. J. J. Black of Marmora, and appreciation to all those who assisted in the convention was expressed by Mrs. C. J. Brennan of Deseronto. The meeting also made a presentation to Mrs. LaSage, the Tweed president and the convention hostess. Msgr. J. F. Nicholson of Belleville, spoke briefly and two solos were sung by Mrs. Fred Fobert "Ave Marie" and "The Rosary" with Miss Thelma Dion providing the piano accompaniments. Dean Whalen also played a piano solo "Jealousy."

The sessions of the 29th annual convention of the archdiocese of Kingston of the Catholic Women's League, opened with High Mass at St. Carthagh's Church, with the League Intention "World Peace", as the theme. The business session opened with prayer and a hymn, followed by the roll call and greetings from the diocesan president, Mrs. M. F. McGlade of Smiths Falls.

Officers Elected

The reading of the minutes of the 1948 convention and the appointment of committees was held.

The election of officers for 1949 are as follows: Mrs. M. F. McGlade of Smiths Falls, was reelected as president, 1st vice president, Mrs. B. P. McCrory of Prescott, 2nd vice president, Mrs. U. Haughian of Stanleyville, 3rd. vice president, Mrs. G. Hamilton, of Elgin, recording secretary, Mrs. A. V. Egan, of Westport, corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. A. Devolin of Kingston and Mrs. C. J. Brennan of Deseronto as treasurer.

C. of C. Manager Attends Course At Hamilton

Mr. F. E. Burrows of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce will be among the delegates from across Canada attending the Third Annual Session of the Canadian Institute for Board and Chamber Secretaries at McMaster University, Hamilton, from June 12 to 18.

Delegates to the session will discuss problems encountered by local secretaries of Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade. Particular attention will be given to the study of industrial activities, town planning, educational activities and public speaking. A number of distinguished lecturers will speak on these and other subjects.

The curriculum is designed as a refresher course in community and national activities for secretaries of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce. D. L. Morrell, Executive Secretary of The Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in announcing the opening of the school, said "the Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce secretary occupies the most important place in the drive for increasing community welfare and for the preservation of our free enterprise way of life. The Institute for Board and Chamber Secretaries offers him an opportunity to bring himself up-to-date on new techniques in his profession and to discuss his problems with others engaged in the same work."

Mr. Burrows left Saturday to attend the Institute. Session will be held every day through the week and examinations will be written on June 18.

BIRTHS

CROSS—Mr. and Mrs. William Cross, Corbyville R. R. 1, wish to announce the birth of a daughter, Jean Ann, at the Belleville General Hospital on June 8th., 1949, a sister for Rosie. J13

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. J. Smallhorn, Corbyville, and family, wish to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to all friends, relatives and neighbors for their acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes received in their recent, sad bereavement in the loss of a loving wife and mother. J13

Just Doing What Comes Naturally

The following story is vouched for by a gentleman of unimpeachable integrity. It goes like this.

"I have a rock garden in my yard, with a cement bird bath in it. The bath is always kept filled. The other day my wife threw some hard crusts into the yard which immediately attracted the attention of a blackbird. After several futile pecks at the stone-like pellets of bread, the bird picked up a crust in its beak, flew about ten yards to the bath, and proceeded to dunk the morsel in the water. After several prolonged dunkings, the bird hopped back onto the lawn and finished its sodden meal in comfort. Would you believe it?"

Well frankly . . . But then again who would teach a bird not to dunk?

IN MEMORIAM

YERROW—In loving memory of dear husband, Norman Yerrow, who passed away one year ago today.
His last parting wish
We would like to have heard,
And breathed in his ear
Our last parting word.
Only those who have lost
Are able to tell
The pain in the heart
In not saying farewell.
Always remembered by wife and family. J13

YERROW—In loving memory of dear son, Norman Yerrow, who passed away one year ago today.
No one knows how much we miss you
No one knows the bitter pain.
We have suffered since we lost you,
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly, tender, fond and true.
There is not a day dear Norman,
That we do not think of you.
Always remembered by father, mother, sister and brothers. J13

JORDAN—In loving memory of Lillian E. Jordan who passed away June 13th., 1944.
And while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
Ever remembered by son, daughter-in-law and grandchildren. J13

JORDAN—In loving memory of a dear wife, Lillian E. Jordan, who passed away June 13th, 1944.
The world may change from year to year
And friends from day to day
But never will the one I loved
From memory pass away.
Ever remembered by husband. J13

WARDHAUGH—In memory of our mother, Mrs. Ida M. Wardhaugh, who passed away June 12th., 1940.
A beautiful memory dearer than gold
Of a mother whose worth can never be told
Alone and unseen she stands by our side
And whispers don't grieve, death cannot divide.
Ever remembered by Jack, Eddie, Tom, Marion, Edna and Helen. J13

GOOD CITIZENSHIP is a lot of little things

BIRDS ARE BENEFICIAL

The birds are among man's best friends. With few exceptions (which any naturalist can name) they act as guardians of Canada's food supply—by destroying untold millions of harmful insects—by eating the seeds of nuisance weeds. So, teach the children not to harm birds or collect their eggs. Protect the birds and encourage others to do the same. Any personal contribution to the national good is truly "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

SUMMER AROUND CORNER

Summer is just around the corner, a mere week's time separating now from the first of the summer days. It is true there have been some warm days, but it seems almost impossible that spring should have already almost passed. Lack of rain and cool weather for a long period and latterly the frost which fell upon certain districts, fortunately, not in these parts, have created the impression that the year has not progressed as far as it has run.

Warmer weather Sunday brought realization of the fact that the springtime is nearing its end and the period of summer is at hand, the summer that brings holidays to city folk and plenty of work in the fields for the country people, a season when it is necessary for the agriculturist to "make hay while the sun shines."

Still the hopes will be for rain, on which this part of the world depends so greatly, that there may be a reasonable-sized harvest before the growing season reaches an end.

Moisture remains essential to produce the food man needs for his daily bread. There is the moisture that is left from the precipitation which comes down during winter and there is the precipitation which comes down in the other seasons in the form of rain carried by winds across continents and feeds the grass and other roots. Without it there would be no life. Rain and snow are absolute needs and reservoirs are also required to contain the moisture and the deep soil to store it up against the needs of summer when it is most needed for man and beast in the growth of the fields.

ROAD BULLETIN

Ontario Highways' Official Weekly Road Bulletin is welcome at every season and most at this time of the year for its views of the modern highway systems which lead to every part of the Province and for its word picture of settings in the Province. Last week it told the story of Ottawa, Canada's Capital, and described the city's history in a few brief paragraphs, all told in words which appeal to the tourists, both from outside Canada and native.

The highways system has opened up a happy holiday world where people of Ontario and the rest of Canada and the United States and people from faraway may come to enjoy themselves in settings of exquisite charm and beauty with an appeal which does not fail to grip all who have been in such scenes as are to be found in the Dominion by way of the highways and the motorcar.

GOETHE BICENTENNIAL

There will be an anniversary shortly of a man who has been called "the world's last truly universal man," Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, and it will be celebrated in the Rocky Mountains by the Goethe Centennial Committee. The name of his greatest work is known to most people, "Faust," the theme of which was with the poet and dramatist from his youth till his very old age. Its subject is man's striving, failure and eventual redemption. To most people the full "Faust" is not known but the first part is one of the great plays of the world.

Goethe was not only a playwright whose fame continues for generations, he is also one of the supreme lyric poets of the world. By many he is called the greatest lyrist for he used the emotions which marked his life as the subject of matchless songs which have appealed to composers of the western world at least and possibly to those of the east, for in them he allows his emotions to find full expression. Composers have been attracted to this wide range of emotions of Goethe's lyrics and have created music under his inspiration which makes of the song and music something that is one.

But he also was a scientist, a statesman and a philosopher and sought to round out the fulness of life. Other great men have limited themselves to literary creation and other work but his field was the full expression of the life of his time.

WAGON WHEELS

Only fault we ever had to find with wagon wheels was that in the dryness of the summer the wooden felloes would contract a bit, allowing the steel rim to become loose. The common corrective for this was, probobly still is, to drive the wagon into a creek or river, let it sit there for a while, so that the felloes would become wet, expand, and thus tighten up the rims.

Many farmers in Ontario now are having their wagons cut down, and fitted with wheels off old automibiles. They utilize older tires, no longer sound enough for automobile traffic, and thus have a lower wagon, smooth-running, and on rubber.—Windsor Star.

HOROSCOPE

When Leo's horoscope I read,
The sign of Leo being mine,
The daily counsel that I need
Appears in every printed line.

"Rub shoulders with your fellowman."
"This day beware of cunning fraud."
"Work hard and do the best you can."
"Buy nothing that you can't afford."

"Be friendly. Bitter quarrels shun."
"To all in need assistance lend,
And when the busy day is done
At home a quiet evening spend."

Oh, wise astrologers who read
The planets and the stars for me,
If I could but your counsel heed
From day to day, how proud I'd be!

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 13th., 1929

Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Bannerman (formerly Harriet McIntosh have completed a motor car trip through Nova Scotia, New England and Ontario, and are now the guests of Mrs. McIntosh, Hillcrest Avenue. Dr. Bannerman occupies the chair of Economic Geology and Petrology at Dartmouth College Hanover, N.H.

The graduation ceremonies will be held at Albert College tomorrow afternoon. Chancellor Bowles of Victoria University will be the chief speaker.

An innovation at the opening of the June session of the county council was the investing of Warden G. A. Bailey with the insignia of office, namely a robe and gold chain. The members are pleased with the introduction of the regalia as it adds dignity to the office of warden. The robe and chain were placed upon the warden by ex. Warden S. B. Rollins.

30 YEARS AGO

Capt. W. D. Graham, M. C., arrived home on the Empress of Britain, Saturday. He went overseas with the 80th. Battalion in May 1916 and won his commission on the field. He is a nephew of Mrs. J. A. McFee of this city.

D. Scott and Son shipped 3 cars of live hogs and calves from here today. The price paid for hogs was $20.50 per hundred weight and 15 cents per pound for calves.

The moving picture industry at Trenton will resume operations shortly. A number of actors and actresses have arrived there.

Miss L. Craig is visiting Miss DeMille, Trent Road.

THE INEVITABLE CONCLUSION

In an age characterized by tension we need to reread the Gospel and observe in the career of Jesus that there was not the slightest trace of excitement; only the calm assurance that He was doing and would continue to do his Father's will.

No one ever lived more actively than did Jesus during the three years of His ministry. Yet He never appeared in a hurry although continuously occupied. In the midst of the most momentous tasks He could be interrupted—sometimes by very humble and even outcast people—yet never once did He manifest the least annoyance at such interruptions. without manifesting any appearance of conceit He placed himself at the head of all humanity. commanded men to give Him their absolute allegiance, and authority Pervading all His efforts was a calm sense of utimate triumph.

How can anyone doubt that Jesus was what He claimed to be—the divine Son of God? No philosopher could have evolved His wisdom. Born in humble surroundings, he carried Himself with regal assurance. The only way we can explain His true nature is to accept what He said about Himself and that His followers continued after the asention, to say about Him

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ANOTHER FRIEND GONE

Someone has said that every time we lose a friend we lose a part of ourselves. I believe that this is true, for something of the spirit of us seems to have gone out at such a time. We are lonelier and bereft of that precious thing which we call friendship, something that we can ill afford to lose, with so little of it in the world.

I was stunned at the news of the death of my old friend Robert ("Believe-It-Or-Not") Ripley. It was in 1912 that I was engaged to come to New York and organize a special newspaper syndicate for a group of great newspapers. I had hardly got under way with my task when a shy young boy from San Francisco came in with a bunch of sporting drawings under his arm. The drawings were unusual and the writing accompanying them was excellent. I immediately engaged him at $60 a week on a two-year contract. That chap was Bob Ripley. And he never failed to express his gratitude for that act.

Later, sponsored by King Features in the Hearst organization, he rose to rapid fame, with fabulous earnings, but he never made you conscious of the fact. He was modest and he wore a perennial smile.

Bob Ripley probably would have remained a fine cartoonist in sporting matters and a prominent writer on sports, had not one of those rare things happened that often open the door to fame and affluence. He ran out of an idea for a cartoon one day, and had to scurry in his mind for one. It came and he headed it "Believe It Or Not." That was the beginning. He took advantage of the interest aroused, traveled the earth for unique ideas, and up to the time of his death was probably known by more people over the earth than any other cartoonist who ever lived.

People who knew Bob Ripley intimately — and I did — prized his friendship, his loyalty and his sincerity. No one ever begrudged him his success and wide fame. He took it all as a part of the day's work, and without boast. Millions of newspaper readers will miss his unique creations, but he will be missed most by his intimate group of friends and associates.

Bob Ripley loved to have his friends about him — at his unique museum of a home, at his apartment in the city, or for a cruise on his Chinese Junk. He loved people. His career is another example of a chap who took advantage of an idea and did something with it to the enjoyment and profit of millions. We shall not forget him.

Nerve Centres of Campaigns For Three Political Parties Are Only Few Blocks Apart

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 11 — (CP)—A few blocks apart in downtown Ottawa are the nerve centres of the campaigns three political parties are waging for federal power. They offer a study in functions.

A reporter visited them this week and found the national headquarters of the Liberal party operating a flock of stenographers in two shifts, that of the Progressive Conservative party averaging 100 long distance phone calls daily, that of the C. C. F. coasting tranquilly over the hump.

Liberals

At Liberal headquarters, on the second floor of an office building, pictures of Liberal leaders looked down on men moving occasionally from one office to another, on busy typists, office boys and a switchboard girl who kept saying "Yes senator . . . yes senator" for some time.

A spokesman said the normal staff of 15 has been boosted to 25 plus casual help.

Progressive Conservatives

At Progressive Conservative headquarters, a brick house, National Secretary Dick Bell said he figures he talks by phone to every province at least once a day. Recent calls included one from a Northern Ontario candidate to see if a certain union official is a communist, one from Prince Edward Island seeking a check on appointment of election officials, a third from Quebec asking for a certain man as a speaker.

Eight senior officials work daily from 9 a. m. to midnight. The regular staff of 17 has been swollen by 12 clerks, shippers, stenographers and other workers.

Outside Mr. Bell's office, a switchboard girl was saying "Toronto calling Mr. . . ."

C. C. F.

C. C. F. headquarters had the serenity of a library. Upstairs in Woodsworth House, Research Secretary Lorne Ingle said the emphasis moved out to the provincial and local headquarters after May 30. He figured any party still sending out literature is "Behind the Times."

Millions of copies of a variety of leaflets, pamphlets and booklets have gone out for C. C. F. workers. Speakers' itineraries have all been arranged. They have been letting extra staff go, but volunteer helpers are available.

Espionage

All three centres keep a close eye on the utterances and activities of the enemy. But there has been only one minor report of internal espionage. A worker at one headquarters confessed to a reporter that he had been having beers with one of the enemy.

"I get a few things out of him," he said, "but then I suppose he gets just about as much out of me."

Mackenzie's Column:

Should Teach Principles of Communism

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Educational developments sometimes get lost in the shuffle of world events but one shouldn't overlook the importance of the positive stand taken by 20 of America's outstanding educationist regarding the teaching about Communism in United States schools.

These educationists — who include Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, and Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard, have given in effect this verdict:

The principles of communism should be taught — but not advocated — in United States schools. Communists should be barred from the teaching profession.

These obviously highly - controversial views were contained in a report prepared by an educational commission appointed by the National Education Association and the American Association of School Administrators. The purpose of the commission was to study teaching changes which might be advisable in view of political tensions.

Truman Questioned

When President Truman was questioned about this report at his Washington press conference he said he figured the educationists know their field the best. However, he did say he thinks that young minds should not be taught by people who advocate the overthrow of the government of the United States.

The point is, of course, that a teacher can impart information objectively about communism, or any other ism, without advocating it.

Widespread Anxiety

There has been widespread anxiety in the United States about a discussion of communism in schools. Some observers believe it has been due to fear that presentation of the subject might be accompanied by advocacy.

The ideological complexion of the United States a dozen years hence may well depend on the manner in which the current educational program is handled.

THREE KILLED AT RACES

Buenos Aires, June 13 — (AP) — Three persons were killed and seven others injured Sunday in two crashes at the Vuelta De Entre Rios race for stock automobiles. In one of the accidents a car crashed into a group of spectators.

BROTHER OF GOEBBELS IS FOUND DEAD

Darmstadt, Germany, June 13—(AP) — Konrad Goebbels, 57, brother of Nazi Germany's propaganda minister, was found dead yesterday in a forest near Nuettental. Police said he apparently died a few hours after being released from Darmstadt labor camp on completion of a three - year sentence under the denazification laws.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In England and Scotland, the climate is so generally tender, and rain so common that Old Country people may almost be said to take rain as cheerfully as they take sunshine.

At any rate, they have no choice of weather, as we have in Canada. If they are going out, they've got to take the weather as it comes. They can't wait until tomorrow, when it's fine, as we do.

The famous tweeds and woollens of Britain originated in the need of all-weather clothing. Nylon, cotton and other fair-weather fabrics the British will always export. Their woollens are clammy enough on them without them being sodden in the synthetic textiles increasingly popular in this country.

Old Country people who come out here are at first astonished by our attitude towards a little rain. Down - town, in the busy streets, you can instantly spot a recently arrived Englishman or Scot in the crowd because he is walking along, leisurely, happy, in no hurry at all, with his eyes open and his face pushing into the rain as naturally as a ship's bow thrusts into the waves. We Canadians have either ducked into doorways, waiting for the rain to pass, or else we are hurrying, dodging, bumping one another, with our heads bowed as though it was raining hydrochloric acid that we are afraid to let touch our cheeks.

After a little while, however, the Britons surrender to the Canadian tradition, and duck out of the rain as we do. And probably for the same reason: in a few minutes it will be fine. Or else tomorrow it will be fine, and we can put off what we intended to do today, until it clears...

But none the less, there lingers among us a few, both Britons and long-established Canadians, who love rain as naturally as they love sunlight, and who deliberately go walking in the rain, with faces lifted, with peace in their hearts, as though they were vegetable

BORIC ACID IN THE MEDICINE CUPBOARD

Boric acid has little or no germicidal effect but its antiseptic effect is attested by its use as a chemical preservative in food. Fifty years ago when Dr. Wiley was just beginning to simmer about the food adulteration business, it was a common practice to "embalm" some foods with such chemical preservatives as boric acid, salicylic acid or benzoic acid — or sodium borate (borax), sodium salicylate or sodium benzoate, when canning. This kept food that was not quite fit to eat when it was canned, from spoiling or decomposing. But Dr. Wiley made people realize that even if the chemical itself did not poison the consumer of the embalmed food, there was no good to be gained from eating such food. Moreover, if the food is perfectly fresh, clean and wholesome, no such embalming with chemicals is necessary.

The high point of that memorable battle between Dr. Wiley and the food embalmers was about this very question, whether it does the consumer of canned foods any harm to take a dose of boric acid, salicylic acid, benzoic acid or chemical preservatrve along with his daily food. The food barons spent a big hunk of their profits for expert opinions that small amounts of these chemical preservatives do the consumer no serious harm. Dr. Wiley had no means of employing an equal array of expert witnesses to support his contention that even small amounts of such chemical preservatives in one's daily food impair health. He had to fight alone.

So far as boric acid (or sodium borate, borax) is concerned, the final conclusion of the U.S. Department of Agriculture under Dr. Wiley was that quantities of boric acid or borax not exceeding seven grains a day if taken over a considerable period of time (as in embalmed food) will cause disturbances of digestion and assimiliation. This was a Scotch verdict; it emplied that we the people were unable to prove anything beyond doubt but . . .

From fifteen to forty-five grains of boric acid have produced serious symptoms and from 45 to 90 grains have proved fatal to infants fed with borated milk — milk kept from souring by the addition of boric acid. The infants in such cases are severe gastro-enteritis, vomiting, diarrhea and cramps, skin eruption, cyanosis (blue or purple skin, lips, nails) suffocation and collapse.

Similar poisoning has followed the use of boric acid solution for colon irrigation. Severe or fatal poisoning has occurred from taking a quantity of borax in mistake for a saline laxative and from giving boric acid solution in mistake for water — the solution being clear and almost tasteless.

Notwithstanding these facts boric acid, in my judgment, is as safe as any useful home remedy can be and so I include it in the list of remedies whose purposes are described in The Medicine Cupboard — booklet available on written request if you inclose twenty-five cents and stamped self - addressed envelope—and omit clippings, adhesive plaster, scotch tape, glue, gum etc.

Typical use of boric acid in the home: Eye wash or eye drops. For this purpose dissolve as [illegible] powdered or granular boric [illegible] as will dissolve in boiled water, preferably distilled water, rain water or snow water. A teaspoonful, more or less, will dissolve in four fluid ounces of water (quarter of a pint). Anyway keep adding a little more boric acid to the hot water until, on standing and cooling, some settles in the bottom of the bottle. The clear upper part is saturated solution of boric acid, otherwise called SSBA.

SSBA is non-irritating if used as drops of eyewash when it [illegible] ture. It is mildly antiseptic and therefore may be beneficial in any irritation or inflammation of eyes or eyelids, used as eyewash or eye drops or applied to the closed eyes on pledgets of cotton or pads of gauze.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Daughter Makes Me Happy

You have made my 16-year-old daughter and me, her pop, very happy. She had become pretty much a shut-in because of her pimples. I noticed an item in your column, sent for your pamphlet . . . and in a few months her face has become quite clear and she is eagerly taking part in all the activities she formerly avoided. (T. H. F.)

Answer — Now we are all happy. The pamphlet: Pimples and Blackheads—Acne is available to any one who asks for it in writing (a clipping will not suffice) and incloses stamped self addressed envelope.

Trade Minister Denies Charges Of PC Leader

Windsor, June 16 (CP).—Trade Minister Howe Friday night denied charges by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that negotiations leading to the sale of the Canadair Aircraft plant at Montreal were secret and that no tenders were called.

"If there was ever a case of a government striving to keep the air industry alive, it was illustrated in the sale of Canadair," Mr. Howe said in an election campaign address.

He referred to Mr. Drew's charge, made in campaign speeches, that the $22,000,000 crown-operated plant had been sold by "secret" negotiations to the Electric Boat Company of the United States for a fraction of its actual value.

Mr. Howe explained that Canadair, then operated by Canadian Vickers, was one of three plants which the government decided to keep in operation in 1944 to supply Trans-Canada Air Lines and the RCAF. The others were the DeHavilland plant at Montreal and the Malton plant at Toronto.

However, as war contracts expired, Canadian Vickers lost interest in the plant and, if it was to become a permanent fixture, a new plan was needed. The Canadair Corporation was formed, with the government advancing the money for its operation.

When this plan proved ineffective the government asked Benjamin Franklin, Canadair's operating director, to finance a corporation strong enough to look after its own affairs.

"Mr. Franklin came to me," said Mr. Howe, "with a strong proposal that the government place the controls with the Electric Boat Company on a lease-option arrangement which was concluded."

Of Mr. Drew's charges, the trade minister said:

"I don't know whether it is possible to catch a roorback—but Mr. Drew has already received the real story on Canadair and his attacks are not only defaming Canadair but affecting the airplane industry of Canada as a whole."

WEDDINGS

BROOKS—WHITE

A very quiet wedding took place at Madoc Presbyterian Manse, on Saturday, June 4th, at 2.30 p.m. when Rev. M. W. Heslip officiated at the marriage of Mabel Stella White, of Belleville, to Clifford Brooks, of Madoc.

The bride wore a street-length gown of rose printed navy sheer, with white gloves and navy accessories and carried a cascade of talisman roses, sweetpeas and forget-me-nots tied with silver ribbon streamers.

Aileen Brooks was matron of honor, dressed in Royal blue and carrying a nosegay of talisman roses and sweetpeas.

The groom was attended by his son, Howard Brooks.

The happy couple will reside in Belleville.

BELLEVILLE PRINCE EDWARD CLUB

Mrs. C. F. Lent opened her home to the club for the monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. N. Montgomery, presiding. After a word of welcome, Mrs. Montgomery gave some nice thoughts on "the month of June".

The minutes were read and adopted and treasurer's report given. Mrs. S. Anderson reported for the work committee and Mrs. Boyd for the sick.

Mrs. W. Osborne took over for the program which consisted of some community singing. A reading, "A More Beautiful World" by Mrs. H. Parliament, an Edgar Guest poem "It's an Easy World" by Mrs. W. McCoy.

Mrs. J. Parrott and Mrs. M. Ryan favored with two lovely piano selections "King of the Forest" and "The Shepherd Boy".

Mrs. P. Parliament gave a very humorous reading "The Swimming Hole".

A bird contest was conducted by Mrs. W. LaRue, the favors going to Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Ryan.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. G. French, Mrs. A. Calnan, Mrs. C. Calnan, Mrs. L. Graham, Mrs. H. Roblin, and Mrs. W. Cory and a pleasant social time was enjoyed.

Women's Activities

MASSASSAGA W.A. W.M.S.

The Massassaga W.A. and W.M.S. held a joint meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Jose on Wednesday at which 23 were present.

Mrs. Davidson, W.A. president, opened the meeting. Minutes and business were discussed and a bill was presented for the timing of the piano at the church. The offering was $3.35 and 23 coppers.

Mrs. Jose then gave the treasurer's report to date and an invitation was accepted to meet at the home of Mrs. R. Giles for July meeting.

Mrs. G. Boyle, W.M.S. president, conducted the devotional service using the service as suggested in the Missionary Monthly. Ten W.M.S. members answered roll call. Mrs. Howard Adams invited the W.M.S. to her home for July meeting. The W.M.S. offering was $6.40.

Mrs. Howard Adams gave a report of the morning session of the W.A. convention held in Trenton and Mrs. W. Jose gave the report of the afternoon session. A vote of thanks was given the delegates for very fine reports.

Mrs. E. Jose gave some very interesting news, notes and comments.

Mrs. Jose and members of her group served delicious refreshments.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

Shannonville. — The monthly meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Orval Stratton, with 22 members present, including visitors.

The president, Mrs. Sam Elliott, welcomed all and gave a reading, entitled, "The Month of Roses". Mrs. Will Houston also gave an appropriate reading, "A June Day". Mrs. W. D. Robertson led in the devotions and Mrs. Orval Stratton, group leader, gave the Scripture readings, the theme for June being, "How Can the Home Promote Religion?"

The help of the church and Sunday School is needed to teach religion to the young, and only as the home and church work together can this be done. In closing, Mrs. Stratton read a poem and thanked all on her group for their assistance.

Minutes of the last meeting were given by the Secretary, Mrs. C. Mastin, and adopted as read. The Treasurer, Mrs. Claude Clarke, reported that she had sent $10 to the Bible Society and $10 to the Salvation Army and had received receipts for both. She also read a letter of thanks from Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mastin for the card of sympathy sent at the time of their recent bereavement.

The delegate, Mrs. G. Fraser, to the Convention held at Trenton on May 26th, gave a full and interesting report, receiving a hearty vote of thanks from those present. Roll call was answered by the readings of clipping which had been distributed by the president. Regret was expressed that in future the minister's wife would not be present as a member of the society. She will be greatly missed at the meeting, as the Reverend A. L. Lougheed and family will be moving to their new charge at Lindsay the last of the month.

Mrs. Elliott gave another reading, "The Gospel in Psalms" and offered her home for an evening meeting in July, which will be held on the evening of the regular meeting on July 14th.

Mrs. Elliott thanked the hostess and the Woman's Auxiliary for their kindness. After the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Stratton and her assistants, and a social time enjoyed by all.

Piano Dedicated at Alliance Tabernacle; Bride-to-be Honored

A dual purpose meeting of unusual interest was held at the Alliance Tabernacle parsonage, North Front Street, on Friday evening. About sixty to seventy young people and friends assembled to witness the dedication for the Lord's work of the fine piano, recently purchased and donated to the parsonage by the Young People's Society of the church. The meeting also paid honor to two highly esteemed young people, Miss Helen Carol Lobb, faithful member of the Young People's Bible Class, and Captain Gerald Leroy Atyeo, R.S.C., who served overseas during World War II in Normandy, Belgium, Holland and Northwest Germany.

The dedication service was under the leadership of Mr. Bob Brown, who conducted the singing of the theme song, "Spirit of the Living God Fall Fresh on Me", followed by the dedication prayer by the Rev. Robert Gray, pastor of the Alliance Tabernacle. Then to test the tonal qualities of the piano, several favorite choruses were sung, with Mrs. A. Kirkpatrick accompanying.

Miss Eleanor Baragar sang the well known hymn, "The Theme of My Song", which was followed by a thought-producing Bible quiz conducted by the pastor, between the women on one side, and the men on the other, which included such questions as: "Who was the statesman-prophet of the Old Testament?", "A Worldly Christian of the Old Testament?" and "A Christian orator of the New Testament?" Of the thirty questions propounded, the winning honors went to the men, who had 14 to their credit, while the women had 11 1-2.

After the "quiz", Mrs. Kirkpatrick favored with a delightfully rendered hymn, "Wonderful Grace of Jesus," with variations, followed by a male quartet composed of Mr. Bob Brown, the Rev. Robt. Gray, Mr. Gordon Brown, and Mr. Russell Perkins using the hymn "Wonderful," which closed this part of the meeting.

Immediately, without any interval, the opening chords of the familiar wedding march from Wagner's 'Lohengrin' were struck, being the "cue" for the entrance of those carrying two large clothes baskets, filled to overflowing with prettily wrapped packages, and deposited at the feet of the exceedingly surprised bride-to-be which was further heightened by the entrance at the same time of the groom-to-be, with his brother, Dr. Ralph Atyeo, a recent graduate in medicine of Queen's University. Gerald seating himself next to Carol in the space so opportunely vacated.

For fifty-five minutes the unwrapping went on, with Gerald adding mirth-provoking remarks as he fumbled with the ribbons, and Carol reading the various cards and thanking the donors for the lovely and useful gifts.

After the unwrapping both expressed their appreciation for the great kindness, and their good wishes so tangibly shown.

Refreshments were served later by the 'Blues' with the 'Reds' assisting in the general 'clean up', thus terminating an exceedingly enjoyable evening.

Formula Service for Junior Successful Business in Calif.

By FRANKLIN ARTHUR

Pasadena, Calif., June 13 (AP) —Parenthood has many joys, but mixing formulas is not one of them.

How many times have you — if you're a mother, or even a father — stirred milk mixtures over a hot stove with a hungry infant yelling in your ear, and wished for the day junior could become a customer of the neighborhood dairy?

Diaper services have taken the load off clothes lines. Now formula services are eliminating that awful moment when your only graduate slips from your hand and splinters on the kitchen floor. Or when you suddenly discover that the refrigerator has given up and a whole batch has gone sour.

The idea was born during the war.

Hazel Klein graduated as a registered nurse in 1927. For years she watched babies come and go in maternity wards. During the war, hospitals were filled with young mothers who had to take their babies back to trailers or single rooms.

Now Mrs. Klein and her husband, Fred, operate Southern California's only formula service—one of a dozen or so scattered throughout the country.

It's a bustling business now, they say, although it took hold slowly a year ago until the average mother could be convinced someone else could prepare the food for her new pride and joy as well as she.

For a fixed charge of $5 a week, the service delivers to the family ice box as many bottles of formula as the doctor decrees, double-capped and prepared exactly to the doctor's specifications.

When it's difficult to find a formula that agrees with baby, your cupboard may be crowded with various products once tried and discarded. The formula service can provide a new batch within an hour, day or night, the Kleins say, whenever the doctor orders a change.

That applies to any emergency, such as refrigerator failure, although the Kleins say their testing laboratory shows that some formulas — made and sealed in their own spotless kitchen — have kept as long as 70 days without spoiling.

They do not recommend their use after three days, however, and pick up unused bottles on their every - second day deliveries.

The laboratory is much like a dairy's bottling plant — with patent washing and scalding machines, a giant sterilizer, germ-killing lights and all the usual equipment for accurate measuring and mixing.

Granddaughter Of Late Kaiser Will Wed Texan

Langen, Germany, June 13. (AP) — A royal Princess of Prussia will soon be at home "deep in the heart of Texas".

Princess Cecilie, 31, hazel-eyed granddaughter of Germany's late Kaiser Wilhelm, will trade her family's medieval castle for an apartment in Amarillo when she marries Texan Clyde Harris, 31.

The Princess numbers among her ancestors Queen Victoria of England, the Emperors of Germany and innumerable reigning princes, grand dukes and margraves. Her father is the former Crown Prince Wilhelm.

The wedding plans, secret until yesterday, call for a marriage in the bleak Hohenzollern Castle at Hechingen in the Bavarian Alps.

Hospital Will Admit Men To Its Staff

New York, June 11. (CP)—The New York infirmary will break a century-old policy when it admits men to its staff of physicians in the near future.

The infirmary, staffed by women and treating almost only women patients, is constructing a $2,800,000 community-hospital addition for men and women alike. When it is completed, male doctors will be permitted to join the hospital staff.

The infirmary has an historic past in the annals of women's fight to practise medicine on an equal basis with men.

During most of its existence since 1853 it has been the sole hospital in the United States with only women as attending physicians. Today it still is one of only three such hospitals.

The infirmary was founded by Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, first woman doctor in North America. She opened a one-room dispensary for indigent women. The all-women staff has continually attracted attention to the hospital but it has also won professional recognition for other reasons. It set up both the first visiting-nurse service and hospital school for nurses in the United States.

It has also spearheaded the drive for Cancer control through preventive measures and early diagnosis.

The women doctors at the infirmary have always been interested in children. Their work with mothers and newborn babies led to the establishment more than 20 years ago of a child-guidance clinic. Still going strong, it has done notable work with handicapped youngsters and has been among the first to experiment in psychiatric care for mentally-disturbed children.

But the tenor of the infirmary's work will change when the new building is completed. The doctors who once were pioneers in fighting for the rights of women to practise equally with men will relax their restrictions and allow men to practice in their ranks.

Kiwanis Ladies Hold Meeting At Massassaga

The Kiwanis' Ladies' Auxiliary held a most enjoyable pot luck supper on Thursday afternoon at the Summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wallbridge, Massassaga.

Croquet was enjoyed on the lawn during the afternoon and several available themselves of the opportunity to have a boat ride on the bay.

Forty-three members sat down to a table laden with delicious food, which had been arranged on the front lawn overlooking the bay, by Freda LaFrance and her committee. Ideal weather added to the enjoyment.

After supper the members gathered in a circle to enjoy a bit of story telling. Chris Logan received the prize for the best story of an embarrassing experience. Sadie Rose then led in a quiz which proved both interesting and educational with Laura Hyde, Jean Kuntze, Janie Vermilyea and Alice Stewart receiving the prizes. Several races were run with Carm Mott being the winner of the grandmothers' race, and Flossie Smith the walking race. Other winners were Jessie White and Berna Sills. Clare Smith and Sadie Rose were in charge of the entertainment.

At the conclusion of the races Hazel Baragar, president of the Auxiliary, held a brief business meeting.

Mary Connolly, Welfare Convener, distributed wool to be knit into articles for the Red Cross.

Nancy Fozard, convener of the Tag Day, asked for volunteers to assist with the tagging.

Erma Reid graciously thanked Mr. and Mrs. Wallbridge for their kind hospitality.

It's so different today

SALT PORK
SHIP'S BISCUIT

PIRACY on the High Seas was, no doubt, exciting until it came to breakfasting on salt pork and ship's biscuit. Nowadays that delicious cereal, Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes, is eaten joyfully on both sea and land. It's made from not one but TWO grains — sun-ripened wheat and malted barley.

Bold buccaneers of today come aboard with zest when Grape-Nuts Flakes are in the offing. And a good thing too, because these honey-golden flakes provide nourishment they need . . . useful quantities of carbohydrates, protein, phosphorous, iron and other food essentials. Say "Ahoy, Mr. Grocer! Grape-Nuts Flakes, please!"

"It can't be done!"

In 1945 the Tories said:

... and the CCF agreed

BUT

LIBERAL POLICIES CREATED

5 MILLION JOBS

EMPLOYMENT TELLS THE STORY

1939	3,763,000
1945	4,525,000
1946	4,702,000
1948	5,031,000

The Tories and the C.C.F. are as far apart as the poles. But in 1945 they agreed on one thing. Both predicted that mass unemployment was "just around the corner."

The Canadian people refused to believe the prophets of doom. They refused to accept that depression was inevitable, in a country as richly endowed with natural blessings as Canada.

The people put their trust in the Liberal party, which had led the nation to such magnificent achievements in wartime.

The Liberals carried on the job, begun in wartime, of developing Canada into a major world industrial nation. Far-sighted policies were instituted to create jobs . . . high production . . . vastly increased exports . . . high domestic purchasing power.

You have seen the results in the past four years. Instead of empty "war plants", as after the First Great War, new products are being produced . . . new industries have been established . . . new factories built and old ones expanded.

Over a million service men and women have been absorbed back into civilian jobs. Yet, instead of the mass unemployment predicted by the Tories and C.C.F., employment in the past year reached the highest level in Canada's history . . . higher even than at the peak of all-out war production!

In 1945 the Liberal slogan was: "Liberal policies create jobs." You have seen the truth of that statement. You can count on Liberalism to lead Canada to even greater heights in the future — with prosperity, security and opportunity for all.

DON'T RISK A RETURN TO MASS UNEMPLOYMENT!

Oshawa Merchants Continue Winning Pace as They Subdue Batawa 12-8 in Hitting Spree

Thirty solid socks went out into the wild blue yonder Saturday night as the Oshawa Merchants, league - leading entry in the COBL, out-hit, out-run and out-played the Batawa Shoemen and tacked a 12-8 defeat on them to further consolidate their spot on the top rung of the loop ladder.

It was a wild and woolly affair with Oshawa striking suddenly, savagely, at Gordie Muffitt, Batawa's ace hurler in the third to shove over seven runs, put the game in the bag and send the righthander to the showers. He was replaced by Smith, who weathered the storm until the end of the pastime but was touched for ten good smackers while yielding four runs.

Neither did the Batawa hitsmith spare the hosses. They, too, were on the hitting rampage. Doug. Sutton, Ty Tyson's choice for mound duty stayed in there for six innings and the Shoemen lads got to him for nine hits for four runs before Knight was rushed to the rescue.

Knight lasted out the war but the hungry Batawa bats got to him for four clouts for as many runs in a trio of innings.

Oshawa batsmiths fattened their averages handsomely with Kitchen, Motor City third baseman getting no less than four safeties; Ticonny, the import catcher likewise helped himself to a quartet of sacks while Bidgood, who did a fancy chore at first, helped himself to three good lusty cracks (cracks, that is, operator, not crocks). Dougie Sutton, besides heaving a good game while he lasted, threw his cudgel for a pair of clouts, one of them a lusty double.

Solmes Gets Three

On the other side of the hit ledger, Solmes, Batawa second baseman pounded out three hits with Ken Peacock and Mac Watson getting themselves a pair each with the former slashing out a much - needed two-bagger.

Oshawa put the game on "ice" in the third when they lashed out with seven runs from five hits. They opened the scoring in the first with a single from hits by Kitchen and Ticonny. They rammed home three more in the fifth from a trio of hits and called it a day.

Batawa went runless until the fifth when they pounced on Sutton for five clouts to chalk up four runs. In the seventh they shoved over three more from four hits and added their last run in the eighth when Johnny Aquino drove home Beckstead who had drawn a free ticket, with a blasting single to right field.

Both teams kicked the ball around at times with Oshawa being credited with three bobbles and the Shoemen, four.

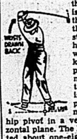
Better Golf

By Sam Snead



Pictured is one excellent swing with wood. I think our player is just a bit too upright to be in perfect form, but otherwise you're looking at a good swing. Notice that the left heel is raised so that the left knee, though bent, is still on an even horizontal line with the right knee. Note that point. Now remember it for this little point is all that makes possible that nice, efficient hip pivot in a very nearly horizontal plane. The hips have pivoted about one-eighth of a circle, while during the same time the shoulders have made a complete quarter turn. This is good golf. The right leg is straight but not locked, the left arm is straight, the wrists properly cocked and the player has kept his eyes on the ball throughout the backswing. Master these little things and you'll start getting "hot". Notice that the club shaft in this full swing has dipped just a trifle below horizontal. And that's plenty far. More will mean loss of control. The left hand is properly closed and our player is now, after a momentary pause in the position pictured, ready to start the downswing. And it should be good.

"Shovel-Pass" Has Been Adopted By Big Four

(By The Canadian Press)

Delegates at the semi-annual meeting of the interprovincial football union in Toronto, Saturday decided to adopt the "shovel-pass" on a one-year trial basis in an effort to open up the end run.

The shovel-pass must be thrown underhand or flipped like a basketball pass. It can only be thrown in a 10-yard zone behind the line of scrimmage.

Any such pass thrown more than 10 yards behind the line of scrimmage will be classed as a forward. A fumbled shovel-pass will become a free ball.

W. C. Foulds, of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Rugby Union Rules Committee, said the shovel-pass, new in Canadian football, will allow a trapped ball carrier to pass forward to another player in the clear. The rule is expected to open up the end run as the trapped man receives a greater advantage over defending players.

At Lake Placid, N.Y., band leader Guy Lombardo and industrialist Henry J. Kaiser, Sunday, abandoned attempts to crack the world's speed boat record on Lake Placid when Kaiser's high-powered "Aluminum First" ran into mechanical trouble again.

Norman Lauterbach of Newport News, Va., attempted a trial spin in the 32-foot craft. A universal joint broke and the test was called off. Lombardo, a native of London, Ont., was to have piloted the speedboat in a shot at the late Sir Malcolm Campbell's world mark of 141.74 miles an hour if the "Aluminum First" had behaved.

Italy Sunday advanced to the semi-final round of the European zone's Davis Cup play by eliminating Chile 4-1.

In the two other matches Czechoslovakia rallied to defeat France's doubles team to remain in the running and Yugoslavia took a one-match lead over Sweden.

Italy will meet the winner of the Yugoslavia-Sweden series.

The winner of the French-Czech series will meet Hungary in the semi-finals.

Boswell, one of England's outstanding classic winners in horse racing's golden year of 1936, died Sunday at Trafalgar farm near Toronto. The 16-year-old horse, which had just completed his fourth season at stud in Canada, took ill Saturday.

Boswell won more than $105,000 in purses in England. He won the St. Leger with the mighty Mahmoud in third place.

At Hamilton, Harry Kretschman of Hamilton, Lou Hartman of St. Thomas, and Johnny Stinson of Bradford, Pa., won Ontario championships at the Hamilton Gun Club as the two-day provincial championship shoot ended yesterday. Kretschman won the 16-yard crown when he broke 197 birds out of 200. Hartman was high man in the 100-bird event and Stinson made a strong finish to register 90 in the doubles event.

At Fairmont Park, Ill., Rodney, five-year-old bay stallion voted "the harnesss horse of 1948", Saturday night, lived up to expectations by winning both heats of the grand circuit trotting derby. He set a track record of 2:02 in winning the 1 1-8 mile eight race and came within 1 3-5 seconds of equalling the record in winning the mile-long fifth race.

FATALLY CRUSHED BY GRAVEL

Sudbury, June 11 — (CP) — Ferdinand Bertrand, 17, of Sudbury was crushed to death Friday beneath tons of gravel at the Wavy Industries Limited plant here. Fellow workers, who tried to reach the boy, said he fell while feeding gravel into a 15-foot bin. He was uncovered several times, but fresh cave-ins reburied him.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It was a case of letting the hair down and the bats run wild in Saturday's night's slugfest between the up-and-coming Oshawa Merchants and Easton's slipping shoemen. Thirty imagine, 3 times ten, solid clouts sailed out in the wild blue yonder and the lads had a field day.

* * *

From a baseball point of view, it was, shall we say something of the variety that emits a spot of aroma. Hitting, yes, sure, the slugsmiths of both teams wielded the hickory with abandon and made it pay off. From the spectators point of view it was a dilly of a game. But baseball, how do you write Ha, Ha, (with a negative nuance).

* * *

Yep, kiddies, the cash customers had a field evening. It was right up their alley. For they saw hits and runs galore with nobody sparing the hosses, and who the h . . . gave a ding anyway.

* * *

The game developed in that sort of an affair after Oshawa placed the pastime into the bag in the third innings with seven runs. Personally, this department feels a mite sorry for the pitchers. Doug Sutton, Oshawa starter, Knight who followed him, Gordie Muffitt, who lasted three innings, Smith his successor, did a swell job, but kiddies those hickories that laid dormant in front of the dugouts of both teams, had it. They came up with baseball atomic blasts that even the most biased spectators had to admit that it was hickory day.

* * *

And we still maintain, (are you listening Mr. Bridgeman?) that the Batawa Shoemen if they are to keep up with the pace set by other teams in the league, should strengthen the club if it is to maintain its prestage.

* * *

Dick Bridgeman who plays in the shortstop position for Batawa and who writes a sport column in the Trenton sheet, came out with the following statement in the weekly edition Thursday. Bridgeman predicts quote "that with a few more hits etc., Batawa will take the league." Tsk. Tsk. Tsk. silly boy.

* * *

Belleville, which didn't have the guts to place a team in the Central Ontario Baseball League, is supporting its nearest squad, the Batawa Shoemen. But Belleville fans, regardless or what Mr. Bridgeman says, are as loyal as any others. That has been proven in the box office receipts for whatever Batawa has staged here from any point of view. It is about time that certain critics who do not live in this city keep their pipes closed. Fandom here, is solidly behind Bill Easton and his grand bunch of baseballers.

We met a grand guy at the Northern Electric-Trenton soccer game on Saturday afternoon. He's Jonesy's skipper of the Electrics fit 'ba gang. A swell fella biting his nails because after all. (he's the kingpin of the N. E. soccer gang, skipper and all that.) he was not allowed to play because of some league ruling. We don't know soccer league rulings, but "blimey, mate who the 'ell does?"

* * *

'Anyway, Jonesy, who captains the boys, will be back there next Saturday. "we 'opes and that should be a treat for not only the Northern Electric squad, but the opposition and spectators as well. Best of luck Jonesy m'lad.

A fan called in this afternoon registering a healthy squawk about City League Baseball.

"Listen, chum," he said. "I don't mind paying 35c to see some sort of a game, but Saturday night, brother, I got gypped. I went to Point Anne where the Northern Electric team was playing a Trenton outfit. I lasted until five or six innings, then what happened. The umpire (I think it was Eddie Schrieder) called the game."

* * *

"Listen, George," quoth he, " I don't mind paying the shot, but I want at least some return for my money. This happened so soon that it looked phoney. I heard that the Trenton team did not have any baseballs. What the H . . . kind of a league are you running to let a team manager get away with stuff like that? Wise up fella. It looks like you and the league executive need a needle.

Indict Promoter For Mail Fraud

Chicago, June 11 — (AP) — Preston T. Tucker, promoter of a novel automobile that never got into mass production, Friday was indicted on charges of mail fraud, securities and exchange commission violations and conspiracy.

Seven associates were indicted with him.

A 31 - count indictment was returned before Federal Judge John P. Barnes by a Grand Jury which spent 12 weeks since Feb. 12 investigating affairs of Tucker and his corporation.

Maximum possible penalties for conviction under the indictment would amount to 155 years imprisonment and $60,000 in fines for each of the eight defendants.

The counts are 25 of mail fraud five of violating regulations of the S. E. C. and one of conspiracy.

The indictment charges that a total of $28,000,000 was spent by the defendants on the promotion and building of the car. The sources of the money were sales of dealer franchises, sale of class 'A' stock and accessories for cars sold before delivery of the automobiles.

Judge Barnes fixed bond at $25,000 each for Tucker, Cerf, Pierce and Karsten. The bail for the others was set at $10,000 each.

The defendants are accused of taking advantage of the unusual post - war consumer demand for cars and spreading "false and fraudulent statements and representations relating to a proposed completely new automobile . . . which was represented to possess and combine features of advanced construction and design not heretofore contained in any mass-produced automobile."

Ponder Defeated By Capot in Belmont Stakes

New York, June 13 — (AP) — Ponder prepared to depart today for Chicago, leaving behind him Capot and Palestinian and a mild controversy over the Belmont Stakes.

It will go down in the records as a sweet $60,900 victory for Capot, the Greentree Stable's three-year-old ace. But many in the crowd of 40,421 at Belmont Park Saturday especially those who established the Calument colt the 4 to 5 favorite -- thought Ponder should have taken it, as he did the Kentucky Derby.

They say jockey Steve Brooks waited to long this time to make his move. As it was, Ponder was coming like an express at the finish, only to be beaten off a half-length by Capot -- with jockey Ted Atkinson of Toronto up -- who returned $13.20 for $2.

Ponder flew past the tiring Palestinian in the final few jumps to grab second place by half a length over Isidor Bieber's ace, second choice in the betting. Capot was third choice.

These three, who have been slugging it out all Spring in the Triple Crown classics, were the only ones in the Belmont as far as a horse race was concerned.

The other five. Sun Bahram, Halt, Old Rockport, Saint Nicholas and Engel Man -- finished in that order -- were just along for the ride.

'Luscious Lucy' Has Eloped

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 11 — (AP) — "Luscious Lucy, the husband huntress," eloped Friday with a boy friend and Art Linkletter of the "People Are Funny" radio show screamed:

"We was robbed!"

Sandy Crews, St. Catharines automobile salesman who was her choice Thursday, was not immediately available for comment.

Linkletter sent Lucille Albeque, 23, from Los Angeles to the National Junior Chamber of Commerce convention here, promising to finance a honeymoon if she found a husband among the 5,000 delegates.

But Lucy got a telegraphic proposal from Jay Kinzer, 23, a student at Los Angeles City College and they eloped.

Later, it was learned Lucy and Kinzer had announced their engagement last Feb. 2 in the Albuquerque, N.M., Tribune.

"No honeymoon for her," Linkletter declared in a statement in Los Angeles. "She not only hoaxed us but she jilted 5,000 from the Junior Chamber of Commerce."

Crewes, 24, was favored by Lucy Thursday when he said: "I've got to figure a way to scrape off all the other guys hanging around."

Later Lucy said she had stopped hunting and was waiting for Kinzer.

Something New Has Been Added to Dodgers' Stock In Trade--A Homerun Punch

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Something new has been added Brooklyn Dodgers' stock in —a home-run punch.

So far this year the Dodgers have belted 55 homers in 52 games.

Brooklyn's new found medium of winning games has played havoc with Cincinnati and Sunday the league leaders exploded four in a pulverising 20-7 route. The 20 runs were the most scored in one game by a major league team this season.

Gil Hodges and Billy Cox were the chief noisemakers. Each slammed a pair of homers. Hodges drive home eight runs and Cox six in the 13-hit rampage against seven Red pitchers. Hodges highlighted a 10-run fifth inning with a single and three-run homer. He clubbed his second homer in the seventh with the bases loaded.

The second-place St. Louis Cardinals split with Philadelphia Phillies winning the opener, 7-3 and dropping the nightcap, 8-3. The third-place Boston Braves divided with Chicago Cubs, copping the second-game, 2-0 after losing the first, 6-2.

Harry (the Cat) Brecheen stopped the Phils in the first game on five hits and would have had a shutout but for Andy Seminick who tagged a three-run first inning homer. Curt Simmons was the losing pitcher.

Seminick carried his home run bat into the finale, blasting two into the seats and driving home four runs to make Robin Roberts' seventh a breeze.

Bossed For Last Time

The Cubs, bossed for the last time by Charley Grimm, combined a five-run first inning against Johnny Sain and brilliant pitching by rookie Warren Hacker to upset the Braves in the first game. Hacker allowed only one hit after taking over from Johnny Schmitz in the first inning with none out.

Johnny Antonelli outpitched Dutch Leonard in the second game. Antoelli permitted only four singles.

Ralph Kiner, the loop's top home-run hitter, smashed his 14th of the season i nthe seventh to give Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 nod over New York Giants. The blow gave Rip Sewell , third of four Buc pitchers, his third victory of an untarnished season.

Cleveland Indians put a crimp in the pennant ambitions of New York Yankees, taking both ends of a twin bill from the American League pace-setters, 6-0 and 3-1. Detroit Tigers swept a bargain bill from the Washington Senators 9-0 and 6-5.

Bob Lemon shut out the Yanks on six blows and walloped a two-run homer in besting Lefty Ed Lopat in the opener. The whitewash was the first suffered by the Yanks in 113 games.

Rookie Mike Garcia came up with a three-hitter in the nightcap, called in the eighth because or rain. L. Boudreau homered for one of the four hits allowed by Tommy Byrne.

Hal Nedhowser let the Senators down with four hits in turning his first shutout and seventh shutout and seventh victory of the year in the opener at Detroit. The Tigers led a four-run first inning. included a two-run homer by Hoot Evers.

Red Sox Fourth

The Tigers won the second game in the ninth when rookie Johnny Groth slammed a bases-loaded double off Paul Calvert.

Boston's Red Sox pulled into a fourth place tie with the Nats, one-half game back of third-place Philadelphia Athletics by downing Chicago White Sox twice, 15-3 and 7-5.

Home runs by Birdie Tebbetts, Vern Stephens and Bobby Doerr permitted Lefty Hal Parnell to coast to his eighth triumph in the first game. The Sox won the second for pitcher Ellis Kinder with a three-run blast in the ninth.

Philadelphia split with the last place St. Louis Browns, taking the second game, 13-10 after losing the first, 6-4. The Browns staged a four-run eighth inning rally to grab the opener. Sherm Lollar blasted a two-run double to highlight the uprising.

The Athletics hammered six Brownie pitchers for 19 hits in the finale. Pete Suder led the way driving home five runs on a homer, double and three singles.

Frankford Wins With Don Boyle On Hurling Heap

Frankford — Frankford Merchants, Trent Valley softball entry, reaped full revenge on the Campbellford Club for Tuesday night's defeat, as they downed the boys from up north by a score of 14-10 on their own diamond. Not content with pitching a masterpiece, Don Boyle smacked out three for six at the plate. Boyle had the Campbellford sluggers tying themselves in knots swinging at his change of pace slow ball. Holmes, Campbellford catcher, was the big slugger for the home team, collecting a pair of round trippers.

Peterborough Petes Move Into First Place

Peterborough, June 13. (CP).—Peterborough Petes moved into first place in the Central Ontario Baseball League Senior loop here Saturday, defeating Brockville Memos, 8-7 and 7-4 in a double-header. The losses left the Memos in last place.

The Petes were forced to drive from behind in the opening game and Howie Dalton stole home for the winning run in the ninth inning.

In the nightcap, Lefty Dadson scattered nine hits and fanned eight men for the Petes.

Only in the first inning did the Memos display any power. They batted in three quick runs only to see the Petes tally four in their half.

WILL PROCLAIM NEW SAINT

Vatican City, June 11—(Reuters) — The Pope will on Sunday, Feast of the Trinity, proclaim the last saint for 1949 in a canonization service in Saint Peters Basilica.

The new saint is Blessed Maria Giuseppa Rosello, Italian founder of the Daughters of Our Lady of Mercy in 1837, who died in 1880 and was beatified by Pope Pius XI in 1938.

Trenton Soccer Team Loses to Electrics 3-1

The red-shirted Northern Electric soccer football team defeated Trenton eleven by a 3-1 score at the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday afternoon.

Trenton put up a surprising defence against the speedy Electrics' attacking divisions and the first half went scoreless.

Electrics struck suddenly, however, in the opening minutes of the second half with H. Leach, starry inside right popping home two goals within minutes of each other. Rappel notched the other later in the half.

There was a stiff breeze blowing and both sides kicked heavily against the wind. Trenton scored their only goal of the game late in the second half when Helyer rammed home the ball from close in. Northern had a decided edge on territorial play and missed several chances. Claire Williamson, city hockey star, excelled at his position at full back for the Electrics. He boots in soccer as well as he shoots in hockey.

The teams:

Trenton: goal, Rushnell; backs, L. and P. Helyer; halves: L. Jones, Gill, G. Jones; forwards: Taft, Brown, Martin, Terrill.

Northern Electric: goal, R. Murphy; full backs, C. Murphy, C. Williamson; halves, H. Williamson, Carter, Wilkins; forwards,— O'Bryan, C. Cathcart, Culley, Leach, Rappel; subs. Platt, Alexander.

Referee: Ted Greenfield.

Sports Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, June 13 — (AP) — Theoretically, a man who manages a major league baseball club should be ble to teach his athletes to play ball..but when it comes to hitting, it can't be done, says the Cardinals' Eddie Dyer.. People often ask me "why don't you teach so and so to hit?" Eddie explained the other day. "But I can show a fellow how to swing exactly like Stan Musial, how to keep his shoulders level and not to overstide and all the rest and still he can't hit. It's a matter of co-ordination of mind and muscle."

Stroke And Distance

When venerable Bobby Cruickon the first day of the open golf championship this year, some of the old-timers recalled a shot Bobby made in the 1943 open.. it was the 11th hole at Merion that Cruickshank smack a shot into the creek in front of the green..his ball hit a rock, bounded out and came to rest on the green..Bobby tossed his club high in the air, tipped his cap and breathed a not-to-silent prayer of thanks..just then the club came down and smacked him right on the head.

Monday Matinee

If the Marcel Cerdan-Jake Lamotta fight this week and the Ezzard Charles-Jersey Walcott affair next week draw as big crowds as predicted, this department will be convinced that fight fans are like some drinkers, who maintain there's no bad whiskey, just some that's better (or worse) than the rest.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By HANS GROTTKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, June 13 — (CP) — After seeing three top - flight soccer teams in action during the last few weeks, Montreal sports writers are of the opinion the sport would become more popular in Canada if a few kinks could be ironed out.

One of these is publicity. At a recent game between Eastern Canada All-Stars and the Scottish International eleven, for instance, the referee chased several photographers off the playing field at the insistence of the visitors' manager.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara commented: "Soccer officials are always bleating about lack of publicity, so when a chance comes to plug their own game, some stuffed shirt steps in to put sand in the gear box. We think the official was ultra officious and we don't go for the claim that the flashing of the bulbs bothered the Scottish goalie. Well, if they feel that way about it soccer won't develop far around here."

Then there is the question of suitable playing facilities. In Montreal, as in most other parts of Canada, good soccer fields are few and far between.

What about players Have we the athletes who could play the game as it should be played and thus gain the popularity it enjoys in Europe and South America?

Here's what Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson has to say about it after the Scottish vs. Eastern Canada title which the visitors won 5-2:—

"The Scots scored five goals by their brilliant short passing and deadly shooting with head and foot. But, despite this, we thought the outstanding Canadian players were Abe Grosser in the nets and left half Abe Caplan."

"And we thought too, that this might be significant of the slowly developing realization here that soccer is a fine game for Canadian youth. For heretofore, soccer in Canada has been a game played almost exclusively by the British-born."

"But there were four Canadian-born stars, at least, maybe more, on the Eastern All-star team. In addition to Grosser and Caplan, there was left full-back Doug Cunningham and inside left Doug McMahon."

That should be proof enough that we are able to produce enou that we are able to produce enough good players who could sell the game to the Canadian public.

Electrics Defeat Trenton 16-2 In Brief Game

In a suddenly abbreviated Belleville and District Baseball League scheduled fixture, the Northern Electric team easily defeated the Trenton town team by a 16-2 score on Saturday evening.

The game, played at Point Anne was called at the end of the sixth innings at the request of the Trenton team manager, who told officials that no more baseballs were available.

The issue was never in doubt. Northern Electric scored four in the first innings, one in the second, three in the fourth and five in the sixth. Trenton scored their two runs in the third innings off a single hit.

Red Carson and Jackie Wardhaugh (of all people) essayed the mound duties for the planters and did a good job. Carson struck out nine while Wardhaugh whiffed one. Carson set down the town boys with but two measly hits.

J. Scott, went on the mound for Trenton and the Electric bats found his delivery to their liking. They rattled thirteen safeties off his slants while he was striking out five. No bases on balls were issued during the game.

As suddenly as it started the game was called at the end of the sixth inning. Manager Haffey of the Trenton team told umpire-in-chief Eddie Schrieder that he had no further baseballs and in view of the score the game should be ended. It was.

The teams: Trenton: Haffey c; P. Scott 3b; J. Scott p; Jordan cf; Jeffrey 1b; Black 2b; A. Scott ss; Mueller lf; Ireland rf.

Northern Electric: Wardhaugh 3b, p; Mulvihill 2b; V. Goyer cf; Bunton 1b; Reeves ss; James c; Donovan lf; Rutherford rf; Carson p, Vance rf.

Toronto Leafs In Second Place Of Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Coaker Triplett and Chet Laabs are beginning to show signs of living up to expectations for the surprising Buffalo Bisons.

Triplett, the defending International League batting champion, and Laabs, who was in the running for the home run crown last year until sidelined for a long spell with an injury, batted the Bisons into first place Sunday.

Triplett collected six hits, and Laabs five in the Bisons' 11-3 and 7-2 triumph over Syracuse Chiefs.

Saul Rogovin posted his fourth victory as against one loss in the first game with Luis Aloma, with help from workhorse Ernie Silverman hung up his fifth triumph in the second game.

The Bisons wrested the lead from Jersey City Giants by four percentage points. The Giants divided a pair with the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs who are only 10 percentage points away from the top.

After Wes Bailey tamed the Leafs 7-2 for his eighth victory, Nick Strincevich hurled the Leafs to a 3-2, triumph. The Leafs got only four hits off Bob Hansen but combined two along with two walks and an error for all of their runs in the sixth inning.

The defending champion Montreal Royals toppled two games off the pace, losing a twin bill to Baltimore Orioles 8-5 and 4-3. Home runs by Bingo Binks, Hank Arft, Al Cihocki and Bob Young permitted Irv Medlinger to pick up his first victory of the season in the opener. Medlinger was rapped for homers by Al Gionfriddo and Sam Jethroe.

Al Widmar, in a relief role, gainer credit for his eighth victory in the aftermath when Red McQuillen blasted his 12th homer.

Rochester Red Wings moved to within three games of the fourth-place Royals by sweeping two games from Newark Bears 6-2 and 4-3. The defeats dumped the Bears into the cellar.

TOP HUNGARIAN SHOT

Vienna, Austria, June 10—(AP) — A Viennese newspaper says today a top Hungarian police officer was shot Thursday while trying to escape into Austria carrying a list of Hungarian secret service employees. The Socialist Arbeiterzeitung identifies the man as Col. Oszcso, chief of the personnel branch of the Hungarian Ministry of the Interior. It said he managed to hide the list before being seized by Hungarian police.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A sound bidding method is seldom handcuffed by its rules. Here and there it may be temporarily left dangling. But when the occasion really requires it, the chains of restraint are loosened.

South opened the bidding with one heart when holding this hand:

♠A 9 4
♥K J 8 3
♦A Q 9 7
♣10 4

Partner in north responded with one spade. This takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round. South must bid again. But what?

Bids follow T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump. And south has an unshown biddable suit in diamonds to which he should takeout. Also he has adequate support for spades which he should assist.

But to show his diamonds or spades in this spot means he must raise the number. And each raise shows another trick. With only the five tricks promised by the opening, south lacks the sixth trick.

Therefore, south must not takeout to diamonds or assist in the spades. Forced not to pass, the only bid left without needing a raise is no-trump. So he bids one no-trump.

If north has nothing more to bid they probably belong in one no-trump. Or they are probably no worse off in it than in anything else. And if north does re-enter the bidding, south can revert to T-A-N again.

After the south one no-trump, suppose north bids two clubs. The south hand can now show his biddable diamond suit with a bid of two. Or his support of spades with a bid of two.

Why is he able to do this on the latter round when he must not earlier? Because he is able to do so later without raising the last partnership number.

There might not have been any harm in his raising the number. But partner would have a right to count on him for six tricks instead of five. Sometimes that is bad.

When truth would serve as well, many have lied like sin.

Williams Holds Slight Lead Over Robinson

Chicago, June 13. (AP).—Terrible Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox holds a slight lead over Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson in early balloting in the All-star baseball poll.

The annual contest between the American and National Leaguers will be held July 12 in Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

Williams, who was individual vote leader last year, again leads the field with 3,782 votes of the 8,202 ballots tabulated to date. The figures were announced by the Chicago Tribune, which conducts the country-wide poll.

Robinson, a National League batting star, has 3,317 votes thus far.

MEMORIAL TO FALLEN AT STONEY CREEK BATTLE

Hamilton, June 13 — (CP) — A memorial to the fallen of the Second World War was unveiled Sunday near the historic battlefield of Stoney Creek where British troops repulsed United States soldiers in the War of 1812. The memorial unveiled by Lieutenant - Governor Ray Lawson, stands near two others commemorating the War of 1812 and the First World War.

Tokyo — Police are having a cold war with railway employees.

The railway workers cut off the traditional free rides of the police.

Now comes word from Osaka that police are arresting railway workers caught secretly transporting rice. Worse, they are reporting it to the railway workers' boss.

In the days of the free ride, the police might pick up a worker for this offence now and then, but never told his boss.

The worker automatically loses his job.

Washington — Arthur Daymude, husky 49-year-old plumber, was fined $50 or 30 days for assault.

Carolyn Turner, 49, a fellow tenant at a downtown rooming house, said Daymude offered to settle a quarrel by shaking hands. But he didn't let go for "several minutes", she testified. The pressure "practically paralyzed" her hand.

London — London bus drivers who fall in love with and marry their ticket collectors may serve on the same buses with their wives in future.

The London Transport Board has allowed a number of couples to do so for several years as an experiment. The experiment has been a success and will now be extended to all married couples serving on the London bus routes.

Lancaster, Pa. — Paul Kiefer was "starred" in a Little Theatre production of "The Milky Way" Thursday night — in more ways than one.

Kiefer, appearing in the play's leading role, was struck in the second act by another actor using a "breakaway" can that looks like the real thing but supposedly causes no pain.

The cane failed to function properly and Kiefer dropped to the stage unconscious.

Reviving in time for the third act, Kiefer reported he had seen more than his share of stars for one night.

Port Jervis, N.Y. — (AP) — Clark Pounell's motorcycle hit a deer, on National Highway Six in Pennsylvania a few miles from here.

The deer didn't like it.

The animal kicked Pounell off his motorcycle.

The kick broke Pounell's right leg.

Pounell, 39, was recovering today at a hospital here.

New York — (AP) — An old tin can lying in the street isn't necessarily worthless junk.

Two little girls, Leona Wasyn, 9, and Dorothy Wagner, 8, proved it Friday night.

The girls were playing when they spotted the tin can. Dorothy kicked it. The top flew off and out cascaded a cluster of banknotes.

The girls took their find of $550 to a police station. If no legitimate claimant turns up in six months, they will have it for keeps.

Easton, Pa. — (AP) — Charles Afflerbach is wondering if he hasn't got an unusual television set.

While the set was in Arnold Haskins' radio store in downtown Easton Friday a picture was received from Miami. Hastings identified the Miami station as WTVJ.

Later Afflerback took the set to his Bangor home and said he received WBAP in Ft. Worth, Tex.

Miami is approximately 1,200 miles from Easton and Ft. Worth about 1,900 from Bangor.

Charles Thon, radio engineer for the Easton Express Station, WEEX, saw the Miami picture. He said the unusual reception was caused by tropospheric bending.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was home this afternoon on account of Satturday, and I said, Hay pop, come on out back and I'll show you the swell dog house I'm making in case I ever get a dog.

I've got these letters to anser, pop said. My conscience keeps me chained to my desk like a galley slave to his oars, he said, and ma said, If Benny had the faintest vestidge of a conscience, I wouldn't have to remind him that I expect him to cleen up his room before he goes back to fiddle with his mythological dog house.

Aw G, ma, gollies, good nite, heck, I said, and ma said, Maybe so, but you cant prove it by me.

I think I understand the general drift of his remarks, pop said. In the course of years, it's naturel and rite for each one of us to be most serious about whatever seems the most important to us at the time. In other werds it's just a question of acting our age. Now at Benny's age, the spirrit of play absorbs all our attention, so we throw our hart and sole into the milding of a dogless dog house and thus sharpen our faculty for concentration which we will later apply to our adult intrists. For instance if I had never exercized my power of concentration in childhood play, I wouldn't be finding it neerly so easy to apply all my mental energy to the task of upholding my place in the fragile web of sissiety by answering these letters, which my mature pudgement tells me is an occupation the 2 points of view, as in the more important than playing. Of course there is a happy fusion of case of professional ball players, who play as they werk. In fact there is a duble header this afternoon, and I think I'll take Benny to give him a practical illistration, he said.

Being grate news, and he invited ma too, but she claimed she had to stay home and catch up with her mending.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

Country's Regular Forces Building Up Their Strength

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, June 13 — (CP) — The government has given no indication of what Canadian obligations will be under the Atlantic Pact but, quietly and steadily, the country's regular forces are building up their strength to fit into any possible commitment.

The regular army, air force and navy have boosted total manpower from 35,000 in May, 1948, to more than 42,000 in May, 1949, a 20-per-cent increase and no hard and fast ceiling has been laid down.

The tempo around defence headquarters has increased in the past 12 months, pivoting on army plans for its airborne brigade, air force plans for a framework of fighter defence and navy plans for improved anti-submarine facilities.

A spokesman said recently headquarters planning envisages the possibilities of war anytime from tomorrow on into the indefinite future. But, generally speaking, it has not thought in terms of an early war.

Recruiting hit a peak in March with an influx of 1,200 new men but now is running below 900 a month, in line with a not-unusual summer slump.

The services have been taking men just about as fast as they can handle them. They can increase their absorptive capacity but consider the average rate is quite satisfactory. Since September when a recruiting campaign was launched, recruiting has been running 60 per cent ahead of the same period a year before.

Probably for the first time since the war, the navy has had to inform men in certain categories that they are acceptable but will have to await a call.

Current strengths stand at better than 19,000 for the army, 15,000 for the air force and 8,000 for the navy.

Jobs Open

Twenty seats in the Senate — worth $6,000 a year each — still are open two weeks before the June 27 election and there is a chance that some of them won't be filled before the ballots are counted.

If Prime Minister St. Laurent leaves some of them unfilled it will be a rare, if not unprecedented, move. The usual thing is for the prime minister to make sure the Upper Chamber is as full as possible of his supporters in case some other party wins the election and, with it, the right to name new senators.

But it is regarded as certain that there will be some Senate appointments before the election, chiefly affecting former Liberal members of parliament or provincial legislatures.

With the entry of Newfoundland, the Upper Chamber will have 102 members. Present standing is 67 Liberals and 15 Progressive Conservatives. The 20 vacancies include six Newfoundland, 5 in Ontario, two each in the three Maritime provinces and one each in Alberta, British Columbia and Quebec.

Firemen Concentrate On Saving Tanks

Dixie, Ont., June 13 (CP)— Firemen in this community, eight miles northwest of Toronto Sunday night ignored a building full of burning cans of turpentine and concentrated efforts on saving four 5,000 - gallon storage tanks of turpentine and lighter fluid some 30 feet away from the building. Firemen said it was impossible to put out the blazing turpentine; it would have to burn out. Firemen played all available hose on the storage tanks to keep them from exploding.

SPEND 5.4 P.C. INCOME FOR MEAT

Washington, June 13 (CP)— Americans now are spending about 5.4 per cent of their income for meat compared with about 5.6 per cent in the pre-war period, the Agriculture Department reported Sunday. In the second quarter of last year 6.5 per cent of consumers' income was being spent for meat.

Appeals to Industry to Convert Plants Into Community Centres

By ROBERT BROWN

London, June 13 — (Reuters)— Sir Noel Curtis - Bennett, a leading British welfare worker, has made a bold appeal to industry to convert factories and workshops into community centres.

"The factory is the natural community centre in an industrial society whose economic basis is work, and the factory can quite easily become so," Sir Noel writes in a new book, "The Food of the People."

He envisages the factory community centre equipped with restaurants, swimming pools, gymnasia, game rooms, libraries "and all that is needed for health, recreation."

Sir Noel wants the new industrial community centres to be developed voluntarily by private enterprise, without state interference.

Because many British factories are crowded on sites which do not allow expansion, he visualizes community centres as serving a group of factories.

Sir Noel argues that the vast majority of families in modern industrial towns are isolated from their fellows, suffering loneliness with consequent mental and moral disorders, and unable to find friends and marriage partners in as wide a circle as is desirable.

He believes that the industrial community centre would do much to right this.

Around the nucleus of canteens or restaurants could be built up a structure which would provide a pool of vital medical and psychological information and the environment which could remedy most of the defects which were found.

Most important of all there would be "an atmosphere of cheerful comradeship and social activity which draws not only individuals but whole families back into the community circle as they used to be in medieval times."

FRANKFORD

Frankford.—Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stuckey were Mr. and Mrs. Wilmott Carter, and Mrs. Harry Lohnes.

The Frankford Fire Brigade were called on Wednesday afternoon, to extinguish a fire in the town dump a mile east of town.

The Frankford Continuation School students were guests of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, Wednesday, as they were shown about the Frankford Power House. Educational tours such as this do a great deal in enlightening the students on technical subjects, which would otherwise prove quite difficult for the teachers to illustrate.

The Continuation School publication, "The Wolf" is now off the press. The paper carries the most prominent traits and characteristics of many of the pupils and of the teachers. Since there will be no continuation school in Frankford next year, this will be the final edition of the paper.

Mr. Stanley Cooper is giving his home on North Trent Street, a new coat of paint.

Frankford Merchants dropped a close game to Campbellford in Stirling, Tuesday night, as Campbellford came from behind to make it 10-7 in the final frame. Rankin pitched a beautiful game, and deserved a win for his effort.

A number of boys of the Frankford Legion were out Thursday night working on their lot in preparation for the erection of their building. They will be working each night for a couple hours, and all Legionnaires are urged to get out and do their share of work.

The Frankford Troop of the Boy Scouts held their weekly meeting, Thursday evening, and enjoyed a game of softball at the school grounds.

Mr. Keith Casement called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes on Thursday evening.

The softball diamond at the school is gradually being conditioned and should be ready for use next week. When completed Frankford will have one of the best softball diamonds in the district.

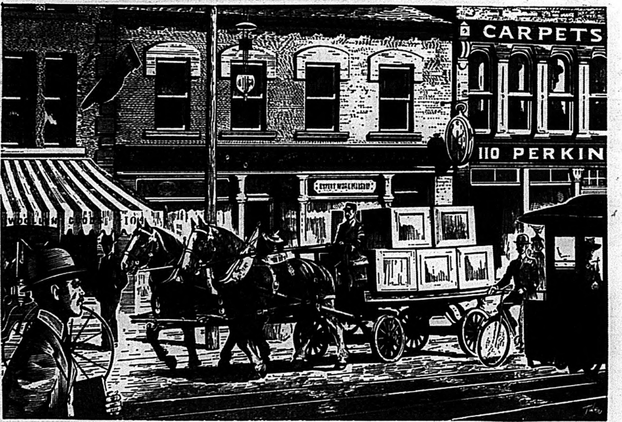
Hubert Foster of the RCAF, is spending two weeks' furlough at his mother's home in Frankford.

Earle Darke, formerly of Kaye's clothing factory in Trenton, has started to work for the [illegible] Shoe Company, Frankford [illegible]

60 YEARS OF ACCOMPLISHMENT

1889 1949

Fifty years ago the horse-drawn dray was the vehicle used to transport freight and heavy merchandise along the streets. Today trucks of all types and sizes move goods along our streets and highways. Speeds and loads have been steadily increased through better engineering and better materials used in truck construction. Strong, tough, shock-resisting Nickel alloys are almost universally used for gears, crankshafts, frames and many other parts.



Nickel Brings Dollars to Canada

Since more than ninety per cent of the Nickel produced in Canada is sold to the United States and other countries, it brings a constant flow of dollars back to Canada. In fact, Canada's Nickel industry is one of our chief sources of U.S. dollars so essential at the present time to maintain our foreign trade and make available products not produced in this country.

These dollars help pay the wages of the 14,000 Nickel employees, and help provide the dollars which make it possible to pay millions in freight to Canadian railways, to buy timber, steel, coal, machinery and supplies amounting to many millions each year.

These millions, flowing into all industries through the length and breadth of Canada, help create jobs for Canadians.

Five Plaques Being Placed In Hall of Fame

Copperstown, N.Y., June 13. (AP)—Five plaques were to be put in place today at the National Baseball Hall of Fame commemorating two heroes of olden days and three modern greats.

Honored were Mordecai Petef Brown and Charles A. (Kid) Nichols, pitchers from baseball's misty past, and Herbert J. Pennock, Charles L. Gehringer, and Harold J. (Pie) Traynor of more recent times.

Nichols and Brown were selected by the Old Timers' Committee, Pennock and Traynor were voted in last year and Gehringer this year, by the baseball writers.

Unveiling of the five plaques brings to 58 the number on display in the Hall of Fame.

Baptist Ministers Will Receive Increase in Pay

Toronto, June 11 (CP).—Baptist ministers in Ontario and Quebec who have been trying to get along on a minimum salary of $1,600 will receive at lease $1,800 a year from now on.

The boost in the minimum was approved Friday during second-day sessions of the week-long jubilee conference of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec. And the 4,000 delegates were told that further efforts will be made to improve pastors' salaries.

G. C. McEwen, chairman of a special committee on minimum salary for ministers, was asked whether the committee had completed its work. He replied:

"No minister is well paid. We are not satisfied that we are anywhere near what it should be."

His report said that when the committee was established in 1947, 90 churches were paying less than the $1,600 minimum then introduced.

But now, every home mission pastor receives at least $1,600, many $1,600-$1,800, plus $200 transportation allowance for two-point and three-point fields (rural areas where one minister serves more than one church.)

The gathering passed the salary increase motion introduced by Dr. Chester New of McMaster University, Hamilton. It provides that in all two-point and three-point fields, the minimum shall be $1,800 plus parsonage, and $200 for transportation. In city churches and rural fields where no parsonage is provided, the minimum is to be $1,800 plus an adequate rent allowance. Increases in the cost of living are to be taken into account.

Delegates said many churches already pay more than $1,800 a year.

ARRESTS IN ONE CASE

Chicago, June 11 (AP). — The Chicago Sun-Times said Friday its $100,000-reward campaign among its readers to clear up 20 unsolved murders has resulted in arrests in one slaying case. Murder and robbery charges were placed against two men and a women in the holdup slaying last year of Herman Englehard, 79. The Sun-Times reported an anonymous tip prompted by its reward campaign brought about the arrests and charges. The reward is $5,000 in each case.

PROVEN OIL RESERVES

Houston, Tex., June 11 (AP).—Canada's proven oil reserves have been increased by more than 750,000,000 barrels since 1947, a Canadian geologist said Friday. Dr. Theo A. Link, consulting geologist of Toronto and Calgary, said Alberta contains more oil than Texas and probably more than all of the United States if tar sands are included.

SHOT FLUSHES DEER

Richmond Hill, June 11 (CP) — When a golfer at the Summit course here, 15 miles north of Toronto, sliced a ball off the fairway into the woods he didn't bother following it. He and his three companions watched the ball disappear into the bush—and watched a well-antlered deer charge out. The deer disappeared over a hill.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

Now it was Polly's turn for silence. Silence, even though her heart was pounding. Matters here had gotten quite out of hand!

He reached to touch her arm. "You've been teaching me to dance and everything. You've been so decent! I sure hope some other mug hasn't got his bid in ahead of me. I'm awfully slow about such things; social things, I mean. Please, Polly can you—will you go with me??"

She knew no peace. He brain was in a whirl again. She realized in cold analysis, that Joy Boone was simply man crazy in a way; a spoiled somebody much like Scarlett O'Hara of fictional fame. sought by many men but craving the one who had not asked to date her. But friendship is friendship; loyalty priceless. She knew, too, that Ken's sense of fairness and gratitude had made him ask

Polly slowly nodded, then whispered. " Yes, Ken, I will!"

Polly woke up next morning with a distinct sense of guilt.

She was up, in fact, by 5.30 a.m. a full hour ahead of her usual rising time. She dressed and went out to the corrals.

"Hey!" her father boomed genially at her. "Trying to catch the early worm? Or is some young man calling early?"

"No, daddy. I want to ride."

"Best time of the day for it. You, Pancho!"

"Si, Senor Buck. I coom!"

"Saddle Pintado for Miss Polly. Top him off first; she's afraid of a bucking horse."

"Stop it, daddy!" she grimaced at him. "I don't feel like being teased. You know I can ride any horse Pancho can. Or you either."

He chuckled and went on his way, already starting the day's routine of work on the Paradise Ranch. Polly mounted her fine pinto and galloped along the trail towards Cave Creek Dam, then swung left toward Sugar Loaf Mountain. After a mile she topped a rise and halted there where the new sun could bathe her and Pintado in golden light. Purple shadow blankets were receding from the distant canyons and hills. The bright red of morning was showing on Ribbon Cliffs. Birds she had disturbed flitted through the palos verdes, and a coyote loped lazily along the next ridge after staring curiously at her.

But she responded to none of this; this western out doors which was her love, her home, her everything.

Pintado was restless and full of the old nick. He turned his graceful neck and nipped Polly's trouser leg, whinnying in play. She didn't respond to that, either. Slowly, as if disappointed, the intelligent horse started walking on back toward home.

She ate only a bit of fruit for breakfast, changed clothes and motored in to school. It was still early. Dormitory girls were barely out of the mess hall. But the Administration Building and the Library were open. She started toward the Library.

"No," she whispered to herself then. "He might be there. I don't want to see him this morning."

She turned and went up the main A.B. stairs, sat down in the third floor room where she would have a class within an hour. There she tried to study. She diligently stared at books. She read a page, re-read it. Still she had no inkling of what it contained. The heavy feeling of misery weighed in her breast. She didn't even revive when people began to come in for the class, nor when good old Dr. Peabody came and greeted her. That is, she responded only in polite words, not with her usual heartiness.

"Who's your date, Polly?" some girl asked, first thing.

She pretended not to hear.

"Everybody's talking," the girl went on. "Guess what? We're getting a gang together to back you! We are!. We had secret sessions last night—you ought to live in the dorms, Polly—and at breakfast we pass the word around still more. We intend to rope everybody we can. Everybody will be for you!"

Polly turned. Whatever did the girl mean?

But Dr Peabody was calling the roll now, and that was a signal for quiet He was such a sweet old fellow that nobody dared offend him.

She had an off period from 10:30 to 11:30 and as usual she drifted down to the Bulletin Board. There she learned immediately what the plotting was all about.

"Everybody's excited about who will lead the grand march," she was told. "At the Freshman Masque Polly. It will be either you or Joy Boone, naturally. I'm backing you. Most of us are, we think. At least the seniors."

"But—"

"But nothing! You're a ranch girl, aren't you? So are we! Most of us. Who's dating you, Polly? Hunr?"

"Oh. I—why I—" She stammered, then closed her lips.

"Secret! Secret!" The girl laughed. I don't care. It's a masquerade anyway. We'll know when you unmask. Will you tell me what you're going to wear? What you'll come as?"

Polly swallowed. "I—don't know. I hadn't thought."

"Goodness, Polly, aren't you even interested? You don't sound like yourself."

"Oh of course. Or course I am."

"They won't tell for a few days yet, but by then we'll have the screws on 'em."

"Tell what? Who?"

"Silly! Who'll lead the grand march! And you know the class officers decide that. The freshman class. They're hosts to the rest of the school They pick whoever they want to lead it and all. Don't you even remember that, Poll?? Goodness, I think you'd—but don't you worry! Just because Joy Boone has an airplane and two cars and scads of money and clothes and everything, doesn't mean that she—"

"Please!" Polly tried to interrupt her talkative friend.

"Who does she think she is, anyway? Oh she's nice enough. But she's a New Yorker—imagine! The 1941 glamor girl, or whatever they call 'em now. Did you see the writeup and photos in the big Los Angeles newspapers? Right on the front society page. Head thrown back, laughing, with four polo players—men!—hovering around. Good night!"

"Hush, Louise!" Polly chided now. You mustn't say things about Joy, or anybody. I'm sure she deserves everything she has."

'You're too nice, that's what. Who'd you say's taking you? Fred Randolph said he asked you. And Karren Mackey. And Phil Hart. And Bob Creamer—he even two-timed Jane trying to date you! Jane herself told me. But he came back, licking her boots. She made him eat dirt, you bet! You do rate, Polly. Who'd you choose?"

"What about yourself?" Polly asked that in sheer defense.

"Ted Swihart, silly! You know he's setting in my palm. But you—"

Polly edged away. A sort of panic had gripped her now. More girls had come up to join in the conversation, and wish it or not she was the center of interest. She pretended she had studying to do.

Back in the Administration Building she encountered Dr. Palmer, the University president, whom she had come to like very much. He smiled cordially and paused a moment.

"Hear a lot of talk about you, Miss McMurray," he greeted her. "There's even a petition going around to get you and your escourt to do the honors at the Masque. Ought to be an exciting week. And, ah, don't forget to do at least a little studying, eh? After all, we do have a university here!"

She smiled back at him. Dr. Pal. A man of infinite dignity, in truth, the logical person to lead the freshman ball as well as receive all other honors here this fall.

"The world operates on politics," Polly told herself. reasoning it all out again. "Joy is unselfish at heart, but she will spend her money on whatever she likes. If she can just be made to appreciate Frontier, she might—there's no telling what she might decide to do! If she or somebody could put more money into the endowment fund the attendance might be doubled, and kids who haven't a chance anywhere else could get an education here. It's needed! But nobody dares ask Joy out right. Not yet at least. She gets so many requests for money, Miss Carlson says. Anyway it ought to come unsolicited. If Joy can just be made to love the school—really love it as I do—"

Premier of Nfld. Faces 4 Charges Of Intimidation

Summons State Undue Influence Used on Voters

St. John's, Nfld., June 14 (CP)—Four summonses today were issued against Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland ordering him to appear in court on Thursday on charges of intimidation of voters.

Magistrate Hugh O'Neill issued the summonses at the request of W. J. Browne, Progressive Conservative candidate in the federal riding of St. John's West on behalf of four residents of the area.

The magistrate refused to issue warrants for Mr. Smallwood's arrest, asked for by Mr. Browne when he made his submission on Monday following campaign speeches by the premier in the Ferryland district of the riding.

Magistrate O'Neill said his decision was made under the Summary Jurisdiction Act of 1930-31. The Act allows summonses to be issued in a case without the magistrate going into its merits.

Mr. Browne resigned as a district court judge to enter the federal election campaign.

Argument Develops

There was some argument between magistrate and ex-magistrate just as the hearing opened but then Mr. Browne acceded to Mr. O'Neill's plea that he remain silent.

Magistrate O'Neill said the applications had required careful study on his part because of possible implications of the Canadian Criminal Code as well as The Dominion Elections Act.

The summonses call on Mr. Smallwood to appear in court "to answer the same complaint that you, the said defendant at Ferryland, in the federal riding of St. John's West on the 9th day of June, 1949, did by himself directly commit the corrupt practice of undue influence by practising intimidation" on voters.

There was no immediate statement from Premier Smallwood. He earlier discounted the charges of vote intimidation. He said his remarks at Farryland were made in a bantering manner and had been received in the same way by his audience, who cheered him lustily after each meeting.

"I have no doubt that there are people who are very jealous of the cordial reception given me in the district," said the premier.

In court Monday Mr. Browne said the premier exerted "undue influence" in campaign speeches in the south coast region of Ferryland. The warrants for Mr. Smallwood's arrest were asked for on behalf of four residents in Ferryland.

Made in "Bantering Manner"

Mr. Smallwood said later in a statement he had made the remarks in a "bantering manner."

Mr. Browne charged the premier had said no public money would be spent in the area during the next four years unless the people voted for the Liberal candidate.

This was contrary, said Mr. Browne, to the provisions of the Dominion Elections Act.

Monday's court action followed charges by Mr. Browne that he had "lost my job" because he opposed Mr. Smallwood's policies. To this, Mr. Smallwood said Mr. Browne had resigned just in time to save him from dismissal because he was "unfit to fulfil the judical functions of the bench."

Recall No Previous Case

Ottawa — (CP) — On a charge of intimidation of Canadian voters —four summonses on such charges now face Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland — would, if upheld in the courts, lay the accused open to a maximum penalty of $2,000 fine and two years in prison, with or without hard labor.

Officials here could not recall any previous cases where charges of intimidation have been carried to the courts as the result of electioneering statements.

851 CANDIDATES GUNNING FOR 262 SEATS IN HOUSE

Total Far Short of Record of 945 Who Ran in 1945

(By The Canadian Press)

A total of 851 persons — 15 of them women — is gunning for 262 seats awaiting occupancy in the House of Commons.

That is the total number of candidates who took out official papers and backed up their faith with deposits of $200 each yesterday when nominations closed for Canada's June 27 federal election.

The total is far short of the record of 954 who ran in the 1945 general election, when there were only 245 Commons seats at stake. The seat total has been swelled by 17 in this election — seven for Newfoundland and 10 for new constituencies created since 1945.

The Liberals, 14 years in power, put up the largest number of candidates — 260. They lack candidates only in two ridings in British Columbia.

The Progressive Conservatives, staging an all - out fight to regain the parliamentary majority they lost in 1935, entered 249 candidates. They have a full slate in every province except Quebec, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia.

C. C. F. Nominated 180

The third major bid came from the C. C. F., whose leader, M. J. Coldwell, has conceded that the party's hopes are to become the official opposition in the new House of Commons. They nominated 180 candidates, with their main showing in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Ontario.

The Union of Electors Party, a group which advocates Social Credit monetary reform, nominated 55 candidates and concentrated 50 of them in Quebec. It was four in Ontario and one in New Brunswick.

300th Anniversary Marked of Burning Of Fort Ste. Marie

Midland, June 14 — (CP)—A large gathering today commemorates the 300th anniversary of the burning of Fort Ste. Marie, historic outpost on the Wye River two miles from here. The outpost was destroyed June 14, 1649, to prevent its occupation by marauding bands of Iroquois Indians. Visitors include Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto; Fred Landon, vice-president of the University of Western Ontario and 30 Indian boys and girls from Spanish, Ont.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, June 14 — (CP)—Synopsis: Scattered thunderstorms over Southern Ontario Monday night resulted in rainfalls varying from nearly an inch and a half at Trenton to more than half an inch at Wiarton but many localities were missed completely. Further relief to drought stricken Ontario is in prospect with scattered showers and thunderstorms forecast again for today and Wednesday.

BERLIN WORKERS WILL CONTINUE RAIL WALKOUT

Vote to End Strike Taken During Day

Berlin, June 14 — (AP) Early West Berlin railway workers had voted overwhelmingly to continue their rail strike started 24 days ago.

The vote on a compromise proposal to end the walkout was held during the day. With almost half the vote counted the number favoring a return to their jobs was so small as to be virtually negligible.

The striking union announced that the completion of the count in seven districts showed:

For continuation of the strike, 5,572; against continuation, 949.

The strike is directly against the Russian - controlled railway system. The compromise plan on which the anti-communist strikers balloted was sponsored by all four occupying powers.

Despite predictions by union leaders of a favorable vote, there was concerted resistance. Placards were installed at polling places urging workmen to turn down the compromise and vote to continue the strike.

Representatives of the strikers Sunday over-rode their own top leaders and turned down a United States appeal for an immediate end to the crippling walkout.

Instead, the 600 union officials voted overwhelmingly to refer the settlement terms to a referendum. Seventy - five per cent of the membership must vote to continue the walkout, or it is automatically called off.

Today's vote brings to a climax the strike, which has caused two deaths, blockaded rail delivery of supplies to Berlin and helped prevent an east - west accord on German trade.

The walkout also has halted all elevated train service in the western sectors.

By causing a stoppage of freight trains in and out of the Berlin area, the strike has affected the lives of several million West Berliners who are thrown back on supplies the air lift can bring into the city.

40 Trains Stranded

Some 40 trains are stranded at the gates of Berlin and 2,000 cars are stuck in the marshalling yards. The strikers control the switches and man the signal towers. They have torn up strategic rails and cut telegraph wires.

The West - Berlin railwaymen, numbering about 14,000, walked out May 21 with demands that the Russian - controlled railway management pay them in west marks instead of the east marks used previously to pay wages. The east marks are worth about one fourth the west variety.

The strikers also demanded that the management recognize the anti-communist U. G. O. Union as their bargaining agent and pledge job security.

The Berlin railway system has been under Russian control since 1945, under the provisions of a four-power agreement.

One Man Killed As Two Freights Are in Collision

Bolkow, Ont., June 14. (AP) —One man was killed and another injured Sunday when two eastbound freight trains collided at this northwestern Ontario centre 150 miles northwest of Sudbury.

The dead man was stock attendant C. W. A. Thiffault, 25, whose address could not be learned immediately. Injured was another stock attendant, William C. Henderson, 35, of Haynes City, Alta., and Cote Ste. Paul, Que.

Henderson was riding in the van when the freight struck the stock train. He received a fractured right leg and severe shock. Chapleau hospital authorities report his condition as "satisfactory."

The engine of one of the trains was derailed and the van of the first train seriously damaged. None of the stock was injured.

Says Free Press Essential If People of World Are To Escape Total Subjection

London, June 14 — (CP) — A free press is essential if the people of the world are to escape "complete spiritual isolation and subjection," Col. J. J. Astor said today in his presidential address to the Empire Press Union.

He told the annual meeting of the organization which represents the press throughout the Commonwealth and Empire that the subject is one of intense concern in the present-day world.

"We see the countries of the world steadily dividing into those where newspapers are politically free and those where they have no freedom at all," said Col. Astor, chairman of the Times Publishing Company.

In this age the resources and techniques of mass persuasion "can blind whole populations to the truth, can utterly destroy their judgment and can maintain in overwhelming power those who are able to control newspapers, radio and other vehicles of information and of ideas."

"The only safeguard is a free press — newspapers which are allowed to publish news without bias and to question policy without fear of the consequence.

"Every type of newspapers is justified if it helps to preserve this principle of press freedom. No matter how trivial its appeal may seem to be, if it possesses freedom it can help to depose, or better still to prevent, a Hitler."

Discussing news distribution, Col. Astor said: "We have been authoritatively told that there is at present no proposal to withdraw the vital penny-a-word Empire Press telegraph rate" by which news may be transmitted between points within the Commonwealth at two cents a word.

"We shall continue to watch over this immensely important facility," he added.

Col. Astor was re-elected president of the E. P. U. for the 20th consecutive year.

Senator Rupert Davies, chairman of the Canadian section of the E. P. U., was among attending the meeting. He reported on the progress of plans for the Imperial Press Conference to be held in Canada next year.

Question Family in Connection With Disappearance of Boy

Eastman, Que., June 14 — (CP) — Rumors that the body of six-year-old Michel Fontaine, missing since May 30, had been found were quelled Monday night when provincial police announced that they are "still searching for the boy."

Monday, amid the rumors circulating in this eastern townships district, provincial police dispatched a four-man squad to the area.

The boy's father, Charles Fontaine, and five other members of the family of 12, were taken to the nearby resort centre of Mount Orford for questioning. After more than three hours, the family was returned to their farm house.

Police declined to reveal the exact nature of the questioning, saying that it is "only a routine check in cases of this kind."

The presence of Dr. Rosario Fontaine, provincial medico-legal expert, in the area added strength to the rumor the boy's body had been discovered and hundreds of residents in the district jammed roads leading to the resort centre.

The questioning of the family appeared to be finished by police as they left for Montreal early today, saying they would continue their "routine search."

The search for the frail little boy reached its peak a week ago when 3,000 volunteers combed the heavy forest and matted swampland in this area 70 miles from Montreal. A few woodsmen and guides are still carrying on the search.

Scattered Showers Bring First Break in Drought

Toronto, June 14 (CP). — A heavy overnight rainfall, ranging from .05 inches at Windsor to 1.40 inches at Trenton, has ended the 19-day drought in many sections of southern and central Ontario. But the Toronto district is still bone dry.

Further relief was in prospect for most southern areas today. Rain started to fall in London this morning and scattered showers or thunderstorms were in prospect for Toronto where temperatures were 10 degrees cooler.

The overnight showers, however, brought only patchy relief. It helped the potato and tomato crops but was too late to revive the heat-stricken strawberry crop. It is believed raspberry crops will fare better.

From Brantford came reports that the drought has seriously lowered the level of the Grand River. The Grand valley dam near Fergus is discharging water at the rate of only 280 feet a second, less than half the usual flow from storage which authorities believe necessary.

The first cut hay crop in Brant County has resulted in a reduced yield of 75 per cent due to the drought.

Seriousness of the feed and pasture situation is reflected in the emergency growth instructions issued to farmers by the Agriculture Department. It suggests immediate planting of sudan grass, oats, peas, sweet clover and millet as replacement crops which can be sown in late-June and will thrive in "well-warmed" soil.

Agriculture Department officials said many crops still are "stunted beyond recovery", and estimated losses to date at well over $100,000,000.

Rain fell in the Brantford, Orangeville and Shelburne districts. But the moisture was only in scattered sections of the wide belt of rich farmland that has been withering.

In a number of counties, milk production is reported falling off.

In Perth, milk flow has dropped considerably since June 1 and growth of hay is at a standstill. Elgin county, bordering Lake Erie, reported milk production down 15 to 20 per cent.

In Lambton, recent frost has resulted in the heaviest losses of tomatoes and apples in years. In Middlesex county more than 75 per cent of tobacco, beans and tender garden crops appear to be ruined.

In Norfolk, Oxford and Welland counties, tomato crops have been 25-per-cent destroyed by heavy frost.

Alcock and Brown Flew Atlantic 30 Years Ago

Montreal, June 14 (CP).—Thirty years ago today John Alcock and Arthur Brown made the first direct trans-Atlantic flight, flying at 118 miles per hour. Today, to mark the anniversary of the historic achievement, a Trans-Canada Airlines North Star plane will leave Montreal for London.

The plane will touch down at Gander, Nfld.., and then fly over the route taken by the intrepid flyers to Shannon, Ireland, at a speed of over 236 miles per hour.

Sir John Alcock, and Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, pilot and navigator respectively of the twin-engine covered bomber, won a $40,000 prize offered by Lord Northcliffe.

The North Atlantic was not crossed again by air until 1927 when Charles Lindbergh made his solo flight.

WEST PROPOSES FOUR-POWER BODY FOR GERMANY

Would Strictly Define Supervision Functions

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

Paris, June 14 — (AP) — The Western Powers today proposed to Russia the formation of a four-power commission for Germany with strictly defined functions of supervision.

The council session recessed abruptly after the proposal was made, an hour after the meeting started. Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia and his delegation left the pink marble palace and the Western delegations stayed on.

But, Western officials said, it was no walkout. They said the day's preceedings had been extremely good humored.

A British spokesman said another session might be held tonight.

The ministers are reported nearing the end of their meetings here.

Economic experts of the four occupying powers in Berlin yesterday handed to the foreign ministers the east - west deadlock in the German capital. A western expert in Berlin said the report to Paris showed about 90 per cent agreement on small matters and 100 per cent disagreement on the important issues.

The foreign ministers council is scheduled today to take up two items discussed in a closed session Sunday night. According to well-informed circles, these items were:

1. Limited commercial accord for Germany which would promote east - west trade, fix an exchange rate for the west mark and the Soviet-zone mark, and assure western powers of transportation access to the city.

2. A treaty for Austria which would mean evacuation of occupation troops in the near future.

Under a tentative schedule, reported by officials in one delegation, the ministers will try to finish these two topics by Thursday night, then adjourn the present Paris talks until the next session of the council in New York sometime in September.

Well - informed sources said the Soviets virtually were agreed on an Australian settlement whereby they will obtain $150,000,000 in former German property within Austria. This would be marked as part of Russia's reaparations from Germany.

Poll Welcomes Any Investigation Says Director

Toronto, June 13 (CP) — The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion "would sincerely welcome any investigation as to its methods or sources of revenue," Wilfred Sanders, co-director, said today.

He was commenting on a statement made by George Drew in Ottawa, Monday that the Progressive Conservatives, if elected, would appoint a committee to investigate whose interests the Institute serves by conducting a poll on the outcome of the Dominion general election next June 27.

The polls' last report, issued June 11, showed the greater percentage of those questioned favored the Liberal Party.

"Any responsible person or group is more than welcome to examine any aspect of our work, including an analysis of our ballots or records," said Mr. Sanders. "We feel that such impartial inquiries only tend to increase public knowledge of the functions of opinion research — as well as its very definite limitation."

In 1948 the institute predicted a victory for Mr. Drew in the Ontario Elections as a result of a poll, and the accuracy was out only 1.8 per cent, Mr. Sanders said.

Electrical Storm Cause of Some Damage in City

Stewart-Warner-Alemite Plant Blacked Out for Time

A gasping earth drank deeply of a "million-dollar" rain that fell over the city and district last night. The downpour, heavy at times, was accompanied by an electrical storm that caused some damage in the city and outlying places.

A switch at the plant of the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Corporation was placed out of action when lightning struck it late in the evening. The plant was completely blacked out until nine o'clock this morning, when repairs were effected.

Two trees were struck near Plainfield resulting in a slight disruption of power service. Other interruptions were of a minor nature.

Worth "Dollar a Drop"

The "dollar-a-drop" rain as one grateful farmer dubbed it, ended a lengthy drought that lasted nearly three weeks. Severe damage has been caused to hay and other crops with some farmers forced to cut alfalfa before it was completely ruined.

Strawberries were badly affected by the continued dry weather and crops in some parts were stated to be only half of normal.

Strawberry growers stated today that last night's rain will help the crop which was rapidly drying up in some sections. Raspberries, not yet affected by the drought will receive a new lease on life.

Farmers from all parts of the district wore looks of relief today.

Sidney Farmer Pleased

Clem H. Ketcheson, well-known Sidney township farmer loked with appreciation at puddles of water that lay in the fields this morning. "It will do a tremendous lot of good," was his terse comment.

That was the general consensus.

Canadian Theme Will be Used At C.N.E. Show

Toronto, June 14 — (CP) — Col. K. R. Marshall, chairman of the Canadian National Exhibition, said Monday the finale of the Olsen and Johnson show at the C.N.E. grandstand this autumn will be a "Canadian theme" with as many Canadians included "as possible."

Speaking at a Board of Control meeting, he answered charges by Controller Allan Lamport that Canadian talent was being kept out of the C.N.E. show. He said the directors hope to stage an all-Canadian show but that "we don't think we have reached that point yet."

He said that Olsen and Johnson were signed last Jan. 4 in New York. They have an option to earn $130,000 in cash or 50 per cent of the gross receipts of evening performances. If receipts exceed $2550,000, the pair would take the 50 per cent option.

Forty Cloistered Nuns Will Vote

Toronto, June 14 — (CP) — Forty cloistered nuns of the Convent of the Good Shepherd here will vote for the first time in Toronto in the federal election June 2.

Mother Superior Jacqueline said Monday "we will go in small groups, a few of the Sisters in charge of a group of our girls."

In previous elections the convent priest has voted, but the Sisters haven't been put on the electoral list.

The two other cloistered convents in Toronto won't vote. Mother Superior Stanislaus of the Convent of the Precious Blood said "we never go out." Mother Superior Evelyn of the Convent of the Redemptorists expressed polite interest.

PICKETS FORCE NON-UNION MINES TO CLOSE DOWN

"Stabilization Holiday" Called by Lewis Will Continue a Week

Pittsburgh, June 14 — (AP) — Pickets today patrolled coal fields throughout the United States, forcing some non-union mines to close as the "stabilization holiday" entered the second day.

John L. Lewis ordered the walkout of the 480,000 soft and hard coal miners. He said it was in their interest.

Meantime, Lewis, with one contract session over, headed for another. His lieutenants are slated to resume negotiations today with southern bituminous mine operators at Bluefield, W. Va.

The bushy - browed chieftain of the powerful United Mine Workers Union met briefly yesterday in Philadelphia with United States Steel Corporation representatives.

To Meet June 22

Publicly nothing was announced. Lewis said only that he has agreed to meet again June 23 with Harry Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, coal-producing subsidiary of the steel firm.

Lewis, as usual, scowled, smiled, laughed and ignored reporters' questions. He declined to say anything except "Hello" and "Goodbye."

(The New York Times said today that Lewis and a vast segment of the northern coal industry are in agreement on creation of an industry "czar."

(The "czar," says the Times story, would aid in the "permanent stabilization" of the bituminous coal industry. It adds that the southern coal producers are "dead set against" the idea.

SAM DOMINICO WINS SUIT OF CLOTHES

Mr. Sam Domenico, 217 Dundas Street, was the lucky winner of the $60 suit of clothes drawn for Friday evening at the Commercial Softball League game between Corbys and Provincial Engineers.

The draw, sponsored by the Corbys softball team, was made by Parks Board Chairman, Harry Rollins, at the end of the seventh inning.

POSTPONE GAMES DUE TO CIRCUS

The Commercial Softball League doubleheader, originally scheduled for this evening at the Alemite Field has been postponed until a later date owing to the presence of the travelling circus on the grounds. Announcement of the playing of this doubleheader will appear in this paper.

J. K. (Crocker) WILLIAMS ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF EXCISE BRANCH

J. K. "Crocker" Williams, who some years ago performed brilliantly at the hot corner, when the C.N.R. Nationals were riding roughshod over baseball teams in the old C.O.B.L., has been appointed to a responsible post in the Excise duty branch of the government at Ottawa. He has been named as assistant director of Excise Duty and has taken up his new position in the capital.

Jack entered the Customs Excise at the Port of Belleville and after serving here for a short time was posted to Barcley's distillery at Niagara Falls as Chief Officer. He was afterwards moved to Waterloo in charge of Seagrams' Distillery. Later he was posted as Inspector and has held this position for some years. Mr. Williams, while in Belleville, married a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William J. Thompson.

LIBERAL WORKERS HOLD MEETING IN CLUBROOMS

Liberal workers from the various sections of the city, gathered at the clubrooms on lower Front Street last evening to work on lists and to hear addresses by William A. Fraser of Trenton and Lorne McDonald organizers for Eastern and Central Ontario. The candidate, Frank S. Follwell, addressed the workers and requested that they continue their good work until the last vote was polled on June 27th. Mr. Fraser told of the nomination meeting at Marmora in the afternoon, when he spoke on behalf of "Duke" Munroe, Liberal candidate in Hastings-Peterborough. Mr. McDonald explained to the workers how to perfect their organization. Ervine McCaughey, of Trenton brought greetings from the Liberal workers in that part of the riding.

Mrs. J. Watson Speaks on Guides To Rotary Club

"Guiding is scouting for girls," said Mrs. John Watson, District Commissioner for Girl Guides in an address to the Belleville Rotary Club held Monday noon at their regular weekly luncheon meeting.

"Through the guide's patrol system, girls are taught self-reliance, discipline, obedience, and kindness," the speaker said. "Hiking, woodcraft, and nature lore, develop the girls physically so that they become better citizens, better women, and better homemakers.

"Guiding has grown from a small group of girls in England to a vast sisterhood recognized and approved by all nations. The higher moral tone of the work affects every nation in which guiding is organized."

"Guide work needs God-fearing women, of high aims and ideals, who are able to give their ideals to children," the speaker continued.

Commissioner Watson outlined the growth of guide work in this city during the past few years and spoke of the expansion of the guiding program planned for the future.

The speaker was accompanied by Mrs. Oliver of Trenton, Division Commissioner of Guides.

The speaker was introduced by Arthur Francis and thanked by Al Davies.

Hundreds Attend Last Rites for Two Brothers

Hundreds of persons from many different walks of life bowed their heads in silent tribute yesterday afternoon as John and Glen Maxwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Maxwell, Donald and North Park Street, were borne to their last resting place.

The two young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell died early last Saturday morning when flames swept through their home. John gave his life in a futile attempt to save the life of his younger brother. The boys died of burns and suffocation, when they were trapped in the kitchen of their home.

Members of the Belleville Sea Cadets to which organization both Maxwell boys belonged, formed a guard of honor and marched beside the two caskets from the Belleville Burial Company funeral chapel to Christ Church where service was conducted by Rev. J. Grant Sparling.

Again at the Belleville Cemetery sea cadets formed a guard of honor as caskets of the two boys were lowered into their graves.

The bearers for John were Ordinary Seamen of the Cadets: Dallas Connolley, Carmichael, Blondin, Kouri and Locke.

The bearers for Glen were A/B Phillips, Chief Petty Officer Beatty, A/B Cooney, L/S Day, L/S Vanstone and L/S Kellaway.

YMCA Summer Fun Program Opens July 2nd

The Y.M.C.A. Summer Fun Program for Boys and Girls commences on July 2nd and will continues to August 13th according to an announcement made today by Lawrence Buck, Chairman of the Boys' Work Committee of the Y.M.C.A. This program is available to girls and boys of ten years and over and consists of such activities as swimming, crafts, hikes, picnics, games, softball leagues.

The program will be under the direction of Drummond C. McDonald, boys' and young adult secretary of the Y.M.C.A. with the assistance of able leaders.

During the past few days information folders and application forms have been distributed to the children through the mail and at the schools. No effort will be spared to make the program available to every girl and boy that will be spending the summer in Belleville. Parents would be well advised to see that their children make use of this splendid summer program where leisure time will be spent to the best advantage.

Yard Foreman, George Storms, Instantly Killed

Yard foreman with the Canadian National Railways, George Storms, 42, living at 67 North Front Street, was believed instantly killed early this morning while engaged at switching cars in the C.N.R. yards.

Foreman over a yard switching crew, Mr. Storms was riding a car out of a siding when it is believed his head struck another car on the next siding. He received severe head injury and was knocked to the ground where he was found a few minutes later and carried to the yard office. The accident occurred a few minutes after four o'clock.

Mr. Storms was a married man with a family and moved recently from South George Street to North Front Street.

Coroner Dr. R. W. Tennent ordered an inquest the preliminary hearing being held at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home at noon today. Jurors empanelled by County Constable Thomas Thorne were John Baker, Lorne Stark, William Shaw, Bob Chadwick and Thos. Tucker.

Five Inebriates Sent to Jail, Woman Remanded

The hot weather may have had something to do with it but inebriates were really out in force last evening with a half dozen or more persons being apprehended for imbibing too frequently and too well.

Appearing in city magistrate's court today five of the drunks were given time in jail, while a Picton woman arrested for being drunk was remanded until Friday. The woman was picked up early this morning in the Coleman Street district and charged with drunkenness.

Another woman residing in the West Hill district was reported walking up Bridge Street West hill in a "semi-nude" condition and singing lustily. Police said the woman was wearing a brief sunsuit with bare midriff. She was permitted to proceed to her home.

Peterborough Boy Found Here Near Circus

The time honored story of the boy who ran away from home to join the circus was repeated in Peterborough yesterday when a woman from that city called the city police informing them that her son, Cecil LaFrance, aged 15, had disappeared from his home.

The woman told police it was quite possible her son had come to Belleville with the Robbins Bros. circus which is now in the city.

True enough, when police checked the circus the wanted lad was in the neighborhood and he was brought to the police station to await transportation back to Peterborough.

GEORGE H. STORMS

George H. Storms, 67 North Front Street, who died as the result of an accident in the Canadian National yards early Tuesday morning, was in his 46th year and was born at Guelph, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Storms. He was yard foreman with the Canadian National Railways here and had resided in this city for 23 years. At one time he lived in Kingston. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church and fraternally he was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Gladys McBride; one son, George A. Storms, at home; three sisters, Mrs. A. Shipway, Toronto; Mrs. C. Chase, Lindsay and Mrs. G. Wilkinson, Kingston; one brother, C. Storms, Kingston.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Born at Read in Tyendinaga township, the late Mrs. McGrath was in her 86th year and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Golden. For many years she lived at Ernsville and for the past eighteen years she made her home in this city. She was a member of St. Michael's Church and also a member of the Catholic Woman's League.

Surviving her are four daughters, Mrs. W. J. Whalen, Stoco; Mrs. Frank Naphin, Hallville; Mrs. Harold Goodfellow, Corbyville and Miss Nettie McGrath, at home one son, Daniel McGrath, Langsburg, Mich.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Canon W. Kidd Heads B. of Q. Clerical Union

The Spring meeting of what is claimed to be the oldest Clerical Society in the British Empire, the Bay of Quinte Clerical Union was held at St. John's Church, Point Anne, in the Parish of Shannonville. Holy Communion was celebrated by the Archdeacon of Ontario, the Ven. F. Arthur Smith, assisted by the Rev. H. C. Secker. The Rector of the Parish, the Rev. Ernest Caldwell presided at the organ.

Sixteen members of the Union were taken on an extended tour of the Canada Cement Plant, which proved to be an interesting experience.

At the business meeting, the election of officers took place. The Rev. Canon W. Kidd was elected as president, and the Rev. H. C. Secker as secretary-treasurer by acclamation.

Papers Read

Rev. C. P. Heaven read a paper on "The Christian Doctrine of Man" based on the Lambeth Report of 1948. This was a scholarly and inspiring paper showing the importance of a true understanding of man's nature and destiny as revealed by God in Jesus Christ. This doctrine affirms that man has a spiritual as well as a material nature, and that he can attain full stature only as he recognizes and yields to the love of God as revealed in Jesus Christ and to the influence of His Holy Spirit.

A paper was read by the Rev. H. C. Secker on the History of the Union. It began as the Midland Clerical Society in 1837, and the new Constitution as the Bay of Quinte Clerical Union was made up in 1879. It used to meet four times a year, each lasting two days. Meetings have been held continuously each year since 1879 and many noted theologians have addressed the brethren on matters pertaining to their calling.

A period of discussion and comment was held following the papers. The secretary was instructed to send letters of congratulation and best wishes to His Grace the Archbishop of Ontario, on his enthronement as Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical province of Ontario. Also to the Rev. Harvey Scuse who has resigned the Curacy of the Cathedral to become Rector of the Parish of Cannington in the Diocese of Toronto.

Refreshments were served later by the ladies of the Shannonville congregation. Rev. F. Beazer of Roslin entertained those present with a solo "The Holy City" accompanied by the Rev. E. Caldwell on the piano.

The Fall meeting will be held at the Rectory in Deseronto.

Urges all Voters To Use Franchise

Residents of Thurlow township and Hillcrest attended a Liberal meeting in the interests of Frank S. Follwell, at Hillcrest School last Friday evening. The meeting was also addressed by George Jordan, president of South Hastings Liberal Association.

Mr. Follwell, in his address, stressed the need that every eligible voter sees to it that they register their franchise on election day. He urged that if the voter wanted to protect family allowances, increased old age pensions, progressive labor legislation and the new health plans, he should support the government now in power.

At the conclusion of the meeting the assembly enjoyed a dance and a lunch served by the women of the community.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 14 (CP) — Industrials continued Monday's declines but at a considerably slower pace in dull dealings today. Golds were lower. Base metals staged a mild recovery to climb into the gain column. Western oils were at a standstill.

At the opening in the industrial list some support entered and a few issues tended to tighten. Some early losses were wiped out in the frantically moving list. Minnesota and Ontario Paper was the widest loser dipping 2 points at 12½. The industrial group continued to sell at the lowest price level since March 1948.

In base metals, early prices pulled the group to the lowest level since October 1946 but gains began to appear in Consolidated Smelters, Sherritt Gordon, International Nickel and Noranda as the session progressed.

Junior gold producers weakened slightly as activity slackened.

Calgary and Edmonton dipped 15 cents at $3.85 in western oils while Royalite added five cents at $6.15.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, June 14 (CP) — Cattle moved slowly on the local livestock market today at prices $1.25-$1.50 lower on steers and yearlings and $2 lower on cows and bulls. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 520; calves, 400; hogs, 410; sheep and lambs, 270. The holdover from Monday was 6,200 head.

Good to choice steers were $21-$22 and medium to good light steers, $20-$21. Good heifers brought $20-$20.50. Medium to good cows sold for $15-$15.60. Canners and cutters were $10-$13 Good bulls sold for $18-$18.75 with plain bringing down to $16.

The calf market was weak with choice vealers selling at $22-$25 with a few tops at $26. Plain to medium vealers sold for $17-$22. Grassers for slaughter were $13-$15.

Hog prices were still unsettled today with bids lower.

Spring lambs sold $1 lower at $28-$29 for choice. Good light sheep were $11-$13.

Napanee Edges Electrics 8-7 In Close Game

Napanee, 1948 Belleville District Baseball League champions were extended to the limit on their home grounds last night when the Northern Electric team were nosed out in a close 8-7 baseball game.

Northern went into a three-run lead in the fourth after both teams had battled scorelessly to this point. The runs resulted from doubles by Bobby Bunton and Carson and two singles from the bats of Donovan and James.

Napanee got one run back in their half of the fifth when Burtt doubled Hayes home. The planters came back with a single in their half of the innings but the homesters fired home three runs to draw up on even terms.

Napanee exploded with a six-hit barrage in the seventh that accounted for four runs and the ball game. Northern came back strong to score a single in the seventh and a pair in the eighth but their effort was just short of the tying run.

"Chuck" Barriage started on the mound for Northern and went well until the sixth, when he was replaced by Lefty Weeks. McTaggart toiled for the homesters until the eighth when Ed. Hooper was rushed to his relief to quell the threatened Northern rally.

Carson got three hits for Northern on a double. Wardhaugh, Bunton and Barrett each got a pair with Vance, mulvihill, Donovan and Barriage accounting for the remainder.

Burtt and Hayes clipped out three hits each for Napanee with the former getting a triple and a double. The Green brothers each got a pair as did McTaggart with Gerow lining out a single.

The teams:

Napanee—V. Green 2b., B. Green ss; Gerow 1b.; Jocko 3b; Murphy rf; Burtt cf; Curry lf; Hayes c; McTaggart p;; Hooper p.

Northern Electric—Wardhaugh 3b; Vance rf: Mulvihill 2b; Carson ss; Bunton 1b; Barrett cf; ames c;; Barriage p; Weeks p.

Saucer Broken In Ceremony

North Bay, June 14 — (CP)—A broken saucer made Loo Young, a North Bay restaurant employee, a Canadian citizen in court Monday.

Young, in applying for citizenship, could not take an oath on the Bible since he was not a Christian. Instead he took his oath by breaking a saucer while kneeling. According to Confucian traditions his action proved that if he broke his word his soul would shatter like the saucer.

His application was approved after a lawyer had provided the breakable saucer.

U.E.L. Memorial Service June 19 At Adolphustown

The 165th anniversary of the landing of the Loyalists on the shores of the Bay of Quinte at Adolphustown will be observed this year on June 19th., at 2.30 p.m., The preacher will be the Rev. Minto Swan of Portsmouth. The Cathedral choir under the direction of Mr. George Maybee will supply the music. This choir is one of the best in Ontario and the singing of the boys especially, is exceptional.

The service this year coincides with the anniversary of the printing of the Book of Common Prayer in English in 1549. Thus for four hundreds years this heritage of devotion and praise has been used by the Anglican church throughout the world and is the basis for many books of worship in the non-Anglican churches.

Prayer Book Carried

When the small party of Loyalists landed in 1784 it may be asumed some had the prayer book with them. When the Rev. John Langhorn held services in Squire Hagerman's home here in 1787 it was the Book of Common prayer that was used. When the first Anglican church was built here in 1822 the Prayer Book would be in the hands of most of the worshippers.

This old church, now used as a hall, was built by Lazarus Gilbert a member of the Methodist communion. In those days the church wardens were members of the Town Council. One was elected by the rector and one by the people. Mr. Gilbert was elected to that office in 1823.

Church Build in 1884

In 1884 the new church of St. Alban the Martyr was built under the direction of Canon Forneri, as a national memorial. The cornerstone was laid by His Honor J. B. Robinson, lieutenant-governor. The church was opened in 1888 and consecrated by Bishop Lewis in 1900. The names of the Loyalists whose relatives helped to build the church are set out on plaques around the inside walls of the building.

The old Communion vessels, Canon Forneri's private communion set, and an old Prayer Book given to the first baby to be christened in the new church, together with a large Prayer Book in which there is the service of thanksgiving for the discovery of the Gunpowder plot are on display, The Bristol bell made in 1690 is mounted on the lawn, and is the second oldest church bell in Upper Canada.

Visitors to this service are assured of an inspiring afternoon. Everyone is welcome. While here they can see the first Methodist church at Hay Bay built in 1792. This building is still used once a year. It was restored some time ago, to its original setting under the direction of Dr. Wilson of the Napanee Beaver and editor of the United Church Observer. It, with other historic relics is a reminder of the old days when the Loyalists worked and served faithfully as loyal members of the Christian church.

Point Anne Bests Trenton Tennis Club

The Point Anne entry in the Bay of Quinte Tennis League defeated the Trenton Tennis Club four matches to one in week-end play. With warm weather predominating, some fine play was seen and close scores resulting. The ladies' doubles resulted in a very close finish with Trenton just managing to win in two long sets. Two other events went to three sets before decisions were reached.

Men's doubles—Gord Huck and Jack Hart, Point Anne defeated Gord Ackerman and Bob Sager, Trenton, 6-4, 6-2; Thorold Horwood and A. Fraser, Point Anne defeated Hank Fillion and Gerry Ireland, Trenton, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

Mixed doubles.— Hilda Finlan and Ken Haines, Point Anne defeated Pat Macdonald and Harold Moon, Trenton 6-4 7-5; Donaldson Everett and Perry Everett, Point Anne defeated Betty Garbutt and Neil Haffey, Trenton, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Ladies' doubles—Freda McDonald and Gertie Gainsforth, Trenton defeated Gwen Bennett and Iona Carter, Point Anne, 8-6, 7-5.

Postmistress Too Curious, Fined, Dismissed

Steeple Ashton, Wiltshire, England, June 14 (AP) —What was in the letters the vicar wrote to the young ladies?

Postmistress Mary Tye had an itch to know.

She was fined £100 ($400) yesterday for opening letters to find out —and now there's a new postmistress.

"I was curious," she told the local court. But she said she never told anybody what she found out.

Col. J. F. E. Pye, chairman of the court, told Mrs. Tye: "The whole fabric of this village's life might have been undermined by your action."

Women Called Upon to Take Greater Interest in Politics In Address by Mrs. Funston

Mrs. O. T. Funston

Addresses gathering of women in the interest of the Progressive Conservative Party in this city.

An informal gathering and delightful afternoon tea was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Elizabeth Corbett, 33 Queen Street, when the local women, members and friends interested in the Progressive Conservative party met to welcome the speaker of the evening, Mrs. O. T. Funston member of the speakers' panel of the women's committee, Progressive Conservatives, press convener of the Toronto Central Progressive Association, and member of the Society for Crippled Civilians.

Mrs. Funston was born in Toronto, and educated there, and a thorough Torontonian. She is the mother of two sons, John, at Halifax, and Roy in Toronto, both of whom served their country in the last war, overseas. Her charming personality, and softly modulated speaking voice won the listening ear of the many ladies inside the house, as well as those assembled on the verandah seeking relief from the intense heat, as she outlined very briefly somewhat of her talk for the evening in the Provincial and Dominion relationship question, comprsing woman's obligation to the state, and the important part she must play from now on.

Three-Fold Obligation

"Woman's obligation politically" said Mrs. Funston, "is a three-fold obligation, taking in the home, the state, and prosperity. Women today are playing a greater part in politics than ever before. There is no change or tendency in living that does not effect them. Their obligation begins in the home, and bears out the old Spartan proverb that early childhood moulds character for later years—the first seven years are the formative years. It is woman's prerogative to take care of some of the causes of evil, and to wipe out these causes. All things that effect the state effect the family."

As an illustration of this in reverse, Mrs. Funston told the story of how an English father and his son were visiting in Scotland, and while there the English lad was nearly drowned while swimming, but was rescued by the Scotch lad.

The English father wishing to show his appreciation to the lad who had saved his boy's life, asked what the Scotch lad wanted most. To which the Scotch father replied: "He would like to be a doctor, but there is no money for his education." On hearing this desire, the English lad's father offered to pay for the needed education, which was gratefully accepted. Today, from that life saving act and generous gratefulness, two outstanding men have made their imprint on the world. The lad whose life was saved, was none other than Winston Churchill, and the lad who saved his life, Sir Archibald Flemming, the renowned Scottish doctor who discovered penicillin. Twice he has saved Winston Churchill's life, the last time being when he flew with the needed drug to Churchill's bedside when he was so ill.

Must Take Active Part

Mrs. Funston's closing remarks were: "Women must get into politics today, for in their hands is the influence for justice and for peace." She later added when asked by the press as to the reaction of men toward women in politics, that as far as she had discerned they were favorable, especially in Toronto, so, she continued, "quoting Nancy Astor, "Women must make the world safe for men."

The ladies were privileged to have as their guests, the Progressive Conservative candidate, Mr. Richard D. Arnott, also Mr. J. E. Shortt of the local Y.M.C.A.

Following the short address refreshments were served from a table attractive with its Maderia linen cloth centered with a crystal bowl of red roses and maiden hair fern, flanked with crystal candelabra with pink candles, and graced with the silver tea service and one dozen sterling silver coffee spoons which had belonged to the late Mrs E. McCarthy, daughter of Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

Those Who Assisted

Presiding at the table during the first hour were::::: Mrs. R. Arnott and Mrs. E. Sandercock, and during the last portion, Mrs. J. W. Kinnear and Mrs. D. W. Adams.

Those who served and those who replenished were: Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. E. Sinden, Mrs. E. Denyes, Mrs. A. Lloyd, Mrs. B. Warren, Mrs. John Mitchell, Mrs. J. Nevery, Mrs M. Tugnett. Mrs. H. Lee, Mrs. F. Symonds, Miss L. Warren, Miss H. Sulman, Mrs. F. Countryman, Mrs. E. Martin, Mrs C. Ostrom, Mrs. Ross Bateman and Mrs. H. Taylor.

Those who received the guests at the door, Mrs. C. Hyde, Mrs. H. Rollins and Mrs. M. B. Weese and the treasurer, Mrs. Young.

Community Centre To be Established At Wallbridge

Without a satisfactory public meeting place since 1941 when the Sidney township hall was destroyed by fire, the village of Wallbridge and surrounding community is soon to have a new recreational centre.

The new centre will have facilities for dancing, including an auditorium for holding of summer theatricals, while the grounds will be available for softball, tennis, garden parties and picnics. Basketball and roller skating are also planned for the centre proper.

Although the project was commenced by private interests the community centre idea now has caught on at Wallbridge and as the result of considerable hard work and planning the grounds are now taking shape. The official opening of the centre is expected to take place around July 1st.

Large Barn Donated

Locale of the new community centre is right in the village of Wallbridge, the large frame barn owned by George M. Ketcheson on the former Holly Wright farm having been donated as the centre. The building will be completely renovated with modern dance floor, stage facilities and canteen conveniences. The auditorium will be 35 by 60 feet with a T-shaped addition measuring 24 by 34 to be used as stage and dressing room space.

This week a contracting firm went to work to put in the dance floor, which will be of edge-grained spruce, while the grounds consisting of approximately four acres will be put into shape by volunteer effort. Work on the building with the exception of laying the dance floor and other major alterations will also be done by volunteer work.

Will Name Centre

Mainsprings behind the new recreational centre project are members of the "Night Hawk Recreation Club" and the community project will be known as the Night Hawk Recreational Centre.

Honorary president of the club is Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, clerk of Sidney township; Douglas McPherson, Sidney township, is president and Ross Hermiston, vice-president; secretary-treasurer is George M. Ketcheson, and directors Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, John Rose, Richard McLachlan, Garnet Thain and Douglas R. Ketcheson.

Members of the recreation club are financing the community centre project without assistance of municipal or government grants. When completed the entire community centre, including the building will be used by church and the Women's Institute free of charge. Other organizations will be expected to pay a nominal fee for the use of the building, but will be free to use the grounds for picnics, garden parties and other events.

Time to do Something

"I've been living around Wallbridge all my life and feel it's about time to do something for the community," stated Mr. Ketcheson as he outlined the aims and objects of the community centre. He said efforts would be made to retain a rustic effect for the building. The grounds will be well lighted for night events, including flood lighted clay tennis courts.

District residents are rallying to the assistance of the recreational club in getting the centre into shape while others are donating equipment. One of the donations thus far received is a piano for use at the centre, presented by Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Smith, of Wallbridge.

Kiwanis Juniors And Point Anne Play 5-all Tie

Had mother nature held off for another five minutes last night Point Anne might have been put into the win column in the record books. The game under the lights at the Fair Grounds between Point Anne and the Kiwanis Juniors was called because of rain in the ninth inning with the score tied 5-5.

Kiwanis were in a tight spot in the top of the ninth. The sacks were loaded, one man down and hard-hitting Sero up to bat. Then came the rain and the ball game was called. Up to that point it had been a good ball game with both Nolan of Kiwanis and Loft of Point Anne doing some fine work on the mound.

Joe Nolan handled six strikeouts, while giving up nine hits and walking two. Loft was able to manage five strikeouts, giving up ten hits and walking only one. Bush and Soules were the only heavy hitters for Kiwanis with Bush rattling of three singles and Soules hitting a triple and a single. It was Bush's night for hitting but it was also his bad night, when he committed three errors at second base. Galbraith pulled two bobbles at short stop and Soules and Dolan each chalked up one for a total of seven.

Mallory was hitting the best for Point Anne with a hard hit triple, while Sero and Strahan each made a hit that was good for three bases. Elliott was the only other hitter with two safeties to his credit. Loft held the Juniors hitless for the first two innings and at one time in the seventh inning the Kiwanis squad took a one-run lead only to have it reduced in the eighth.

Point Anne 010 300 01—5 10 7

District Members Speak in Interest Of PC Candidate

District party members speaking in the interests of R. D. Arnott, K.C., Progressive Conservative member for Hastings South, addressed a political rally at Point Anne Monday evening. Chairman of the evening was B. Charlton of Point Anne.

Campaign manager for Mr. Arnott, Mr. W. Harry Rollins, opened the meeting with a few potent remarks, following which a number of local speakers were heard, including Mr. Oliver LaRocque, Point Anne, a French Canadian.

Dr. Austin Walters, Belleville, stressed the lack of responsibile government by the Liberal party and charged recent increased old age pensions as but an election bribe. He warned electors not to be fooled by the promise that the rich would pay for proposed health measures.

Alderman Don Thomas compared a political party to a ball team which, he said, must have a coach or manager for success. He stressed the leadership qualities of George Drew and called for the development of Canada's natural resources.

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings East, pointed to George Drew's record as a legislature in the Ontario Government and warned electors of the dangers of Communist infiltration into the ranks of the C.C.F party.

Call For Strong Unionism

Jack Haig, Belleville stated that the Progressive Conservative party called for strong trade unions but warned of the dangers of attempting to serve two masters. He stressed that a man could not be a good trade unionist and also a good legislator.

Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings South, R. D. Arnott, K.C., reviewed the party platform and stressed the need of organization.

He spoke forcefully of the leadership qualities of party leader George Drew and laughingly referred to the comment that he and Drew could not get along. "George Drew," he said, "was the kind of leader who did not want a lot of "yes" men as parliament members but preferred each member to think for himself."

Termed "Shrewd"

The weakness of the old age pension scheme were outlined by the speaker who termed as "shrewdness" the timing of old age pensions and mothers' allowances by the Liberal party for Newfoundland just a few weeks prior to election.

He pointed to the results of the recent provincial election in Nova Scotia as being encouraging for his party and predicted a big Progressive Conservative following in that province on June 27.

In conclusion Mr. Arnott called for a strong note of Canadian unity in the next parliament and stated that George Drew as leader of the Progressive Conservative party would bring about much needed unity in the Dominion.

Capitalism Failed Canada in 1930's Says Coldwell

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Victoria, B. C., June 14 (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, said last night that capitalism failed Canada in the 1930s and only a combination of democracy and socialism can avert another depression in the Dominion.

Addressing a political meeting, he said the C. C. F., believing in democratic socialism and opposing both monopoly capitalism and totalitarian communism, is in line with "several other nations of the Commonwealth — Britain, New Zealand and Australia."

"These three countries all have governments which are fully committed to democratic socialism, and they are . . . giving vigorous leadership to the world in its effort to find an economic system which is just, and to combine such a system with real political freedom."

Mr. Coldwell said that under a C. C. F. government Canada would "get in step" politically with other nations of the Commonwealth and "bring a better day for all Canadians." He spoke on behalf of C. C. F. candidates in both the June 15 British Columbia election and the June 27 federal vote.

The leader contended that under either the Liberals or the Progressive Conservatives Canada's economy is bound to "slip backwards" in the next four years.

PRIME MINISTER URGES SUPPORT LIBERAL PARTY

Opens First Full Day's Campaign Since Suffering Attack of Laryngitis

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, June 14. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent last night urged voters to support official Liberals in constituencies where there are both official and unofficial Liberal contestants.

Mr. St. Laurent, speaking at Farnham in Brome-Missisiquoi, noted "divisions" had occurred in neighboring constituencies in Liberal ranks. Urging everyone to vote for the official candidates, he said "any other vote. . . will serve the cause of our opponents."

Calling for support for the Liberal administration June 27, Mr. St. Laurent said the voters have only two alternatives—abstain from voting or support the Progressive Conservatives because neither the C.C.F. nor the Social Credit Party would be able to form a government.

He said the Progressive Conservatives had made "rather fantastic accusations" during the campaign but offered no "real policy" other than devaluation of the Canadian dollar which would automatically increase the price of the many imports Canadians need.

The government was accused of showing "Socialist tendencies" though it had enacted "social" rather than "socialist" measures, said the Prime Minister.

The Liberals rejected any overall policy of nationalization. Canadian National Railways, Trans-Canada Airlines and the CBS were being developed as national enterprises because they "really belong to the Canadian people".

TRAGEDY AND HEROISM

Fire is one of the most terrifying of spectacles and masters, especially when it is consuming the work of years and endangering the lives of human beings. When it strikes a home, it is a heavy loss and when it also claims some of the inmates it is stark tragedy. The other morning a fire which struck at the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Maxwell of N. Park and Donald Streets not only swept away the home but claimed the lives of two sons, the rest of the family being fortunate enough to escape with their lives.

In this deep tragedy is seen the gallant, self-sacrificing effort of nineteen-year-old John, who lost his life in a vain attempt to rescue his thirteen-year-old brother. In the anguish which the parents feel in the infinite loss they have suffered in the death of their two boys, there is this consolation which emerges from the lurid scene that John died trying to save a brother, than which no deed could be nobler. Once again this time a youth has proved the dignity of human nature which exists in all classes and in all ages of life. His deed will be a memory which will not fade and it is a consolation that helps to assuage the pangs of parting such a tragedy brings.

There is in humanity an instinctive dread of uncontrolled fire. Through man's long residence upon earth, he has had many an opportunity to understand the havoc which fire creates. Yet men and women will brave the dangers of fire and gladly give themselves if only they can save others. In the twinkling of an eye fire when it gains a start may destroy the possessions gathered through a lifetime of toil and so often the family that has blest the home is called upon to suffer loss of dear ones.

This tragedy at the north side of the city has stirred the hearts of the people here and elsewhere. To the family the sympathy and prayers of many go that they may be comforted in their loss in this dark hour of their lives.

EXAMPLES OF DEMOCRACY

Denmark, one of the smaller nations, is yet one of the jewels of democracy. The democratic nations give a high place to the European kingdom for the loyalty it has shown to principles of democracy.

Today it is not difficult to know where Denmark stands on the true issues, she is with the freedom-loving nations. During the Second World War she took the true way, though it brought her suffering and occupation but in the end it meant she was free and had remained loyal to the principles of the democratic peoples.

Denmark is one of the nations which piles up a big vote in elections. Her people know what liberty means and they exercise their franchise to a unique extent. In the 1947 election nearly 86 per cent of her voters cast their ballots—a record for other democracies to aim at.

Now Denmark is standing with the Atlantic nations for security.

Her record is one of the stars in the crown of democracy.

AIR TOURS

Overseas visitors to Britain this year are going to have an opportunity of seeing a good bit of the country. Special arrangements are being made for those whose stay will be limited. They will be able to pay what are literally flying visits to places of scenic beauty and historic interest. Every week from the middle of June until late September there will be a regular program of air tours of Britain. They are organized by a London travel firm in conjunction with a private air company.

The aim is to give the visitor the greatest amount of sightseeing that can be provided without undue fatigue in the shortest space of time. There are four tours, each covering a different part of the country.

Britain as it is today and as it is from the standpoint of historic interest has charms all its own. Its history and traditions are known about the world and people going to Britain have a good idea of what they desire to see and enjoy. So rich is the country in its historic aspect that time is all too short to go everywhere, so such a tour as one of these must have advantages which everyone can appreciate, for there is not only the immediate present of the time of visiting the scenes here and there but there is the retrospect which means so much as visitors of a summer past can mull over memories of historic and scenic Britain.

The man who is deserving the name is the one whose thoughts and exertions are for others rather than for himself.—Sir Walter Scott.

PRAISE

I've heard men praised for many traits, for strength, for wit, for fame,
For willingness to serve a cause, for deeds that all acclaim;
But at a table where I sat this compliment I heard:
"I didn't ask him for his note.
I merely took his word."

The fulsome speech of flattery sincerity may lack,
But man I sjudged by what of

And there's no higher praise than this, for it is honest stuff:
"I didn't ask him for his note.
His word was good
good enough!"

A promise made, a promise kept! My boy, throughout life's span
Remembering nothing better can be said of any man.
"He came to me when needing aid; uphill his path and rough.
I didn't ask him for his note.
His word was good

Mr. F. M. Clarke was in Cobourg yesterday on business.

Mr. W. Watts of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, is renewing acquaintances in town.

Mr. W. Kerr of West Huntingdon has left for Rosenfeldt, Manitoba.

Mr. H. C. Hunt is spending a few days in Toronto and Guelph.

Mr. E. W. Horne of the Bank of Commerce staff has left to spend his vacation in Stratford.

Strength for the Day

START EARLY

The gardener is digging away at the flower beds, "Why so early?" I asked; "this means an added hoeing for the summer." "Yes," he replied, "an added hoeing now but about half a much time spent on the beds later because we got the weeds early. The only way to handle the weed problem is never let them get started.

Quite a parable on many aspects of life. The way to handle bad habits is not to let them get started. The way to stop worrying is never to start worrying. The way to live a life of calm is never to allow one's self to get into those uncontrolled habits of excitement and anger which after they have had their way with us for a few decades can scarcely be broken.

Alcoholism is a disease, but it is a disease which can be cured at the source; don't start drinking. The embezzler probably started as a child to pocket some of the change when his mother sent him to make a few purchases at the grocery store. The boy or girl who daydreams in high school fails entrance examinations or college examinations later.

Every evil can be stopped at its source if we will exercise a little control in time. The way to handle the weed problem is not to let the weeds get started.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

CONTROL AND CONFIDENCE

All other things being equal, control and confidence are what make great baseball pitchers. I have watched them time and again, and where these gifts are lacking, anything can happen. But these two things cannot be confined to baseball. In nearly every game these two are what make the champions.

Every successful man as well can point to these two qualities as ruling ones. Many a one has started a career, with many an up and down, where control of oneself has been highly important. Many a one has been stampeded, lost control, and with it his confidence. On the other hand, many another has refused to yield, kept his self-control and banked on his confidence in rule the world.

Life's great game, more than any other game calls for both control and confidence. The importance of mind control cannot to be overestimated for when you do have it, you have confidence as well. It is essential that you have faith in yourself and in the God who gave you life. No matter how grave the emergency, keep every faculty of your being under control and this will give you confidence in your ability to win your objective, no matter what it may be.

There are more seeds planted in the human heart than any of us suspects. But no matter how rich the soil may be there, it must be watered, else, that garden in your heart gets a fresh growth-giving shower. It's just like the pat on the back that the baseball when he gets in trouble. It revives his control and confidence.

It is easy to have control and confidence when everything runs smoothly. It's when the tight places arrive that we need extra will, faith—and perhaps an extra understanding friend, to help us weather the storm. If at such times we get hold of ourselves, and help ourselves, God and everyone else about us will flock to our standard!

Mackenzie's Column

Hoover Takes Vigorous Dig At "New Era"

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

That was a bold and challenging speech which former President Herbert Hoover made at Ohio Wesleyan University during the weekend when he took a vigorous dig at the brand of "new era" thinking which substitutes security for self-reliance.

There are few corners of the world where the topic isn't being discussed and in many cases experimented with. Even John Bull, who through the generation stood for solid conservation, now is up to his neck in socialism.

Hoover said that while "security" eliminates the risks of life, it "also kills the joy that lies in competition, is individual adventure, new undertakings and new achievements. These contain moral and intellectual impulses more vital than even profits, for from them alone comes national progress."

This is from a man whose life is a romance of American success. He was orphaned at 10 and was self-supporting by 15. He rose to the top as a mining-engineer. Fame came to him for his relief administration work in Europe during World War One, and finally he was elected to the presidency. It is recorded that Hoover gave every dollar from his public salaries to help the needy.

"At all times in history there have been many who sought escape into 'security' from self-reliance," he said. "And, if you will look over the workings of these newest eras throughout the world, you may notice that the judgment of the Lord on Adam has not been entirely reserved, even by the Supreme Court of the United States.

"Moreover, governments have not been able to fix the wages of sin. Nor have they found a substitute for profit and other personal stimulants."

Appropriate Reading

Do you remember what the Lord said to Adam? It went like this:

"Because thou has hearkened onto the voice of thy wife, and has eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life;

"Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field;

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."

AN INSULT TO CANADA

Vancouver, June 14 (CP)—Singing of the "Red Flag" at a C.C.F. election rally here Saturday was "an insult to Canada and to British Columbia," Attorney-General Gordon Wismer said Monday.

"I am ashamed of any body of people who will sing the 'Internationale' at a public meeting," Mr. Wismer told an election meeting.

But the C.C.F. Provincial President, Mrs. Dorothy G. Steeves, said the playing of the "Red Flag" was not authorized by the C.C.F. She said an "irresponsible employee of the auditorium told the organist to play it."

She said the song is the British Labor Party song and "has been sung in Britain for more than 40 years—even at the opening of the House of Commons."

TALKATIVE TREES

Poplars are called the "whispering trees" because one leaf hitting against another makes a whispering sound.

851 CANDIDATES

The Social Credit party itself has 27 candidates in the running. Seventeen are in Alberta, with four each in Ontario and Saskatchewan and two in British Columbia.

The Communist Labor - Progressive party spread its 19 candidates thinly across the country, with the largest number — seven — in Ontario.

The remaining 61 candidates were divided among minor groups, Forty of them are seeking victory in Quebec constituencies.

Standing of parties in the Commons at dissolution April 30 was: Liberal, 125; Progressive Conservatives, 69; C. C. F., 32; Social Credit, 12; others, six. There was one vacancy.

A country - wide compilation by The Canadian Press showed Ontario with the largest number of candidates — 267 — taking from Quebec its traditional lead in the number of candidates in the field. Ontario has 83 seats, Quebec 73.

Six Women Entered

Ontario's total included 83 Liberals, 83 Progressive Conservatives, 76 C. C. F., seven Labor-Progressives, four Social Credit, four Union of Electors and ten others. Six of the Ontario contestants were women.

Quebec entered 255 candidates, made up of 73 Liberals, 68 Progressive Conservatives, 50 Union of Electors, 20 C. C. F., three Labor - Progressive and 41 otners. The "others" in Quebec included a "Republican" candidate, a "Liberal-Labor" candidate and one going under the banner of "social justice."

Newfoundland, entering the federal political arena for the first time, found itself with 15 candidates seeking seven seats—seven Liberals, seven Progressive Conservatives and one C.C.F.

Face Two Opponents

Prime Minister St. Laurent, in Quebec East, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, in Carleton, Ont., and M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, in Rosetown-Biggar, Sask., each faced two opponents. Solon Low, Social Credit leader, had three opponents in Peace River, Alta.

All members of the federal cabinet were nominated.

Former Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who has been in every election for more than a quarter - century, also was misisng from the line-up. He made it clear when he gave up the prime ministership last November that he would not contest another election.

In Quebec, chubby, out-spoken Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal put himself in the running as an Independent in Montreal Papineau. Adrien Arcand, leader of the pre-war fascist National Unity party, took out nomination papers in Richelieu - Vercheres as a National Unity candidate.

BAR ROBIN HOODS

Victoria, B.C. (CP)—Hunting of any game with bow and arrow in British Columbia now is prohibited by law. The 1949 game regulations include a new section making it unlawful for modern Robin Hoods to practise on game of the province.

ITCHY FEET

Prince Albert, Sask. (CP) — Mylee Charles, 10-year-old Indian boy, was missing one morning recently from the Prince Albert Sanatorium. He was finally discovered hot-footing it down the road, clad only in a white nightshirt and heading for home 100 miles away.

EXECUTIVE DIES

Toronto, June 14 — (CP)—G. Fay Davies, 53, vice - president and member of the executive committee of the National Life Assurance Company, died here Monday after a long illness.

WHAT ARE YOU AFRAID OF?

The opening paragraph of a recent book, by a novelist who seems to have become an expert on heart disease by reason of having had a "heart attack" himself, contains the phrase "most deadly"—and yet the book, according to the publisher's blurb on the jacket, "is full of practical advice and help for heart sufferers, their families and their friends." The book is 154 pages long; at $2.50 the copy...

Perhaps we can excuse the novelist for trying to make the most of his "attack"—he asserts in the second paragraph that one of the "eminent cardiologists"—a couple of up and coming young doctors, one of whom described himself as an internist in the medical blue book when he was 33 years old—how eminent can a doctor be at forty?—one of these eminent youngsters hastily summoned to the novelist's home shortly after the attack remarked that the patient's chance to surviving the night was negligible. But, declaims the novelist, the eminent blah-blah-blah "was reckoning without the miraculous power of resistance and the stubborn will to live" and all that old hokum so dear to the heart of a novelist.

Power of resistance? Heaven knows what that may mean. Will to live, my eye—every human being has that, perhaps every animal too, and it is idle to assume any one individual has greater will to live than any other individual has, that is, if he is sane. Any one who hasn't the will, the wish, the desire and the intention to live is demented.

By the familiar device of painting his "attack" as "most deadly" the novelist makes his "power of resistance" and "will to live" seem pretty brave achievements. Shucks, when I had my operation...

Bad medicine, that, in my opinion.

The novelist avers that he diagnosed his own trouble before the doctor arrived. Well, you know what I always say about the fellow who diagnoses or treats his own ailments, even if he is a physician.

A cardiologist who is professor of cardiology in a great medical school, addressing a medical society, expressed this view of the electrocardiograph:

"Many physicians have purchased electrocardiographic galvanometers, take tracings routinely and are still unable to interpret such tracings accurately. Although a slightly (variation) in the electrocardiogram is not normal, yet a majority of patients with such an electrocardiographic finding live the expected span of life. Too many doctors urge patients to give up their employment and become invalids on such minor electrocardiographic findings. In fact, many physicians give these patients copies of their electrocardiograms with a diagnosis of 'myocardial degeneration.' Such a patient to become introspective and apprehensive. A patient came to my office saying his physician had told him he had a 'coroner's occlusion' ..."

I have tried to explain, in my lowbrow way, that the medical meaning of degeneration is just death—slow death, the kind every one of us begins to die the instant he or she has attained full growth and development—somewhere between thirty-five and forty, as a rule.

That patient's idea that he had a "coroner's conclusion was not greatly different from the popular conception of plugging of a branch of one of the arteries that deliver blood to the heart muscle—the arteries whose branches are distributed to right and left sides of the heart like a wreath or a crown (corona) and so are called coronal or coronary arteries. In most instances the branch of the right or left coronal artery is plugged by the formation of a small clot in the artery, and in such case the condition is called coronary thrombosis (thrombus being medicalese for clot).

In the next talk on this subject we will consider what kind of activity or rest is usually associated with the occurrence of coronary occlusion or thrombosis.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

One of my neighbors, returning home alone at night, was petrified, on turning on the hall light, to find himself face to face with a burglar.

The intruder was carring a small iron crowbar about twenty inches long, with which he had pried open a window for entrance.

"Sit down!" gritted the burglar, indicating the chair in the hallway.

The householder sat down.

"Boy," he laughed, a little breathlessly, "are you ever out of luck!"

"What do you mean?" threatened the burglar, in a low voice.

"My brother," lied the householder, "a policeman, is just coming in the back door from the garage with a case of beer. My wife is out on the front steps, picking up some papers . . ."

"Shut up!" hissed the burglar. A motor car went noisily past, drownig other sound . . . .

"If you try the back way," bluffed the householderr, weakly, "the cop's got you. If you go the front, my wife screams, and the cop comes around the drive so fast, you would'nt get five jumps . . . . ."

"Shut up!" stammered the burglar. "Turn off that light!"

The householder stood up and reached with his left hand to the light switch. With his right, he swung the hall chair up, and, chair legs forward, he plunged, face high for the intruder. Down went the burglar. The chair pinned him there, while the citizen 160 pounds, jumped three times on whatever was protuding. It was aterribly sick burglar the police took away in the ambulance.

"You know," said my neighbor, "I spent four years in the army, learning this stuff, and I never got within a mile of any Germans . . . . ."

Rail Workers Rebuff Occupation Powers, Union

Berlin, June 14 — (AP)—Representatives of Berlin's railway strikers Sunday rebuffed the occupation powers and their own top union leaders by spurning a United States appeal for an immediate end to their 23-day-old strike.

An overwhelming majority of 600 union officials voted instead to refer the settlement terms put forward by the four powers to a referendum tomorrow. Seventy-five per cent of the membership must vote to continue the walkout or it is automatically called off.

The settlement terms were worked out by the United States, in consultation with Britain and France, and agreed to by Russia.

The Germans, left to the membership for decision by the 600 lower-level leaders, called for payment of 75 per cent of wages in west marks, worth four times as much as the east marks previously used to pay wages, and no reprisals by the Soviet - controlled railway management against the anti-red union leaders.

The management would pay 60 per cent of the wages in west marks and the West Berlin city government would exchange an additional 15 per cent of the men's salaries into the more valuable western currency.

The strike, marked by violence which caused two deaths has blocked rail delivery of supplies to Berlin and prevented an east-west accord on German trade.

The delay in settlement of the walkout may have the far-reaching effect of stalling the council of Foreign Ministers meeting in Paris.

The Big Four ministers had set Monday as the deadline for a report from four-power negotiators seeking to write a trade agreement in Berlin.

American spokesmen have declared bluntly, however, that no agreement could be signed until the railway strike is settled.

QUITS USING LAXATIVE PILLS

Keeps regular now with famous cereal

Is constipation a serious trouble with you? Then read this unsolicited letter:

"I was sick with constipation. I reached the point where no sort of pill helped. Then my mother said I should try KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. So I began eating ALL-BRAN every day. It's hard to believe, but I am regular now!" Mrs. Lucien Kelly, 8 Deslauriers Street, Quebec.

You, too, may forget you ever had constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. Simply eat an ounce of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is not a purgative but a wholesome regulating cereal. Eat as a cereal or in muffins for constipation relief. If after using a package you are not completely satisfied, get double your money back as guaranteed on the package. Get delicious

Scientists Develop New Type Plants To Fit in With Modern Farm Needs

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

Washington, June 13 — (AP)—Plant breeders are designing new farm plants almost like automobile designers create new - style cars.

They're doing this to build up resistance to disease, and hardiness against bad weather — but also so the plants will fit new and super - efficient harvesting machinery.

The scientists have produced a cotton with "bald" leaves that won't tangle in a picking machine, a round sugar beet that can be scooped up with a shallow - digging machine, oats with shorter and stiffer straws that will stand up to a reaper.

Much of this work is being carried on at the United States government's huge experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., near here.

The plant builders work with some materials they can't even see or identify, like genes.

Genes are units of inheritance in the life cell. They pass along certain characteristics, like tallness or resistance to disease. from parent to offspring.

Plant - scientists virtually have built a sugar beet that is tailor-made for the North American climate. It has been made resistant to half a dozen diseases that would have prevented establishment of the United States sugar beet industry.

Long roots make the plant difficult to harvest with machines. If the long root is broken off a great deal of sugar is lost. Clumps mean that the plants have to be thinned. Much of this is hand work.

The plant breeders have succeeded in crossing a red garden beet, which is almost round, with the sugar beet. The result is an almost round - shaped sugar beet, streamlined for mechanical harvesting.

Spectacular things have been done with corn.

Farmers like to boast they live "where the tall corn grows," but tallness in corn can be costly. Scientists grew some varieties so tall that seed growers had to get up on stilts to reach the tassels.

You can't work with tassels that high, so the scientists obligingly brought the corn down to a proper and uniform height — not too tall and not too low.

Woman Maintains She Gets Places Because She Travels Light, Alone

New York, June 13 (AP)—Mrs. Charlotte Gilbert, a native of Manhattan, is terrified of crossing city streets, even with the lights in her favor. But she's off now for a two-year journey from Capetown to Cairo—and she's not scared a bit.

"I've spent my life proving that with a little money and a lot of inclination, any woman can travel anywhere alone, without fear," she said as she packed in a New York hotel for her latest venture.

"For goodness sake, I've had my pocket picked on a Broadway street car, and I just missed being shot when policemen and robbers were shooting it out with each other on 34th street a few years ago."

Once she happened to tune in on a radio baritone singing "The road to Mandalay," and the first thing you know, there was Mrs. Gilbert on the Burma road from Rangoon to Mandalay.

"It wasn't as pleasant as it sounds in the song," she remarked.

Mrs. Gilbert maintains she gets places because she travels light and alone. But, she warns, trusting — and plain uninformed — women can get themselves into an awful lot of trouble.

"Any lady — note the word lady — can travel alone," she claims, "but she must remember her dignity, to respect others and assay human values. You meet an awful lot of people casually, but you've got to be careful about making friends."

When abroad in the world, eat the food the natives eat, and be careful about drinking water, eating salads and uncooked fruits, she warns.

"This water thing applies even to brushing your teeth," she cautioned. "You can always use beer or wine, and it's safer."

SERIOUSLY INJURED

Hawkesbury, Ont., June 13 (CP)—Hector Ranger, 26, of St. Bernadin, Ont., was seriously injured yesterday when his automibile left the highway three miles south of here, crashed into a tree and telephone pole and rolled over four times.

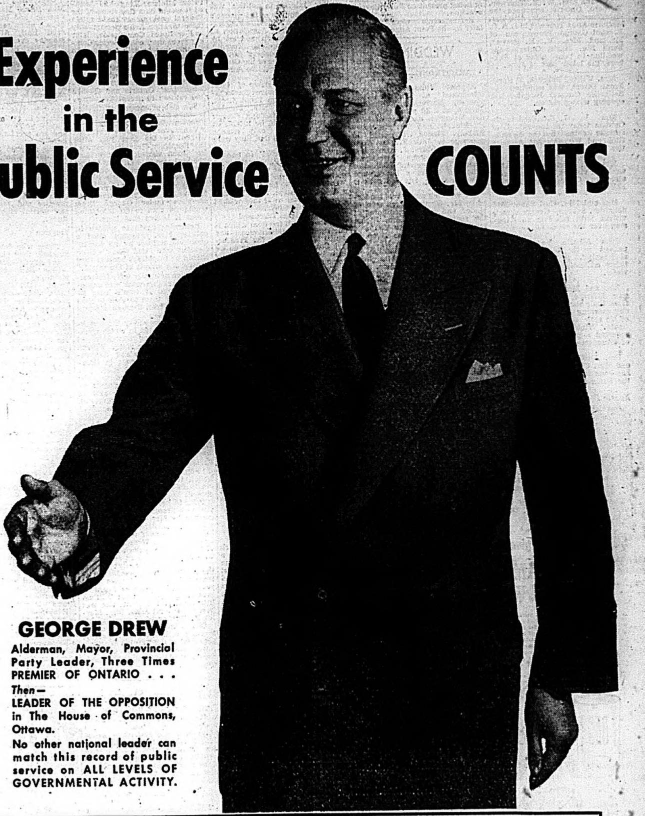
Experience in the Public Service COUNTS



GEORGE DREW

Alderman, Mayor, Provincial Party Leader, Three Times PREMIER OF ONTARIO . . .
Then—
LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION in The House of Commons, Ottawa.
No other national leader can match this record of public service on ALL LEVELS OF GOVERNMENTAL ACTIVITY.

George Drew, more than any other national leader, knows that government—to remain DEMOCRATIC —must remain in the hands of the people. As an alderman he concerned himself with the problems of his ward. As mayor, he worked for a better community. As provincial legislator, he worked in the interests of the people of his constituency. As Premier of Ontario he gave his native province the finest administration in its history. . . . George Drew has succeeded as an administrator because he believes in TEAMWORK and CO-OPERATION on all levels of government.

As PREMIER OF ONTARIO he held more cabinet meetings and with greater frequency than any government in Ontario's history. As leader of the official opposition at Ottawa, he brought new life and energy into the House of Commons, and a renewed respect for the principle of Parliamentary Government.

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATES give wholehearted support to George Drew because they will be Members of Parliament in FACT as well as in NAME. No longer will members be forced to yield all power to bureaucratic cabinet ministers and centralizers and fail to give full representation TO THEIR CONSTITUENCIES. . . Compare the records of George Drew and YOUR PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE candidate with those of other party leaders and candidates.

Your vote on June 27th for your PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE will mean that you will be represented in Parliament by a supporter of A PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT under the leadership of George Drew.

Euchre Party

A social evening was held in the Orange Hall, Point Anne, last Friday, under the chairmanship of Mr. Percy Akey.

Winners at cards were ladies, Mrs. L. Sidore, Mrs. T. Whelan, Mrs. E. Botting; consolation, Mrs. Ralph Payne; Men's 1st Mr. W. Kent, Mr. A. Buck, Mr. T. Whelan; consolation, Mrs. R. Kimmett. Low hand by Mrs. R. Reynolds.

The program consisted of two vocal selections by Miss G. Doxtator, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Doxtator.

Miss Lena Bradshaw danced the Highland Fling dressed in Scottish costume.

Mrs. W. Kent gave two humorous readings and also a reading was given by Mrs. Percy Akey.

Mr. Fred Mitchell gave a brief address expressing his pleasure at being present on this enjoyable occasion.

Refreshments were served later by the Point Anne ladies.

WEDDINGS

ARMSTRONG—BLAKELY

A pretty June wedding was solemnized at Trinity United Church, Madoc, on Wednesday, June 8, at 2.30 p.m. when Lillian Margaret, daughter of Mrs. H. Blakely, and the late Harry Blakely, Madoc, was united in marriage to Jack Francis Armstrong, son of Mrs. J. Armstrong, and the late John Armstrong, Madoc. The Reverend A. Poulter officiated before a background of white spirea, iris and baskets of peonies.

The wedding music was rendered by Mr. Stanley Hawthorne, of Madoc, and during the signing of the register, Miss Ann Nichol sang "I'll Walk Beside You".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. William Bateman, was charming in her bridal gown of white sheer velva with fitted bodice, high neckline, and fingertip veil held in place with a beaded coronet. She carried a shower bouquet of Bettertime roses.

The maid of honor, Miss S. Flemming, of Ivanhoe, was gowned in yellow sheer velva, wearing a white picture hat with white accessories and carried a Colonial bouquet of sweetpeas and ferns.

Mr. Bruce Armstrong of New Liskeard, was groomsman, and Mr. Earle Armstrong, Madoc, brother of the bidegroom, and Mr. Lawson Blakely, of Lindsay, uncle of the bride, were ushers.

A buffet luncheon was served in the church parlors, where the bride's mother wearing a two-piece turquoise crepe with navy accessories, and shoulder bouquet of pink carnations and fern, welcomed the guests assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a printed turquoise crepe with white accessories, and shoulder bouquet of pink carnations and fern.

For the wedding trip to Ottawa, Montreal, and points east, the bride chose a dusty rose tricotine suit with navy accessories, with navy hat.

Out-of-town guests were from Lindsay, Belleville, New Liskeard and Marmora.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will reside in Madoc.

TUFTS—GAWLEY

The Holiness Movement Church at Madoc, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, June 11, at 1.30 p.m. when Margaret Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royal Gawley, of Marmora Township was united in marriage to Robert Allen Tufts, of Madoc, son of Mr. Cosmo Tufts. The Reverend R. M. Borvel, pastor of the church officiated. Syringa, peonies, iris and baskets of blue lupins formed a lovely setting for the ceremony.

Miss Grace Irwin provided the customary wedding music and the Reverend W. Dargon, of Peterborough, was soloist, who sang during the signing of the register. "Because".

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was lovely in a pale blue dress of street length, with white accessories. She carried a nosegay of Spring flowers.

Miss Madge Olmstead, of Peterborough, was her only attendant and wore a costume of dusty pink of street length, with white accessories and carried a nosegay bouquet of Spring flowers.

Mr. Arthur Tufts, was groomsman and Glen Phillips, and Ernest Tufts, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Elmer Phillips, of Marmora, the bride's mother, wearing a flowered sheer gown, was assisted in receiving the guests by the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. A. Houser, who wore a gown of black crepe.

The bride chose a blue suit with navy accessories and corsage of roses for the wedding trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside at Athens, Ont., where the bridegroom is the pastor of the Holiness Movement Church.

Politics Should Play Greater Part In Women's Life Group Told

A call for women to take a greater interest in politics was heard by members of the women's division of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association as they listened to an address by Mrs. O. T. Funston, Toronto, member of the speakers' panel of women's committee of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association.

Speaking to a group of local women at Progressive Conservative club rooms on Front Street, Monday evening, Mrs. Funston declared it was nothing strange that women should be interested in politics—the only strange thing about it was that they were 2,000 years late.

"Women interested in politics are interested in the welfare of Canada and in the welfare of the entire world," she said.

Launching into her address with a direct question, Mrs. Funston asked her listeners if they wished freedom or bondage.

Provincial Rights Discussed

"Do we wish freedom which is our right by inheritance and which is upheld by the Progressive Conservative party, or do we wish bondage as represented by Communism, Socialism and Liberal Centralism?"

Provincial rights came in for discussion by Mrs. Funston who declared that the 14 years of Liberal government at Ottawa was anything but democracy. Liberal centralism was described as the Federal government taking what was taxation rights of the provinces and keeping them as its own.

From the early days of Confederation certain taxation fields and education had been the right of the provinces. However, with the event of war in 1939 the provinces had conceded certain taxation fields to the Federal government with the promise that they be returned after the war.

Two Refused Proposals

Following the war, however, Prime Minister King had decided it would be a fine thing of the Federal government could retain these taxation fields permanently and a Royal Commission, later known as the Rowell-Sorois Commission was held to inquire into provincial finances.

The Federal government had then made proposals which were agreed upon by seven of the provinces but Ontario and Quebec had refused to accept the terms.

The two provinces justification in doing so was indicated by Mrs. Funston who quoted figures from a Vancouver newspaper which indicated in the first year after the Dominion-Provincial contract had been signed, the provinces had given up $344 millions in taxation and had received only $80 millions in return.

This contract would run until 1952 unless the Progressive Conservatives under George Drew would be able to do something about it before that time.

Returning again to women in politics Mrs. Funston cited a quotation written by an ancient Grecian who said that "women should be in politics because they control the morals of the world."

Women naturally were interested in charitable work and organizations and it would only be natural for them to seek to gain their objectives, through political action.

"But now we are on the threshold of a new area in which women are becoming conscious of their duty to the state. Women should sit on juries and on commission and take part in international affairs," she said.

The speaker referred to the spirit of the British people as exemplified by such men as John Dickens and Winston Churchill, and by Edith Cavell. Liberties of the British people had been gained only after centuries of sacrifice and effort and it was men like George Drew, who would fight for the retention of those liberties.

Presented With Corsage

"Freedoms such as the secret ballot, if ever lost, would take centuries to regain," she concluded.

Prior to her address Mrs. Funston was presented with a lovely corsage by Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, while appreciation of the meeting to the speaker was expressed by Mrs. M. B. Weese. President of the women's association, Mrs. C. L. Hyde, acted as chairman.

Musical entertainment during the meeting was provided by Ronald Elmy, well known local young singer who was heard in several solos, while Mrs. William Burgoyne, of Deseronto, also was heard in several solos. Mrs. Morley P. Duff acted as accompanist.

Others heard briefly during the meeting included Mrs. Jeffrey, president of the Trenton Women's Association, and Mrs. Osborne, president of the Hastings East Association.

Fashion Flashes

TINY OPEN SQUARES in white on navy blue silk suran makes a nice change from the ubiquitous navy and white polka-dotted fabric. It is used for a daytime dress that has two funnel-like panels from the waist—lined to give them body. The bodice is draped to the deep neckline.

NICE THOUGHT for evening resort or country club dance wear is a three-quarter-length coat of all-over quilted pink pique, the quilting done in a large lozenge design with big "buttons" in the centres. Tiny collar, turn-back, pointed cuffs and huge patch pockets.

GOING TO TOWN frequently is the suede coat, once strictly a country garment. Shortness in soft and vivid-toned suede, are frequently seen over plain frocks of the casual variety, and they seem quite at home on city streets.

Music Pupils Give Recital

Over fifty junior pupils of Miss Bessie Handley, Mr. Wm. Connor and Mr. R. H. Unwin gave a piano recital at the Memorial Hall, Albert College on Monday evening.

Dr. Bert Howard welcomed the young performers stating that he knew these were probably anxious moments with a heavy load on young shoulders, but assuring them they could feel at ease and to try to feel at home.

"We all hate to be on exhibition," he said, "but it is good training in getting used to people. I know you are happy to be here and we are happy to have you here".

The program started with the tiny tots who played simple melodies and proceeded to the more advanced students. These promising young musicians gave creditable performances which represented weeks of arduous practice and the proud parents and friends enjoyed listening to them.

Fifteen Women Nominated for Commons' Seats

(By The Canadian Press)

Fifteen Canadian women have stepped from kitchen to platform to prove—if proof be needed—that a woman can out-talk a man any day and maybe do a better job of it.

They were the 15 women candidates nominated in various constituencies across Canada yesterday for House of Commons seats in the June 27 federal election. Their numbers perhaps aren't too impressive when stacked up against the total of men running—836.

All 15 aren't in the housewifely category. Some have left offices and classrooms, if only temporarily, to make their bid for election and some already are seasoned campaigners. Some are married and some are single while others are young and others are . . . well, not too old.

The only woman member of the last House—Mrs. Gladys Strum, 43-year-old mother, housewife and former school teacher who was elected CCF member for Saskatchewan's Qu'Appelle constituency in 1945—is back in the fight.

Runs as P.C.

The Newfoundland entry is Mrs. Grace Sparkes, a housewife. She is the Progressive Conservative candidate in Burin-Burgeo, opposing a lone man, C. W. Carter, Liberal.

Quebec has three men in the lists—Cecile Brunet, school teacher running as a Social Credit candidate in Hull while her father contests neighboring Ottawa East on the same ticket Mrs. Victor Gladu, Independent-Liberal in Saguenay, and Jennie Theoret, CCF in Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George.

Ontario has the largest number of women entered—six. Two of them—Ruth Radford, Liberal, in Toronto Broadview, and Myrtle Morrison, CCF, in Frontenac-Addington—go to university. A third, Sybil Bennett, Progressive Conservative, in Halton, is a lawyer and a King's Counsel.

Mrs. Avis McCurdy, contesting Toronto Danforth as a C.C.F. nominee, is a housewife and mother while Marguerite Marchildon, 25, Union of Electors candidate in Simcoe East, helps her parents run the family store at Lafontaine, Ont. She is a cousin of Phil Marchildon, star pitcher of Philadelphia Athletics.

Manitoba's lone contestant is Mrs. Bessie Keating, C.C.F., opposing Justice Minister Garson in Marquette.

Saskatchewan, besides Mrs. Strum, has Mrs. Leila Smiley, Progressive Conservative candidate in Moose Jaw.

Seasoned Campaigners

British Columbia's woman candidates are seasoned campaigners. Mrs. Grace MacInnis, C.C.F. candidate in Vancouver South, was C.C.F. member of the B.C. legislature from 1941 to 1945 and is the wife of Angus MacInnis, C.C.F. member of parliament for Vancouver East. She also is the daughter of J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the C.C.F. party

Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, running for the CCF in the new riding of Burnaby-Richmond, represented the CCF in the provincial legislature from 1934 to 1945.

In all, only five women have reached the Commons in Canadian political history—Mrs. Strum, Miss Agnes Macphail, Mrs. George Black, Mrs. Dorise Nielsen and Mrs. Cora Casselman.

OCTOGENARIAN "COWBOY"

Singleton, New South Wales, Australia (CP)—Ted Rowe, 84, won the "best gentleman rider over 60" event at a recent rodeo here. Rowe has competed in events for 77 years—from the age of seven when he won his first event.

MINERS' COAL ALLOWANCE

Glasgow, Scotland (CP)—Scottish coal miners will receive a free allowance of nine tons of coal a year, the Scottish Coal Board decided. That is, unless they get free baths at the pithead. In that case they'll get only seven tons of coal.

Renovated Hall Opened by W.I. With Playlet

Marmora—"I declare this entertainment as the official re-opening of the hall" said Reeve V. M. Lynch on Wednesday evening, prior to the presentation of "The Kitchen Band," by a cast of twenty members of Marmora Women's Institute.

Introduced by the president Mrs. Eugene Brady, who thanked the community for their general support of the project, the reeve expressed his appreciation at being called upon to function and made a few appropriate remarks on the full renovation scheme. He referred to the new heating system installed in 1946, the the undertaking of the stage decoration and the furnishing of new equipment by the Institute with the final decoration of the body of the hall and rewiring of the buildings undertaken by the council.

No Extra Taxation

Due to the retirement of old debentures this year the latter work would not entail extra taxation, he pointed out. "The Kitchen Band" program follows the romance of one Danny and his sweetheart Genevieve. The narration of the story was given by Miss Grace Warren. Mrs. Harold Nayler acted as the conductor of the band and Mrs. Alex Fraser was accompanist. Old and new songs featured in the vocal and instrumental numbers. Vocal duets were rendered by Mrs. P. Gray and Mrs. F. R. Wells; Mrs. T. Hannah and Mrs. L. R. Green. An instrumental duet was given by Mrs. E. C. Prentice and Mrs. A. Crossen.

Vocal Solos Given

Vocal solos were given by Mrs. L. R. Rundle, Mrs. Percy Gray, Mrs. E. Belanger, Miss Jennie Gray, and Mrs. H. Brady. Two specialties added to the gaiety of the play, as the members of the band sang, "Cruising Down the River," a small canoe passed along the front of the stage in which David Bedore and his sister Anne Marie were seated, the boy with the propelling oar in his hand and the girl with a posy in hers.

In the other specialty Guy Belanger and Donna Osborne appeared as bride and groom. During an intermission candy was sold by the members of the cast. The hall was well filled and at the repeat performance on Thursday evening another good patronage was given. The proceeds were devoted to the Institute's Hall Renovation fund.

MARMORA

James E. Gehan To Celebrate 80th Anniversary

Marmora—On Tuesday, James Edmund Gehan, resident of Marmora Village for the past 41 years, joins the ranks of local octogenarians, and receives the congratulations of a host of friends.

"Jim", as he is known to them, is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gehan, of Throoptown, (about 15 miles from Brockville), where he was born on June 14, 1869. He came to Marmora from Smiths Falls, where for about seven years he was in the employ of Frost and Wood, makers of farming implements.

Coming to Marmora, he was the agent for this company for many years. He stayed at the Royal Hotel the first night he spent in Marmora, when Billie Golding was the proprietor. He recalls his early admiration for the fine maples grown on each side of lower Forsythe Street.

Besides being an agent for Frost and Wood, he was soon operating a blacksmith shop. Speaking of farm work in his lifetime, he remarked, "I first saw the oxen at worn to be later replaced by horses and I am happy to say I have lived to see the tractor take over."

His two main pastimes are reading and a friendly game of cards. In past days he has enjoyed fishing. Mr. Gehan was bereaved of his wife a few years ago and household duties are in the hands of his daughter Gladys.

Women's Activities

REDNERSVILLE W.A.

The Rednersville W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Hillman with 20 members present. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Roy Wannamaker. The secretary, Mrs. Thomas Thompson read the minutes of the May meeting, followed by the correspondence.

Reports from all committees were heard. A box of clothing was sent overseas by the W.A. who are also having the piano tuned in Rednersville church. Collecting for the parsonage is well on its way. It has been decided on that all members collect 1946 coppers for a hobby for a period of time. The delegates for the annual convention, which took place at Grace United Church, Trenton, were Mrs. Chas. Post, Mrs. Chas. Dempsey, Mrs. Armor Reed, Mrs. Earl MacKay. A very interesting report of the convention was given. Mrs. Henderson is sending away for a program and study book preparing for more devotional and spiritual devotion and study in the W. A. meetings. Roll call was "Your Favorite Radio Program." Several calls were made on the sick and shut-ins during the month.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Harry Adams, convener. Mrs. Leon Ward read a poem. A flower contest was won by Mrs. Rorabeck and Mrs. Leon Ward. Proceeds of the meeting amounted to $5.26.

A vote of thanks was given the hostess for her kind hospitality, after which dainty refreshments were served. The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Rae Roblin.

C.W.A.C. Holds First Reunion In Toronto

Toronto, June 13 (CP) — Barracks life with its many queues, full-dress parades, medicals and rigid discipline weren't so bad after all. So decided many former members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps at their first large peacetime reunion here during the weekend.

Some 1,100 former army women gathered from across the Dominion and a large number of them said their days in uniform were the happiest of their lives.

There was a lot of nostalgia.

Mrs. Herbert Dales was old enough to be a grandmother, but that didn't stop her from leaving her hometown of Guelph, to join the army. The 53-year-old woman wanted to be an army cook, but the age limit of 45 deterred her for a time. There was only one solution—"I lied about my age," she said.

Many of the girls wore their trim khaki uniforms to the reunion, but others admitted the only parts of their uniform which still fitted were the hat and gloves. Those who couldn't squeeze into the narrow skirts were issued brown berets bearing the C.W.A.C. crest.

At a downtown theatre where church services were held, Maj. John Foote, V.C., a wartime padre and now member of the Ontario legislature for Durham, said he knew veterans often longed for the comradeship of the services.

"But you should try to bring that virtue of comradeship into your homes, communities and businesses," he said.

Praise for the work of the C.W.A.C. units came from Defence Minister Claxton who spoke at a banquet Saturday night.

Woman Heads Foreign Travel Bureau in U.S.

Ottawa, June 10 — (CP) — Training as a housewife will stand the average woman in good stead should she even seek a job in the tourist industry.

Manolita Doelger, the only woman to head a foreign travel bureau in the United States, is director of the Italian National Tourist office which has its headquarters in New York. She paid a brief visit to the capital this week and said in an interview that tourist work is ideal for women.

"To begin with, a woman brings into her job the training she has had as a housewife — and that is good school," said Mrs. Doelger.

It was her interest in people which drew Mrs. Doelger into the travel field about a year ago.

In 1946 she went on an inspection tour of child - caring facilities in Italy with the American Relief for Italy Organization. Two years later she toured the country again, to look over the tourist possibilities.

"I noticed a tremendous difference in that time," she said. "Now there is a feeling of youth in a new country and the little people are doing so much to put their house in order."

Ralph Campbell To Enter Baliol College in Aug.

Congratulations are the order of the day for Ralph Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell, Foxboro, on his scholastic attainment and his forthcoming marriage to Miss Joy Winch, B.A., of Toronto.

At Convocation, Toronto Univeraary, on Friday last, which was attended by his parents, Ralph received his Bachelor of Arts degree, and was awarded the Rhodes Scholarship for general proficiency. Miss Joy Winch, his fiancee, having received her degree the previous Thursday.

Born in Foxboro, Ralph has lived his life on the farm, assisting his father, recent reeve of the township in the manifold duties accompanying farm life. His early education was had at the local school and Belleville Collegiate Institute, entering University College, Toronto, the last war.

Following his marriage, which will take place in two weeks, and accompanied by his bride, he expects to sail for England in August, where he will enter Baliol College, Oxford, for a two years' cource in philosophy and Economics. Upon their return he will join the staff of the Bank of Canada, or the United Co-operatives.

The good wishes of his community friends go with Ralph and his future bride for great success in the chosen path of life.

Cookies Popular With Everyone

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 10 — (CP) — If the housewife wants to remain popular with the youngsters in the neighborhood, she had better keep her cookie-jar filled.

Sugar cookies always are popular with both children and grownups. Ingredients: one cup sugar; one-half cup butter or margarine; one-quarter cup milk; one egg; one teaspoon cream of tartar; one-half teaspoon soda; flavoring; sufficient flour to make rollable mixture.

Mix until soft and then roll. Makes 40 cookies.

Oatmeal cookies also are a tasty treat. Ingredients: one egg; one-half cup sugar; two tablespoons sweet milk; one cup rolled oats; one cup flour (sifted); one teaspoon cinnamon; one-half teaspoon nutmeg; one-eighth teaspoon baking soda; one-half teaspoon baking powder; one-half cup salad oil; one cup raisins.

Beat the egg and add sugar and milk and then the rolled oats. Mix the spices, baking soda and baking powder with the flour. Sift these dry ingredients into the egg and sugar mixture. Add the salad oil, then the raisins. Stir until the ingredients are mixed. Drop the batter by teaspoonfuls onto a greased baking-sheet. Bake at 375 degrees Fahrenheit for 15 minutes.

White cookies — Ingredients: four cups flour; one cup butter or margarine; 1½ cup sugar; two eggs; five tablespoons milk; one-half teaspoon soda; one-half teaspoon baking powder; one teaspoon nutmeg or vanilla. Mix as for pastry.

Lemon cake pie is a new desert which is bound to make the head of the house pass his plate for a second helping. Ingredients: one tablespoon butter; one-quarter teaspoon salt; one cup sugar; two eggs; two tablespoons flour; three-quarters cup milk; juice of one lemon.

Cream butter and sugar; add yolks of eggs, flour, milk and lemon juice. Fold in whites of the eggs which have been beaten until stiff. Pour the mixture into an unbaked plain pastry crust and bake in a hot oven for five minutes. Lower the oven temperature and bake for 40 minutes.

Now that summer is coming on, health and welfare department officials warn Canadians to watch those sun-glasses. The experts say dark glasses should only be worn during times of exposure to bright sunlight. They should not be of a color that will alter the natural hues of the scenery.

Husband Whips Up 120-Pound Wedding Cake

London, Ont., June 10 — (CP) —Lucky is the bride whose groom whips up a 120-pound wedding cake.

British-born Mary Hebb today marries garageman Fred J. Putt —and the monster cake is one of the groom's presents to her.

Cooking became his hobby when he had small jobs in a bakehouse in England at the age of 10.

The six-tiered cake has a bottom layer 14 inches square and five inches deep. Preciously perched on slender legs, the other tiers are piled in the mammoth concoction which has absorbed eight dozen eggs, five pounds of butter, five pounds of flour and unknown quantities of fruits and nuts.

He estimates that if he worked without ceasing day or night the masterpiece would have taken him a week to make the cake, 48 hours to bake it and three days to execute the intricate icing operations.

"Finest wedding cake ever given any bride," he says proudly.

Carefree Days IN THE 1,000 ISLANDS

For fun and relaxation in a scenic wonderland how would you like a luxurious cruise through the mazes of this wonderful waterway? Gananoque "Gateway to the 1,000 Islands," is on Highway No. 2, and the main CNR line, midway between Montreal and Toronto. Here, from mid-June to mid-September, sight-seeing boats leave the waterfront every hour. You'll enjoy a magnificent close-up view of colourful islands and millionaire summer homes in Canadian and American waters. There's first-class hotel and tourist accommodation throughout the district and at Gananoque—whose Board of Trade will be glad to send you further information.

In Ontario we have a holiday paradise—let's do all we can to encourage visitors from across the border. Published in support of the tourist business by John Labatt Limited.

This is a family affair

YOUR FUTURE... AND CANADA'S

Conditions have been good the last few years. More people are working than ever before — making more, spending more, saving more.

Isn't that what you want? After all, you have a family to think about ::: and you are planning for their future :::

The Liberals are planning and working for your family's future too.

Here are some of the things the Liberals are doing:

Family Allowances are Increased. Already a billion dollars has been invested in Canada's children. Millions of boys and girls are better clothed, fed and housed — have a better chance for an education and a real start in life — because of this Liberal measure. It has brought new security and well-being to countless Canadian homes.

In housing, too, the Liberals have taken the lead in providing Canadians with decent homes. More homes have been built in Canada, in relation to population, than in any nation. Already a million Canadians live in homes built since the war. The liberal government is ready to help solve the low-rental housing problem and has offered its cooperation to provinces and municipalities.

Then, there is the Liberal health program. Already federal grants are helping the provinces to increase their health services. But the Liberals' aim is a nation-wide contributory health insurance plan which will end, for everyone, the tragedy of inadequate health care and the financial strain of lengthy illness.

Or take employment. Liberal measures are helping to maintain employment in Canada at record levels, and at the same time unemployment insurance reserves have been building up. The government has encouraged enterprise and high production. Plants have expanded, new industries started up. New opportunities are being created every day.

Old Age Pensions and pensions for the blind have been steadily increased by the Liberal government. But it isn't stopping there. Its aim is a nation-wide plan of contributory pensions which will help everyone to enjoy a comfortable and secure old age — automatically and as a right.

These are all part of the Liberal program of social betterment ::: a program to achieve "a national standard of social security and human welfare which assures the greatest possible measure of social justice to all Canadians".

Memorial Bells Dedicated At St. Peter's Presbyterian Church on 75th Anniversary

Madoc — (Special) — At an pressive service last Sunday ening the new memorial bells re dedicated. Major, the Rev. hn Young Fraser, Chaplain of the Toronto district and of Sunnybrook Hospital was the guest preacher. The Rev. M. W. Heslip, minister of St. Peter's, was in charge of the service and, to the delight of all his old friends, Col., the Rev. John W. Foote, V.C., D.D., former member of St. Peter's, was able to be present and take part. With them on the platform was the Rev. James M. Ritchie of Hastings and Warkworth, a chaplain in the Navy during the last war.

Veterans Attend

The service was rendered more impressive by the presence of "B" Co'y. of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and the local veterans of World Wars I and II.

As this was also the 75th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the present church the minister told the large congregation that though it was over 100 years since the first Presbyterian communion was held in Madoc and the first church was begun, it was in 1853 that the first congregation was organized and the first elders ordained. The first minister, the Rev. J. W. Chestnut, was in Madoc for three years. The Rev. David Wishart was called and inducted in 1857. The church was enlarged three times, but was destroyed by fire in 1873.

Reports Quoted

In an article in the "Belleville Intelligencer" on June 26, 1874 it says: "The Presbyterians of Madoc have with praiseworthy zeal, energy and liberality commenced the construction of their new church." The cornerstone was laid by Mrs. Wishart at 12 o'clock noon June 17, 1874. She used a silver trowel which is still preserved. The article quotes from Mr. Wishart's sermon: "We are now laying the foundation of a new house of the Lord with praise and shouting. And may the prophecy of Haggai be fulfilled in us: 'Be strong, all ye people of the Lord, and work for I am with you saith the Lord of Hosts'. May we never forget," continued Mr. Wishart, "that Christ is the Chief Cornerstone, and may we grow up together an holy temple in the Lord and be accepted by Him at His coming."

Early Church Officers

Of those in St. Peter's at that time many descendants are still connected with the church:

Elders in 1874: A. F. Wood, Adam Allen, William Leslie, Horace Seymour and Samuel Rollins.

Building Committee: The members of session ex-officer, W. Tuller, John Deans, John Harper, George Miller and F. E. Seymour.

Trustees::: Hugh McKenzie, F. E. Seymour, John Deans, John Harper and James Whytock.

During the service the 103rd Psalm was read by Col. John Foote. Major Fraser and the Rev. J. W. Ritchie led in prayer. Miss Anne Nickle, Madoc, sang "The Lord is My Light."

Were Great Builders

Major Fraser based his sermon on Nehemiah's account of the building of the walls of Jerusalem and took as his text the sixth chapter, "I am doing a great work so that I cannot come down. Why should the work cease? Should such a man as I flee "

He pointed out that like Nehemiah the pioneers of St. Peter's were good builders. They builded well and faithfully.

Major Fraser then went on to show that Nehemiah was also a great patriot because he believed that he was doing a great work. Our soldiers also had the sense of being on a Divine mission, that they were personally responsible to God for the job they were doing. "These bells which we dedicate tonight are tokens of what this means. We must remain on the job. We must man the walls of Zion."

Following the singing of the National Anthem, the Memorial Bells were formally presented by Mrs. Robert McCoy, as president of the Young Women's Club, in memory of those who served in World Wars I and II. She said, "Our hope is that the music of these bells may sound forth through the years and bring their message of hope and comfort to many hearts."

The bells were accepted by the minister, the Reverend M. W. Heslip, on behalf of the Kirk session, the trustees and the managers. In closing his remarks he quoted from the beautiful poem written by Mrs. McTavish, wife of a former minister:

"Long life to thee, O tower,
And may thy new-found voice
Bring glory to the Father,
And make His Church rejoice".

Under the direction of the organist, Mr. Stanley Hawthorne, the choir sang as an anthem of dedication:

"Ring out ye bells to age and youth
Ring out and tell of God's great truth".

and Major Fraser took the prayer of dedication.

Message Read

Rev. W. A. Hunter, former minister, whose son was the only one from the congregation to fall during the Last War, sent a message suitable to the occasion from his new home in Verden, Man.

After the reading of the names of the fallen the "Last Post" was sounded then followed a short silence and "Reveille" sounded out, the benediction was pronounced.

As the friends visited together on the spacious grounds after the service the bells sounded forth their messages of hope.

Reduce by 20 P.C. Dentist Earnings In Health Plan

London, June 14—(CP)—Gross earnings of dentists registered under Britain's National Health Service are reduced 20-per-cent by a government order which went into effect June 1. Health Minister Bevan told the House of Commons a survey showed many dentists are planning more than it was intended when the plan was launched last July 5. An analysis of earnings of 5,078 dentists showed that 333 were earning more than £8,400 ($33,600) gross a year.

DREW DEMANDS REPUDIATION OF NFLD. PREMIER

Claims He Made "Political Threat" at Meeting in Newfoundland

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 14 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Monday night charged Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland with making the "worst political threat" in Canadian history and called for repudiation of Mr. Smallwood by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Mr. Drew, who speaks today in Brantford and Hamilton, Ont., said Mr. Smallwood was quoted as saying to a political rally in Newfoundland that if the people in the Ferryland district did not vote for a Liberal candidate they would not get a cent from the government during the next four years.

Reading from a report in the St. John's Sunday herald of June 19, Mr. Drew said the premier was quoted as telling the people of the Ferryland district that they had voted against him on three occasions.

Ferryland is in St. John's West constituency where Greg Power is running as Liberal candidate against W. J. Browne, Progressive Conservative.

"Ferryland has voted against me in two referendums and in the provincial election, but I won in spite of you," the Herald quoted Mr. Smallwood as saying. "Now I don't need you. I've been elected, but you need me.

"I'm sitting right on top of the public chest and not one red cent will come out of it for Ferryland district unless Greg Power is elected."

The newspaper also reported that Mr. Smallwood said he would know what settlements voted for Mr. Power.

"Any settlement which supports me by voting for Greg Power will be helped by the government. Those settlements which vote against Greg Power will get nothing — absolutely nothing."

Mr. Drew challenged Prime Minister St. Laurent to give the people of Newfoundland assurances that no one has the right to threaten any voter in Canada no matter in what position he may be.

Reiterated Statements

Mr. Drew spoke earlier in Richmond, Ont., on the same platform with his two opponents in Carleton, J. H. McDonald, Liberal, and Eugene Forsey, C.C.F. He also made a half-hour broadcast over a national CBC network and reiterated his criticism of the sale of the Canadair Aircraft Plant in Montreal, of the government's trade policies and of the North Star aircraft.

At the Richmond meeting all three candidates were alternately booed, cheered and heckled by the crowd which gathered for Carleton County's traditional nomination day meeting.

The Liberals, Mr. Drew said, have not a chance in the world of winning an over-all majority.

Mr. Forsey said a vote for Mr. Drew was a vote for Premier Duplessis of Quebec, and Mr. McDonald called on the Progressive Conservative leader to give the people "the terms of your agreement with Duplessis and his Quebec Nationalists."

In Ottawa, Mr. Drew said his opponents appeared to see something cynical in his statement to the Ontario Legislature a few years ago that he would be proud to walk arm-in-arm with Premier Duplessis.

Mr. Drew, former premier of Ontario, said there was nothing cynical in co-operation between two provinces. He was proud that during his term there was the greatest co-operation in history between the two provinces.

Circus Locates at Alemite Field Where Two Shows will be Given

Hey kids, it's here. With all the color and glamor that only the Big Top possesses, the Robbins Circus, the first show of magnitude to play Belleville in a number of years, rolled into the city at an early hour today.

Originally scheduled to play on the lot at the corner of Station and Cemetery Streets, the show was forced to change its venue to the Stewart-Warner Alemite field due to last night's heavy rains turning the original site into a near-quagmire.

The circus played a full show this afternoon with a grand performance slated for tonight at 8 o'clock.

Modernized to the nth. degree with the entire show travelling in a motorcade, the Robbins Circus retains all the glamor and color that was associated with the well-known "Big Tops" of years ago.

Many Trained Animals

There are lions, tigers, sportive monkeys and lumbering elephants. There are clowns, the sideshows, with all their colorful freaks and 'wonders of the world.' There are trained dogs and horses, dainty equestriennes and gentleman riders, cowboys and Indians and all the characters that none but the circus has. Then, of course, there is the band, one of the most important features of any circus, led by Professor Ellie George. This organization is rated one of the best of its kind in circus circles, and comes with an enviable reputation.

High aloft above the steel cages housing jungle cats, lions and other wild animals are the trapese, where graceful acrobats perform in death-defying stunts. On the ground, funny clowns, grotesque in make-up perform hilarious antics.

Elephants Perform

Then there is a herd of pigmy pachderms, said to be the best performing aggregation of its kind in captivity. Almost human in their obedience to their trainer the small editions of the famous "Jumbo" go through a series of tricks and drills that are amazing. Under Captain William Woodcock, the elephants perform at both shows.

Daring in her fearlessness, Miss Gladys Wallace, well-known international wild animal trainer, engages a bevy of ferocious lions and tigers in a closely-guarded heavy steel cage. Miss Wallace, peer of performers in this phase of circus entertainment, holds complete control over her maneating charges, and takes her life in her hands at least twice a day. This act is one of the features of the show.

Fine Horsemanship

The Conley family, England's contribution to the American circus in daring and graceful feats of equestrialism, are also a feature of the show, and their standout performances have made them one of Circusland's most popular acts.

The gorgeous spectacle of Alice in Jungleland with almost the entire troupe taking part is a glittering colorful display of horses, riders, animals, beautiful girls and graceful riders. Then there are the dozen and one other acts that go to make the circus one of Canada's favorite outdoor entertainments.

Then of course, there is the pink lemonade, balloons of all shapes, sizes and description, and the many features that makes the circus what it is.

Hold-up Man Escapes With $200 After Tussle

Toronto, June 14 — (CP) —A hold - up man escaped, after a tussle, with $200 Monday night from the ticket office of the Uptown Theatre on midtown Yonge Street. After holding up the cashier, the youth was chased aboard a streetcar by the theatre's assistant manager, Robert Cockburn. Cockburn dragged the youth to the sidewalk where the hold-up man threatened him with a gun. As a crowd watched, the hold-up man wrenched free and fled.

Six-Man Race In Ottawa East Is Highlight

Ottawa, June 14. (CP)—Closing of nominations in the Ottawa District Monday found a father-and-daughter team contesting constituencies on opposite sides of the Ottawa River and a re[illegible] of two slightly off-pattern [illegible]ical feuds.

[illegible] father-and-daughter combination consists of Patrice Brunet, a candidate in Ottawa East, and his school teacher daughter, Miss Cecile Brunet, a candidate in Hull. Both are running under the Social Credit banner.

Highlight of the six-man race in Ottawa East, however is the competition between two men—both Liberals and former holders of the seat.

In the last federal election J. T. Richard won the seat with 15,014 votes to 6,284 for his Liberal opponent, J. A. Pinard. Mr Pinard held the seat from 1940 to 1945. The National Liberal Federation recognizes Mr. Richard as the official candidate.

Mr. Pinard Monday told the returning officer for Ottawa East he was running as an Independent Liberal, although he previously announced he would contest the seat as a straight Liberal, as he did in 1945.

Meanwhile, the same constituency sported two straight Progressive Conservative candidates: L. Choquette, who was nominated at a nominating convention, and E. V. (Eddie) O'Meara, former Ottawa newspaper man, who previously was reported as an Independent Progressive Conservative. He told the returning officer Monday he was running under a straight Progressive Conservative ticket.

The sixth candidate in the riding is Henri Robert, a mechanic, running as CCF candidate.

Two men named Casselman and a CCF candidate are running in Grenville-Dundas.

A. C. Casselman, sitting member of the constituency since 1921 and Progressive Conservative Party whip in the Commons, is being opposed for the second time by J. Frank Casselman, a Liberal. In the last federal election, the Progressive Conservative Casselman polled 9,306 votes to 4,634 for the Liberal Casselman. Also running in Grenville-Dundas is Arthur Orr, CCF candidate. The [illegible] Casselman's are not related.

Portland, Ore. — (AP)—William L. Yeater said his 101st birthday Sunday was disappointing.

"Hoped somebody would drop in today with a bottle, but nobody has," he complained.

Looking back, Yeater observed "Times were never so terribly tough as they seemed then."

"Another thing," reported Yeater, "not many fellows around to talk to. When I try to tell these young fellows how things were in my time, they look and say, — 'Tetched in the head'"

Mannheim, Pa. — (AP) — The congregation of Zion Evangelical Luthern Church Sunday paid the church's annual ground rental — "One red rose" — to a descendant of William Henry Stiegel, famed Colonial ironmanger and glassmaker.

The payment, carried out at the annual "festival of the roses," was in accordance with the terms under which Stiegel provided a site for the church in 1772.

Kenosha, Wis. — (AP)—Edwin J. Stingham, 68, of Chapel Hill, N. C., finally received his diploma from Kenosha High School.

He was to have been graduated with the class of 1908, but a credit deficiency in history ruled this out. Stringham soon made up the credit but never did get a diploma.

What will Stringham do with his high school diploma?

He'll probably file it with his Bachelor of Music Degree from Northwestern University, his Doctor of Philosophy in Music degree from the University of Denver and his Doctor of Pedagogy Degree from the University of Cincinnati.

In addition, the retired composer of music who never had a high school diploma, also was graduated from the Royal Academy of Rome, Italy, and held Fellowships in the Royal Academy of Music of Rome and the Universities of Munich, Germany. His compositions have been played by nearly every leading American symphony orchestra; he is music editor of three music publishing houses; he is listed in nine different "Who's Who," and has been author, co-author or editor of 20 publications.

Los Angeles (AP)—There will be no cheesecake photos taken of Florida's first-lady-to-be.

Governor Fuller Warren of Florida has hired two Hollywood publicity men to see that Barbara Manning, his 24-year-old bride-elect, is not shown in bathing suit, tennis shorts or other cheesecake photos.

Warren, 43, and Miss Manning will be wed here June 26.

ELECTION PIONEER

One of the first women to hold a returning officer's post in a Dominion election, Margaret Green will serve in the suburban Toronto constituency of York South. Miss Green was one of two women returning officers in last year's Ontario election.—(CP Photo.)

Rochester, N.H., (AP)—Edward A. Bruce, 32, Monday went before Judge Justin Emery in Municipal Court and was asked how he pleaded to a reckless driving charge.

"About 50-50," he replied.

Judge Emery imposed a "50-50" fine—$50—and suspended 50 per cent of it.

Cambridge, England (CP)—If you're a stewart, a Sanderson or a McKay, there's a university scholarship waiting if you are otherwise qualified.

The scholarship is worth £80 ($320) and is open to any Sanderson, Stewart or McKay undergraduate who wishes to study for the Presbyterian Church, architecture, medicine, law, electrical or civil engineering at any university in any part of the world.

It was set up by James Sanderson, a New Zealand architect. But in 25 years it has never been claimed.

"There have been many undergraduates with the necessary qualifications at Cambridge and Oxford alone," said a university spokesman here.

"We cannot understand why it has not been claimed. We thought that the scholarship would be a gift to students struggling to keep up their studies despite lack of money."

Soon Possible For Tourists To Spend Vacations in Germany

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 14. (CP)— For the first time in ten years it will soon be possible for tourists to spend vacations in Germany in July all three of the western zones are to be opened to tourist traffic.

Large-scale plans to receive visitors and make them 'holiday-happy' are afoot in Germany. Hotels that have been run by occupation authorities since the war are being handed back to private enterprise, and many German caterers are making enthusiastic preparations to bring tourist money into the Fatherland.

British visitors will be allowed to spend the same amount of sterling currency as on most continental trips—£50 ($200) for adults, £35 for children and £10 extra if travelling by auto.

Britons may get a few surprises in the way of food. If they are prepared to pay black market prices, they will be able to get steaks, ham and eggs and other items that are still more or less luxuries at home.

Hotels vary, the more expensive costing about £3 a day. But it is possible to stay in a second-class hotel for about 25s a day. Travellers by car are expected to be able to draw about 40 gallons of gasoline a week. Coupons will be issued by the German banks, and will have to be paid for in advance. Gasoline will cost visitors the same as it costs Germans —2s 9d. (70 cents) a gallon. British occupation personnel, however, buy it for 1s 6d a gallon.

Best spots for visitors will probably be found in the American and French zones, embracing parts of the Bavarian Alps and the Black Forest. Travel agencies have worked out special trips of from nine to 16 days.

"We are not expecting a big rush for Germany this year," a London travel agent told The Canadian Press, "but next year we may get something like pre-war figures. Ironically, there was boom in tourist traffic to Germany the year war broke out."

Dodgers Move Into St. Louis For Crucial Three-Game Series With the Cardinals

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Those old National League antagonists, the league - leading Brooklyn Dodgers and the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals, go at each other tonight in the first game of a vital three-game series in St. Louis.

Brooklyn, clicking on all cylinders, leads the Cards and the 3rd-place Boston Braves by two games and is riding the crest of a seven-game winning streak.

Brooklyn just completed a home stand that brought 11 victories in 15 starts.

The Cards are pretty hot themselves. Stan Musial and Company staged a triumphant swing through the east that netted them 10 victories in 13 games.

The Braves meanwhile, open a three - game set with the seventh-place Pirates in Pittsburgh. Rookie Bob Hall is slated to go against the Pirates' Bob Chesnes tonight.

New York's stumbling giants open their second tour of the west in Cincinnati and the up-and-coming Philadelphia Phillies take on the Cubs in Chicago in the lone day game in the majors.

The American League's front-running New York Yankees return home after a road trip that saw them win only eight of 15 games. The Yanks left the stadium on May 30 in first place by 4½ games.

Casey Stengel's crew now leads Detroit Tigers by three games. The Tigers, in fifth place, six games off the pace before Memorial Day's games, have captured 11 out of their last fifteen starts.

The Tigers begin their second jaunt through the east in Philadelphia taking on the Athletics for three games.

Boston, tied with Washington for fourth place, entertains the Indians in the first of a three-game set tonight while the Senators play host to the Browns in the first of three.

No games were scheduled in either league Monday.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Remember yesterday. Our player was ready to start his downswing, after the momentary pause at the top, by a slight pressure on his right toe which will start the reverse hip pivot. At the same time, he will pull his left arm straight down toward his right pocket but leave his hands in the fully cocked position they had at the top. When the hands are hip-high in the down-swing, his hips will have returned very nearly to the address position and his shoulder pivot will be well under way. Meantime he has kept his head fixed in the address position with no head movement laterally or perpendicularly. When his hands are in the hip-high position, the uncocking action of the wrists will start and by the time the clubhead reaches the ball, this uncocking action of the wrists will have been completed. By the time the club head reaches the hitting area, which you see pictured here, the forces contributed by the hip and shoulder pivot, the downswing of the arms and the uncocking action of the wrists, will blend into one smooth, rhythmic force And the ball will be on its way for a long sweet flight. Solomons Receives Offer to Move Fight to N.Y.

(By The Canadian Press)

Promoter Jack Solomons claimed Monday he has received a tempting offer to move his "world championship" bout between Bruce Woodcock and Lee Savold to New York.

Solomons said at London if he couldn't rent a stadium in London with a seating capacity of 75,000 he might accept.

Woodcock, British champion, and Savold, of Paterson, N.J., are under contract to fight for Solomons in London Sept. 6 for the British version of the heavyweight crown.

An American Syndicate, Solomons reported, made a weekend effort to buy the fight outright, or to give him a 50 per cent interest in the promotion there. He refused to confirm published reports that the syndicate was Madison Square Garden.

At Ascot, Berkshire, England, the finest four days of racing on the British turf calendar, the Royal Ascot meeting, starts today in what probably will be near-perfect conditions.

The Royal Family will drive in semi-state to the races from nearby Windsor Castle on each of the four days. Nearly all the top-flight horses in Britain and many from France and the Republic of Ireland will compete for rich prizes. And, with clothes rationing a memory, the parade of feminine fashion probably will be the gayest since before the war.

At Springfield, the Illinois Senate Monday night refused to pass a bill legalizing horse race bookmakers in Chicago.

The bill would have let Chicago license, tax and regulate bookies operating outside race tracks. The city and its schools would have shared the income.

The sponsor, Senator Christopher C. Wimbish (Dem. Chicago), said a poll by the Chicago Herald-American indicated public was in favor of the bill.

At Cooperstown, N.Y., Washington Senators of the American League Monday defeated Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League 8-7 in a casual exhibition of the United States' national sport on the hallowed baseball field where it was born 110 years ago. The victory brought to three the American League's victories in the series started in 1940. The National League has won five.

Harry Feldman, erstwhile Mexican-leaguer who returned to New York Giants, has been released unconditionally at his own request, the Giant office announced Monday at New York. Waivers had been asked on the right-handed pitcher, with no takers. Another reinstated player, second-baseman George Hausmann, will join the Giants at Cincinnati today.

Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott will use six-ounce gloves for their June 22 heavyweight bout at Chicago's Comiskey Park. The Illinois State Athletic Commission Monday amended a rule which previously required eight-ounce mitts for heavyweight bouts. The six-ounce glove is used in heavyweight title bouts in New York—a state which does not recognize the Walcott-Charles mix as a world-championship affair.

At Quebec, Fernando Gagnon, 120, of Quebec and Jean Richard, 129 1-2, of Montreal, respectively bantamweight and featherweight champions of Canada, both won by knockouts Monday night in two 10-round main bouts.

Gagnon floored Manuel Batista, 123 1-4, of Puerto Rico, four times before the latter decided to quit at the start of the eighth round. Richard knocked out his opponent Johnny Lemos, 126 of Cuba in one minute and 57 seconds of the second round.

Soccer Notes

(By Doug Eaton)

The Bay of Quinte District Association Football League is now well established in the Belleville sports realm. To date all five teams in the league have been in action and the records show that at the present time Batawa and 6 R.D. have the teams to beat. Northern Electric, Trenton Town and Belleville United have not as yet shown their true strength but reports seem to indicate that things are looking up for these clubs.

On Saturday last two fixtures were scheduled but only one was played. Northern Electric defeated Trenton Town 3-1 at the Fair Grounds. The 6 R.D. Belleville game was cancelled because of Air Force Day at the station.

This week will be a most active one for the league. On Wednesday evening Belleville United will play 6 R. D. at the station and Trenton Town will be at Batawa for another evening game. Then on Thursday evening the executive of the league will meet at the Y.M.C.A. at 7.30 p.m. to discuss important league business. All referees are requested to make a special effort to attend this meeting. On Saturday next two games are scheduled. Belleville United will travel to Trenton Town and 6. R. D. will play Northern at the Fair Grounds. Truly an active week.

Here are the league standings as of today:

	P	W	L	D	Pts.
Batawa	3	2	0	1	5
6 R. D.	2	1	0	1	3
Northern	3	1	2	0	2
Belleville	2	1	1	0	2
Trenton	2	0	2	0	0

All clubs are requested to ensure that game reports are submitted to the league secretary as soon as possible after the game has been played. This is important if we are to have our activities reported on the press and radio. We must cooperate with one another if we are to achieve the goals we desire. On and off the field teamwork is essential if we are to progress.

Stan Leonard Will Stay Home

Vancouver, June 14 — (CP) — Stan Leonard, one of Canad's leading professional golfers, said Monday night he will not compete in the Canadian open in Toronto later this month or the C.P.G.A. tournament at the Seigniroy Club, near Ottawa, in Sepember.

The marine drive pro, commenting on reports of a revolt by Western Canadian professionals from the Canadian Professional Golf Association, said the western shotsmiths were largely in that frame of mind.

He said he knows of other pros who will not make the eastern trip later this month.

Leonard said the reason he and other pros would not compete in the open is because the open and the C.P.G.A. tourneys are not being held close together.

Leonard added that west[illegible] competitors would have to [illegible] for two trips east to take part in the two open tournaments. The idea of holding the tournaments together was to save money and cut down on the time away from their home clubs.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

They Drained a Lake

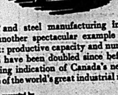
to give Canada a Great New Industry

It happened in Ontario's Rainy River District. Steep Rock Lake — fifteen miles long and ranging in depth from 40 to 265 feet — was emptied by batteries of giant pumps. Finlayson Lake was lowered by draining from the bottom. The course of the Seine River was completely changed. And one of the richest bodies of iron ore on the continent was uncovered. Providing millions of tons of ore a year — with enough uncovered for years to come — Steep Rock's development has been spectacular, but it is only ONE of many examples of Canada's tremendous modern advance. Today we truly live in a Greater Canada — one with productive capacity vastly increased and diversified, offering to young Canadians greater opportunities than ever before in every field of endeavour.

SO MANY OPPORTUNITIES

"A sound idea and the determination to carry it through — those are sure passports to success in Canada today where there are so many interesting opportunities in so many different kinds of activity" —says Mr. Leslie Butcher, of Windsor, Ont.

Mr. Butcher — member of Canada's 1936 Olympic Basketball team — after returning from college in the U.S. and being manager of a local insurance office, started his own Butcher Enterprises. Their development provides many examples of this young Canadian's energy and enterprise. They include: a unique and successful service in the wrapping of products for shipping; and the modernization of the Windsor Arena to present outstanding sports and entertainment events with great success.



The iron and steel manufacturing industry presents another spectacular example of development: productive capacity and number of employees have been doubled since before the war, striking indication of Canada's new position as one of the world's great industrial nations.

Sanicki Belts Two Homers to Help Leafs Win

(By The Associated Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs have a number of fine looking major league prospects on their team, and one of the best is rookie righthander Max Peterson.

Peterson has won four straight games. Knocked out in his first three starts, Peterson began clicking in May. Monday night he pitched the Leafs to a 10-4 decision over the Jersey City Giants.

Tied 4-4 going into the seventh, the Leafs betted Hug Andrews for five runs. Ed Sanicki highlighted the uprising with a three - run homer, his second four-bagger of the game. The two blows upped Sanicki's total to 16. Bill Glynn also homered for the Leafs and Monte Irvin cracked one for Jersey City.

The triumph enabled the Leafs to take over second place in the International League from the Giants. The Leafs trail the pace-setting Buffalo Bisons by 11 percentage points.

Buffalo drubbed the last-place Newark Bears 7-1. Lefty Jim Parton scattered eight hits to post his fourth victory.

First - sacker George Byam drove home four runs on a homer and two singles to spearhead Buffalo's nine hit attack.

The fourth - place Montreal Royals edged Baltimore Orioles 10-9 to stay within two games of Buffalo.

Vern Taylor, third Baltimore pitcher, balked home what proved to be the winning run in the ninth. The Royals slapped out 10 hits including four - masters by Ken Wood and Bob Repass.

Ken Burkhart pitched Syracuse Chiefs to a 8-3 triumph over the fifth - place Rochester Red Wings. Frankie Drews and Bob Sher hit successive home runs in the fifth inning for Syracuse.

Burkhart held the Wings hitless for six innings. Russ Derry broke the spell with his 16th. home run of the year in the seventh. Rookie Steve Bilko poled another round - tripper in the ninth for the Wings.

Special Race Winner-Take-All Is Proposed

Atlantic City, N.J., June 14. (AP)—John B. Elly, president of the Alantic City race track, has invited the owners of Capot, Ponder and Palestinian to try for a special $50,000. winnertake-all purse Aug. 11.

The race would be at a mile and a quarter with equal weights, and would feature the inaugural card of a 45-day session.

The three colts are rated tops among this year's three-year-old crop.

Capot won the Preakness stakes at Pimlico this year as well as Saturday's Belmont stakes.

Ponder took the Kentucky Derby Palestinian was second in the Preakness and third in both the Derby and Belmont.

FLAGSHIP RUSHED TO ARAKAN COAST

Rangoon, June 14 — (Reuters) — The flagship of the Burmese Navy, the frigate Mayn, has been rushed to the South Arakan coast after a sudden revival of lawlessness there, Burmese press reports said today.

Desertion of a section of local military police had started the flare-up, reports said. Important government, and police official and treasury chests were evacuated to Rangoon.

Five Players Swap Uniforms, More Pending

New York, June 14 (AP)—Five major league baseball players today swapped uniforms amid rumors that maybe a half-dozen more would change clubs before the trading deadline at midnight tomorrow.

Boston Red Sox, in a bid to strengthen their wobbly pitching staff, sent Lefty Mickey Harris and outfielder Sam Mele to Washington Senators Monday for righthander Walt Masterson.

New York Giants shipped catcher Walker Cooper to Cincinnati Reds for backstop Ray Mueller.

The grapevine has the Giants planning a wholesale shift in their personnel. They departed for Cincinnati last night without Mickey Livingston, who along with Cooper had done their catching.

Livingston said he didn't know why he was left behind "unless a deal is cooking."

Reports had Livingston going to either Pittsburgh or Chicago White Sox.

Outfielder Willard Marshall and first-baseman Johnny Mize also are reported on the block. The Giants are looking for an established second baseman and according to the boys in the know they have their sights trained on either Ed Shanky or Sibby Sisti of Bonton Braves with Marshall as the pawn. The Braves are seeking an outfielder of Marshall's class.

Mize, despite his 10 home runs, has not been hitting and his slowness afoot does not fit in with Manager Leo Durocher's style of play. Brooklyn Dodgers are looking for first base insurance but they will have to give up more than reserve infielder Ed Miksis to land Mize.

Yanks Want Outfielder

The rumor mart also was working in the American League with smoke brewing in the ranks of the pace-setting New York Yankees, the runner-up Detroit Tigers and the last place St. Louis Browns.

New York is pinning for an outfielder and it is understood that Manager Casey Stengel will take a chance on Detroit's problem child, Dick Wakefield. The Yanks also would welcome Dick Kokos of St. Louis. The Browns are said to be willing to trade second-baseman Gerry Priddy if they can land a suitable replacement.

Yankee second-baseman George Stirnweiss is the lad the Yanks are rumored as dangling in front of St. Louis and Detroit. The Browns might trade Priddy to Detroit for Wakefield and cash or a pitcher and then ship Wakefield or Kokos to New York for Stirnweiss.

It's hard to tell which team got the best of the Washington-Boston swap.

Little Use to Sox

Mele and Harris have been of little use of the Red Sox. Harris has been troubled with a sore arm since 1946 after being a vital cog in Boston's 1946 pennant winning machine. Mele, after a fine freshman year in 1947, slumped to .233 last season and has been riding the bench in the current race.

Masterson, with the Senators since 1939, has won three and lost three this year. Although his record is unimpressive he is highly regarded by the opposition.

The departure of Cooper was no surprise to Giant followers. Big Coop, purchased from the Cards for $175,000 in 1946 while still in the navy, was in Manager Leo Durocher's dog house, dissatisfied, and irked by the booing of Giant fans.

Mueller, 37, has been knocking around since 1932. He broke his ankle and saw action in only 14 games last year.

FISH ON THE MOVE

Matabitchoun, Ont. (CP) — Many thousands of pickerel will swim in waters far from the Montreal River here. Workmen of the game and fisheries department have been taking roe from the female pickerel at the mouth of the river, fertilizing the eggs in pans and shipping them to lakes across northern Ontario.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By REUBEN CIPIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sydney, N. S., June 14 (CP)—Organized baseball is breathing easier now that the Mexican jumpers have been reinstated. But it could face a tougher problem — an umpires' union.

Baseball's first umpires' union — the 14-man Cape Breton Colliery Senior Baseball League Umpires' Association — lasted only 90-odd minutes. The idea, hatched in one of the Maritimes' five "shamateur" circuits, may be catching. It could be just the salvation for those harrassed men-in-blue and the possible consequences are ceaseless.

The Association was born a little more than an hour before a league executive meeting. Ed (Post - Record) Smith puts it this way:

" . . . A suddenly union-conscious umpiring staff . . . cropped up with a five-point 'demand program,' brandished in front of the league's collective noses like a revolver, pulled the trigger only to have it backfire."

It took Judge D. W. MacAdam, league president, and delegates of the six - team league less than five minutes to vote down the union's requests and bar the association.

Ed says "Delegates listened with expressions of awe bordering on acute shock" as Henry (Pops) Garrington, American-born union representative, enumerated the musts — three umpires for all games, basic pay for plate umpires $12.50 per game and base umpires $10, full travelling expenses paid by the league and half fees for postponed games, equipment provided by the league and passes for umpires' wives to league games.

The league was given no indication it will waver from its decision and the Association says no further bargaining will be involved.

After much thought Ed concluded that "an apology and a little common sense bargaining would be the wisest course for the jobless umpire union."

Chicago Cubs Enter New Regime Under Frisch

Chicago Cubs, June 14 — (AP) —Chicago Cubs, embedded in seventh place, today entered a new baseball regime under the leadership of fiery Frankie Frisch.

The light-touch era of affable Charlie Grimm, steered to the plushness of a vice-president's chair in the front office of the National League club, has been supplanted by a man with a whip in his hand.

Frisch is a hard-driving graduate of the old John McGraw school. He was an acid-tongued "toughie" with the New York Giants and carried his whip-lash playing tactics with him in his managerial role with St. Louis Cardinals. His hard-riding strategy made the Cards famous in baseball lore of the Gashouse Gang.

This is a big day for the old Fordham Flash, who moves into a reported $30,000 a year job from the Giants' coaching lines. The Cubs, ½ game ahead of last-place Pittsburgh, launched a two-week home stand in a clash with the Phillies.

In inheriting a club that has won 19 while losing 31, Frisch's first order was for more aggressiveness on the part of the players.

"I demand hustle," he said, "I'd rather have the guy who tries to go from first to third and is thrown out than the one who just loafs down to second base and is safe."

Jake Lamotta Thinks He Can Beat Cerdan

Detroit, June 14. (AP)—The "new" Jake Lamotta is dead serious about winning the world middleweight championship from Marcel Cerdan at Briggs Stadium tomorrow night.

Listening to the 26-year old challenger talk about some of his less heroic efforts of the past, you get the idea that this really may be a "new Lamotta. He is fired with an overwhelming ambition to win the big one after years of waiting.

"Win or lose, this is something I've looked forward to for a long time," said a solemn Jake. "I always wanted a crack at that title. Year after year, I was the logical contender but I never got a chance.

"I sort of gave up hope. I did not train right some times. I did a lot of things I shouldn't have done. I didn't train or eat right. You know, when you get discouraged, it's rough. The grind of training is tough. You want to do what normal people do. Have a plate of spaghetti or a glass of beer. Especially when you sort of give up hope.

"Right now, I'm in the best condition of my career."

Lamotta, wearing only slacks and shoes, looked the part. There were no tell-tale wrinkles of fat around his middle. Although his nose is bashed in like most fighters going into their 89th pro fight, he is not badly battered. He looks like his nickname—the Bronx Bull.

Eye cuts, suffered in a February losing effort against Laurent Dauthuille at Monreal, may cause him trouble. They have healed but there always is the chance of Cerdan's hooks slashing an opening.

If Jake wins tomorrow, his dough will go back into boxing. Cerdan's managers have a gimmick in the contract that says most of Jake's purse, if he wins is to be held in escrow by Abe Greene, commissioner of the National Boxing Association, pending a September return bout.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 14 — (AP) — At this time a year ago, New York Giants had spurted briefly from second to first place in the National League. Then they spun dizzily downward to fourth place and within a month Mel Ott had been given the bounce as manager and Leo Durocher was imported from Brooklyn for the job . . . They finished fifth after a brief August fling at second . . . Last week the Giants tumbled from first place on Sunday to fifth on Friday and now they're five games behind the league leading Dodgers . . . No wonder they're driven to such desperate measures as trading one old catcher for another old catcher . . . What's the next move? . . . Maybe a change of scenery will do them both good . . .

Card Shark

Vernon Mackie, manager of the Lynchburg, Va., Cardinals in the Piedmont League, probably is the only baseball manager who got his job because the Chamber of Commerce requested it . . . Mackie quit baseball after last season to devote his full time to railroading . . . When the Cardinals were doing badly this spring John J. Wranek, Lynchburg C. of C. president, petitioned R. H. Smith, Norfolk and Western Railway president, to "loan Mackie to the Cards." . . . Smith did and the Cardinals immediately began winning.

WILL ATTEMPT CROSSING

Somerset, Mass., June 14—(AP) —Shirely May France, 16-year-old Somerset high school student, will attempt to swim the English Channel late next month or early August, depending upon the tides.

"I made up my mind to do it three years ago", the 177-pound girl said. "I know I can swim the channel, for I have swam much farther than its 17.8 miles distance under conditions almost as difficult."

The channel crossing will be attempted from Cape Gris Nez, Frrance, to Dover.

A total of 14 men and women have accomplished the punishing feat. Gertrude Ederle set the women's record of 14 hours, 31 minutes for the channel crossing in 1926.

FLORAL FOOD

Wasagaming, Man. (CP)—Deer ate all the tulips in bloom in the park gardens and nearby summer cottages. Cottagers who have been here for 15 years say that instead of one or two deer appearing each summer from seven to 15 turn up every day now.

Not much is needed to make your bridge game better. Even if you are already expert. Even if you are a middle-of-the-road player. Even if you are a beginner. Even if you like to use judgment.

The secret is to know the sound basics. Learn what is correct. Then if you like to deviate you will know how much. Then if you like to use judgement you will know how good it is.

The basis for an opening bid of one in a suit is five tricks, among which are four high cards, four of which are sure tricks; and a suit that is biddable. Why?

Each of the four players at the bridge table is entitled to an average of one fourth of what a pack contains. Not always does each get his share. Times are when a player gets more than his share.

The player who starts the first bid in a deal should do so only if he has better than average in the essential items. Therefore, an opening one bidder merely admits having a better than average hand.

He says he has better than average in high cards (aces, kings, queens). He says he has better than average in sure tricks (aces or equivalent), He says his suit is better than average.

Average in high cards is three; better than average is four. Average in sure tricks is one; better than average is two. Average in suit is one face in three cards; better than average is a suit of four cards with two faces (the longer the suit the less faces.)

A bid of one requires the taking of seven tricks. Until you hear from partner, count on him for no more than two. So when you open with a bid of one have the other five tricks.

Deal yourself this hand:

♠A 3
♥A Q 7 4
♦9 5 4
♣J 7 4 3

Do you have a sound opening one bid? No. You are short one trick. You are short a high card. Hi, shorty.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 14 — (AP)— Why does a Hollywood star make her home in New York?

This question was put to Gene Tierney, who has chosen to live in the east and remain here only to make movies. Her answer:

"My husband's business is in the east (he's designed Oleg Cassini). But there's another reason —that's the discrimination against movie stars in Hollywood.

"Everybody from the butcher to the hairdresser tries to get his share of a star's earnings. Hollywood is the worst place in the world for this. It's a carry - over from the lush days when stars were able to keep the salaries they made.

"But today, by the time the tax collector get through with the salary, there's little left for the mass of people who expect double or triple the price from a star."

Dean Jagger will startle fan in "12 O'Clock High." He plays without a toupee and he's quite bald . . .

Jack Carson, Jr., — son of the Canadian - born comedian — makes his film debut in "Good Humor Man." The seven-year-old is one of 150 kids in a comedy chase . . .

Dorothy McGuire is doing her first film in two years, "Oh Doctor" . . .

Frank Westmore, who has done about everything in make - up, had to apply false ears to Francis, the mule. "He's more co-operative than some actresses I could name" Westmore said . . .

BROOKLYN - BORN MAN SENTENCED

Frankfurt, Germany, June 14— (AP) — Daniel F. McCarthy, Brooklyn - born former United States Army private who said he wanted to renounce his American citizenship and become a German, was sentenced Monday to 8 months in jail — to be served in the United States. The 22-year-old son of a late Wall Street broker had pleaded guilty in a United States military court to a charge of entering Germany illegally.

Robert TAYLOR HAD AN AMBITION TO BE A DOCTOR LIKE HIS FATHER. HIS PARENTS THOUGH, IMPRESSED WITH HIS MUSICAL ABILITY, SENT HIM TO COLLEGE TO STUDY MUSIC. BUT MEDICINE AND THE CELLO WERE FORGOTTEN AFTER HE WAS SPOTTED IN A SCHOOL PLAY BY MOTION PICTURE SCOUTS. THE M-G-M STAR'S LATEST FILM IS "THE BRIBE."

Ava GARDNER WAS GIVEN A SCREEN TEST ON THE BASIS OF A PHOTOGRAPH SPOTTED BY A TALENT CHIEF. AS A RESULT OF THIS "LUCKY BREAK," MISS GARDNER JUST HAD TIME ENOUGH TO GO HOME AND PACK BEFORE SHE EMBARKED FOR THE COAST TO REPORT TO THE STUDIO.

Charles LAUGHTON HAS APPEARED IN MORE THAN 150 PLAYS AND MOTION PICTURES IN 35 YEARS OF ACTING. HIS WIDE RANGE OF ROLES HAVE RUN THE GAMUT FROM LOVABLE OLD BEACHCOMBER TO DEADLY MENACE.

AT THE BELLE — Five Stars in M.G.M.'s drama of love and adventure, "The Bribe."

Say Baby-Sitter, 14, Fatally Beat Child

Lancaster, Pa., June 14 (AP)— A 14-year-old baby-sitter Monday fatally beat a six-year-old boy because the child ripped out the electric cord to the washing machine as she was doing the family wash, State Police reported. The child, Ronald Glen Keller, died in hospital of head injuries. District Attorney John Milton Ranck ordered Jean Sonner, of Lititz, Pa., held at the Shelter Home for Girls in Lancaster. No charges have been placed against the girl.

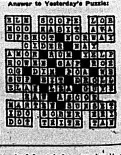
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

I found a swell looking cigar band on the sidewalk, and I took one of pop's cigars and put it on top of his humidore with the band around it, and after supper he leaned back in his private chair and reetched for a cigar while ma was back finishing the dishes, and he saw the cigar with the band on it, saying, Well, what's all this? By gollies your mother has serprized me with a real imported Havanna, and one of the best. She's a smart woman and I'm a lucky man, he said.

And he litt the cigar and started to blow smoke out looking as if he thawt it was the best smoke he ever blew out, and ma came in,

Thank goodness this isn't the end of this cigar, pop said. My, what a cigar. Look at that smoke. It has a certain blueness about it that you'll only find in an imported Havanna. Sniff that aroma. I'd know this was a King Midas even if I didn't see the name on the band, he said, and ma said, I'm glad you're injoying yourself, I'm sure. But just a same, after it goes out I'll have to make my usual request not to leave the gasaly butt languishing around the room, no matter what part of the world it came from, she said.

Making me feel like getting a little credit, and I said, Hay pop, I was the one who put that cigar there. I meen I put the band around it. Some rich man must of threw it away, and I found it, I said, and pop said, The dooce you did. Well, that just bares out an old theory of mine that all injoy-

I've gathered enough momentum to take me to the very end of

And he tried to smoke it all a ways down with the same sattisfied expression, but it didn't quite

Dutch Housewives in Batavia Not Living in Lap of Luxury

Batavia, Java, June 14. (AP).— An average Dutch housewife here has a cook, a laundress and a houseboy. But don't think she and her family are living in a Colonial lap of luxury.

Disorganized politically and economically, Indonesia is far from the paradise for Europeans it was in pre-war days. That paradise was lost—for good, most Netherlands think—when Japanese soldiers overran the Archipelago seven years ago.

An estimated 100,000 Netherlands are crammed today into this steamy, tropical city of 1,500,000 persons.

At least 60 per cent of the Dutch families in Batavia live in garages or in single rooms.

Batavia's price level for main foodstuffs has leaped to 12 times what it was 10 years ago. The average income, at most, is 300 per cent higher than before the war.

In an effort to hold a lid on some prices, the government has issued ration stamps for a few products which can be purchased from special stores at set prices. On this "distributie", as the Dutch call it, are textiles, kerosene, salt, processed milk and locally made cigarets. Rice and sugar were dropped recently from the list.

Chinese owned "Tokos" (shops) are piled high with canned juices from California, cigarets from England, canned meat from Australia and butter from New Zealand, slipped in through the back door. But prices in these wide open "blacket markets" are astronomical enough to stagger the most sturdy Dutch housewife.

Besides the general discomforts of living in one of the most drab, dirty cities of the Orient, The Netherlands here don't know where they stand after almost four years of bitter political bickering and bloody fighting with Indonesion Nationalists.

RADIO ACTIVE BARS STOLEN

Princeton, N. J., June 14 —(AP) — Princeton University Monday reported to police the theft of 12 or 15 lead bars, one of which contains dangerously - radioactive cobalt. Frederick Osborne of the University public relations staff said the bars wehe taken from two laboratory classrooms in the Palmer physicol laboratory during the weekend.

CIVIC TEA SERVICES

Hull, England (CP)—Hull corporation has been so short of good crockery since the war that the mayoress had to use one of her own tea services for official occasions. Now the corporation has bought three tea services for £75 ($300) and silver cutlery for £245

FAMILY AFFAIR

London (CP)—Bus drivers who marry their "clippie" (female conductor) will be able to work with their wives on the same bus, London Transport ruled.

NOT HORNS AT ALL

The so-called horns on a giraffe's head are really soft tufts of skin and fat.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

For the ensuing two days Polly knew no peace at all.

Excitement on the campus mounted. Between classes, at noon hours, all evenings, girls everywhere talked of the forthcoming ball and the competition that had sprung up between Polly and Joy. Polly saw Joy often, said openly that the rivalry was silly and that it didnt matter who lead the dance. But, wish it or no, they were candidates. Prominence is like that.

Eventually the high officers of the freshman class met in solemn session and made their decision. The class president herself announced it at the next morning's school assembly in the main amphitheatre.

"We have decided," she said "to give the honor—and it is an honor, we feel—to the person who most deserves it, to on who has bought new life to this university to one who has made many friends although is new in this school and community, one who—

Joy Boone's supporters broke into applause at one. Applause and shrieks of victory. Joey's face brightened. Polly tried to look pleased, and in a sense was. In another sense, though she was deeply distressed.

"So we have selected," the speaker went on, "our beloved president, Dr. K. T. Palmer himself, to lead our grand march, with whomever he chooses, and it will be an honor to follow him and thus publicly welcome him into Frontier's social life. We feel ——"

The announcement was little short of sensational.

There was a groaning in letdown. A buzz of exclamations and talk about the amphitheatre. A tactful speech of acceptance by Dr. Palmer, then renewed and genuine applause. It all made exciting drama for a day in the lives of these college girls.

But one of them, Polly McMurray, realized all too well that it would simply serve to centre even more attention on herself and Joy Boone. On herself, who secretly had the date with Ken Palmer, Jr. who Joy connived for.

When you love a man it is good just to be near him, even though you know the love it not returned. Polly McMurray told herself that repeatedly, as excuse to "drop in" at the university library when she knew Ken Palmer would be there.

Most of the time she did not let him see her. It would never, never do to have him suspect anything. or——would it?

"I don't see why women can't openly and frankly court the man they choose, just as men openly court the women they want," she told herself. "But that's the way it is. I— I could never run after him. Or any man. "Her problem of course was as old as civilization: to make the man of her choice take the initiative on his own. With a man as quiet and as shy as Ken Palmer, it wouldn't be easy. Especially with so many other considerations to complicate matters.

Her immediate and constant worry now was the vivacious blond girl who had vowed herself to be Polly's friend. Joy Boone.

"Did you tell him, Polly? Joy demanded. "Did you talk to him?"

"Sure. Promised to, didn't I?"

"Tell me. What did he say?" Joy was ebullient this morning. Her violet eyes literally flashed with interest.

"Oh, a lot of things. Not much, either. Ken isn't too talkative, you know. He is deep, reads and studies a lot. In fact he's about the most brilliant boy I ever knew, and needs only to find the proper outlet for his knowledge when he finishes school, but——"

"Polly, I mean about——me. About taking me to the Freshman Masquerade. Is he going to ask me?"

The dark-haired girl forced a laugh. "Give me time. I have to handle a man like Ken with gloves on."

But bluffing could go only so far, Polly knew. In truth she was desperate, striving for time to figure out some course of proceedure torn between loyalty to a friend on the one hand and by normal instincts of self loyalty on the other. Unhappy with it all, she had bluffed Joy for days, while the campus built up more and more excited interest in the forthcoming party. Everywhere the talk was about the ball who, would be there with whom, who would wear what, who as saying this, that and the other.

Three days before the party Joy pinned Polly right down. It was time, Polly, when a definite answer had to be given. She could feel her heart pounding in this interview with Joy.

"He-Ken is so bashful," she tried again. But she realized that wouldn't work.

All at once, in desperation, she took a course she hadn't planned. On impluse she made up a deliberate unselfish falsehood. "Joy, you mustn't expect Ken to be——be conventional. Remember he is the president's son, for one thing. Among 600 girls. And bashful by nature too. He—well, he reversed the business about you. He wants me to make his date, with you."

"Polly."

"Unh-hunh," a fib gets insidiously easier after the first jump in, Polly discovered. "He requested me to ask you if he might have a date. Wasn't that really better? I just led him on, and all, so that I— so that it was his own idea. I didn't have to suggest it, even. He has been practicing dancing. He wants to go. He—he made his own date. I'm just a messenger, see?"

"That's grand.' Joy was giggling.

"But don't you embrass him." Polly turned to her with sudden intensity. "Don't— don't say anything to him about it. Or to anyone. Just be ready. Make it as easy for him as you can."

"Of course—gee-e-e-e."

The effect of all this was too plain. Joy Kathryn Boone was testing a genuinely novel experience——for the first time in her young life dating a man who was shy and retiring, a direct contrast to the cocky, too audacious youths and other males who had courted her back east. It was a brand new sensation for the sensation-loving Joy Boone.

Polly was starting off; appalled, really, at her actions here. Her bright rounded face was almost colorless. Trouble shone in her deep brown eyes. She clutched her school books almost fiercely, and she was nervously biting her lower lip.

All at once she acted impulsively again. Suddenly contrite now for thinking unkind things, suddenly feeling a genuine liking for the blond girl beside her, she turned to Joy and squeezed her wrist.

"Listen, Joy—tell you what. Your to spend the night of the ball with me Friday. Miss Carlson is going with Dr. Palmer—everybody's so thrilled over that. and she'll be busy with her own make up and costuming and all. Give her freedom and stay with me, and we'll help each other. Will you?"

"Sure. I'd love it. Ken has a car. I'm crazy about his funny old wreck. It will be all right for a costume party."

"I'll tell him to come for you," said Polly.

Wherefore, on the Friday afternoon of the Masque, Joy was at Paradise ranch early. She was too keyed up to notice that Polly seemed depresed. She laughed and chattered almost too much. Ward McMurray beamed constantly at her during dinner. He tried to tease the two girls. He, as a matter of fact, might have noticed that his sister was lacking her usual verve, but for the fact that Joy Boone held all of his attention.

Immediate interest after dinner was the busines of dressing—always a pleasure when there is to be a masquerade.

Under Polly's guidance Joy was to be converted into an Apache Indian Maiden. "Best way in the world to conceal* your identity." Polly had declared. "You're a golden blond, with skin as fair as a girl's from England. But when we get through with you—— yippee."

A Phoenix costume shop had strained itself to order the propper things, some of them quite expensive. And now in her room Polly was converting Joy from the white race to the red.

"First thing is a coating of bronzy-brown," she said. "It's just theatrical paint, comes off easily when you're done. Then we'll high-light the cheeks to make them bulge like an Indian's."

"What about my hands?"

"We ordered gloves—remember? And you have very long sleeves."

There was a complete wig. False hair, coal black, and dressed like that of an Apache girl at an important tribal ceremonial. It completely hid Joy's blond ringlets which they tied up on top. Even at his stage Joy Boone was another person. Before the mirror she and Polly admired their work on her, laughing and noting the complete change even though as yet Joy wore only the wig, the paint, a bra and scanties.

The decided on silk hose and regular slippers because the costume dresses would hide them anyway. Authentic Indian footwear would make paleface dancing next to impossible. "and I do love to dance." Joy supplied.

Crowning glory of her costume was the petticoats.

First, a gray one. Then a black, then a crimson, then a blue.

"Honest, Polly however did anybody wear these things? So many of them. Were they really like this? Honest."

Polly laughed. "Still are. The Indian women all go in for quantity of dresses, heel length."

Broad ruffles adorned each petticoat; and the outer dress, a figured print, was rufled all over and further decorated with lace. Finally, there was a blanket. It was Navajo weave' but Polly explained that the Apaches often bartered for the other Indian's blankets, which were of rich woolen beauty and quality. It would make ideal warmth for the night ride on Ken's open jallopy

"You must remember to act the part as well as look it," Polly warned Joy repeatedly. "Giggle a lot if you can—that's Indian girl style. But don't talk. Not naturally. Remember there's a prize for the most authentic masque, and all.

13 INJURED IN $1,000,000 FIRE AT VANCOUVER

WHEN JET HITS JET IN MID-AIR

U.S. army officers and sheriff's deputies are combing through the wreckage of one of the jet planes that are presumed to have collided some 25,000 feet above the earth near Gorman, Cal. The body of Pilot Capt. William A. Higgins of Cranston, R.I., was found near the plane. The pilot of the other plane, Capt. Richard Barr of State College, Pa., parachuted to earth and is hospitalized with cuts, bruises and burns. Capt. Barr was flying an F-86, said to be the world's fastest jet plane, over Antelope valley. He can only recall that he suddenly found himself in the air, falling. He pulled his ripcord and floated to earth. (Central Press Canadian)

Eddie Waitkus, Phillies First-Baseman, Severely Wounded by Chicago Girl

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—Eddie Waitkus, 29, Philadelphia Phillies' star first baseman, was shot and severely wounded early today in the hotel room of a 19-year-old girl.

The girl, tall and dark-haired, was identified by police as Ruth Ann Steinhagen of Chicago after she earlier had given a fictitious name and Boston address. Police Capt. John T. Warren said in a statement she admitted shooting the ball player after he accepted her invitation to come to her room at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

In her statement to police, Miss Steinhagen said she greeted Waitkus on arrival at her room by saying: "I have a surprise for you."

Then, police said she told them, she went to a closet, got a .22 calibre rifle and shot Waitkus. He was shot under the heart and did not regain consciousness at the Illinois Masonic Hospital for more than two hours. Three stitches were taken in the right side of his chest to close the entry wound. But it was reported his condition was too poor to permit probing for the pellet.

Capt. Warren quoted her as telling him: "I'm a fit case for a psychiatrist."

Tension Built Up

Miss Steinhagen, a typist, told reporters she shot Waitkus because "the tension has been building up within me and I thought killing someone would relieve it." But, she added, the shooting failed to relieve the "tension".

She said she did not remember when she first thought of killing Waitkus, whom she did not know. She said she had developed admiration for him since she first saw him play ball three years ago. "He reminds me of everybody, especially my father," she said.

Miss Steinhagen calmly told reporters she first had an "urge" to kill somebody two years ago.

"The urge kept nagging at me and the tension built up," she added.

Police said they found a large envelope stuffed with newspaper clippings and pictures of Waitkus and baseball rain checks.

Waitkus Single

Waitkus, who is single, is playing his fourth year of major league baseball and his first with the Phillies. The Phillies, who came to Chicago Tuesday for a series with the Chicago Cubs, are staying at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Warren said Miss Steinhagen told him that after she shot Waitkus, she telephoned the hotel switchboard operator. She told Edward Purdy, the hotel house detective, "I just shot a man. There's a long story behind this, but I'm not going to talk about it." She was held in jail without charge.

Warren said the girl in her statement related: "I tried to stab him first, but he was too fast. I wanted to kill myself, too."

Mother Dies At Son's Wedding Reception

North Bay, June 15 (CP). — Death brought a tragic climax to a North Bay wedding Tuesday when Mrs. Raphael Girard, 63, resident of this city for the last 45 years, died at her home while a wedding reception was being held for her son, Alfred, and his bride, the former Yvette Clement.

Mrs. Girard had been in poor health for some time and was prevented by illness from attending the marriage ceremony. Guests had gathered for the wedding reception shortly after noon and before the bride and groom could cut their wedding cake they were informed that Mrs. Girard was dying. They and other members of the family left the reception and were at her bedside when death came.

Mrs. Girard is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. H. Melanson, Sudbury; Miss Cecile Girard, North Bay; and seven sons, Edgar, North Bay; Philip, Englehart; Rudolphe, Toronto; Daniel, North Bay, Arthur, Montreal; Alfred, Toronto, and Leo, North Bay.

MOTORCYCLIST'S INJURIES FATAL

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 15 — (CP) — Injuries suffered Tuesday by Graham Patterson, 27, while riding a motorcycle proved fatal. He died in the Greater Niagara General Hospital this morning. Patterson was found lying under his motorcycle with a fractured skull.

BIG-FOUR MEET OFF AS VISHINSKY ASKS 'MORE TIME'

Said Near Agreement On Transport Trade

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, June 15 — (AP) — A scheduled meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers was called off at the last minute today when Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia asked for "more time."

American sources said Vishinsky was not prepared for the meeting with western foreign ministers. Vishinsky had been expected to bring in the Kremlin's answer to western proposals for a transport-trade agreement on Germany.

Russia and the west are reported near agreement on these proposals.

Western sources agree that the proposed commercial accord would be restricted to economic essentials necessary to keep trade and transport moving. They said it would not attempt to settle the complex political problems involved in Germany.

The situation was worsened Tuesday when Berlin's anti-Communist rail strikers turned down a four-power formula for ending the strike.

Western observers said the proposed east-west commercial accord involves two main factors.

1. Establishment of a four-power commission to supervise an all-German economic board dedicated to promoting east-west trade. This commission would in effect replace the wrecked Allied Control Council.

2. Russian guarantees of free transport rights into Berlin from the west in return for an agreed rate of exchange for east and west marks to facilitate trade.

Vishinsky's Proposals

Persons in touch with Tuesday's two-part session said Vishinsky made some proposals at the first meeting on Berlin and German economic issues.

During the two-hour intermission which followed, the western ministers were reported to have studied Vishinsky's statement. While they were doing this the Russian minister was said to have been in touch with Moscow.

The western response was delivered to Vishinsky at the second half of the meeting and he was reported to have consulted Moscow again at the close of the session.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Synopsis:—Scattered thunderstorms which occurred again Tuesday night over Southern Ontario resulted in light rainfalls in rapidly northward over northern Northern Ontario as a storm centre intensified and moved regions during the night. As a result of the development of this storm centre cooler drier air from the west will spread into Southern Ontario. Frequent thunderstorms will occur along the leading edge of the cooler air which is forecast to reach Toronto this evening. Skies will be sunny over most of the province Thursday with cooler temperatures in Southern Ontario.

26 Lives Lost in United States Due to Heat Wave, Flash Floods

By The Associated Press

A mid-June heat wave and drought today threatened crops and fanned fears of serious forest fires in the northeastern parts of the United States.

Meanwhile, as the death toll in the New England heat belt mounted to 15 in the last three days, the flash floods and storms in North Texas took the lives of 11 persons.

In the Pacific northwest, there also appeared danger of forest fires because of lack of rain for weeks.

But over much of the middle west, showers and thunderstorms have brought needed moisture to farmers, brightening an already favorable crop outlook.

No immediate relief from the hot and humid weather appeared in sight for the New England area and a close watch was being kept on the dry forests. Temperatures are in the 80s on the coast and in the 90s inland.

Forest fire hazards are at the peak in New Jersey, now in the 24th day of a drought, and when no rain forecast before late Thursday. In Fair Lawn, N.J., police declared a state emergency because of the low water supply. The only bright spot in the dry picture was the possibility of a good hay crop.

Soaking rains are needed to end the two-weeks drought danger to farms and forests in New York state but, the weather bureau says, no heavy falls appeared imminent.

New Jersey State Department of Agriculture officials said truck farmers faced a "serious damage" to their crops. They said a $5,100,000 sweet corn and potato crop in Burling county was endangered unless there is a heavy rainfall soon.

Scattered Rains Help Ontario Drought Areas But Heavy Rainfall Still is Needed

Toronto, June 15 (CP)—Widely scattered thundershowers were forecast today to give patchy relief to Southern Ontario's dry farms and pasture lands. But heavy rain was not in order.

Weather officials said Tuesday night that light falls of rain were recorded in the southwestern counties of Middlesex and Huron and north to Bruce county.

But farmers say the rain has not yet been heavy enough to cure results of the 19-day drought, that reaches from Kingston in the east to Windsor in the west.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said in Ottawa Tuesday night that Ontario is suffering the worst drought on record and crops were damaged by wide swings in temperature.

Rain also fell in Toronto and suburban communities, to end the four - day heat wave with forecasts of 10 to 12-degree cooler weather.

In suburban Etobicoke taps ran dry Tuesday. Officials blamed the shortage on afternoon lawn sprinklers and said some 3,500,000 gallons a day were being pumped through the water supply.

Throughout the southern section of the province generally little relief is expected from the heat wave. Temperatures that ranged in the high 80s Tuesday were expected to slip to about 80 degrees today.

Area reports showed that rain falls from .05 inches in Windsor to 1.40 inches in Trenton were recorded Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Goderich, in Western Ontario, reported a heavy downpour. But it was not enough to change results of the drought. The hay crop is expected to be about 50 per cent of normal.

From Brantford came reports the drought had seriously lowered the level of the Grand River. The Grand Valley dam is discharging water at less than half the usual flow authorities believe necessary.

Rains helped the potato and tomato crops but were too light to give much relief to the strawberry crop. Prospects of a fair raspberry crop are better.

In the province's northern bushland, intermittent rains with temperatures remaining at about 74 degrees was forecast for today.

SWAMP YIELDS BODY OF BOY; 16-DAY SEARCH

Medico-Legal Expert Says Michel Fontaine Died From Exhaustion

Eastman, Que., June 15 (CP)—A swamp less than two miles from his farm home Tuesday gave up the body of Michel Fontaine, ending the greatest child-hunt in the history of Quebec's eastern townships.

After an autopsy on the body, Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, provincial medico-legal expert, said Tuesday night the frail six-year-old boy died from exhaustion and exposure. This ruled out the possibility of foul play investigated by provincial police when they took over the hunt several days ago.

The tragic ending to the search, confused at times because of the number of false clues and reports that were circulated, will be formally written today at an inquest here.

Provincial police discovered the body partly buried in a bog at the southern extremity of Long Pond.

The position of the body, partly submerged in the swamp, the small head resting against a tree stump indicated Michel had collapsed from exhaution, police said. Decomposition had set in.

It was believed Michel died during the night of May 30. On that evening he had been sent home from a pasture by his brothers who were out to round up the cows.

Walked Away From Home

To reach the pond, the boy apparently walked away from his home, through dense bushland on the Fontaine farm, set in the mountain backwoods some four miles from this village.

It was recalled that on the night Michel disappeared Gerald Hobbs at Magog, reported he had heard a child's cries. Hobbs and his niece were at Hobbs' summer cottage at the time, but they thought the cries came from a child with a fishing party.

Police deducted that Michel tried to skirt the pond, guiding himself by the light in Hobbs' cottage in his attempt to reach safety.

During the hunt for Michel, which brought 3,000 to the area the first weekend of the boy's disappearance, the search was concentrated mostly in the densely-wooded acres of bush on the farm of Charles Fontaine.

Early probings of the pond were unsuccessful, and no concentrated effort was made to locate the boy in the swamp.

Members of the family had been questioned by police early this week, but police later emphasized that their questioning was merely of a routine nature in a continuation of the search for Michel.

HARRY GIDDINGS, RACE HORSE OWNER AND TRAINER, DIES

Had Sent Eight Winners to Post in King's Plate Events

Toronto, June 15 — (CP)—Harry Giddings, outstanding Canadian race horse owner, trainer and breeder, died today. He was admitted to hospital Sunday with a heart condition.

In the King's Plate, blue-ribbon event of Canadian racing, he sent eight winners to the post. The first seven he had trained for others but finally he won for himself in 1942 with Ten to Ace.

A familiar figure around Woodbine Park and other tracks on the Ontario circuit, he had planned to retire this fall. He intended to sell his farm and home at Oakville, 20 miles west of Toronto, and move to California for his health.

In the King's Plate his triumphs started with four winners he trained for his father. They were St. Bass in 1911, Hearts of Oak in 1913, Beehive in 1914 and St. Paul in 1920.

In 1931 and '32 he sent R. W. R. Cowle's Frothblower and Queensway to win the 50 guineas donated by the King annually for the historic race. Two years later he gained Col. R. S. McLaughlin his first Plate victory with the Great Horometer.

Surviving are his widow, his mother and five sisters.

Crash-Lands In Storm, Walks To House for Aid

Hensall, Ont., June 15—(CP)—Flight Cadet Gerald H. Knight of Moose Jaw, Sask. walked away from the wreck of his Havard trainer early today after he crash-landed the plane when it was caught in a brief but violent rainstorm.

He made his way unaided to the farmhouse of Andrew Dougall, half a mile away, where he was given first aid for a gashed nose and facial cuts. Later he was taken to Centralia R. C. A. F. station hospital where he is under observation to determine if he suffererd other injuries.

Knight was on a routine night flight when the summer storm struck suddenly.

Whipped about in the darkness by wind and rain, Knight decided to try a landing. He came down in a field about five miles south of this Huron county village and within 100 yards of the C. N. R. rail line.

Hensall is 35 miles north of London.

DISPUTE TO TEST GOVT. STRENGTH WITH LABOR MEN

Workers May Cripple London's Rail System

London, June 15. (CP)—Britain's busy network of railways functioned today under the shadow of a wage dispute that may test to the utmost the Labor government's relations with organized labor.

For the last few weeks, Sunday strikes in the northeastern division of the nationalized railways have reminded the public how essential railways are. Passengers were stranded, freight and mail delayed. At various points throughout the country there also have been "go slow" strikes with railway workers performing only the most essential duties.

Now, representatives of the 50,000 railway men in the London area have indicated they may cripple the great city's transportation by slowing down after July 4.

Wages are the main issue at stake. The National Union of Railway men which lost a recent bid for a blanket wage increase of 12s 6d ($2.50) weekly now is pressing for 10s.

The railway executive which runs the nationalized railways, has indicated willingness to adjust upwards some of the rock-bottom salaries which are less than £5 weekly. But it has refused to discuss these matters at all while Union members were taking strike action as in the northeast.

Protest in this area ostensibly is against new express runs which require locomotive crews to spend some nights away from home. But most observers think the schedules would be acceptable if wages were increased.

Officially the union is against the strike but even in the best-led unions since the war there have been dissidents ready to disregard official instructions.

Some critics claim J. B. Figgins, general-secretary of the N.U.R., has given tacit encouragement to the strike movement by his belligerent attitude toward the government. He openly blames the railway executive for the strikes.

It was Figgins who tried unsuccessfully at the recent Labor party conference at Blackpool to win passage of a resoution asking the party executive to consider proposals for the effective participation by workers in the control and management of nationalized industries.

He said the railway executive was willing to consult with his union but he did not consider that enough. The union was ready to fight for a real share in the management even if it meant a "head-on collision."

Further clarification of the railway men's attitude should come tomorrow when delegates to conference of the N.U.R. meet in London. London workers have set July 4 as a deadline for wage increases if a slow down is to be avoided.

The Manchester Guardian, summing up the Labor government's difficulties in connection with the dispute, said editorially, that the railway men's attitude revealed "how little the change of ownership (of the railways) has affected the minds of the workers and how, indeed, they have become more exacting in their demands from a publicy-owned enterprise than from one under private ownership."

Many Buildings Razed or Partially Destroyed in Blaze

Fire One of the Most Serious, Spectacular in City's History

Vancouver, June 15 — (CP) — Thirteen persons were injured early today in a four-alarm fire which raged uncontrolled for nearly two hours through a main industrial section of east-central Vancouver.

An early estimate of damage by Fire Chief R. M. MacDonald was "easily more than $1,000,000."

The fire broke out at 5:18 a.m., (EDT) and was declared under control at 7 a.m. (EDT). It had razed or partially destroyed:

Two fuel companies, a refractory plant, an asbestos plant, two paper stock companies, two lumber yards, a cafe, a war salvage firm, a stone-cutting plant, a welding shop, a pier, an unknown number of small boats and a private home.

Three in Hospital

Three of the 13 fire casualties are in hospital.

They are:

John Erickson, 63, who suffered multiple burns and other injuries when he was trapped in his flaming houseboat, one of 14 moored in the fire area.

George Ingram, 24, ambulance driver, recovering from shock suffered when he dived into the waters of False Creek to rescue Erickson.

Capt. G. Madison, who suffered a punctured foot while fighting the blaze.

In addition, 10 firemen are reported suffering from minor injuries. They were not held in hospital.

Lifted Across Street

A 30-mile-an-hour east wind lifted the fire at one point across Main Street to endanger additional industrial buildings worth millions of dollars. The advance was checked quickly however.

Chief MacDonald said about 500 the blaze. including those off duty — fought the blaze. All equipment available was being used.

A district chief described the blaze as one of the most serious and spectacular in the city's history.

The fire consumed an area three blocks in length and on a two-block front, bounded by Main Street on the north and False Creek on the south. The area lies about two blocks south of the Canadian National Railways station.

Unknown Origin

Cause of the fire is unknown although reports said an explosion preceded it.

The Vancouver fire boat played streams of water on a small dock which was burned completely.

Numerous small fires created by the wind-whipped sparks dotted the immediate area but were either immediately sniffed out or fell in harmless spots.

The wind was so strong at times that fire ladders tumbled.

Mystery Throat Epedimic Reaches Near Emergency Stage, 1,000 Affected

Prince George, B.C., June 15 (CP). — A three-week-long epidemic in this northern British Columbia district swelled today to practically emergency proportions.

With approximately 1,000 persons sick, six town doctors were hard-pressed while eight hospital nurses in the crowded 80-room hospital were badly in need of rest.

An emergency hospital regime may be necessary, officials said, clearing practically all wards to handle only epidemic victims.

An appeal for 15 to 20 graduate nurses was sent out Tuesday by T. Musto, hospital superintendent. Doctors described the infection as not particularly serious but containing possibilities for complications.

Dr. T. Patterson, government health officer, said a virus of unknown origin appeared to be the trouble maker.

Throat glands swell first, followed by severe sore throats, head aches and high temperatures. Abscesses in the throat glands were named as one complication.

It was also reported that the infection has attacked centres surrounding Prince George, 500 miles north of Vancouver. Burns Lake, Smithers and Hazleton, all in the Cariboo, were named specifically.

Doctors, some without sleep for lengthy periods, said only sulfa drugs of available antibodies have proved beneficial and these only in some cases. No microbes have been found which leads to suspicion that a virus is to blame.

At Victoria, health department officials said they had received no notification of the attack.

Age of Admission Into Kindergarten Is Under Question

Oakville, June 15 (CP). — A deputation of Oakville parents Tuesday asked the school board to reconsider its decision of last year that children must be five years old by Sept. 1 before they can enter kindergarten.

W. H. Lind, spokesman for the parents said children whose birthdays come a few days after Sept. 1 lose a year. He said a child who is not allowed to enter school until he is nearly six would not get his senior matriculation until he is 20.

Members of the board said the measure was passed to make sure children were developed mentally and physically to start school. But they agreed to study the matter before further action.

Calgary Herald To Pay $5,000 For Damages

Edmonton, June 15. (CP) — Charles B. Hill, superintendent of the Alberta Child Welfare Branch, Tuesday was awarded $5,000 damages on conclusion of the Supreme Court trial of his $25,000 damage action against the Calgary Herald.

Mr. Hill launched the action following publication of a series of articles on child welfare in the newspaper two years ago. He claimed two of the articles were defamatory to his character and position.

In ruling for the plaintiff, Mr. Justice C. C. McLaurin said Mr. Hill had clearly been defamed by a story which appeared May 28, 1947.

"Mr. Hill is entitled to damages of $5,000 and the costs of his action," Mr. Justice McLaurin said. He conducted the trial without a jury.

Although the Herald said in this article it could uphold statements that there had been an irregular adoption, the alleged facts had since proven wrong, the Judge asserted.

Stating he hoped "this would be the last of the welfare business", Mr. McLaurin said the extravagant terms used had "clearly been defamatory to Mr. Hill".

Defendant's stand of "qualified privilege" had not been substantiated, he concluded.

Finnish Government Survives Opposition

Helsinki, Finland, June 15 — (AP) — Finland's moderate social democratic government last night survived an attack by the Agrarian opposition in parliament by a narrow margin of 94 votes to 92. It was Premier Karl August Fagerholm's second two-vote victory this year on a question of confidence in his government. Conservatives backed the Social Democrats against a critical report by parliament's appropriations committee, which was supported by the Agrarians.

MISS HELEN SULMAN GAVE READING

In yesterday's report of the Women's Progressive Conservative meeting at which Mrs. O. T. Funston was the guest speaker, the name of Miss Helen Sulman was inadvertently omitted. As part of the entertainment for the evening's program Miss Sulman gave a very humorous reading.

BASEBALL GAME IS POSTPONED

Mother Nature still has things her own way. Due to the heavy rain that has fallen the baseball game that was scheduled between Northern Electric and Trenton Flyers has been postponed because of the grounds being too wet. Word was received from the Parks Commission to that effect at noon today.

FIREMEN CALLED TO STACK FIRE

Firemen were called to the Corbin Lock Company plant on Coleman street at eight o'clock this morning to extinguish a stack fire. The factory fire alarm rang for some minutes at the time of the fire but the trouble was quickly corrected and firemen reported no damage.

DATE OF DEADLINE EXTENDED TO JUNE 22

Bill Dennis, convener of the Commercial Softball League, has announced the deadline for the signing of players and the listing of same with the league secretary has been extended to Wednesday, June 22.

Ben Gill Factory Will be Rebuilt

Ben Gill cheese factory which burned Sunday noon with a loss of approximately $14,000 will be rebuilt as soon as possible it was decided Monday evening at a meeting of the patrons.

Since the fire patrons' milk is being sent to several other factories in the county.

It is the second time that the Ben Gill cheese factory has been burned, the factory having been destroyed by fire 26 years ago. The factory was then rebuilt on a larger scale.

Ben Gill factory was one of the largest in the district and was making 30 cheese per day at the time of the fire.

Prime Minister Will Speak During Train Stop Here

Word has been received by the Liberal headquarters that on Saturday, June 18, the Hon. Louis St. Laurent will make a short address during a train stop here.

The workers of the Liberal party have prepared a reception for the Prime Minister when he arrives at the C.N.R. station at 1 p.m. Mr. St. Laurent will speak briefly from his private railroad car that is attached to the regular train which will be held for 15 minutes while he speaks.

Says U.S. Must Re-invest Credit Balance in Trade

Toronto, June 15—(CP)—International freedom is a prime necessity for Belgium and the Belgian Congo, L. C. Ameye, economic advisor to the Banque De Bruxelles, said today.

Addressing a special luncheon of the Canadian Exporters' Association, he said Belgians cannot confide in a state-controlled economy or consider "any kind of international charity in an unbalanced world."

"We place great hopes in the part played by the United States and Canada in the international sphere."

Benelux, he said, represents an achievement of economic freedom in Europe and its realization will mean "the first major step toward unification of western European economies."

"The dollar problem of Begium and, in fact, of the whole of Europe, would not be solved without the United States re-investing their credit balance in international affairs.

Mr. Ameye attributed Belgium's recovery after the second world war to two major factors: massive imports of raw materials and foodstuffs, and a quick return to a free economy following the wartime regulations imposed by the enemy.

POLICE BLOTTER

The fair ground canteen was broken into some time Sunday night it was reported to police yesterday by Wes. Evans, canteen operator. Police reported the east window of the canteen had been forced but nothing was taken, it appearing that the canteen had been used by the intruders for staging a party.

A tractor owned by the Port Hope Construction Company and operated by Douglas Goodfellow of Corbyville, was checked by police yesterday while it was being operated on Cannifton Road. Police said the tractor treads were damaging the pavement. The owner will be charged under the H. T. A.

A Parker Street motorist reported his windshield had been cracked by a lad throwing stones. The boy's father agreed to pay for the damage.

Belleville Parks Board Hampered by a Stringent Budget Kiwanians Informed

"The Belleville Park Board hampered by a stringent budget, has been forced to postpone improvements to city parks and do a job of maintenance of existing facilities," said Orland Pinkston, secretary-treasurer of the Parks Board in a forthright address on the park situation in Belleville delivered Tuesday afternoon to the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

"This year the park allotment amounted to one mill, or about $13,000, $6,700 of which the Board never saw because of debenture payments on Fair Grounds buildings, and the baseball lighting system," the speaker continued. "Of the balance, more than $4,000 was spent for labor for the upkeep of Exhibition Park."

Mr. Pinkston explained to the members that the local parks board was organized in 1920, and that a provincial statute gives it jurisdiction over parks and boulevards in the city limits. Two members are appointed annually by the city council for a term of three years.

"We have no Sunnyside, Kew Beach, or Allan Gardens, but we do have 90 acres of parks in the city, of which Exhibition Park, of 30 acres, is the largest, the most used, and the most expensive. Fair buildings and the grandstand are not in good condition, and by the time all debentures on them have been retired in 1950, we shall probably have to build all over again.

"We realize that many improvements are needed, such as a fence around the ball field, a score board, and so on, but we have no money to do more now," the speaker stated. "Space has been set aside in the park for a trap and skeet shooting range and the papers for the site of a curling rink have been drawn up. There is a dance hall at the park, operated by a group of local men that has provided much needed entertainment, and at the same time drawn much praise for its management.

Victoria Park Headache

Mr. Pinkston went on to say that "Victoria Park is a headache. It's buildings are in bad condition. Not much can be done with it until the water in the harbor is cleaned up and that will take a sewage disposal plant."

He continued by mentioning Corby Park, Memorial Park, Riverside Park, and the Stewart-Warner Field, as well as the children's parks on Charles Street, and St. Paul's Street.

The speaker concluded his remarks with a reference to Zwick's Island which he labelled as "a bone of contention for years". He could not see how much could be done with the island unless, "a couple of hundred thousand dollars is spend to make a real job of it."

The speaker was introduced by Fred Adams and thanked by Hugh Neilson.

Three new members were installed in the club with Ken Graham officiating. They are Jim Jarvis of the Northern Electric Company, Ron Keel, jeweller, and Emmerson McCallum, Belleview Glass and Mirror.

Max Matthews of the Canadian Legion outlined a "Get Out the Vote" campaign sponsored jointly by the Legion and the Canadian Chambers of Commerce, and urged the club members to support the project actively.

Everett Fairman received the president's rose for his work in organizing the recent Kiwanis Tag Day. Mr. Fairman modestly passed on the credit to his co-workers. The amount received was $516.10.

The sing-song was led by Harold Carruthers accompanied by Phil Huddlestone at the piano.

County Council to Celebrate 100 Years of Government

Stately Shire Hall, home of Hastings County legislation for well over a century, will celebrate 100 years of county council government this year.

For it was 100 years ago that Edward Fidler "town reeve of Rawdon", following a close electoral battle on the floor of the hall was named warden and formally opened Hastings first county council.

One hundred wardens, some of them bearing the noblest names of Hastings County have come, and ninety - nine of them have gone, with the greater majority having passed away.

And special tribute will be paid to those men who through efficient legislation, through fat times and lean ones, brought the county to its present proud position of being debt-free.

Warden S. A. McCarey, reeve of Tweed, in his opening address at the first meeting of the June session of the council yesterday paid special attention to the fact that the body would celebrate the 100th birthday of county council government in Hastings.

Celebrate Centennial

"We are celebrating the Centennial summer session of municipal governments," he said. "These originated back in 1843 before the Baldwin Act came into effect. This act, in 1850 provided for our present form of municipal government, to which has been added some sound legislation by county councils."

"We meet here this June with gratitude to those grand men who have preceded us and especially those of the earlier days who constituted a government 'of the people, by the people and for the people'," he said.

"Records of those meetings of 100 years ago are available," the warden said, and he urged his council to peruse them in order to get an idea of the able efficient manner in which county government was conducted in the early eighties.

Three 'R's' Essential

The "three R's" were the essentials of education in the days when county councils were born, the warden said. "Those men were not concerned with isms but with thoughts of how best to carry out the wishes of the people who placed them in office."

It had been suggested to him several times that some sort of celebration commemorating the council's 100th birthday should be observed. "I hope something will be done about it before this session concludes."

Pointing out that equalization of assessment and the striking of the estimates were the two main items of the sessional agenda, Warden McCarey reminded his council that "we must concern ourselves with the welfare of the ratepayers, those who pay the bills." I wonder sometimes how much more the taxpayer can stand, he said, urging the estimates committee to keep within reasonable bounds.

Asked To Eliminate Grants

He suggested that the Equalization of Assessment Committee and the Committee on Estimates make as much effort to eliminate as many grants as possible through equalization.

The warden expressed his sincere appreciation of the co-operation given him by the various county committees since the January session. He hoped all forthcoming problems would be dealt with in the same fair manner as those in the past, and he asked the council for the same co-operation that was afforded him in the January session, and since.

Warden McCarey received a fine ovation at the conclusion of his address. He then named the following committees:

Equalization—Reeve B. Bleecker (chairman), B. Walsh, A. Hagerman, C. Bush, F. Moorecroft, V. Lynch, T. Scott, T. W. Tryon, A. G. Sauer, H. A. Harrison, the warden and Clerk E. Denyes.

Estimates—J. Sprackett (chairman), J. A. Bell, W. Spencer, J. A. Kincaid, P. Moore, L. Grills, H. M. Coulter, C. T. Rollins, S. Homan, the warden, the county clerk, and County Treasurer R. Bailey.

A communication from the Tweed Parks Board inviting the council to hold its centennial celebration in the Tweed park was read to council. After a brief discussion the letter was placed on the table and will be discussed further before the session ends.

The committee on equalization met prior to council convening for its morning session today.

Quinte Chapter R.A.M. Members Visit London

Officers and Companions of Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 227 to the number of thirty-one, visited St. George's Chapter No. 5 in London and conferred the Royal Arch degree on a candidate on Saturday last.

The degree was exemplified by Ex. Comp. Earl Lidster and his staff of officers and at the conclusion the visitors were entertained at the Shriners' Club. A committee of Rt. Ex. Comp. W. B. Stothers and Ex. Comp. Charles Few looked after the entertainment program and arranged accommodation for the visitors at the London Court Cabins. Rt. Ex. Comp. Roy Anderson and Rt. Ex. Comp. Bruce Smith of the Grand Chapter from this city accompanied the chapter members.

A presentation was made to the home chapter of a parchment scroll on behalf of Quinte Chapter, this presentation being made by Scribe E. Very Ex. Comp. Monty Barlow, while Ex. Comp. W. P. Youdale expressed the appreciation of the visitors for the splendid time that had been provided.

After the regular convocation next Monday night the local chapter will call off all meetings until October.

OBITUARY

MISS M. ALBERTA VERMILYEA
(Thurlow Township)

Miss Myrtle Alberta Vermilyea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vermilyea, 4th. concession of Thurlow township, died in the Belleville General Hospital Wednesday morning after a brief illness.

The late Miss Vermilyea was born in Thurlow township 26 years ago and all her life was passed there. She graduated from the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School and later from the Ontario Business College. For the past six years she was a secretary in the Superintendent's office of the Canadian National Railways here. She was a member of the Stone United Church, Thurlow township.

The death of Miss Vermilyea has caused deep feelings of regret to be entertained by a large number of friends in this city and throughout the district. She was well liked and highly esteemed in the office where she was engaged and in her social life she was popular and held in high regard.

Surviving to mourn her loss and to whom the sympathy of many friends will be extended are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vermilyea and one brother, Mr. Farley McCoy Vermilyea, Thurlow township.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Barn is Destroyed In Lower Greenbush

A barn owned by Charles Young in Lower Greenbush, Prince Edward County, was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. Calves and a bull in the barn were saved.

The fire started in a straw stack near the barn but lack of water prevented volunteers from getting the fire under control before it reached the barn.

Fearing that the house would also burn the household contents were carried out but the dwelling did not catch fire.

Mr. Young had recently installed a new milking machine in the barn and part of this equipment was saved.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 15—(CP)—Prices climbed slowly in very light trading here today to continue Tuesday's slight recovery movement of Monday's losses. A wide list of industrial issues showed gradually lengthening gains and base metals brightened quietly Golds. were practically at a standstill but the few issues trading edged upwards.

Papers continued to slide in industrials while a wide list stocks scattered throughout the other groups climbed. Utilities, refining oils, liquors, steels and foods were among the better groups. Gains were held to fractions while the few losses ranged to a full point.

Consolidated Smelters led the upturn in base metals, adding $1 at $86..75 in comparatively active dealing. Noranda and Quemont were up fractions and Pend Oreille gained 30 cents at $3.70. Sherritt Gordon bucked realizing sales on yesterday's 19-cent advance, dipping six cents at $1.49.

A few junior gold producers showed advances ranging up to 10 cents.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, June 15 — (CP) — Produce prices quoted on the spot market here today follow: churning cream, No. 1, 58 cents fob, 62 delivered.

Butter prints unquoted.

The egg market was easier on top grades this morning. dealers were buying cautiously and only for immediate requirements. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large, 53; A medium, 51; A pullet, 44-45; Grade B, 41; Grade C, 39. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 57-58; A medium, 55-56; A pullet, 52; Grade B, 46-47; Grade C, 41-42.

Butter solids: first grade tenderable solids, 58; other first grades 56¼.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, June 15 — (CP) — Trade was very dull in the forenoon session of the Toronto stock yards twith cattle sales too few to establish a market trend. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle, 170; calves, 200; hogs, 280; sheep and lambs, 120. The holdover from yesterday's session was 4,400 head.

Medium to good light steers were $19-$21.50 on the few sales. yards with cattle sales too few to $13. A few bulls sold for $17-$19. Fed yearlings moved at $20-$22.

Calf prices were weak in morning sales. Good top choice vealers were $22-$24. Plain to medium sold for $15-$20.

Hogs were steady at $32 for Grade A and $31.60 for Grade B1.

Good spring lambs sold for $27-$28. A few sheep brought $6-$13.

HOGS

Toronto, June 15 — (CP) — Hog prices at Peterborough today were down $2 at $31.40 for Grade A.

Dressed Grade A hogs were $33.75 delivered at Hull.

Other markets unavailable.

POLICE SAY HE TOOK CAR TO COOL FAMILY OFF

Toronto, June 15 (CP)—A man who police said stole a car to take his wife and baby for a ride "to cool them off" was arrested in North Toronto, Tuesday. The mother and child were allowed to return home and the father was chaged with car theft.

Steel Operations Down 2½ Points

New York, June 15—(AP)—Steel labor is more on the defensive than it has been in years in contract negotiations, the Iron Age, metal-working trade weekly, says today.

The publications says managment is determined to make no concessions that will raise the price of steel, increase over-all costs or further depress the declining steel market.

The present outlook in the industry, says The Iron Age, "is nothing to make either steel or labor people happy." Operations were placed at 86.5 per cent of capacity, down 2 1-2 points this week. Incoming business is off considerably and cancellations are increasing.

Discussing the coal tie-up the trade weekly says that "it now looks like the steel industry could easily weather a complete coal shutdown for two months before any drastic steel cutbacks would come. By that time lack of steel business might be doing more than lack of coal to keep output down."

In the scrap market, it reported business dull and prices lower. Declines of 75 cents a ton at Chicago and $1.50 at Philadelphia for No. 1 heavy melting grade were credited with depressing the Iron Age steel scrap composite to $20.92 a gross ton. This is a drop of $22.08 a ton from the year's high.

BOY IS RESCUED BY WOLF CUBS

Campbellford, June 15 (CP)—Bobby Holmes yesterday was rescued from drowning by two Wolf Cubs who put into practice the life-saving drill they had learned.

His two rescuers were Wilfred Jones, 11, and John Beatty, 9. The boy fell into the Trent Canal at Black Bridge near here when the two Cubs who were swimming a little distance away heard his screams and ran to save him.

Brighteners

Chicago (AP)—If a man lights a cigar with a $5 bill does that mean he knows the bill is a phoney? Or was Mr. Litberg lit himself?

The United States Court of Appeals worked over this trick situation Tuesday and came up with this answer:

"...the burning of the bill, while an unusual incident, furnishes an insecure premise upon which to abse an inference that the defendant had knowledge that it was counterfeit.

"It is far more reasonable, so we think, to infer that the defendant's act was the by-product of too much liquor..."

Thus the court reversed a conviction and six month sentence imposed on Morris Litberg, 31, on a charge of possessing counterfeit money.

The Appeals Court said Judge Philip L. Sullivan evidently relied largely on the bill-burning testimony as an indication that Litberg knew the bill was counterfeit, as well as three others he had passed earlier.

Tydd Saint Giles, England, (Reuters)—A pair of hawks deserted their nest 20 feet up a tree here because a cat had moved in with her family of three kittens.

George Pentelow, seeing that the hawks were no longer frequenting their home, climbed the tree to investigate and found the three kittens in residence.

Sonthofen, Germany, (Reuters)—A wild boar in a bar here yesterday did everything the bull did to the china shop before it was killed and rationed out to Sonthofen citizens.

The boar, estimated to weigh more than 1,000 pounds, crashed through the plate glass window of a bar, upsetting tables and scattering burghers and United States troops.

It crashed through another window, with scores of beer drinkers in pursuit, and for a short time spread confusion along the cobblestone streets before it was cornered and killed.

NINE BREAK-INS IN SCHOOL

Toronto, June 15 — (CP)—C. H. R. Fuller, business administrator, Tuesday night told the property committee of the City Board of Education that there have been nine break-ins recently in Toronto schools.

Included he said, was the theft of a motion picture projector from Jarvis boys school, $5 from Coleman school's Red Cross money and a quantity of hardware from other schools.

DIES HOUR AFTER ACCIDENT

Bowmanville, June 15 — (CP) — John Lawrence Cryderman, 47, died in hospital Tuesday about an hour after he was run over by an automobile.

Police said Cryderman was cycling west of Bowmanville and turned to enter a driveway when a car driven by Ray West of Orono, five miles northeast of here, knocked him to the road. Another car, driven by John Gillespie of Hartford, Conn., travelling behind, passed over him.

NAMED TO RIDLEY COLLEGE

St. Catharines, June 15 (CP)—Ridley College's Board of Governors today announced the appointment of Percey H. A. Wykes of Winnipeg as a house master of the Upper School. He starts here in September.

Since 1937, Mr. Wykes has been headmaster at Ravenscourt school in Winnipeg. Prior to that he taught at Mill Hill school in London, England. He will teach mathematics and history at Ridley.

HOCKEY PLAYER HURT

Toronto, June 15 — (CP) — Eric Pogue, Toronto hockey player, was taken to hospital Tuesday suffering from a fractured collarbone, fractured ribs and a possible fractured elbow after an automobile collision in suburban Scarboro. Police said a car driven by Robert McBride collided with Pogue's car and forced him into the ditch. McBride received a fractured rib and brush burns but was allowed to go home after treatment.

The Colussus of Rhodes was a brass statue of the Greek sun-god Apollo and stood about 109 feet high.

Commercialized Vice Returns To Many U.S. Towns, Cities

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, June 15 (AP)—Commercialized prostitution is returning in many United States cities and towns, especially smaller ones, says the Journal of Social Hygiene.

Brought under fairly good control during the war, and record now is the worst in the last nine years, adds the report by the American Social Hygiene Association.

More than half of 213 communities in 42 states and Alaska studied last year were "unsatisfactory with relation to prostitution," it said. Most of them were close to military bases and "unsatisfactory conditions are found, it is in the main in the small communities—from 5,000 to 100,000 population—where facilities and public backing are less available."

The report adds that "the situation does not present any difficulites that cannot be solved by prompt, vigorous community action."

There have been vast improvements over 20 and 40 years ago, the report continues.

"Extensive red light districts have been eliminated. Brothels formerly harbored 10 to 20 inmates. Today they seldom have more than five, often only two, in many instances but one.

"Streetwalkers are far less numerous and much more clandestine in their operations. The modern counterparts of the sexually promiscuous females who paraded their activities in the saloons of pre-war days and in the speakeasies of the prohibition era, work in a more covert manner now."

MAY RECORD IMPROVES

The month of May showed improvement in safety of travel on the highways, roads and streets of Ontario, there being fewer deaths in that month than during the same month last year. The May 1949 total stands at 44 killed as compared with 60 in May 1948.

But the first five months of this year lead by a third the total of fatalities in the same period of 1948, namely 258 as compared with 194.

Children and pedestrians were unusually hard hit by traffic tragedies in May 1949 with 13 victims being under 15 years of age, four more than in May last year. Two of these were knocked off bicycles, ten were on foot and one was a little girl who fell out of the door of a moving truck and under its rear wheels. Eight of the victims were adult pedestrians.

Five of those killed were in cars which collided with railway trains. This fact should carry a warning to every driver to exercise unrelenting caution when driving across railway tracks.

At the present time special efforts are being made to have safety emphasized to school children just before the school year closes, in view of the record amount of motor traffic that is expected in the summer holiday months. Highway officials are urging parents to keep their children's summer activities away from streets and highways.

Last year in the seven months from June 1 to the end of the year there were 740 motor vehicle accident deaths in Ontario. This surely indicates the ever-present danger on the highways. The last six months of the year showed very heavy toll, August and November leading the totals of tragedies. It is the hope of everyone that there may be a great improvement in the same seven-month period this year. There should be and this need should be driven into the consciousness of every motorist and pedestrian. In August 1948 for instance 94 fatalities occurred, over an average of three a day and November with 93 traffic deaths for thirty days even exceeded August average. Could this picture of tragedy be really experienced in the minds of every motorist and pedestrian and other user of the highways, streets and roads, it surely would bring results.

To read figures may not impress as much as a mental picture of suffering and anguish might the awfulness of even one highway tragedy, let alone scores upon scores month after month.

There is only one type of driving that can be allowed, careful driving, considerate driving, driving without recklessness or undue speed. Safe driving is the only sort that can be allowed upon the roads.

Last year's total of 740 deaths in traffic accidents is a shocking loss. It means that the population equivalent of a large number of hamlets and settlements, or of a number of villages of no mean size has been wiped out. Reading of individual accidents cannot drive home the horror of a scene of accident. Each accident is more than just the story of an accident, it is a story of agony, of loss of a father or mother or child, irreparable bereavement, changed lives and incidentally of financial loss to individual and to insurance companies and also the great loss the state sustains in maimed or prematurely ended lives. Each month's loss is a loss of a fair-sized settlement, and a few months' total loss means the equivalent of the disappearance of the people of a good sized village. Surely with laws and good roads and advice handed to everyone in this motor age there should be an improvement in the situation that would be striking. Loss of life on the highways is surely not something inevitable.

It is certainly the will of everyone that there should be not a single fatality but last year 740 funerals passed along roads and streets and highways of Ontario because there had been 740 deaths in motor accidents.

The improvement seen in the first five months of this year is a beginning which it is hoped will continue.

EAST AND WEST

To the already overcrowded Shinto pantheon the Japanese have added a new democratic deity and push-button luminary. The recently formed Deshinkyo, or electric gods sect, has taken Thomas Alva Edison as its tutelary deity in gratitude for the benefits of electricity, love, peace, and the scientific knowledge of electric culture, says Christian Science Monitor.

The idols of East and West alike cast shadows over the one world of our hopes. The light of common understanding must come from something more than a shared technology, a worship of power and efficiency, the turning of a switch. It must come from a reverence for an intelligence beyond Edison, a simplicity beyond the Denshinkyo, a oneness beyond the division of East and West.

WITH GRATITUDE

I saw him on a park bench and I sat
Beside him, thinking he might like to chat.
"How goes it?" I inquired. He said: "I'm one
Of whom you should have asked: 'How has it gone?'
There's very little left, as you can see,
But this I'll say: Life has been good to me."

His face was wrinkled and his hair had grayed.
He had known boyhood, and had loved a maid;
Many a little wagon wheel
he'd oiled;
Played Santa Claus for them about a tree.
"Yes, I can say: Life has been
good to me.

I've had both health and strength my task to do;
Known many joys, and suffered heartaches, too.
I've proudly watched my children as they've grown.
I know the pain of being left alone.
Of birthdays I have lived for eighty-three.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 15th., 1929

Mrs. George Ashley has returned home from Albany, N. Y., where she attended the graduation of her daughter, Miss Viola Ashley, at the Albany General Hospital.

The Lamplighter in his column "Sidelights", has the following to say about one of our well known and popular citizens: "Jimmy Bankier has preserved his voice for posterity in several songs recorded for the phonograph. Now when Jimmy gets old and gray and his voice no longer lends itself to the sweet cadence of old, he can crank up the old phonograph and put his own record on just to prove to the new generation that singing in those days was singing and not the kind of jazz warbling which it may have degenerated into by that time. "When You and I Were Young Maggie", would be an appropriate selection. Jimmie's records are on sale here now and going like proverbial hot cakes".

30 YEARS AGO

June 15th., 1919

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Reid, Moira Street west, celebrated the 50th. anniversary of their wedding yesterday. The members of the family, grandchildren and friends were present to extend congratulations and to express good wishes for their future happiness and prosperity. They received many useful and valuable presents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. E. Mason have returned home after spending a week with friends in Toronto and Woodstock.

Mr. Herbert H. Webb of Toronto spent yesterday here with friends.

Mrs. G. A. Vandervoort has left to spend the summer with friends in St. John, N.B.

Dr. J. W. Ross, formerly of this city, now Canadian Trade Commissioner to China, with headquarters in Shanghai, is spending a few days in town. He recently arrived in Canada from China.

Mrs. G. R. Hinch will sail for France from Montreal early in July.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Cameron of Brandon, Hamilton, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. McCargar in this city. Mr. Cameron has not been in Belleville for many years and he is much pleased to note the great improvement in the city.

At a special meeting of the officers and teachers of Holloway Street Methodist Church Sunday School which was held last evening, Mr. P. F. Canniff was elected Superintendent of the school for the ensuing year and Mr. George Dulmage was elected Secretary for the same term. A very cordial expression of thanks was extended to the retiring Superintendent, Mr. George Woodley for his untiring efforts during the past two years, through which the school has been brought to its present high state of efficiency.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUTWEAR THE ACCIDENTS!

Life is precarious at its best It strewn with accidents—most of them unexpected. We have neither eye-sight nor soul-sight into the morrow. But this we can do—and in good heart—we can take these accidents as they occur—and outwear them! Like the cut or scratch on any part of your body, accidents heal.

I do not refer here, however, to the accidents of the body, or physical accidents, but to those accidents of the mind, the heart and the soul. The wounding of the spirit, which may take longer to heal than physical accident. The hurts and accidents of the heart in youth do not heal readily, but a later maturity in intelligence can outwearr them, and in a measure recover one's lost happiness.

The love of God in one's heart can bring beauty and peace, where once wreckage played its tragic role. It is said that time heals all sorrows, but it isn't so much time as it is the maturing of the spirit within one. As sorrow and misfortune recede, the soul is given a new glow of light through faith and understanding.

Most people do not intend to hurt another. It is an accident of thought. Nothing is so important in this connection, as the education of the heart. Happiness is largely a matter of education. Its the ignorant who cause trouble. And only God, in his mercy, can take care of such as they.

It is difficult either to forgive or to forget deliberate wrongs, but even in such cases, the cause is usually one of accidents of birth or training. It was Christ know not what they do."

Worrying about something that has already happened will do no good. Neither will brooding over it. We must pass on. If people learned to outwear their mistakes, their failures, and their misgivings, there would be far less for the psychiatrists to work on.

So much of the unhappiness in life is the result of hanging on to the misfortunate memories of the past. Little accidents of time and place. But there is a remedy—outwear them with a forward resolve and brave spirt!

Mackenzie's Column:

Moscow to Launch Program Against Yugoslavia

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

For a change we apparently are about to witness a wide-open fight in the eastern-European communist bloc to settle a family quarrel which finally has become too serious to be kept under cover.

Russia is reliably reported about to take heavy direct action against politically-rebellious Yugoslavia, headed by tough and independent Marshal Tito. Moscow and its other satellite states are said to be prepared to launch a great offensive against Yugoslavia to inflict "economic strangulation" on that premier Balkan state.

This drastic program is said to have been laid down at a meeting of the "cominform" (successor to the comintern, or general staff for world revolution) which has been meeting in Poland. July 1 is the date said to have been fixed for the opening of the grand offensive.

The trouble between Moscow and Yugoslavia is that this big Balkan state is fiercely nationalistic and Tito epitomizes this spirit. That of course controverts the communist code, which maintains that sovereignty rests in Moscow. Belgrade has refused to surrender her sovereignty.

Tito in Hot Water

Yugoslavia was expelled from the cominform a year ago, after her government was accused of a policy hateful to Russia and of other deviations from Marxist-Leninist theory. Tito himself was roundly castigated.

Naturally this created a major sensation, for Yugoslavia is the major Balkan state. The mighty cominform had its seat in Belgrade, the capital. Tito was one of the outstanding figures of communism and stood high in the regard of the Moscow Kremlin.

Yugoslavia Doomed.

The strategy of the economic offensive against Yugoslavia is to cut that country off from all trade with Russia and the satellite countries of Eastern Europe. If such a boycott could be made airtight, and if Yugoslavia could find no alternative sources of supply in the western world, it obviously would be a catastrophe for the country. The state of course is strong in agricultural products, but is weak industrially and thus is very far from self-sufficient.

Tito's natural move then will be to turn to the western democracies for supplies. Will he get them, or will the democracies merely chortle and say: "You made your bed, now lie in it?"

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE PERCEIVE THROUGH FAITH

All through history we observe periods characterized by religious doubt.

It would be difficult to say whether we are living today in a period of religious doubt or in a period of plain spiritual indifferance. But we can be prety sure that the scientific attitude has been one of the main factors in changing peoples attitude toward religion. In previous generations, men and women accepted what came down from the past and asked no questions. But when they began to question the old scientific ideas they believed that they should question also theological doctrines and the authority upon which these doctrines rest. Accordingly, We have seen the Bible taken apart pretty unmercifuly in recent decades by the critics, and very often these critics have not been able to fit the pieces together again.

Two things need to be said, however..the first is that after criticism has done its worst with the Bible, the integrity and spiritual authority of the Book does not appear to be essentially impaired; and the second thing we need to remember is that because certain methods work well in the quest for scientific truth, this does not mean that such methods will work with equal satisfaction in the quest for spiritual truths.

In the end, spiritual truth is both acquired and understood soley through the medium of faith.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

About ninety per cent of those who do not fish are laboring under the same curious delusion. They have what might be called the "gold fish bowl" conception of fish. They imagine a lake is a great bowl of water in which fish wander around at random like gold fish. Fishing they think, is merely waiting for one of those wandering fish to come by and see your bait. Trolling, they suppose, is merely dragging a lure to and fro in the gold fish bowl until a stupid fish opens its mouth and is hooked.

These unhappy souls prove they are under this delusion when they say.."I haven't the patience to fish. . ."

Fishing is hunting. Patience is the very last and least requisite of the sport. Fish do not hang suspended in water, waiting for something to turn up. The gamest of them are sly, shy frantically wild and timid creatures who have lived by stealth all their lives. When they were small, if they were not stealthy they were eaten by larger fish. When they are big, they have to be stealthy to way lay the stealthy little fish.

So they hide. In weed beds amid boulders, shoals, reefs, logs, the game fish hide. And the angler has to hunt them. Even in trolling, the least sporty of all the methods of fishing, you have to hunt and troll your lure near likely weed beds, ledges, shoals. It is not patience you use in fishing, but cunning ever-increasing knowledge of the mysterious underwater topography, and a good deal of energy burned up in pure fresh air.

Just as the wild game seeks the secret places of the land, the fish seek the secret places of the water. Some folks get fish siting on a wharf dangling a worm, or float in a boat doing the same, at random. Some hunters sit on their back steps and get ducks flying over. But most anglers are fish hunters, and the most impatient men alive.

MASHED POTATO WITH CRANBERRY SAUCE

Now, Doc, if you had confined your vindictiveness to mashed potato or the promoters of 'weeks' I could go along with you 100 per cent. Take mashed potato, for instance. On second thought let's throw. . .

(Ah-ah! Be careful of your language, sir! Just tell us about your problem, please.)

But your article went on to inveigh against that grand old American delicacy, cranberry sauce. I understand "Good Old Joe" doesn't like cranberry sauce either, so we suspect you of subversive tendencies.

Would you deprive millions of their usual gustatory delight—cranberry sauce with their Thanksgiving and Christmas turkey? Yakety-yakety-yak for a long page of single-space type. (S. S. W.)

In the first place, is it subversive to dislike this or that item of food?

In the next place, what I said in the article titled Please Pass the Cranberry Sause is this::

"Before the friend corn meal mush and maple syrup could be served at breakfast I had to dispose of the glass of cranberry puice . . . not bad, not at all bad. The stuff has character. Not sweet, not insipid, but pleasantly tart . . . I consumed the remainder of it with real pleasure. It seemed to pucker up my stomach—I don't mean what you think, dumbkopf—so that I found myself satisfied with only seven or eight slices of mush instead of ten. Whether cranberries are richer than other berries in vitamin B complex I don't know, but this effect of cranberry juice, jelly, jam or sauce reminds me that an optimal daily intake of vitamin B complex tones stomach and intestinal wall and so tends to give one the sense of fullness and satisfaction with a smaller intake of food than one with flabby stomach and intestine requires for satisfaction."

If that is inveighing against cranberries you can take your cranberries and . . . I wish they were pineapples.

The toning (tonic) effect of vitamin B complex upon the eating muscle, the entire length of the alimentary tube or digestive tract, should not be confused with the effects B complex may have on an appetite. The tonic effect is generally desirable for people who habitually overeat—and that means most people who accumulate slacker flesh, particularly those who crave excessive quantities of carbohydrates—potato, starch, sugar, sweets.

In a vague way flabby folk often wonder whether there isn't something that will "shrink the stomach." Mind, now, Mr. S. S. W., I do not say cranberries shrink the stomach, but the puckering effect of cranberry juice (mentioned above) will, I believe enable any one who consumes too much refined carbohydrate to feel restrict his or her consumption of starches and sugars to a normal intake or even a reducing level without feeling "starved" or empty.

Now, then, if any pirate chooses to pounce upon this suggestion and promote a steenteen day cranberry juice reducing regimen or diet, implying that I recommend it, I promise I'll have his scalp. But the cranberry or cranberry juice people need only ask how much cranberry juice would suffice for a three months clinical test.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Bunion

Husband has a bunion. It festers and runs pus. We had the doctor and he wanted to cut into it and clean it out, but my husband won't let him. It heals over and then festers again. (Mrs. T. H. P.)

Answer—The doctor gave your husband the best advice. He should heed it and save himself prolonged partial or total disability. Bunion is not a trival or superficial condition like corn or callus, but a serious derangement of the great toe joint. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet Care of the Feet.

Fried Cheese

Answer—In your place I'd have my cheese fried as I like, and if "they" interfered I'd throw 'em out.

Not Catching

Could you tell me whether cancer is catching? (F. R. E.)

Answer—So far as we know it is not communicable and not heritable. Like insanity, epilepsy, feeble-mindedness and some other afflictions, it is bound to occur now and then in every family, so it behooves us to regard instances in other families as we would have them regard instances in ours. That is, if we are not morons.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

THE SEAL IS A SMOOTH OPERATOR

Do you feel better when everything in your home is running as smoothly as a well-oiled machine? Of course you do. Well, it's the same in industry.

Today, countless machines operate more efficiently because of Johns-Manville products called Clipper Seals. Clipper Seals protect precision bearings in many kinds of industrial equipment. They seal in the oil that makes for smooth operation — exclude dirt and other matter which might damage the bearings.

Clipper Seals are only one of many styles of Johns-Manville asbestos packings. J-M Packings are in use wherever a seal is needed to prevent leakage of steam, air, oil, water, and other liquids. If you have a packing problem, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto—or see your J-M distributor.

ast Hastings W. I. Reviews Year Of Achievement at District Annual

The East Hastings Women's In- itute held their annual conven- on at Melrose United Church on riday last. Registration was in argo of Mrs. Clare Weese, and rs. Arthur English. The district resident, Mrs. Thomas Leslie, orbyville, acted as chairman. he District report showed a embership of 258 and a sound nancial condition in all branches. Mrs. Leslie spoke of her visit each branch and welcomed the w branches of Carmel and Foxboro, formed in 1949 and the unior Institute formed in 1943.

embership Increased

These new Institutes had in- eased the membership by one indred, and showed promise of ing energetic and enthusiastic stitute workers. Mrs. Leslie ld of the 40th anniversary ban- uet held at Roslin in March, as ing one of the outstanding vents of the year. She conclud- d by asking the East Hastings ranches to continue their fine ork as the Institute can be a emendous power for good.

Reports of the Committee con- eners were given as follows:

griculture and Canadian Indus- ies—

Miss G. Mowers, Napanee, .R. 6. Five branches reported. uch interest was shown in re- prestation. Several ladies attend- d Federation of Agriculture and arned much of the workings of at organization. Each branch owed a lively interest in agri- culture and Canadian industries.

Home Economics

Irs. Ralph Sills, Holloway, convener—This report was read byMrs. Percy Ray. Mrs. Sills reported the Branches as taking keen interest in this subject and many papers, demonstrations and displays were given. Urged that European families be invited to teach their handicraft in order that much can be learned from them. It was reported that Phil- lipston-Zion had as a project "Go t Church Campaign" and recom- mended the members remember the spiritual side of this part of life.

The Three I's
Citizenship

Mrs. Clare Weese, Shannonville —All branches sent in reports. Citizenship has three I's, Intelligence, Integrity and Industry, and good citizenship, like charity, starts at home. Citizenship is the right of each to do what he or she can with the hands, think with heads and feel with the hearts. Two books were recommended to be read "On Being Canadian" by Hon. Vincent Massey; "This is Ontario" by Katherine Hale.

Social Welfare

Mrs. Frank Hutchinson, R.R. 6, Napanee. This report showed that numerous showers of fruit, vegetables, blankets and quilts, were given to new Canadians. A Plainfield Branch bought an electric motor for Plainfield Com- unity Rink. Much clothing was ent to Europe and to the Uni- arian services in Toronto. Med- al help was given and radios laced in several schools. For udy on this subject, Mrs. Hut- inson recommended the mem- rs avail themselves of the aterial provided by the Health udy Bureau, Toronto, and the ysical Fitness Branch of the pt. National Health and Wel- fie, 739 Jackson Building, Ot- twa.

Gldes Bradshaw, Belleville Rt. No. 4 reported the Tweeds- nir village history is being add- d to by each branch and local ems of historical interest with tures, maps, dates, etc. are be- placed as they occur. This will ake books of great interest to ure residents. Many interesting tories of songs, fruits, the city Belleville, the Moira river were ven at meetings. Each branch ported on this subject.

agara Trip

unior Institute Work — Miss Isoel Elliott, Plainfield stated that this had been a very successful year for the Junior Institute work and the financial and social activities had been interesting and there is a membership now of 40. One of the highlights was a bus trip to Niagara district.

Federation of Agriculture—Mrs. Roscoe Robson, Halloway, brought greetings from the Federation of Agriculture to East Hastings. The Federation met at the King Edward Hotel in January. There are five zones in Ontario with five counties in each zone. Hastings is in zone 4. The guest speaker at the luncheon was Miss Fiddler of the School of Nursing in Windsor who had told of the new course of training for nurses. Federation of Agriculture is the bargaining agency for the farmer to keep farm prices at a level of fairness, and the standard of living high. She urged a better understanding by the institute members of the Federation of Agriculture.

Publicity—Mrs. W. J. Tufts, R.R. 5 Belleville, emphasized reports be sent quickly to the press. Publicity is the means of letting the world know what the institute stands for. The W.I. has a membership of 44,150 and is not a money-making scheme, but is for the betterment of, as its motto says: "For Home and Country." News editors of 21 Ontario papers met in May and they agreed they wanted to obtain and print more news of women's activities. The radio (especially CJBQ Belleville) is also an active help.

First Visit

Mrs. James Black, Campbellford, Provincial Board Director, brought greetings from the Federated Board. She said it was her first visit as director to the East Hastings district and she was delighted with the fine reports, showing a keen interest in all phases of institute work. There were two board meetings held this year, one in November in the Royal York and the other in May at the Agricultural College at Guelph.

Mrs. Black welcomed the new branches of Carmel and Foxboro and gave a brief outline of the work done by the Hand Book Committee and advised that all reports be sent in early to conveners. A painting of Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless is to be hung in the Memorial Hall at Ottawa, at an early date.

Mrs. Black spoke of the tent to be opened for the public at the plowing match at Berkeley and suggested all members go for a cup of tea if they attended the match. Many suggestions were given for publicity and suggested the town library be made use of. The matter of radio programs was touched on; members should show their preference of types of programs desired. Radio stations such as CJBQ who had assisted so much in broadcasting the Institute activities had received personal thanks from Miss Lewis, the director.

Mrs. A. Riley led in the singing of "It's a Good Time To Get Acquainted", accompanied by Mrs. Lorne Weese.

A delicious dinner was served by the Melrose branch.

AFTERNOON SESSION

New Branches Formed

Mrs. J. Milligan of Melrose, opened the afternoon session with a warm welcome to all. She spoke of the three new branches, Carmel, Foxboro and Thurlow Juniors and expressed the welcome all extended to them. Mrs. Milligan said, "this is the time to take inventory of the past, to look at achievements, and to press on to do better. Enrich the life of the community and remember "Blessed are they who are pleasant to live with."

Mrs. C. Brintnell, Plainfield, president of the new Carmel branch, replied to the welcome and said, "Though there are many words in the English language I wish to use two, 'Thank you'. Carmel is very proud to belong to such a wonderful organization as the Women's Institute and had thoroughly enjoyed their first district annual. A few moments of silence was observed as a memorial to those who have passed away during past year—Mrs. Charlie Cleveland and Mrs. H. K. Denyes, Phillipston-Zion branch. Mrs. A. Snider and Mrs. E. Bradshaw, Quinte branch. Mrs. R McMechan, Melrose branch Roll Call was answered by each branch standing as its name was called.

Miss Helen McKercher of the Institutes Branch, Department of Agriculture was the next speaker. Miss E. Slicter was unable to attend due to illness. Miss McKercher referred to the reports given in the morning and said good reporting showed "what, why, where and when" at the very first. The subject ":Leaders in the W.I. and qualities they should have" was excellently covered. "Health Before and After Forty" was chosen as the district project and the hostess branches will be Phillipston-Zion and Tyendinaga East. Fall is preferred as the time of year to have it.

Projects Completed

Miss Elsie Ervine, County Home Economist, gave a report on the girls' work which indicated a lively interest being shown at this time. Thirty girls had completed projects and 20 girls had garden clubs. The fall project was "The Club Girl Stands on Guard" and included training in preparing good meals, accident prevention in both the home and on the highway, first aid, recreation and prteparation of home-grown vegetables.

Mrs. Percy Ray gave a demonstration of flower arranging and Miss Muriel Glass, District Junior Institute Activities convener gave a demonstration of correct table arrangement and Misses Audry Purdy and Muriel Chumbly gave preparation of home - grown packing a suitcase.

Slate of Officers

Mrs. Harry Sills presented the slate of officers and the following were elected: President, Mrs. Thomas Leslie, Corbyville; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Harry Sills, Plainfield; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Roscoe Robson, Halloway; Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. Chas. Akey, Marysville, Ont. Federated Representative, Mrs. Grant McLaren, Shannonville; Alternate, Mrs. H. Chisholm, Roslin; District Delegate, Mrs. Violet Elliott, Plainfield; Alternate, Mrs. D. Atkins, R. R. No. 6, Belleville; Auditors, Mrs. F. Ketcheson, R R. No. 6, Napanee; Mrs Percy Kimmerley, Selby.

Conveners of standing committees:

Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Miss G. Mowers R.R. 6 Napanee; Citizenship and Education, Mrs. John Fargey, Roslin, Ont., Historical Research and Current Events, Mrs. Clarence Hall, Plainfield; Public Relations and Community Activities, Mrs. Percy Ray, Halloway, R.R. 1; District Junior Institute Activities convener, Miss Muriel Glass, R. R. No. 1 Plainfield; Representative to Federation of Agriculture, Mrs. Roy Badgley, Shannonville, Ont.

Mrs. Harry Harrison, Plainfield, gave a humorous reading and this was much applauded.

Proud to be Institute Worker

Mrs. Roy Badgley, area president, spoke of her trip to Guelph and mentioned many incidents of interest and said that she came home feeling very proud to be an Institute worker and to belong to such a splendid organization. She brought back Mrs. Futcher's definition of the ideal Institute member.

Mrs. Arnold Riley was requested to sing and favored with "God Bless This House" and said she wanted each member to feel it was for her own home. Mrs. Lorne Weese was accompanist.

Resolution Passed

A resolution was passed asking that more rigid censorship be placed on books and films. Mrs. Harvey Chisholm presented the report of the Courtesy Committee and thanked the Melrose ladies for the fine dinner; the flower committee, the church committee, the girls who presented so well their program, and all who had contributed to make a pleasant and profitable district annual.

Mrs. Chas. Brintnell extended an invitation for the 1950 district annual to be held at Carmel. This was accepted.

WEDDINGS

BAXTER—SINE

Wallbridge United Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, June 11, at 2.30 p.m., when Helen Victoria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Sine of Foxboro, Ontario, was united in marriage to Edward Lloyd Baxter, son of Mr. and Mrs Digby Baxter, Digby, Nova Scotia. Rev. W. Neelands, Belleville, Ontario, officiated.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of orange blossoms, and the altar was beautifully decked with peonies, iris, roses orange blossoms and numerous other plants and flowers.

Mrs. Keith Fox, sister of the bride, was organist and played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the church and Mendelessohn's Wedding March as the bridal party left.

Miss Verna Fox, Belleville, Ontario, sang beautifully "The Lord's Prayer", before the ceremony, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a gown of white slipper satin, buttoned down the back to the waist, with a fish tail peplum of Chantilly lace, with a sheer neckline and fitted lace bodice, long sleeves pointed at the wrists. Her floor length veil of embroidered sheer rayon net was held in place by her mother's headdress which was worn 30 years ago on the same day. This consisted of waxed orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a three-strand necklace of pearls, the gift of the groom. She carried a large bouquet of red roses with a white satin ribbon.

Miss Lorena Sine, Reg. N., of Belleville, Ontario, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and wore a floor length gown of iceberg blue moire, buttoned down the back to the waist; fashioned with a peplum; with round neckline and cap sleeves. She wore long gloves which matched gown and her waist length veil was of pale blue net and she carried an arm bouquet of pink gladioli.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. James Baxter, 10 Harriet Street, Belleville, as groomsman, while Donald Sine, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ross Boyce, 10 Harriet Street, brother-in-law of the groom, were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Dutch Mill Inn, Trenton. The many guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore dove grey faille silk with white accessories and corsage of red roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Ross Boyce, sister of the groom, who wore navy blue taffeta with white accessories.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. W. Neelands and responded by the bridegroom. Mr. Neelands also gave a toast to the bride's mother on the occasion of their 30th wedding anniversary. This was responded to by the bride's father.

Amid showers of confetti the happy couple left for a motor trip to points north. The bride chose for travelling a royal blue gabardine suit with pale blue blouse and white accessories and wore a corsage of red roses.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a three-strand necklace of pearls. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was sterling silver earrings, to the soloist, gold earrings, and to the organist, sterling silver earrings. The groom gave gifts to the best man and ushers.

The family's gift to the bride's parents consisted of a two-strand necklace of pearls to the mother and gold bar pin and clip to the father.

The happy couple will leave later for Middleton, Nova Scotia, where they will reside.

FRY—ALEXANDER

The United Church, Queensboro, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, June 4, at 2.30 p.m., when Frances Edna, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander, Queensboro, became the bride of Harry Alexander Fry, son of Mrs. Wm. Fry, and the late Mr. Wm. Fry, of Campbellford. Rev. Geo. B. Young of Marmora, officiated before an altar banked with spires, peonies and ferns.

The wedding music was provided by Miss Marion Love, Madoc. Miss Lorraine Fry, sister of the groom, wearing a floor-length gown of yellow eyelet embroidery and organza and corsage of yellow roses, was soloist and sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her gown of ivory slipper satin trimmed with lace and seed pearls, and long plain sleeves ending in a point over her hand. She wore a string of pearls the gift of the groom and carried a bouquet of red roses with long white streamers.

Miss Myrtle Fry, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, wearing a blue floor length gown of eyelet embroidered and organza with matching hat and mitts. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations.

Linda Alexander, niece of the bride, made a pretty little flower girl, dressed in pink taffeta with matching bonnet. She carried a nosegay of sweetpeas.

Mr. Jackie Alexander, brother of the bride, acted as groomsman and Mr. Andrew Moorhead and Mr. Geo. Fry as ushers.

The groom's gift to the groomsman was a camera and to the ushers, ties. The bride presented the bridesmaid and soloist with compacts and the flower girl with a locket.

A buffet luncheon followed at the bride's home. The bride's table was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers and the usual three-tier wedding cake.

The bride's mother, wearing a navy figured ensemble, navy accessories and corsage of red roses, assisted by the groom's mother, wearing a dress of pale blue crepe, navy accessories and corsage of pink roses, received the 46 guests. The tables were served by Mesdames Harold Tokley, Kenneth Cassidy, Kenneth Yates, Frederick Bosley, Misses Roberta Sager and Beverley Ogden.

The happy couple motored to Niagara Falls and through the States, the bride wearing a light blue gabardine suit, with matching hat, bag and shoes and a corsage of pink roses.

On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Keep Eyebrows Well Groomed

A few deft strokes of the eyebrow pencil does wonders, says Movie Star Penny Singleton. So don't neglect this make-up chore when dressing.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Time was when these forehead scimitars were completely annihilated by some beauty-stepping girls, a tiny line sketched by the crayon substituted for the home grown fuzzers. Sometimes they looked like faint streaks of atmospheric soot. Another funny thing; sometimes the two didn't match. Silly business, if you ask teacher, or if you don't.

Eyebrows fulfill a practical mission. They are supposed to help keep dust and perspiration out of the eyes. They are eminently decorative, forming an important part of facial expression. If the sisterhood were to lose them completely there would be blank, uninteresting faces, and considerable bawling and lamenting as well.

Express Emotions

The eyebrows express our emotions. When surprised we lift them, when annoyed we draw them together.

When washing the face, they should be shampooed with soap suds, rinsed, dried and brushed to a neat state of grooming. A little brilliantine on the bristles of the brush will impart lustre, keep the growth in healthy condition.

A certain amount of remodeling may be necessary, but try to follow the natural pattern as closely as possible. The lovelies of the silver screen, as well as stage stars, are setting a good example, avoiding unusual, exotic lines.

Any little fuzzers that have strayed from the fold can be tweezed out of existence. After a certain time they get discouraged and no little understudies appear to take the place of those that have been uprooted.

While attending your eyebrow chores, don't forget to rub a little mineral oil over the lashes. Makes 'em grow.

NAVAL INNOVATION

The Queen Elizabeth, launched in October, 1913, was the first battleship to dispense entirely with coal and to use oil alone.

Bride of the Month Tendered Gala Shower by Friends

A very gala event took place recently when Gwen Ketcheson opened her home to the girls of Wallbridge Community in the form of a towel shower in honor of Miss Helen Sine, popular bride-of-the-month, who came home from Nova Scotia to be married.

The evening was spent making a bride's scrap book and then each had a chance to prove her skill at drawing a cow in the dark, the bride herself winning the prize.

The bride-to-be was then given a seat of honor under a gala bunch of balloons filled with confetti. Gwen presented Helen with a decorated clothes basket filled with gaily wrapped towels. As each parcel was unwrapped, the giver broke a balloon, and the prize balloon was broken by Margaret Sine, sister of the bride.

After a brief sing-song, the hostess and her mother served refreshments and all wished Helen a very happy married life.

"Mormon" Quintet Will Give Program

Soon to make their initial appearance in the city, the popular "Mormon" Quintet is scheduled to perform at the Kiwanis Centre this Thursday evening. Sponsored under the auspices of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, this group consists of four quartet singers and an accompanist who are all laboring as missionaries for the Latter-Day Saint Church.

Belleville citizens will have their first opportunity of hearing the quintet over radio station CJBQ at 3.00 p.m. Thursday afternoon. This will be followed by a projected trip to the Belleville General Hospital, and then an early evening performance at the Hastings County Old Folks Home.

The programm for the evening performance will consist, in the main, of "barber shop" harmony, popular songs, novelty tunes, and several devotional numbers.

There will be no admission charge.

Young Couple Honored

Wooler. — A miscellaneous shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe was held in the Sunday School room of the United Church on Friday evening.

The program opened with community singing led by the chairman, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, with Mrs. Karl Austin at the piano. Other numbers on the program were vocal solos, by Kathleen Sharpe, Betty Walker and Aldythe Arthur, vocal duet by Doreen and Mary Dorland, piano solo by Joyce Brown, recitation by Bonnie Rowe, of Frankford, and readings by Lilliam Dorland and Mr. H. Ewing.

Among the many gifts were, an electric floor lamp from the Terrill Road friends and a tufted bedspread and floor rug from the Wooler and Pleasant Valley friends.

After the bride and groom had expressed their thanks the gathering was dismissed.

How Christian Science Heals

A minister, long on leave from his charge because of illness, procured a copy of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures"

by Mary Baker Eddy

After reading the first sentence of the first chapter, he thought, "Whoever wrote this had been very close to God."

He read on for several hours with such a sense of unfolding understanding as he had not known before, then realized that he was well. The healing was complete and permanent.

The complete explanation of Christian Science and its healing work is given in "Science and Health." Price, $3.50

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

(Famous Authority on Good Manners and Good Taste)

You're going to be a wedding guest? Then you should graciously "mind your manners." The wedding invitation offers you hospitality, friendliness, courtesy and the appealing beauty of as lovely a wedding as your hosts can afford.

Now what is your responsibility as a guest?

If you are a kind-hearted friend, and if it is your aim to be a kind hearted guest, you will bow to this invitation by doing everything that will show your friendliness and appreciation. You will respect the feelings of everyone concerned with the wedding plans. You will do your best to co-operate with these plans. You'll be understanding . . . never critical or "hurt," no matter what the wedding plans are or what you think they should be. You'll be considerate of the bride and bridegroom and their families . . . not selfishly absorbed in your own reactions and in your own convenience. You'll contribute graciousness and thoughtfulness to the Happy Day.

Here are some definite suggestions that will help you to be an ideal wedding guest;

First, answer the invitation promptly, whether the invitation is a formal or informal one. This will help your hostess to know how many guests to plan for.

Then send your wedding present as soon as you can. The bride-to-be will appreciate this, for it will give her time to write a note of thanks to you before the last busy days before the wedding.

Arrive at the church reasonably early. This will make the ushers' task easier for them . . . and as an "early bird" you'll get one of the advantageous seats!

The ideal guest bows to the usher who meets her, and talks graciously and naturally with him as he escorts her up the aisle. And she will accept without question the seat to which he assigns her. And she thanks him.

Rise the very first moment that you hear the wedding march, and remain standing during the ceremony.

When you are a guest at a church wedding do not leave your place after the recessional until the bride's family, the bridegroom's family, and the guests who are seated in the reserved seats have been escorted down the aisle by the ushers. This is a fundamental and significant courtesy that wedding guests should bestow on the bride's family, who are the hosts of the wedding, and on the bridegroom's family, who are the guests of honor. There is a practical reason, too . . . this interim gives the wedding party, the bride's mother and father and the bridegroom's mother and father time to arrive at the reception place and to form the receiving line before the guests arrive.

In a house wedding or any wedding where there is not to be a recessional, guests wait until the mother and father of the bride and the mother and father of the bridegroom and then the other relatives of the bride and groom greet the couple, before they go forward to greet them.

In the receiving-line, the guest first greets the bride's mother and father (if the father is a member of the receiving-line) as she would first greet the hosts at any party, and makes some appropriate comment of appreciation about "the lovely bride," the charm and beauty of the wedding, and so forth. With equal graciousness she greets the groom's mother and father, remembering to say something charming appreciative about the "hero" of the day.

After the guests have greeted the members of the receiving-line, they should take care of themselves, chatting with old friends (weddings are busy reunions!), and being introduced to other guests. Groups may be formed for having refreshments together, either at the small tables at a sit-down service or for the buffet service.

When you are leaving the reception, say your thank-you words to the hosts . . . and you have the proud feeling that you've been a gracious guest!

Cottons Popular For Street Wear

London (CP) — Cottons have turned up for fashionable town wear, after having been out of running since 1914.

This year sees almost the first of the new tailored suits in thick cottons which can be laundered without much trouble.

The most noticable feature of their reappearance is the change in weaves, colors,prints and textures. The range of cotton-made garments has been widened to include not only formal town suits, but afternoon dresses, garden party dresses and evening gowns.

Some of the most attractive evening dresses shown in collections are made of West African printed voiles, flowered lawns, handkerchief printed voiles and shadow striped organdies. For day clothes, thin cambric weaves have been supplanted by high twist cotton crepe of solid texture.

Cotton materials are now handled such as wollen fabrics, and the effect of these clothes worn with smart, formal accessories is most attractive.

The English woman's wardrobe will be made more flexible by the addition of heavier cottons for wearing on dull, cool days.

Doting "Mother" For 70 Children

Montreal (CP) — Being a mother to 70 children sounds like quite a task. But Mrs. Gertrude Latour, whose job as superintedent of a Montreal veterans' apartment house includes supervising such a huge family, she says she's "proud as a doting grandmother" of the brood.

The building, the Place Vigor, once was a smart hotel but today it houses 50 veterans' families and according to Mrs. Latour there are "no childless couples here."

"As a matter of fact," she said, "since the buiding became an apartment house three years ago we've had 15 to 20 new babies every year."

Although Mrs. Latour's job includes making four daily inspections of the building, supervising maintenance and investigating all tenants' complaints, she claims the job she likes is "giving a cookie from the package I always keep on my desk to a child who has been particularly good."

Chambray Ensemble

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Woven chambray in a burnt sienna shade makes this dress and seven-eighths length coat, contributing an ensemble to the summer wardrobe which should be invaluable to the weekender or the vacationer It gives one both a sedate travel or church-going outfit, while offering a sundress, dinner dress, garden dress, when the coat has been removed.

Designed especially for the petite woman, its lines are slenderizing and tall-making . . . peg-top slim skirt, button parade, dipped neckline, shawl collar on the dolman sleeved coat.

Salad Days Are Here Again

The vogue for salads in everyday all-year-round diet is comparatively new, but spring salad made from lettuce or "salad plant" is a very old favorite.

Leaf lettuce, crisp and fresh from the garden, makes the basis of all summer salads although early vegetables may be used with it. Baby onions and small tender radishes are the favorites. The plainest lettuce salad may vary, from simple to elegant, according to the dressing.

There are innumerable ideas on what makes a good salad dressing. Some like it very tart, others prefer a definite salty dressing while many favor a slightly sweet one. Seasonings also vary greatly according to taste. Every homemaker has her special blend that pleases her own family.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, say that such extra ingredients as, chutney, cheese, minced onion, chopped celery, chili sauce, minced chives, catsup, curry powder or horseradish added in varying amounts, to the standard dressing will make it seem entirely different and new.

Here are several good, standard salad dressings. Try your own variations. Make a salad today and everyday all summer. No salad is better than its dressing.

French Dressing

1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
1-2 teaspoon paprika
1-2 cup vinegar
1 cup salad oil.

Mix salt, sugar and paprika in a sealer. Add vinegar and oil. Seal the sealer and shake well. Keep in a cool place. Shake well each time before using. Yield: 1 1-2 cups.

Variations:

To 1-2 cup of dressing add one of the following and blend thoroughly.

1. 2 tablespoons chopped parsley.
2. 2 tablespoons minced green onion tops or chives.
3. 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped.
4. 3 tablespoons peanut butter
5. 1-4 cup tomato catsup or chili sauce
6. 1-3 teaspoon dry mustard.

Tomato Bacon Dressing

3 slices bacon
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1-2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar
1-3 cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon chopped chives or green onion tops.

Cut the bacon into small pieces and pan-fry until crisp; remove bacon bits from fat and drain on absorbent paper. Combine the sugar, mustard, salt and pepper. Blend in the lemon juice or vinegar and catsup. Beat well with a rotary beater. Stir in the celery seeds, chives and bacon chips. Turn into a jar with a close-fitting cover. Cover and store overnight in a cool place. Shake well before using.

Cooked Mayonnaise

1 egg
3 tablespoons sugar
1 1-2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspons mustard
1-8 teaspoon paprika
Few grains cayenne
1-4 cup vinegar
3-4 cup salad oil
4 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup water.

Put egg, sugar, seasonings, vinegar and oil in a mixing bowl without stirring. Mix the cornstarch and water and stir over a low heat until thick. Then cook over hot water until clear, about 15 minutes. Stir the hot cornstarch mixture into the other ingredients and beat briskly with a dover beater until thoroughly combined. Cool and store. Yield: about 1 pint.

Fashion Flashes

BIG FAVORITE for late afternoon wear this season is a sheer fabric over something crisp. Navy marquisette over crisp taffeta plaided in red, white and blue is the theme of a nice afternoon-into-evening costume. Short-sleeved jacket, buttoned snugly to the waist, conceals a boned, cuffed bodice and slender shoulder straps.

WE NOTE that many of the smartest straws have touches of velvet piping. Navy velvet pipes a white straw made with upcurved, rippled brim, held back at one side by a huge red velvet rose. Twisted, corded navy velvet ribbon binds the crown, and the sheer navy veil is velvet piped.

IN PRINT for the late afternoon is the dress theme at many smart spots. White silk, with a splashy print of floral corsages in violet, pink and green, makes a handsome afternoon frock with deep, open, flanged neckline. The skirt has a huge pouf pulled over to one side, a line that follows that of the neckline.

IT'S WONDERFUL to be able to plunge a suit into suds and have it bright and clean again. That explains the popularity of the well-tailored suit of cotton fabric that every store buyer has ordered in various colors and weaves. Cotton covert with a neutral, tweedy look is used to fashion a most attractive suit, cut on slim lines. The jacket fastens with six fake amber buttons and has curved hip pockets with slanting flaps. Skirt has a kick pleat center front.

INTO THE SUITCASE goes silk jersey to merge with nary a wrinkle that won't come out in a trice. Black silk jersey is used for a handsome afternoon dress cut on slim lines, with a draped cowl neckline that can be nicely arranged to give a different look to what is really a basic dress.

FJORD BOUNDARY

The Portland Canal, a fjord 80 miles long, forms the boundary between British Columbia and Alaska.

Do you know this neighbour of yours?

PROBABLY you've seen him many times. But you might not always recognize him, for he appears in several different roles.

At home, he is a typical father. And this role helps him understand the problems that other fathers face — especially in trying to provide financial security for their families.

In his spare time he's usually active in community affairs. Red Cross, Big Brother Movement, municipal committees — wherever there's a worthy cause to be served you're likely to find him in the thick of it, doing his fair share. For such organizations just naturally attract a man whose job is helping others to achieve better living through financial independence.

He's something of a student, too. Many are the hours he spends absorbing information about tax changes, beneficiary laws and other subjects related to your plans for retirement and the protection of your dependents.

Who is this man?

He is the typical modern life insurance agent. A man who's trained for his job. A good citizen. And a good neighbour.

More than a million Canadian families have benefited by his experience and advice. And he's always glad to be of service to you!

A helpful citizen in your community

When your agent sells you life insurance, he also helps to improve your community. For a large part of each life insurance dollar is put to work, through investments, to build schools, bridges, highways, industrial plants and many other projects that create jobs and make for better living.

You share in these improvements, made possible through the efforts of your helpful fellow-citizen — the modern life insurance agent!

DREW REPEATS CRITICISM OF DEFENCE MINISTER

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, June 15 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, told a noisy political rally here Tuesday night there is one parade he would like to see and that is a "parade of every communist back to Russia."

He made the statement as he was subjected to the heaviest barrage of booing and heckling of his five-week cross-country federal election campaign tour. The heckling was fairly continuous through a 40-minute speech.

Mr. Drew, who speaks today in Galt and London, Ont., was repeating his criticism of Defence Minister Claxton and the use of the North Star aircraft by the defence forces when a heckler shouted:

"Secondary issues."

"Defence is not a secondary issue," Mr. Drew replied. "Those who would like to have us believe that it is, are the communists who are traitors to Canada."

He promised that a Progressive Conservative government would amend the Criminal Code to give the courts power to deal with traitors.

Slight Booing

There was slight booing when Mr. Drew said that the Liberals will not be able to form a majority government in the election and a small cheer when he said they could do so only with the aid of the C.C.F.

The alternative to a Liberal - C. C. F. government was a Progressive Conservative administration with a clear majority. That majority could be obtained if all who believed in responsible government go out and vote.

At this point in his speech, a heckler asked, "What about Duplessis (Premier Duplessis of Quebec)?"

"I am glad you mentioned that because I was just going to speak about it," said Mr. Drew. "Some people seem to forget that Mr. Duplessis won 82 out of 92 seats in the Quebec legislature last summer and it is the duty of all governments to deal with a man so overwhelmingly supported by the people of his own province."

Praised War Records

He then praised the war records of some of Mr. Duplessis' supporters.

He said M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, has been rising to the defence of the government's sale of the Canadian Aircraft plant in Montreal to the Electric Boat Company of New York. Mr. Coldwell was defending a submarine company that was shown to be a member of an international armament ring.

Amid heckling, Mr. Drew said: "In this election we are not only fighting for the right of responsible government, but are also fighting for the right to hold political meetings without hoodlums interrupting them."

FORMOST AIM OF LIBERALS IS TO SERVE PUBLIC

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, June 15 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said here last night one of the Liberal government's foremost aims is to "please the public."

"We have a democratic regime here in Canada," he said, "and things are done to please the elector. We propose to continue to serve the electors in a way that suits them."

Mr. St. Laurent made the statement during a tour of Montreal divisions Tuesday evening in which he made speeches at Atwater Market in St. Henri district, and in school buildings at Outremont and in the east end of the city.

Tuesday morning, on the second day of a tour of Montreal area, he spoke to a crowd gathered in Bethier's Public Square, and in the afternoon at Joliette, in Quebec's tobacco - growing country.

Today he swung back into Ontario for appearances at Arnprior, Renfrew and Pembroke.

Mr. St. Laurent told Montrealers his government was "social-minded" instead of "Socialist," as its Progressive Conservative opponents charged.

Stand for Personal Freedom

He said the Progressive Conservatives evidently had in mind the government's social measures such as family allowances when they talk of the "supposed socialism of the Liberal."

The Liberal party stood for personal freedom and private enterprise and was opposed to any form of government seeking complete state control. It was equally opposed to "reactionary Toryism," he said.

The Prime Minister challenged the Progressive Conservatives to say what they meant by their accusations of socialism. He also challenged Progressive Conservative leader George Drew to back up with details a reported charge that Liberals and C. C. F. supported each other in certain counties.

Speaking in French at St. Stanislas School, Mr. St. Laurent said the warmth of the reception in Montreal gave "even Mrs. St. Laurent who is like St. Thomas" the impression the Liberals are on their way to victory.

The prime minister said Mrs. St. Laurent had felt previously that crowds were out to greet them only "to be nice."

He said one of the best ways for voters to help him win the election was to vote for official Liberal candidates no matter what claims were put forward by candidates who had no party sanction.

FRANKFORD

Centenary Hands Frankford 10-4 Softball Setback

entry in the Sidney League suffered their first set-back of the ered their first set-back of the season Monday night on their home diamond, as Centenary handed them a 10-4 lacing. Fred Edmundson pitched a great game for the winners, and recieved good support from his team mates. Frankford team was very loose on the fielding, and left far too many runners stranded on the bases. This is Centenary's first win. Frankford team suffered their first casualty of the season, when third baseman Reid sustained a broken finger on a line drive in the first inning.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

It was perhaps characteristic of Joy that she gave no thought this evening to Polly's own costume. Did not, in fact, remember even to ask about it, or offer to help. All Joy's life she had accepted aid and service and courtesies from others, paying for it in her own way. It was not a matter of selfishness, but a matter of habit. She would have been most contrite--if she had simply remembered at all. But she didn't. She was all jittery now with anticipation. Concerned with her own evening's succes, with Ken Palmer.

Ken arrived shortly after Joy was ready. "Go meet him" Polly commanded somewhat frantically now. "I--I can't go out. I'm not dressed. Remember, don't talk much! Act!

But she did peep out a crack. Ken was disguised as Coronda the most famous of all Spanish conquistadores in Arizona's history. His athletic build in the conqueror's suit of armor and helmont and spear did in truth make him impressive. The helmet served as masque. He roared in speech, acting his part too. In hidding, Polly held her breath while Joy greeted him there in the semi-darkness of the front porch.

Most of their greeting was in gesture. Joy giggled, then spoke a word or two in affected deep tones, as she doubtless imagined an Indian girl might speak. Actually it was comical if one knew, but Ken didn't. He took her arm and led his "Indian" girl to his jaloppy, put her in the seat beside him and drove away.

"He doesn't know" Polly whispered to herself, looking out wide-eyed with excitment. "He thinks I am sitting beside him! He thinks the Indin girl is me!"

Buffalo Bill himself stepped right out of the page of history and walked down the hallway of the Paradise Ranch home at a quarter of nine. He was whistling merrily.

"Hey, hold on!" he halted abruptly. swaggering a little. "Where's your outfit, Miss? It's getting late."

"You look grand, Ward."

"You didn't answer me. What's the score?"

"You're taking Sue Rivers, aren't you?" Polly evaded his questions.

"Right, Who's taking you? And why aren't you dressed? I thought I heard you and the blond dream sashaying around out here."

"You did. Joy's gone. K-- Her escort just left with her. You even have Buffalo Bill's stature. And your curls, dar-ling!"

"Nuts to that. Answer me!.'

"I'm not going."

He looked straight at her. until she averted her gaze. "Hunh" he grunted.

"You don't have to know everything just because you're my brother!" She tried a pout.

"No dice, kid. Keep talking."

"I don't feel well. Anyway I hadn't planned to go. I'm-- I have a severe cold."

He stood spraddled-legged, surveying her up and down, hands on hips.

"No sneezing. No coughing. No nose blowing. No fever. No congestion. Nuts Sis. You never have colds. You're as healthy as a horse. Now what is it? Talk, or I'll have to trim you down to my size and---"

She was in his arrms all at once sobbing against his powerful chest.

"Little Sis......Little Sis!" He comforted her as if she were 10 year old. 'What is it, kid? Whose is it, Kid? Whose chin you want me to punch, hmmmm?.., Say, hold on! I thought something was said about you and Ken Palmer Didn't you tell me that he had est thing hre lately. She's crrazy Wasn't that Ken just took Joy off?'

That opened Polly's heart, then. She told Ward what she had done. Told him the truth, if not the whole truth. Told him she had purposely substituted Joy Boone, masked even from her own escort, to go to the ball with Ken Palmer. "S-she -- she a-asked me to!" Polly explained. "Asked me to fix it for her, Wardy, Darn it, I'm such a baby! I cry at the slightest thing here lately. She's crazy about Ken. She admits it to me--don't you tell. She asked me to make Ken take her tonight, and she's my friend, Ward. She is, I tell you! She's honest. She can't help it if she's rich. She does the nicest things for people. Ken's bashful as possible, you know that so I just wangled them together."

"Unh! Unh! Unh!" Ward was incredulous, but fascinated too. Fascinated by what he called the mysterious of a woman's mind. He pressed her for as many details as he could. Then he started popping orders.

"Go get dressed!" He gave her a shove. "Anything!Quick! You're going with me and Sue!.....Don't argue! You're going if I have to drag you. Get one of the Mexicans maids' costumes. You're the best looking senorita on the border, anyway. Go on. doggone it!"

She had to obey him. Moreover, she did so with a certain zest. The truth was that she really wanted to go badly, for curiosity itself is a powerful thing even if she had no other interest in this evening's festivity.

Ward McMurrary had not exaggerated when he called his Sis the prettiest senorita. She came to him in a quarter-hour and he gave one look and breathed, "Whe-e-e-eeuw! I wish I wasn't your bud!"

"Hush! But I love you for it!"

She had on a magnificient costume of green satin. The dress flared wide. There was a bright yellow belt. One huge red rose adorned her hair,which was an ebony cascade in background for her facial contour and coloring. She was adjusting a conventional black mask, but she paused once to kiss Buffalo Bill in gratitude. Finally she put a large, fringed, silken shawl around her shoulders a crimson creation which her father had brought her three years ago from Mexico City.

They cu by the Riverse ranch and picked up Sue, and when the three of them reached the Civic Auditorium in Phoenix the room was already well filled. Approximately 500 couples were present. Moreover it presented a spectacular sort of gaiety. Ward's and Polly's, and Sue's Puritan Girl costume, all were in harmony with the others there, for this was the one time each year when collegians in Phonix went the limit.

Ten minutes after their arrival the grand march started.

"It's Dr. Pal all right!" Polly breathed, to Sue "He's so erect and happy as a kid, I bet! That's Bettina Carlson with him. Joy's secretary."

"They look like students themselves."

She's ever so nice. So is he. "Check."

Sue and Ward were going to stay out of the march, in deference to Polly. But shewould have none of it. Tactfully she disappeared into the women's lounge until it was over. She heard the music swell and sing,and in her heart was a longing, but she struck it out alone.

Sue came for her immediately it was over. Ward danced with her next, and in a moment boys had begun to recognize the lovely "Mexican senorita" for the person she was, and so started cutting in. Ward knew his Sis woul be squire sufficiently from now on

CITY BOARDERS: "How could I arrange to board city children for the summer? We live on a farm. I could take six children, preferably pre-school age and only for the summer. We have a 12-room brick house with six bedrooms."

Write to the Children's Aid Society, 32 Isabella Street, Toronto, or the Protestant Children's Homes, 380 Sherbourne Street, Toronto, stating your accommodation, your location and the advantages of your home. I'm sure either one of those organizations would be glad of your hospitality for their children.

YOUTH HOSTELS: "My friend and I plan to visit the British Isles this summer. Is there a Canadian youth hostels association? Where should we apply for membership? Would this entitle us to admission to youth hostels in the British Isles."

Canadian Youth Hostels are situated at 1 Classic Avenue, Toronto, PRincess 1072. Membership if over 21 is $2.50 annually. You need your Canadian membership to benefit from British Youth Hostels. Overnight accommodation runs about 30 cents a night. Meals are also reasonable.

MILK FOR BABIES: "My grandchild is 26 months old and drinks four four-ounce bottles of milk a night and sometimes more. Don't you think this is too much?

Say the baby specialists, children between one and three years should average at least a pint of milk a day, and up to quart if possible. It should not be given by bottle, say the specialists, at this age but rather in a cup, in puddings or in soups. No liquid should be given any child after 6 p.m., add the doctors.

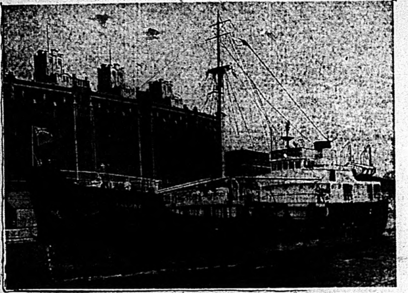
BERLINERS SHOW THEIR FEELINGS

Some of the 200 striking German rail workers, who stormed and seized the headquarters of the Soviet-controlled directorate in the U.S. sector of Berlin, are shown as they tore down a huge photo of Premier Stalin in the building. The strikers threw a picket line outside the directorate in an effort to force their wage demands.—Central Press Canadian.

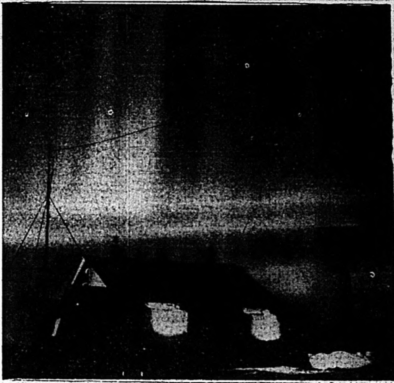
ROUSING SEND-OFF is given Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew and Mrs. Drew by pipers on the seaplane float at Larder Lake where the party embarked by plane en route to Mr. Drew's nomination in Carleton after they had visited Kirkland Lake. Pipers from left, are Pipe Major William Best, John Hogg and Alex Shanks. (Dalton Bawks.)



ARTIC SUPPLY SHIP Rupertsland comes into Montreal ending voyage from Halifax where she wintered after crossing Atlantic last November from the Clyde. Owned by the Hudson's Bay Company she will go into northern service next month. (Canada Wide.)

THIS TIME BERLIN STRIKERS HAD THE GUNS

With a shout of "come out," a pistol-armed Berlin railway striker attempts to force his way into the rail directorate room to get at Soviet rail officials. His strike leaders later got their fellows to return the guns, grabbed from Soviet police. The building is in the U. S. zone, but is operated by Soviet officials who run the German capital's railways.—Central Press Canadian.



Flickering Northern Lights and sparkling stars form backdrop for the RCMP barracksat Coppermine. Building is banked with snow blocks and lighted by electric generator driven by windmill at right. Ceremony at Martyrs' Shrine Recalls Burning of Fort 300 Years Ago

Midland, June 15 (CP) — The burning of Fort Ste. Marie as a scorched earth measure 300 years ago was commemorated Tuesday at a ceremony on the site of the fort on the Wye River two miles from here.

Behind the priests, government officials and educationists on the speakers' platform rose restored sections of the fort, said to look much as they did when Jesuit priests put it to there June 14, 1649, to prevent it from falling into the hands of marauding Iroquois.

Among the crowd gathered for the ceremonies were descendants of the Indians who played a part in the tribal wars which ended in the fort's destruction and the temporary banishment of the Jesuit missionaries from the area. From St. Joseph's School at Spanish, Ont., near Sudbury, 39 Indian boys and girls descended from the Hurons of 300 years ago, made the trip to Fort Ste. Marie.

Very Rev. John L. Swain, Jesuit provincial for Canada, said he saw a lesson in the restoration of the old fort. Recent events in Communist areas of China had followed a parallel with happenings of 300 years ago in this district.

"When the fort was burned and its inhabitants fled, it seemed like a defeat. Yet we know there is no defeat for the human spirit as long as it remains united with God.

"For Fort Ste. Marie rose again, through efforts of persons interested in its restoration. Human defeats of today likewise would be overcome as long as materialism was not allowed to govern education and life."

Dr. Sidney Smith, President of the University of Toronto, urged Canadians to listen to the voices from the past, the voices of the martyrs who died in this area.

"We are sharing in a rich heritage," he said. "We are sharing the benediction of the saintly lives of those who labored on this site and built on failure. I pray that we may understand their voices as they speak to us across the centuries. In these days of materialistic philosophy, may we catch something of their message."

Several pilgrimages to the shrine near the old fort are scheduled for this summer. A five-day pageant will be held late in July.

The scrap was gathered during operations of cleaning up rubble in several cities in Germany's Hamburg area.

Made Profit Of $12,000 On Tool Kits

Brampton, Ont., June 15. (CP) — Murray Hundert of Toronto, told a general sessions jury Tuesday that he had made a profit of $12,000 by selling surplus RCAF tool kits to the Chinese government after paying only $85 for them.

Hundert, employee of the Aircraft Parts and Accessories Company in Toronto, appeared as a defence witness during the trial of Henry Hansen, 27, of Guelph, Ont., who is charged with the theft of RCAF tools and equipment from storage hangars at Toronto's Malton Airport. Value of the stolen goods is listed at $1,000.

During his testimony, Hundert said he had purchased 167 Merlin engine tool kits for a total of -83 and sold them through De Havilland to the Chinese government for $75 each.

Hansen, arrested last July, told the court "everybody else took them, so I couldn't see any harm in taking some."

The trial is continuing.

Minute Books of First County Council Meeting Of Hastings Well Preserved

Two large books, in excellent state of preservation lay on the desk of County Clerk Erle Denyes at the opening session of Hastings County Council June meeting yesterday afternoon.

Stout leather binding encases the volumes. The inside pages are as white as the day they were printed. There is no yellowing of age, dog-eared corners, smudges of ink or any other blemishes. They have passed through decades untouched and unravaged by time.

They are the minute books of the first county council of Hastings held in Shire Hall in February, 1850.

Inside can be seen the work of a master penman. The beautiful "light and dark" style of the chirographers of the early "eighties" is seen at its best. At first glance one has the impression the pages were written a few days ago. It is a masterful piece of evidence of the early penman's art.

Here are recorded the business motions, amendments, accounts of the days of the near-pioneers. Previous to the adoption of the Baldwin Act, which in 1849 gave Ontario municipalities their own form of government, this district was known as the District of Victoria. This year, Hastings County Council will celebrate its 100th birthday.

In the books are set down the discussions and arguments that these pioneers of municipal government indulged in, in those days.

Interesting is the election of Edward Fidlar, "Town Reeve of Rawdon township, who was opposed in bitter battle by George Benjamin, "Town Reeve of Hungerford township." Mr. Fidlar was the first warden of the county.

Members of First Council

Members of the first county council were Rufus Holden, Reeve of the town of Belleville; Samuel Stephens, deputy reeve of the town of Belleville; William Sills, town reeve of Thurlow; William Shorey, deputy reeve of the town of Thurlow; Gideon Turner, town reeve of Sidney; Caleb Gilbert, deputy reeve, Sidney; Alexander McLaren, deputy town reeve, Tyendinaga; Wellington Frizzell, town reeve, Tyendinaga; Anthony Denike, town reeve, Huntingdon; Laughlin Hughes, town reeve, Marmora; John R. Ketcheson, town reeve, Madoc, and of course Messrs. Fidlar and Benjamin. William Fitzgibbons was the first county clerk.

With Mr. Fidlar opposing Mr. Benjamin for the wardenship, the council, according to the minutes waged a hard fight in an effort to make a selection. They failed to elect on the first day, but on the second, Mr. Fidlar was elected to office by a 7-4 vote.

Baby bonuses are not so new, after all, for in these records it shows when the first Hastings county council presented a Mrs. Evans with "five pounds for having triplicate children".

Not Paid Much

The county surveyor was paid the sum of "ten shillings and sixpence per day" for his services. This was later amended to "sixty pounds per year". But when the thrifty council of those days was approached with a motion to include the surveyor's expenses, they promptly turned it down.

From 1793 to 1849 wardens of counties, or those in highest governmental authority were named by the government. In 1849 the Baldwin Act, sponsored by the Hon. Robert Baldwin, attorney general, was passed and received the royal assent. The act was "to provide, by one general law for the erection of municipal corporations and the establishments of regulations of police and for the several counties, cities, towns, villages in Upper Canada."

The Baldwin Act's anniversary will be marked by municipal bodies all over Ontario this year. For like the British Magna Charta, it marks a decisive victory in the long struggle for local government, by local people, for local people without dictation from the Crown, the government of officers of the Crown.

It marked the beginning of township and county municipal governments with elected councils and locally appointed officials and provided for all incorporated municipalities, in one Act, powers suited to their local needs. The Act gave all municipalities, rural or urban, of the same class, the same powers.

Receive Under Powers

During the fifty-five years preceding the enactment of the Baldwin Bill, there were no councils and the officers, including the clerk, assessor and collector were in reality servants of the central government in the locality. The real powers of a council were vested in and exercised by the Justices of the peace through the courts of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace. Rural municipalities remained under the thumb of the central government although urban centres received wider powers of local government.

In 1841 the Districts Councils Act provided for the election of district councils in the many districts in which the province was divided. This part was known as the District of Victoria.

Baldwin, who fought since 1830 for the establishment of responsible government at the provincial level, made his first attempt to provide it in 1843. He was not successful then and it was not until 1849 that he introduced an improved version of the Act—which passed both Houses and was assented to by Lord Elgin, May 30th, 1849.

FARM WEAPONS PUNY IN FIGHT AGAINST THE DROUGHT

"Like putting baby to bed for the night," say these two farmers of Holland Marsh, Ont., affected by combined drought-frost problem. They put cheesecloth over the garden as protection against the weather. Ontario farmers have nearly giv-en up hope of even a poor crop as clear skies and sunshine have seared grass and produce. (Central Press Canadian.)

Announce Draw For Golf Championship

The draw for the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club championship comprising the top sixteen players was announced today by games committee officials.

The sixteen qualifying and the draw follows: Dr. George Faulkner vs. R. Pryke; Murray McIntosh vs. S. Wonnacott; Dr. Cornett vs. C. Harvey; Myles Morton vs. Mike Aquafredda; E. Pugh vs. Doug Green; Ted Parker vs. Dick Burrows; Harry Ridley vs. W. C. Thompson; and Tommy Carruthers vs. Bill Miller Jr.

The championship is an elimination affair with the winners of the top eight playing off with those of the bottom eight. The first round must be played no later than June 29.

Leading in the Tip Top Trophy are Ernie Pugh and C. Harvey with a 71 low net; Harry Ridley 72 low net and Ted Parker and Bill Miller Jr. with 73 low net.

Sweepstake winners on Sunday were Tommy Carruthers with a low gross of 73 and Dr. Faulkner with a low gross of 74.

FIREMAN KILLED

Sarnia, June 15 (CP).—A call to a blaze caused by lightning in an old private garage Tuesday night brought death to 50-year-old city fireman Howard (Barney) McRae when he fell under the wheels of a fire truck.

McRae, a veteran of 26 years' service on the force, was dead on admittance to hospital. Fire Chief J. J. Anderson said it was the department's first fatality on duty in more than 30 years.

The fire truck was backing to make a turn at a corner when the fire-fighter slipped from the step at the rear of the vehicle and was crushed under the back wheel.

McRae is survived by his widow and five children.

London, June 15 — (AP) — Thirty-seven former United States war correspondents left by air for New York last night after a peacetime inspection trip to the Normandy invasion beachheads.

FALLS FROM BALCONY

London, Ont., June 15 (CP).—Mrs. Edna Eberley, 25, suffered a fractured knee when she fell 14 feet to the sidewalk from a second floor balcony of the downtown York Hotel early today.

Police said they believe the woman fainted and tumbled against a railing of the balcony.

Guard Democracy Talks Given Optimist Club

Leo Marcus and Harry Croll, representing Belleville Collegiate Student Council, were guest speakers at the Optimists' Monday evening meeting at Quinte House. In line with the Chamber of Commerce "Get Out the Vote" campaign, they delivered addresses on Citizenship, and the meaning of Democracy.

Referring to the problems which threaten today's democracies, Harry Croll, past president of Belleville Key Club, drew a parallel between the rare outbreaks of such plagues as small pox, which still occur when precautionary measures are neglected, and the totalitarian forces which can overcome a people who come to take their freedom for granted.

President-elect Leo Marcus, of B.C.I. Student Council, traced the gradual formation of Parliamentary Government and other bulwarks of democracy, pointing out that these guarantees of freedom had been brought about by pressure of public opinion. People tend to grow complacent, to neglect their democratic duties and to leave the moulding of public opinion to a few.

Both speakers stressed the importance of that greatest privilege and duty of the citizen of a democracy, the right to vote. The central themes of their excellent addresses were, "value your franchise; use your vote; don't take democracy for granted!"

Final plans were laid for Optimist's third annual "Miss Belleville" contest and dance, which will be held in Memorial Arena, at the end of June. Local firms are being canvassed to enter representatives in the popular "Beauty Contest". Bill Arnold's dance band has agreed to a return engagement, and will once more provide music for the gala event. The Optimist refrigerator draw will take place on the night of the contest.

Yonkers, N. Y., June 15 (AP) — Frank Lea Short, 79, former actor, director and president of the American Theatre Association, died yesterday. During his acting career he appeared with such stars as John Drew, Nazimova and Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske. Later he was stage manager for the late Leslie Howard and Helen Hayes.

INJURED BY BUS

Toronto, June 15 — (CP) — Harry Bentley of suburban Highland Creek, was taken to hospital Tuesday after being struck by a bus in Toronto's east end. Hospital officials reported his condition as "only fair." Police said Bentley stepped out on the road to hail a bus and was struck down by it.

THE CANADIAN ARMY — "INSURANCE FOR PEACE"

"That mountain is mine"

"I know, it sounds a little strange. But I was the first man ever to reach the top of that mountain. Of course, there were others with me — but I got to the top first. So they let me name it — and I called it Mine."

A survey party of the Royal Canadian Engineers! One of many that set out every summer to explore Canada's vast unknown wilderness. These men map and survey areas of Canada's wilds, collecting data for mineral development and settlement.

The Engineers are typical of the soldiers of Canada's new Army. They are fully taught for such trades as draughting, carpentry, bricklaying and mechanics. Young men with Senior Matriculation are being sent to University on full pay and allowances — tuition and books free. Upon graduation, these men will be granted commissions. Truly, Canada's new Army has a great deal to offer young men of ambition.

Visit your nearest recruiting office soon. Get full details on the advantages of an Army career. You are eligible if you are 17 years of age or over and can meet Army requirements. Bring along certificates of your age and education.

Virgil Trucks Challenging Vic Raschi for American League Pitching Honors

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Virgil (Fire) Trucks, Detroit's strong-armed righthander, is challenging New York's Vic Rascliff at American League pitching honors.

Trucks is even outshining Hal Newhouser, his illustrious southpaw mate. With the season only one-third gone, the 30-year-old Alabaman already has won nine games against three losses. Only Raschi, with 10, has won more. Newhouser has won seven.

Trucks gave further indication last night that he was out to make this his greatest year when he limited Philadelphia to one hit as the Tigers blanked the Athletics 4-0. Only a fifth-inning single by Hank Majeski prevented him from hurling the season's first no-run, no-hit game. Elmer Valo, who walked in the second, was the only other mack-man to reach base.

Raschi notched his 10th triumph against one defeat without much trouble as the Yankees shellacked Chicago White Sox 15-3. An eight-run sixth inning at the expense of loser Bill Wight, Allen Gettel and Marino Pieretti changed a tight pitching duel into a rout. The Sox got all their runs in the fourth on a couple of hits, a pair of walks and two errors by first baseman Jack Phillips. Tommy Henrich, back after a five-day layoff, hit his 12th homerun for the Yankees.

Cleveland Indians vaulted from sixth to fourth place in the American League after trouncing the Red Sox in Boston, 10-5. A six-run first frame against Joe Dobson, followed by a three-run second against Tex Hughson, made it no contest. A crowd of 34,137, largest for a night game in Boston history, saw the Red Sox slip into a fifth-place tie.

Bob Feller, who had lost his last five starts, went all the way for the Indians to gain his second victory of the season, both at the Red Sox' expense.

Joe Gordon struck the most damaging blow, a grand-slam home run in the first inning against Dobson. Manager Lou Boudreau, who played first base for the first time in his career, was struck on the left elbow by Dobson after Gordon's blow. He advanced toward the mound, and almost started a free-for-all when players from both benches swarmed out on the field. No blows were struck and order was restored immediately.

St. Louis Browns finally beat Washington, 7-2, after losing eight straight decisions to the Senators. Lefty Joe Ostrowski pitched six hit ball to gain his first victory of the year.

Brooklyn increased its National League lead to three games over the Cardinals with a 7-2 triumph over St. Louis. Preacher Roe, who shut out the Redbirds earlier this season, beat them again with a 10-hit effort for the Dodgers' eighth straight triumph.

Pee Wee Reese led a 16-hit attack against Howie Pollet and three relief pitchers with three hits. The Dodgers gave Roe perfect field support, coming up with four double plays. The cards, too, came up with a fielding gem—a triple play—only the second in the majors this year. After Jackie Robinson had singled in two runs in the first inning for Brooklyn, Gil Hodges lined to Marty Marion, who threw to Red Schoendienst to catch Carl Furillo at second. A fast relay to Nippy Jones got Robinson off first for the triple killing.

Wally Westlake climaxed a round-the-clock batting day by rapping a ninth-inning double to drive in the tying and winning runs in Pittsburgh's 4-3 victory over the Boston Braves. Westlake previously had hit a homer, triple and single.

Larry Jansen registered his first shutout of the year as the New York Giants defeated the Reds in Cincinnati, 2-0.

Philadelphia Phillies ruined Frankie Frisch's Debuthas manager of the Cubs. They walloped Chicago, 9-2, in the only afternoon clash in the majors.

Norm Thompson Decisions Rizzo In Five Rounds

Toronto, June 15 — (CP) — Brockville's Norm Thompson Tuesday night hammered out a clear-cut, five-round decision over rugged Angelo Rizzo of Niagara Falls in the main event of a 10-bout amateur boxing card here. Both weighed 140 pounds.

Some 2,200 fans saw the Brockville boy, prepping for another crack at lightweight ace Alan McFater, outclass his opponent from the opening bell.

Thompson missed a good chance for a fourth - round knockout when he had Rizzo groggy from a flurry of stiff right and left jabs. However, he couldn't tag him with a solid punch before the bell sounded.

Rizzo, who waged a charging campaign, connected with a few solid jabs in close quarters, but Thompson quickly recovered and forced him away.

There were no knockdowns. Thompson threw Rizzo to the canvas in the fifth while shaking off a clinch but the Niagara Falls battler was uninjured.

In the semi - final event, Kid St. Louis of London, Ont., gained a five - round decision over Maurice Muir of Toronto.

The only knockout of the night was scored by Toronto's Jackie Robinson who disposed of Kid Sarson of Hamilton in the fifth round.

Fred Handley of Barrie fought to a three - round decision over Reg Laveck of Toronto, while Rudy Caravaggie of Peterborough defeated Billy Merritt of Toronto in three rounds.

Another Barrie performer, Don Wallace decisioned Art Naylor of Toronto in three rounds while Bill Peters of Barrie lost a three-round nod to John Sanelli of Toronto.

Bill Chardson of Hamilton, weighing 147 pounds, went a 3-round route to decision Dave Horne of Toronto.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Sweating roustabouts, ebony skin gleaming with rolling sweat, the hum of voices chanting as sledge hammers rising swiftly in the early morning sunlight pounded stakes into the rain-soaked ground; tier after tier of seats rising in sloping heights and all the color and glamor of the circus rolled back Time for a few minutes early yesterday morning. There's something about a circus that prints itself indelibly on the mind whether you are nine or ninety. What small boy of former generations never carried water to the elephants to get in "free?" what youngster of the colorful eras when gaudily-painted wagons with clowns, bands and performers perched on top, never thrilled to the "Grand Parade" with its beautiful girls, horses, equestriennes, pierrots and all the glamorous personalities of the Big Top.

But the modern circus has lost something of those that came into town with the crack 'o dawn and left in the early morning hours. It is mechanized. Nowadays rumbling trucks, gay in color, roar into a town, disgorge their equipment and animals and in less time than you can say "Jack Robinson" a tented city has mushroomed under your very nose. True there are the same jungle cats, swaying elephants, ears flapping lazily in the sun, looking for peanuts; the colorful cowboys and clowns, but still and for all, there is not the same thrill of the days of "Hurry, Hurry, Hurry," the hoarse vocal cacophony of the barkers, the tented sideshows with their freaks and fol-de-rols, the shooting galleries and whatnot, streaming banners flying in the breeze and huge caricatures of the bearded lady, the tattooed man, the human gorilla, flaunting themselves in front of the tents. Ah, "them were the days."

You often hear a sports event referred to as a "natural." That's the category that fits Friday night's wrestling headliner at the Memorial Arena, when Fred Atkins, the hard-rock Australian grappler will collide with Tug Carlson.

• • •

Carlson is the spectacular, blond, Swedish athlete who made such a terrific impression here last week against wild Wee Willie Davis. Tug showed lots of new moves and packs a powerful punch that should give the grim Mr. Atkins plenty of trouble. Carlson not only uses the crowd-pleasing aerial attacks that are so pleasing to the fans and punishing to his opponents, but does it in a particularly sensational fashion. It's nothing for him to zoom ten feet high through the air to deliver a series of his knockout drop-kicks.

• • •

Atkins isn't the least perturbed at the prospect of meeting this sparkling new invader. He classes Carlson as a fair-haired favorite who lacks the smashing qualities to cope with the crushing Atkins' offensives. The action in the ring will have to tell the story of the outcome.

• • •

Al Lovelock, another talented newcomer to these parts, will be back Friday night, this time against John Katan, the crunching clutcher, in the semi-final.

The opener will see speedy Pat Flanagan turn on the heat against the 330-pound, bearded Cardiff Giant.

Indoor swimming activities at the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station wound up in a blaze of natatorial glory the other day when the final meet of the season attracted a large number of swimmers. Lac. Bryant, swim sensation of the season who scored thirty points in winning six events, won top honors and walked away with the all-round swimming championship. Close on Bryant's heels was Flight Cadet Dorland who scored 14 points. Bryant tied the indoor pool record of 25 seconds for fifty yards free style but had to go all out in order to defeat Flying Officer Deane who was a second behind him. Bryant was timed in 58 seconds for the 100 yards free style. Swimming will be resumed at the station in August according to Sergeant L. Albota who did a grand job in organising and assisting in the supervision of the meets.

Gordon MacNeil Non-Playing Capt. Of Davis Cup Team

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association at Montreal Tuesday announced that H. Gordon MacNeil former Canadian doubles champion and Davis Cup player in 1947, will be non - playing captain of the 1949 Canadian Davis Cup team.

Selection chairman Laird Watt picked a veteran in competitive athletics. MacNeil has been a star not only on the courts but in pre - war days was a standout hockey player for the old Montreal Victorias in the Quebec Senior League.

Coincident with his appointment as non - playing captain, his tournament committee announced a list of events across Canada sanctioned by the Association. They include:

Ontario Provincial Senior Open — June 18-25 at Toronto L. T. C.

Ottawa City and District Senior Open — June 18-25 at Ottawa L.T.C.

Northern Ontario Junior—July 4-9 at Bigwin Island T. C.

The first Canadian Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Union playoffs may take place within two years.

The National Conference of Canadian Universities at Halifax Monday approved in principle a report recommending formation of a Dominion - wide C.I.A.A.U. and only approval of the governing bodies of the 30 member universities is needed. The union is expected to be operating by the fall of 1950.

Dr. G. E. Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario and chairman of a five-man committee bringing in the report, said the Union was "almost certain" of becoming a reality with Dominion playoffs possible in two or three years.

At Leeds, Yorkshire, the New Zealand cricket team needed 299 runs in 150 minutes for a victory over England in the season's first test cricket match. But they failed to make it and the 3-day match ended in a draw.

The English eleven, batting first, rolled up a first - inning tally of 372. New Zealand responded with 341. In the second innings England declared at 267 for four wickets.

When stumps were drawn, the visitors had scored 195 for two in their second innings.

Jaroslav Drobny is just a Bourgeois bum to one communist sports editor at Prague.

Drobny, Czechoslovakia's tennis champion for 10 years, lives too comfortable a life and packs too much weight to be in condition, writes Miroslav Hladky, sports editor of the communist youth newspaper, Mlada Fronta. It was the sharpest attack yet made on the chunky, left-handed ace who is one of the world's best tennis players but who bowed to Marcel Bernard of France in the decisive match of the France - Czechoslovakia Davis Cup play the other day in Paris.

Charles B. (Uncle Charley) Moran, 70, former National League baseball umpire, died Tuesday in Kentucky. He retired in 1939 as a National League umpire after spending 23 years in that job. He always took great pride in the umpiring profession and was noted for his famous expression: "It ain't nothing until I call it."

TO Run Camps

Brooklyn, N.Y., June 15 —(CP) —Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League today announced plans for 19 summer baseball training camps, five of them in Canada.

The Canadian camps will be held in Halifax, July 5-7; Edmonton, July 7-9; Regina, July 14-16; Welland, July 19-21 and Lethbridge, Alta., July 21-23.

Buffalo Bisons Increase Margin In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Bob Hooper, 27-year-old righthander who couldn't make the International League with Jersey City in 1947, is one of the main reasons Buffalo Bisons today top the circuit.

Hooper, born at Leamington, Ont., but now a resident of South Orange, N.J., has won six games without incurring a setback.

The former New York Giant farmhand won five games in relief roles and Manager Paul Richards rewarded his fine work by giving him his second shot at a starting role last night after Clem Hausmann shut out Newark 7-0 in the first game of a twin bill.

Hooper responded with a brilliant 6-1, four-hit triumph. The lone Newark run came in the fourth inning when Lou Novikoff belted his ninth homer of the season.

The twin triumphs boosted the Bisons' lead to a game and a half over second-place Jersey City and the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs. The Giants beat the Leafs 5-3 to take over the runner-up slot from the Leafs by six percentage points.

Negro righthander Ford Smith limited Toronto to four hits in besting Lou Possehl who allowed all of the giants' 11 hits and runs.

The fourth-place Montreal Royals turned back the Orioles 8-5 in Baltimore before 25,206 fans who turned out for an Interfaith Charity night.

Chuck Connors paced Montreal's 12-hit attack against a trio of Oriole pitchers with a homer, double and single. Pat McGlothin, with help from Clarence Podbeilan, picked up his fourth victory.

The fifth-place Rochester Red Wings divided a twin bill with the sixth-place Syracuse Chiefs, winning the opener 3-2 but losing the finale 11-5.

Dave Thomas gained credit for the first-game victory. Towering lefthander Hank Perkowski scattered 10 hits and socked a homer to breeze home in the nightcap.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, June 15 (AP)—The morning mail brought 24 pages of mimeographed publicity material about next week's Joe Walcott-Ezzard Charles fight. And a few minutes later drumbeater Harry Mendal was on the phone from Chicago with added details...That may indicate that Mendal is having a hard time selling the fight to Chicago fans or, as Harry claims, that there's a lot of interest in it..."When two fellows are going to fight and its 6 to 5 and when you go down the street and one fellow picks Walcott and the next one picks, Charles, that shows it ought to be a good fight," Mendel proclaimed...And maybe he has something there. Not many heavyweight championship bouts have been rated 6-5 affairs, none since the second Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling fight, which was reasonably interesting to some 62,000 customers...The big difference is that Sharkey and Schmeling didn't emerge as unquestioned contenders until about two years after Gene Tunney retired. Charles and Walcott, besides being "questioned" to some extent, still are under the shadow of Joe Louis..."Of course, neither one is a Louis," Mendel sadly admitted. "Maybe we'd better bring Joe back."...And maybe that's what a lot of folks are waiting for.

Jake Lamotta 8-5 Underdog Against Cerdan

Detroit, June 15 — (AP) — Marcel Cerdan, the carefree fighting man from French Morocco, tonight risks his world middleweight title for the first time against Jake Lamotta, an 8-5 underdog from New York.

Cash from Jake's home city where he has an interest in two small fight clubs, beat down the price on Cerdan who opened a 5-12 choice. It may go even lower by ring time for the 15-round bout at Briggs Stadium, slated to get under way at 11 p. m. EDT.

Lamotta, beaten only once in 15 Detroit appearances, will be the sentimental choice of the crowd.

A house of 20,000 and a gate of about $225,000 is the best guess although Nzlichez, local "promoter" of the International Boxing Club's first title venture, still talks about $300,000. There will be no radio or television and the home folks don't like that.

Heavy showers Tuesday night provided some relief from the stifling heat. The weather man predicted, however, that there was little chance of rain spoiling the show. If it is rained out, the card will be rescheduled for Thursday.

From this corner it looks like Cerdan, largely on the basis of the old cuts around Lamotta's eyes that keep re-opening in every fight. Marcel doesn't hit hard enough to dump Jake but his slashing hooks are just the thing to slice tender brows.

Lamotta has surprising backing from many who criticized his inept performances of the past. The fact remains that granite-jawed Jake never has been knocked off his feet in 88 fights. Beaten, yes, 13 times, including a "knockout" by Billy Fox, Nov. 14, 1947, but never on the deck. Even in the Fox affair, stopped by the referee to save Jake from further punishment, he sagged but refused to go down.

Cerdan lost only three of 99 fights as compared to 13 of 88 for the Bronxite. The only legitimate Cerdan loss was to Cyrille Dellanoit at Brussels, May 23, 1948. The other two were on fouls.

Brighton, Murray S.S. Hold Annual Meeting at Hillier

Wooler.— The annual meeting of the Murray and Brighton townships Sunday Schools, convened in the Hilton United Church on Thursday with afternoon and evening sessions.

Mr. P. D. Stewart of Carman, who has efficiently acted as president for the past six years, gave excellent leadership at both sessions and presided over the interesting and varied program. During the course of his opening remarks he mentioned the fact that the President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, Rev. J. E. Anderson, of Brighton, and the President of the Lay Association, Mr. A. A. Martin, I.P.S., also of Brighton, were in attendance.

Rev. G. S. J. Adams of Hilton, cordially welcomed the visitors.

Mrs. Harold Wiley, secretary-treasurer read the minutes of the last meeting and presented the financial statement and statistical report.

The audience divided into discussion groups, the children's work being led by Mrs. Gordon Chase of Zion; the Teen-Age group by Rev. W. E. Sunter, of Smithfield and the Administrative by Mr. A. A. Martin, Brighton. A brief summary of these groups was presented by the leaders.

Rev. E. E. Pugsley, Norwood, Ontario, religious education committee representative, gave an address on "Where From Here" and explained the "How Do You Rate" as teacher scale after the question sheets had been distributed.

A model worship service was conducted by Mr. Henry Farrow and the Hilton Sunday School.

Mrs. Herman Morrow of Wooler, gave a most interesting demonstration lesson showing the value of flannelgraph in illustrating and teaching lessons to younger groups.

The ladies of the church provided a sumptuous supper in the township hall.

The evening session opened with a brief worship service by the Hilton Sunday School.

The secretary gave the report of the nominating committee, and stated that Stockdale would entertain the 1950 convention.

A panel discussion "Getting Teachers and Training Them" was given by the Wooler Sunday School, those taking part were Mrs. S. L. Terrill, Mrs. B. Vansicklin, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, Mr. Lloyd Dorland and Mr. Douglas R. Fox.

The closing address was given by Rev. E. E. Pugsley on "Are You More than a Sign Post?" This thought-provoking address was a climax, to a most helpful convention.

Rev. G. S. J. Adams installed the officers and closed the convention.

Officers elected:

President, Mr. Lee Floud

Vice President, Mr. Henry Farrow

Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Harold Wiley.

Assistant, Mrs. Herman Morrow

Secretaries of Temperance, Miss Edith Valentine; Missions, Mrs. Hadley Ireland; Teacher Training, Rev. W. G. Fletcher; Young People, Mrs. Harold Pitcher; Boys' Work, Rev W. E. Sunter; Children's Work, Mrs. Gordon Chase; Adult Work, Mr. P. D. Stewart; Home Dept., Rev. F. B. Francis.

MARMORA

Fiery Speeches At Nomination Held in Village

Marmora — The nomination meeting of Hastings Peterborough riding was held in Town Hall Marmora on Monday afternoon. The three candidates nominated were: Liberal—John Wellington (Duke) Munro, Madoc.

Progressive Conservative — George S. White, M. P., Madoc.

C. C. F. — J. Haffey, Trenton.

Reeve Vincent M. Lynch acted as chairman and allotted thirty minutes to each speaker giving Mr. White an extra ten minutes after the other candidates had spoken. William Fraser of Trenton also spoke in support of Mr. Munro. There was a good attendance present who enjoyed the fiery speeches delivered by the candidates and Mr. Fraser.

25,000-YEAR-OLD PRAIRIE IVORY

Relic of prehistoric mastodons which roamed the prairies 25,000 years ago, this giant tusk was unearthed by two boys while plowing a field of their farm near Waukesha, Wis. Joseph G. Emielity, assistant in the Waukesha museum's geology department, and Harvey Mayer, taxidermist, carefully assembled delicate fragments of completed tusk which measures seven feet. Other bone fragments were found by the boys, Thomas and John Edward Bunker, and museum officials believe they are part of the animal's head. (Canadian Press Canadian.)

40th Anniversary 'At Home' is Held By Crookston Couple

Crookston — Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wickens, Crookston, were "At Home" to their friends and relatives on the occasion of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Wickens received her guests wearing a dress of black and silver, with a corsage of ruby roses.

The dining room table was attractively arranged, centred with a three-tier wedding cake, lighted tapers, and pink rose buds.

During the evening, two nieces, Mrs. Clifford Reid and Mrs. Bruce Portt sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold". Little Miss Dawn Cranston entertained the company with several tap dances. These numbers were followed by short addresses by many of the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Wickens expressed their appreciation for the kind words of their friends and also for the beautiful gifts received.

The two sons with their families were present and the guests included relatives from Saginaw, Flint, St. Catharines, Toronto and Oshawa.

M. R. Doyle Recalls His Early Years In Plumbing Trade

Installed First Hot Water System in Picton in 1886

The firm known as the John Lewis Company Limited was started by the late John Lewis in the year 1849 who operated a hardware store for the next fifty years on the site now occupied by McIntosh Brothers. When John Lewis started up business in Belleville, the town had one axe factory, five sash factories, two grist mills, four carriage factories, one organ factory, eight blacksmiths, three woollen mills, four marble works, breweries, and one sewing machine factory.

The first advertisement appeared in the Victoria Chronicle in 1849, a paper that was amalgamated later with the Ontario. Mr. Lewis did a thriving business throughout the surrounding country, and Belleville at that time was a busy town having a population of several thousand people. A year later, in 1850, Belleville became incorporated

Added Other Services

One of Mr. Lewis' staff, the late J. W. Walker started up a hardware store for himself. Later Mr. Lewis moved to the present location and in 1890 decided to add plumbing and heating and sheet metal work to his hardware line and thus built an addition to his store to take care of this part of the business.

Mr. M. R. Doyle, who at this time was working for the late C. F. Smith, was offered a partnership in the business and took charge of the plumbing and heating section. A few months after Mr. Doyle entered the John Lewis Company, the founder, Mr. John Lewis, died, and his two sons Frank and Arthur, retained their interest until 1898 when they sold out their share to Mr. Doyle and Mr. J. B. Reeves. Upon the death of Mr. Reeves a few years later, the entire business was taken over by Mr. M. R. Doyle and his son, Mr. W. J. Doyle. It was incorporated under the name of The John Lewis Company Limited in the year 1947. The owners and officers of the present company are the following: Mr. M. R. Doyle, president, Mr. W. J. Doyle, vice president and Mr. W. R. Doyle, secretary-treasurer.

Taught Apprentices Carefully

Mr. Doyle, a native of Wellington, resides in the city, is well known over all parts of the country. He recalls that plumbing and heating a half-century ago was a far cry from what it is today. Very few houses at that time had bathrooms. A firm advocate of the adage that a skilled craftsman must have theory as well as practice, he always made it a point to show and explain in teaching his apprentices, everything he knew in adherence to this practice. As a result many good plumbers were trained throughout the years in the John Lewis Company's plumbing department. An expert on heating materials for over a half-century, Mr. Doyle still prefers hot water heating in preference to hot air.

He recalls that the first hot water furnace he installed was at the Army Veteran's Hall in Picton in 1886, the radiators being put together by hand in the form of pipe coils. This system is still operating. Mr. Doyle compared the cost of radiation at that time which was .14 cents per square foot to that of today which is approximately .85 cents per square foot. He recalls installing the first commercial refrigeration and the first oil burners installed in this vicinity.

Remembering the day when zinc bathtubs encased in wood were really something, he stated that the first iron tubs came into use less than fifty years ago.

Started Work at 4 a.m.

Referring to the fact that he is propably the oldest living business man on Front Street, Mr. Doyle claims that things are not the same as they were a half century ago. He says that today, business men do not start work until 9:00 in the morning whereas he used to be on the job at 4:00 a.m. or 5:00 a.m. in order to get material ready to have the men on the job at seven o'clock. He stated that there were no unions in those days but believes labor unions to be a good thing. Asked if he approved of the new plumbing by-law set up by the city council, he advised that he thought it was a very good idea, particularly for the customers as they would be assured of better plumbing.

A firm advocate of the former way of life, Mr. Doyle claims that the old days were the best when costs were lower. He claims that building costs today are way out of line but does not blame this altogether on the construction men and tradesmen.

Keeps Up to Date

Although at eighty-three years of age, arthritis keeps Mr. Doyle away from the store, he still has a keen interest in the trade and reads the journals in regard to plumbing and heating and in this way keeps up to date on all the new advances in the plumbing and heating field. Mr. Doyle maintains that the plumbing and heating trade has advanced tremendously and has become a science in itself requiring the services of expert craftsmen. He added that there was nothing in a building that adds more to the comfort and convenience of the occupant than the present day simple and economical system of plumbing. Mr. Doyle states that a low first cost in a plumbing or heating installation is a mistake in economy and that sanitary plumbing is of more real value than medicine.

Long Associations

Mr. Doyle remarked that no business can flourish throughout the years unless you continue to make friends and hold customers. You have to make it a personal business and the better you are known, the more business you will secure. The John Lewis Company has been serving some of the same families for the past four generations.

In the old days practically all shelf hardware, cutlery, pots and pans were imported from England, Belgium, Germany and France, and the company is still doing business with a great many firms that have been in this country for well over the hundred-year mark.

Mr. W. J. Doyle, now general manager of the firm, is a well-known business man in the city. An active Kiwanian, he is very much interested in boys' work.

Mr. W. R. Doyle, secretary-treasurer of the company, took over the active management of the retail store division of the company on his return from overseas service. "Bill," like his dad, is also a member of the Kiwanis Club, married, with two children.

Hero's Burial Given In Turkey to Man Shot in Russia

Istanbul, June 14 — (AP) — Turkey Monday gave a hero's burial to a Turkish diplomatic courier who died of gunshot wounds last week in Russia. The Russians turned the body over to the Turks with a report that he had killed himself. Disbelief of the Russian version was expressed in many Turkisn quarters and the huge military funeral was taken to mean that official Turkey, too, has little or no faith in the Russian story.

Kostov is Expelled 'Underestimated' Soviet Union Role

Sofia, June 14 — (Reuters) — The Bulgarian communist party Central Committee announced today that it had expelled from the party former Vice-Premier Traicho Kostov, once regarded as the most important Bulgarian communist after Premier Georgi Dimitrov. Foreign Minister Vassil Kolarov, writing in the cominform journal two weeks ago, said Kostov had been guilty of "underestimating the decisive role of the Soviet Union."

RIDING ON RUNNING BOARD MAN FATALLY INJURED

Woodstock, June 15 (CP) — Pinned under a car when it overturned near Paris, Cecil Jushchuk of Princeton died Monday night three hours after being admitted to Paris hospital. Jushchuk was riding on running board of car driven by Charles Tomblin of Paris when it swerved and overturned, police said. Two others on the running board jumped clear.

Provincial Vote In B. Columbia Today

— British Columbians tomorrow vote to elect a provincial government after a campaign enlivened by the federal election that follows within two weeks.

Polls open Wednesday at 8 a. m. PDT (11 a.m. EDT) and close at 8 p. m. (11 p. m. EDT). There are 48 legislative seats at stake.

In this provincial election, the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives are united in opposing the C. C. F. The electorate must choose between putting the C.C.F. in power or continuing under a fusion government of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

Both the coalition and C.C.F. have named candidates for each of the ridings. Altogether a total of 138 candidates are seeking election, including 16 Social Credit party representatives 12 Union of Electors, two Labor Progressives and eight Independents.

In the last legislature 36 coalitionists were elected, headed by Premier Bryon Johnson, Liberal party leader, and Finance Minister Anscomb, Progressive Conservative party chief.

Harold Winch led an opposition force of 11 C. C. F. There was also one Labor member.

Coalition forces contend that government under the C.C.F. will stifle B. C. at a time when she faces tremendous expansion; and that communism lurks behind the C.C.F. cloak.

The C. C. F. claims that the coalition government is set to sign away B. C. resources and that it has bungled such matters as the three-per-cent sales tax, social security measures and labor legislation.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — A group of friends and neighbors, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Moran about 11:30 on Friday evening, for a charivari. After a noisy half hour or so, the newlyweds invited the gathering into the house where ice cream and cakes were served.

Mrs. Raymond Wallace and son George and sister, Miss Ann Stan, of London, were weekend guests of Mr. Arthur Wallace.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cooper spent the weekend in Bancroft.

Harry Lohnes has come up with one for the Frankford sportsmen to try for. On a woodchuck hunt last week, he bagged six chucks with five shots.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ivey and Mr. and Mrs. James Young of Campbellford were weekend guests of Mr. Hiram Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill McFarland and daughter Beverly, of Trenton, were weekend guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Martha McFarland.

Mr. and Mrs. James McFarland and son Larry of Brighton, were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. James McFarland and son of Brighton were Sunday guests of Mrs. Martha McFarland.

The Evening Auxiliary of the Frankford United Church will hold their meeting on Friday evening, June 17, at the home of Mrs. Preston Chase.

A number of folks from Frankford attended the Air Force Open Day Saturday, in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Solmes and family were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Patrick of Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Heldman, Mr. and Mrs. Sarl Heldman and daughter of Kitchener were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Heldman in Batawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Patrick of Frankford were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Patrick in Batawa.

A great number of visitors from Stirling, Trenton, Belleville and other neighboring towns took advantage of the facilities offered by the Frankford Tourist Park Sunday. This is one of the few places in the district that offers not only a good picnic grounds, with picnic tables provided, but children and adults have an excellent bathing location. The town council has done a great deal in fixing up this park, and the greatest way in which appreciation can be shown to them, is by using it.

A large crowd from Frankford and Batawa attended the Oshawa-Batawa baseball game in Belleville Saturday night.

Mr. Arthur Duncan was the speaker at a combined Sunday School and Church Service Sunday morning, June 12. He told a fine story to the children, which he illustrated as he went along.

A dancing recital took place Friday evening at St. Peter's School in Trenton, and a number from Batawa attended. Among those attending were Misses Ann Pearce, John Heldman, Arla and Joyce Woodcox, Linda Patrick, Mr. Rose and Miss Sharon Wannamaker, and Mr. Sandy Ponech.

Messrs. Wayne Arbuckle and Arnold Westlake were Sunday afternoon guests of Gene Lohnes.

Mr. Arnold Creaser of Toronto, stopped for a short time in Frankford, on his way to Ivanhoe, where he conducted Sunday services, in the four United Shurches on that charge.

The Young Peoples' Union of the Frankford United Church held a wiener roast Monday evening at the farm of Mr. Frank Smith. Mrs. Smith's daughter Shirley is president of the Y.P.U.

Special Anniversary Services were held Sunday morning and evening in Stockdale at the United Church.

Harold Ferguson of Lyndhurst spent the weekend in Frankford visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ferguson.

The Final High School Dance, held in the Community - Memorial Hall was quite successful, in spite of the very warm weather Friday night. A large crowd turned out to dance to the music of Austins' Arcadians.

W. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Frankford United Church W. A. took place at the home of Mrs. T. Lackey. The theme was "The Church, and the Home." The Scripture was read by Mrs. Budd Patrick. Mrs. Finnigan welcomed the visitors and the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

A letter of thanks from Mrs. Welbourne was read. Johnstown W. A. has invited Frankford to their meeting July 13, with Frankford to supply two numbers for the program.

The program consisted of a reading, "June", by Mrs. Raymond Rowe, a vocal solo, "Does Jesus Care" by Mrs. D. Acton, a reading by Mrs. Gerald Carlisle, a reading by Mrs. Preston Chase, a piano solo by Beverley Acton. Mrs. Finnigan announced that the next W. A. would be held June 17 at the home of Mrs. Preston Chase. The U. R. Welcome Group is to be held at the home of Mrs. J. Bleecker June 15. The Mizpah Benediction was followed by grace. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. H. Lackey, Mrs. Budd Patrick, Mrs. Harold Terry and Mrs. Bert Bush.

Batawa W. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Batawa United Church W. A. took place Wednesday afternoon in the Lounge Room of the Recreation Hall, with Mrs. Thomas Tilley, president, in charge. The Scripture lesson and thought were given by Mrs. H. Lackey. Minutes of the last meeting were read, and the treasurer's report was given.

The Congregational Picnic is to be held next month, one third of which expense will be paid by the W. A.

Mrs. Tony Machala introduced the special guest speaker for the afternoon. Mrs. Small who gave a very interesting talk. A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Arthur Duncan.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District — The Sidney Sunday School Convention was held in Sidney Baptist Church on Tuesday afternoon and evening. Mr. G. Sarles and Mrs. R. Filyer representing White's Sunday School, conducted the afternoon devotional period. Mrs. G. Meyers sang a solo, "Suffer Little Children", accompanied by Mrs. W. A. Jeffery. Mr. W. A. Jeffery and Mr. Donald Sandercock attended the evening session.

W. I.

The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held their June meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Clapp of Wooler Road on Wednesday evening with a good attendance. Mrs. Badgley, Institute speaker, gave an account of a meeting held at Guelph recently.

Mrs. C. Rush was a Friday visitor of her daughter, Mrs. Murney Jeffery of Aiken's' District.

A large representative crowd from this district attended Air Force Day at RCAF Station, Trenton on Saturday afternoon.

Rain is badly needed in this district for all crops including strawberries which are just beginning to ripen.

A number in this vicinity are suffering from summer colds.

Assistant Manager.

Dear Mr. Doyle:

One hundred years is a long time, and it is a particularly long time for a firm to have given uninterrupted service to its community. For this reason your Company are to be congratulated for having completed your first Century of service to the good people of Belleville and vicinity.

We ourselves are now in our 96th year, and for that reason feel well qualified to extend our felicitations to you - and out of our own experience to venture the remark that, if your Company had not given good service to your community during those hundred years, you could not have survived so long and progressed so well.

That this is the case, we know of our own experience - and that is one of the reasons why we look with pleasure and pride, back over our many years of association with you in business, as well as our pleasant personal relations with the members of your firm.

With the hope that your progress, with that of your Town, may continue - and that we, by continuing to supply you with Clare-Hecla Furnaces and Clare Winter Air Conditioning Units, may have our part in that progress, we are,

Yours truly,

FCC/DB

CLARE BROS. & CO. LIMITED

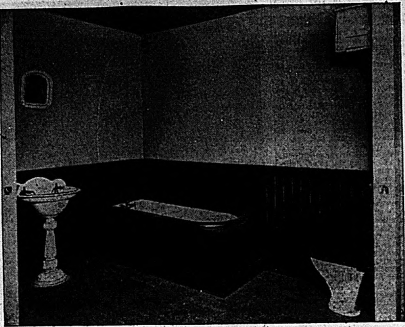
A TYPICAL MODERN BATHROOM INSTALLED BY THE JOHN LEWIS CO.



THE OLD TIME BATHROOM.

Bath Tubs Are Comparatively Recent Household Necessity; One American City Prohibited Winter Bathing in 1843

History shows that there are evidences of bathing as far back as record go. Using a Biblical reference is an example, bear in mind the baths of purification ordered by Moses. The ancient Arab, realizing that keeping clean was keeping fit, used a sand rub to cleanse himself.

To the Romans probably goes the most credit for realizing the advantages of a sanitary bath. In the days of Nero and Caesar, bathing reached greater proportions, and undoubtedly, this fact was, in part, largely responsible for the excellent health enjoyed by the citizens of old Rome.

But while bathing has been in evidence for thousands of years, it remained to the master minds of this generation to put home bathing on a truly sanitary basis.

In '43, Philadelphia passed a law prohibiting bathing between November 1st and March 15th. In 1845, Boston made bathing unlawful unless prescribed by a physician. The state of Virginia went them one better in 1845 by imposing a tax of $30 per year on every bath tub.

Recent Development

These historical facts seem incredible, yet sanitation, after all, is but a recent development. There are still a large number of people even in this country who have not been fully educated to the healthful advantages of the bath. Which reminds one of a rather interesting and amusing story of an Ohio lawyer who went to Columbus a few years ago. When he registered at the hotel, the clerk asked him whether he preferred a room with a bath or not. He thought a minute, rubbed his chin, and replied, "No, I reckon not. I'll be home by Saturday night."

To add a few more statistics, as late as 1860 none of the New York hotels had more than one bath tub. As late as 1920, 3,300 tenants in Boston threatened to vacate their living quarters, because no bath tubs were provided.

It is only by enjoying the highest possible degree of health that humanity can carry on the work of highly developed modern civilization. It is to this end that modern sanitary plumbing plays such an important role. Cleanliness of body and environment, the avoidance of disease, is a direct result of modern sanitation.

Too Few Bath Tubs

As said before, it is unfortunate, though true, that there are thousands of people who do not realize the value of modern plumbing and sanitation. In a recent survey, made in one city block of New York City it was found that only one bath tub was available to 1700 people. It is obvious that in a situation of this kind, crime, disease, and degeneration will flourish with deadly results.

In some cases, in the dwellings of abject poverty, one can understand why there is no modern, sanitary plumbing. It is only in cases of this kind, however, that any excuse whatsoever can be offered. For food, clothing and sanitation are of equal importance, and modern, sanitary plumbing is more truly important to comfortable health than even walls and a roof — not to speak of furniture and player pianos. The war taught a great lesson to humanity. It definitely established for all time, that the frequent bath was almost indispensable for securing the fullest measure of good health. Health and sanitation go hand in hand—this is practically the unanimous verdict of all medical and health authorities. This only emphasizes the fact that sanitary plumbing is an investment which daily pays rich dividends in good health.

Good Investment

The average person will jump at the chance to invest time or money in a venture to make more money. Is it not of greater importance for that reason to invest something in good health in order to sit back and enjoy what he has accumulated of this life's goods?

Don't be like the man who was persuaded to order a bath tub during the heat of August, and who refused to accept a delayed shipment in October on the grounds that the article was now of no use to him, since the bathing season was over.

By being a booster for sanitation—you'll not only keep feeling fit all the time — but you'll help others get on the road of health and happiness.

Rugged Old Sea Captain Passes After Life Full of Adventures

Montreal, June 14 (CP)—As Lionel A. Forsyth, former Montreal lawyer now executive president of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, tells it, life with his father was never dull—whether it was running the tricky gales around the Horn or tangling with U-boats.

Monday, son Lionel told in an interview of the exploits of Captain E. Acard Forsyth, one of the last of Nova Scotia's famed master mariners in sail who died in Portland, Ore., last week at 88.

Capt. Forsyth sold his first command when only 21—and his last sailing ship was the widely-known Harvest Queen, which sank in 1910. After that, the "old man" captained steamships in the Atlantic and Pacific until he retired.

From start to finish it was one of those adventures you read about in sea stories. There was the time Capt. Forsyth defied the U. S. navy to stop and pick up survivors. There was the time he tangled with the most famous U-boat in the Kaiser's fleet.

Capt. Forsyth did manage to stay out of a good deal of trouble—largely because he was six-feet tall and weighed a solid 260 pounds.

His most famous command was the S.S. Kansan, a U.S. steamship which was stopped by the U-55 during the First World War. It was before the U.S entered that war and the captain managed to talk down the German submarine captain.

Now Capt. Forsyth's ashes will be brought back to Nova Scotia and will be buried on Mount Denson beside the bones of many contemporaries who went to sea with him in sail.

The seafaring tradition is not dead in the Forsyth family. One son is Capt. A. O. Forsyth of San Francisco.

LIGHTNING BOLT FIRES DYNAMITE, KILLING TWO

Valmeyer, Ill., June 14 — (AP) — A bolt of lightning which struck a high voltage power line yesterday set off a charge of dynamite in a limestone mine, causing the death of two men.

3RD HILLIER

3rd Hillier — Mr. Chas. Benway and Mr. Clark Clapp of Hillier, attended the Masonic banquet at Consecon, on Friday evening.

The Hillier Institute entertained the Institutes of the county at the Convention held at Hillier Town Hall and the United Church on Thursday last. Mrs. W. D. Bedell, of Picton, gave the address of welcome, Dinner was served at the town hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tucker of Port Hope spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Benway.

Mr. Roy Hamilton is out again this season with his hay bailer. Several of the farmers use this way each year.

Stage Coaches Tally-Ho Along Piccadilly

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 15 (CP)—It's tally-ho again along Piccadilly and the Strand.

Through the west end streets crowded with double-decked buses and honking taxis, red-coated drivers manoeuvre Pickwickian stage-coaches drawn by four springly horses.

The idea is to earn dollars by showing tourists London't sights from the lofty perch of a coach-and-four.

A pair of enterprising Welsmen, Ivor Evans and Bill Parry-Jones, thought up the plan.

Fustle and Bustle

Great commotion attends the thrice-daily departure of the tourist-laden coaches. Outside a Kensington hotel appropriately named Milestone, crowds gape as grooms garbed in grey toppers and scarlet jackets scurry about making ready the century-old coaches.

For all the world they might be setting out for a dangerous passage of the highwayman-ridden Brighton post road. But the sightseers' journey is less than 10 miles.

The coaches accommodate 12 passengers on top and four in the enclosed compartment. A long portable iron ladder aids topside passengers to their seats. The ladies, particularly, note how inappropriate is modern dress to the travel mode of a past age.

Silver Whistle

The tolypoly driver mounts the box, gathers up the reins, flourishes his whip. At the rear, the footban precariously leaning out from his perch lifts to his lips a five-foot long silver posh-horn.

The venerable coach groans and jolts, then rattles away at a full four miles an hour.

At traffic intersections, the London "bobbies" smile tolerantly as they wave the contraption on through Hyde Park, along Piccadilly, past Trafalgar Square, the Houses of Parliament, Westminster Abbey, Buckingham Palace.

Old Hands

Although the art of coachingis fast dying out, Evans and Parry-Jones have rounded up a group who know their stuff. These leather-faced veterans retain much of the scrappiness that in the heyday of coaching made them the fighting cocks of the open road. They love to tell of old highway rivalries, throw up their hands at mention of the impersonal monotony of motorized traffic.

One of the drovers is George (Yorky) Wilson, a coachman for half a century. Eavh year he drives the Lord Mayor of London in his golden coachfl for the traditional Lord Mayor's show.

GREEN PRESIDENT

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP) — The president of a bowling club staggered players at a green here by asking them how to play the game. He explained that he came from a remote district which was laying out its first green and although elected president of the new club, had never seen a game in his life.

2ND THURLOW

2nd Thurlow—Mr. Fred Mitchell spent Friday in Toronto where he attended a meeting of the milk producers.

The entrance pupils and grade 7 of S. S. No. 7-4-3-1 and 20 with their teachers enjoyed a bus trip to Peterborough where they visited the Quaker Oat Company and other places of interest while there.

Murphy Paint Co. Has Enjoyed Long Era Of Prosperity and Expansion Since 1865

The Murphy Paint Company Limited is proud of its connection in Belleville, and it joins the many friends of the well-known local firm of John Lewis Company, its distributor, in extending sincere good wishes for continued prosperity on the occasion of its centenial celebration.

At this time, a sketch of the Murphy Paint Company from its inception should prove of interest to all users of the firm's products. From a humble beginning in 1865—76 years ago—the company now serves Canadians from coast to coast, and satisfied customers are responsible for its substantial growth from year to year.

Back in the years when the great statesmen of Canada were giving birth to this great Dominion, a young Scotsman by the name of McCaskill was also giving thought to building another great Canadian enterprise.

In the year 1865, he commenced manufacturing varnishes, and since that time there has been a continuation of the business under various names.

In the last seventies, another enterprising young man was coming along in the paint industry and in the limited and very small varnish industry in Canada, in the person of J. H. Dougall.

Partnership Formed

About 1885, twenty years after Mr. McCaskill had been manufacturing varnishes, he brought Mr. Dougall into his employ and subsequently a few years later, a partnership was entered into and the company known as McCaskill, Dougall & Company, which partnership continued until Mr. McCaskill's death. The company's name continued to be the same until 1908, when the company became a limited company, under the name The Dougall Varnish Company Limited.

At the same time as Mr. McCaskill was commencing his business, another young Ulsterman from Ballamena was building up the varnish business in the United States, at Newark, New Jersey. This young man, Franklin Murphy, was also destined to go places, not only in the varnish business, but in the political and fraternal world, subsequently rising to be the Senator Murphy and the Dean of the Senate of New Jersey.

His company, the Murphy Varnish, were interested in obtaining a Canadian connection, and in 1913 purchased the active interest in the Dougall Varnish Company. In 1924 the Murphy Varnish Company of Newark, New Jersey, felt that the Canadian Company should receive a certain amount of benefit from their advertising in American trade papers, and it was decided to change the Company's name from the Dougall Varnish Company Limited to the Murphy Varnish Company of Canada Limited.

Stock Purchased

In 1928, negotiations were commenced by the Thorp-Hambrock Company Limited to purchase the stock of the Canadian company from the American interests, and this was subsequently consumated. As a great many Canadians had the idea that the Murphy Varnish Company did not manufacture paint, the new interests subsequently changed the name from the Murphy Varnish Company of Canada, Limited, to The Murphy Paint Company Limited, which name is now being maintained.

During the 76 years of continuous business, the company has enjoyed the confidence of many of the leading industries in Canada. When the engine, "Countess of Dufferin," pulled the first C.P.R. passenger train into Winnipeg, it was finished throughout by material manufactured by the Dougall Varnish Company who, at that time, were the only Canadian manufacturers of railway finishing varnishes in the country.

When the C.P.R. Jubilee Train and the Royal Train traversed Canada, these two were likewise finished in materials supplied by the successors to the old Dougall Varnish, thereby keeping intact the close connection established with the building of the country from the earliest days.

Old Customer

A few years ago, when the author of this article was visiting Bermuda, a Mr. Gauntlett, proprietor of Gauntlett & Sons, and son of the original owner of Gauntlett & Sons, showed a McCaskill Dougall invoice for carriage finishing materials, dated 1884, and this firm, too have been continuous users of Dougall and Murphy products since that time to this day.

In Quebec City, Arthur Dion, present proprietor of Jos. Dion Reg'd., proudly shows a varnish panel, which was varnished with Dougall varnish way back in 1896, and which panel is still in a very fine state of preservation and finish.

Coming down to modern times, the directors of The Murphy Paint Company Limited, decided back in 1930 to go into the retail dealer field, as well as to maintain their railway and industrial connections, and in the interval, their products have become internationally known and the progress that has been made in this field has been, it is believed, greater than any other Canadian paint and varnish manufacturer.

Today, Murphy paints and Narvo are accepted as outstanding household painting materials and many institutions and residences have been finished throughout with our products.

Plant Expanded

So great has been the demand for Murphy paint and Narvo that two years ago the company built a one-and-a-half million dollar factory in Toronto, which factory is the most modern paint and varnish factory in the world. At Windsor, Ontario, the company maintains a factory devoted to the manufacture of automobile finishes and last year, in Vancouver, another factory was built to take care of the Pacific Coast trade.

It is a long way back to 1865, but the progress of this company is a source of great pride to all associated with it, whether they are directors, or factory workers, or salesmen, or dealers, and each and every one connected with the manufacturing of, or who sells, these products are looking with confidence to greater and brighter prospects in the future.

Fast-Vanishing Culture Recorded On B.C. Coast

By NORMAN MICHIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver (CP) — Mildred Valley Thornton describes herself as a woman engaged in recording an ancient culture fast disappearing before the modern influence.

For 20 years she has catalogued with brush the faces of Canada's Indians and their fast-vanishing heritage of colorful tradition. Indians from the prairies to the isolated, rugged inlets of the northern British Columbia coast speak of her as "Owas-Ka-Ta-Esk-Ean" — she who puts forth her utmost ability on behalf of us Indians.

She has amassed a huge collection of oil portraits of the strong, proud chiefs and the crafty wi.. old women. Her taste runs to the really old — the ones who cherish the almost-forgotten culture and hate to see it fade away.

Her brush had preserved weird barbaric rites, some of which are still practised among B.C. Indians despite laws forbidding them. Totems and symbols carved with skill and patience no longer found among the tribesmen, and ceremonial garments whose meaning is all but forgotten are included.

The true native culture, she says, is being lost in its last North American stronghold—the tribes along the coast in isolated settlements where the white man seldom visits.

Before the war there were still Indians who would, with infinite patience and craftsmanship, work a piece of black slate into an intricate totem.

Take Up Fishing

But the dissolution of the Japanese fishing monopoly in coast waters and the disappearance of the Japanese fleet set them to practising another vocation that they followed generations ago.

"And who's going to sit down and carve a totem to sell the white tourist at 50 cents when they can make $8,000 to $20,000 a year with a boat and net?" she asked.

The return of the Indian to his original dignity among men is one of the chief concerns of Mrs. Thorton. Recently granted the provincial franchise in B.C., the native already has some candidates in the field.

"A lot of them are not ready for it," the artist said, "but then a lot of white people are not ready even after all the educational advantages that have been denied the Indians.

As a woman who has lived with Indians and counts them amongst her best friends, Mrs. Thornton is deeply annoyed at any suggestion that they are a lazy race.

"When you consider they worked and lived, and the things they created with their rough tools before they were contaminated by the white man, you must realize that no lazy or indifferent people could have done it."

To remedy this condition will continue to be the work of Owas-Ka-Ta-Esk-Ean. After an art exhibit here she will go on to paint among the Piegans of the Blackfoot Confederacy in Alberta, the Blood reserve at Cardston, Alta., and return through the Kootenay reservations near Cranbrook, B.C.

In addition to a few more portraits to hang in her belt, the energetic artist will collect folklore and customs which will eventually be published.

SPANISH PRINCE AND HIS LESSONS

Fair-haired Prince Juan Carlos de Bourbon, 11, son of the pretender to the Spanish throne, at present living in exile in Lisbon, has just passed successfully his first examination in Madrid, where, by mutual agreement between his father, Don Juan, and General Franco, he has been since last autumn, being educated. He is reported to have made marvellous progress, and he was one of about 200 boys of his own age who took the examination at the Institute de San Isidro. Here the young prince reads a composition as part of his examination.—Central Press Canadian.

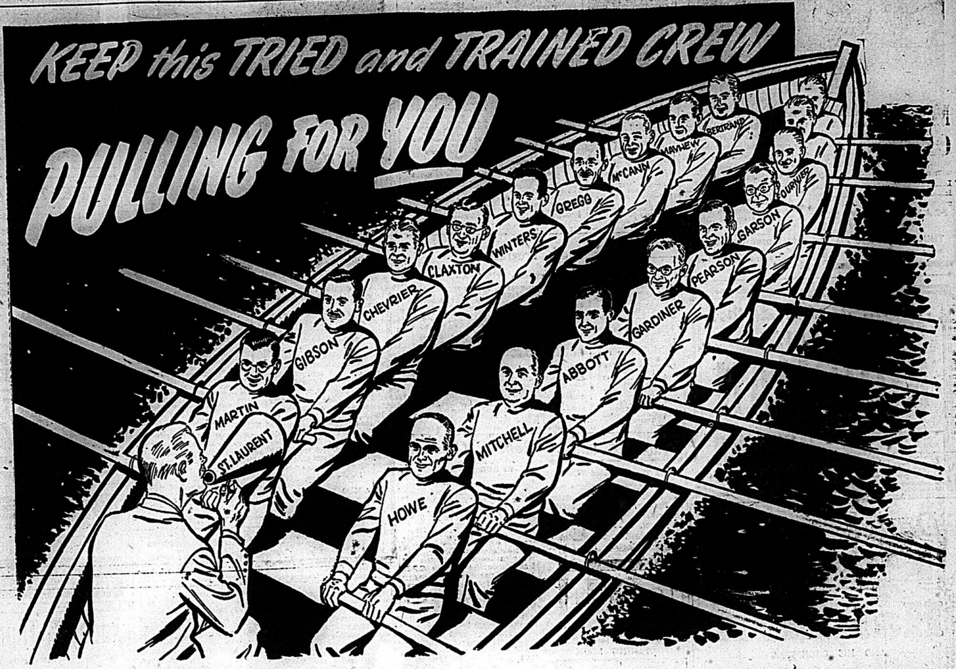
Rev. Mr. Trumpour of Canifton, was a Friday visitor of Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Lougheed.



ON JUNE 27th, the people of Canada will elect a new Parliament. The party that wins a majority in that Parliament will form the new Government, with its leader as Prime Minister.

The Prime Minister will then appoint his Cabinet of Ministers. Each Minister will be responsible for an important phase of our nation's life and destiny.

Canada needs a strong, experienced Cabinet of Ministers for the uncertain years ahead. The only party that can give such sound leadership is the Liberal party. It has a tried and trained crew of administrators, ready for the big job of building a better, more prosperous Canada.

The Liberal cabinet is a well-balanced fusion of mature experience and youthful, capable, vigorous drive. It contains men from every region in Canada — men from farms, from the ranks of labour, from the professions, and from business.

No other party could produce such a truly all-Canadian cabinet . . . representing all classes . . . all creeds . . . all provinces.

When you vote, remember — Canada needs the smooth-working, experienced Liberal cabinet — NOT a headstrong "one-man band", beating a tune called by forces outside of Parliament — NOT a group of starry-eyed theorists eager to make Socialistic guinea pigs of 13,000,000 Canadians . . . including you.

Vote LIBERAL for the kind of leadership that has made Canada prosperous . . . and can make it more prosperous still.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 15 — (AP)—Charles Laughton lumbered into a room marked "Tumor board" and faced a dozen veterans, at least one of whom has only a few weeks to live.

"I guess I came to the right place with this tumor," he smiled, holding his massive belly.

The men and women laughed and he introduced himself to each of them. To one wheel - chaired woman named Jenny he recited the poem "Jenny Kissed Me" and then kissed her. This was the face that launched the Mutiny on the Bounty.

Laughton took a book from under his army and read a scene from:— "Midsummer Night's Dream."

"Did you know Shakespeare was less than 30 years old when he wrote this?" he asked.

Patients Participate

He did another scene from the play with one of the women patients. Then he had a six - foot former flier enact Lady MacBeth to his MacBeth.

For a finish, the actor recited two scenes from "Julius Caesar." For 25 minutes the hospital rang with the words of Brutus, Cassius, Marc Antony and other Roman citizens.

As one of the veterans filed out of the room, he commented to a buddy, "That's the first time Shakespeare made any sense to me."

Laughton has long made a practice of reading the bard and the Bible to veterans, but this was the first he he the first time he allowed a member of the press along. A naturally shy person, he sighed afterwards, "I suppose after doing this sort of thing for years, I'm not afraid of anybody."

PRECEDED AZTECS

At least two highly civilized Mexican races--the Mayas and later the Toltecs--preceded the Aztec empire conquered in 1521 by the Spanish.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Even a beginner learns quickly that game in a major suit takes only ten tricks. They ask me "why is it then that a jump takeout to a major suit must promise six tricks?"

An opening of one spade or one heart shows five. If partner makes a jump takeout to the other major why does it require six? Everybody knows that either major needs only ten tricks for game.

The answer is that a takeout means a different suit. Neither partner has announced which suit has been decided as their combined trump. They may finally decide on a minor suit needing 11.

A jump is a signal that says the player sees tricks enough for a game of some kind in the pair. Unless the trump denomination has been settled, neither knows what suit they will end at.

South opens with a heart when north holds this hand:

♠K Q 7 5
♥A 10 9 6
♦K J 5
♣7 6

With support for the suit bid by partner, north may assume they will wind up in hearts. But in the order of choice of bids, takeout comes first. Immediate north response is takeout to spades.

Because of this response the trump suit has not been announced. So far as south knows, the final contract may end in some suit not yet mentioned. With only five tricks, north does not jump takeout.

But suppose north did not have a biddable spade suit takeout. Having heart support he would assist. With only five tricks he could jump assist. The agreed trump suit is a major needing only 10 tricks.

The idea is this: Until the trump suit has been announced by an assist, assume the worst. That is, assume you need enough tricks for a minor suit trump until your pair decides it is a major.

Partner's jump takeout to any suit is a promise of six tricks or more. His immediate jump assist in a major needs only five. Some never know when they have enough.

JOE WOULD YOU MIND WALKING A LITTLE SLOWER?
AM I WALKING TOO FAST FOR YOU?
YOU'RE RACING. I'M ALL OUT OF BREATH TRYING TO KEEP UP WITH YOU
SORRY. DIDN'T REALIZE IT
IF YOU'RE WALKING WITH ME, PLEASE WALK WITH ME, AND NOT THREE FEET AHEAD OF ME
I THOUGHT WE COULD HAVE A NICE WALK TOGETHER, JUST TAKING IT EASY, ENJOYING IT WELL, AREN'T WE?

PENNY By Harry Haenigsen

JEEPS, THE ORDER OF MY DANCES WILL HAVE TO BE CHANGED.
WHY, PENNY!
IT'S BRUZ, CARY AND EEL. I'LL HAVE TO REARRANGE IT TO BRUZ, EEL AND THEN CARY.
BRUZ IS THE SMOOTHEST DANCER IN TOWN, CARY'S THE WORST SHIN-KICKER, WHILE EEL'S JUST PRETTY BAD.
FROM BRUZ TO CARY IS TOO MUCH OF A JOLT, BUT WITH EEL IN BETWEEN I CAN GET CONDITIONED GRADUALLY.

SYRIAN HOMES ALONG THE KHABOUR RIVER ARE WINDOWLESS AND HAVE ONLY ONE DOOR. THEIR THICK WALLS RESIST HEAT AND COLD.
THE FIRST CATERPILLAR MACHINE WAS DRAWN BY A HORSE.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching ma sewing on her sewing machine, and I said, Hay, ma?

I'm trying to get these seems strate, ma said, and I said, I just want to ask you one question, ma. Can you think of a word that is not in the dictionary? I said.

If a werd is not in the dictionerry it's prabebly not nice to even think about it, ma said, and I said, sure it is, ma, I mean a nice respectable werd like they teech in school.

Any werd you're tawt in school is sure to be in the dictionerry, ma said, and I said, Do you meen according to law, ma?

I meen acording to grammar, ma said, and I said, Well I bet I can tell you 2 werds that are not in the dictionerry. What do you bet I can't, ma I said.

Now don't start that betting bizzness, ma said, and I said, Okay, ma, I'll tell you without betting. One werd is "not" in the dictionerry meening absilutey not, and the other werd is "knott" in the dictionary like a knott in a shoe lace, I said.

Sutch a riggamarole, both werds are actually in the dictionerry, just as I said, ma said and I said, Sure they are, ma bnt they're both not in there too, not knott, aint they, ma? I said.

Now listen, did you hear me say I'm rying to get these seams strate? ma said, and I said, Then will you admit they're both not knott in the dictionerry?

Oh yes, yes, now good gye, ma said. Meening for me to at least get out of the room.

Which I did.
